Win No. 21

Stanley Structures pulled farther in front of the rest of the league Wednesday with a 5-2 win over Jim's Pizzeria. The win makes it impossible for any other team in the Gas House Hockey League to catch them while the loss by Jim's makes it almost impossible for them to catch fifth place Constellation Carpets in the standings. Both Jim's and Constellation have two games remaining in the regular schedule.

The win was the 21st of the season for Stanley while the loss was Jim's 12th. Bob Wludkya, Ron Fuller, Ray Summers, Rob Harrington and Russ Harrington score one goal each for Stanley. Wayne Storms drew four assists.

Mike Evans and John Maloney replied for Jim's.

Top Teams in Quinte Tournament

It looks as though every team is going to be out to beat Belleville Collegiate this Saturday in the annual Quinte Saints Junior Invitational Basketball Tournament.

BCI goes into the eight team competition as the pre-tournament favorite.

"They're experienced, and well coached," said tournament convener, Paul Paddon.

"They'll be the team to beat," he added.

BCI has recorded 37 wins in 42 regular season and exhibition starts this season. Currently they are unbeaten in the east division of the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Boy's Basketball League, standings.

Included in their list of winnings this season are three tournament championships and a consolation title. The BCI squad won consolation honors last weekend at the Orillia Blackball Tournament. They took top honors at the Napanee Tournament, for the third consecutive year, the Cobourg East-West Tournament, for the fourth consecutive year, and their own BCI Invitational.

The locals have had strong perfomances from starters Mitch Hannah and Mike Kirby all season, but in recent games have had extra strength through the showing of John Guthrie and Bruce Milliken. Guthrie particularly, has developed into a scoring threat, while Milliken has consistently produced points in the low double figures.

Nicholson has been somewhat of a surprise in regular season action this year. The Junior Nicks weren't expected to be as strong as they are since they are mainly first year players. As an unknown commodity in tournament action, they could very well grab up Quinte honors. Currently they are battling it out with Moira for second place in the east division standings of the Bay of Quinte League.

At the Adam Scott Green and White tournament in Peterborough, the Nicks rolled up an impressive record to bring the championship home with them.

BCI's biggest challenge however, should come from Quinte Secondary School. The Saints are undefeated in regular season action in the Bay of Quinte west division. The host school has an intimidating starting line-up with four of their five starters sporting a double-figure average. Brian Hamilton is the club's leading point-getter with an average of 21 points a game. Steve Jones, Rick Gray and Al Rutherford all carry averages between 10 and 15 points a game.

Moira has the potential to take the Quinte title. Led by Scott Sisson, the Trojans have been steadily coming on since Christmas, and are fighting with Nicholson for the final playoff berth.

The remaining four teams are from out-of-town. Peterborough Collegiate, Stayner from Orillia, Frontenac from Kingston, and Oshawa Central will all be looking for the championship. All four have a good shot at it. Oshawa, Peterborough and Stayner are ranked number one in their respective areas and Frontenac comes touted as number two from Kingston.

The tournament, this year, is being sponsored by the Belleville Yardmen and admission rates are $1 for adults, 75 cents for students without ID cards and 50 cents for students with ID cards.

First round action gets under way at 8 a.m. when Quinte takes on Moira. At 9:15 Nicholson meets Frontenac, at 10:30 Oshawa faces Peterborough and at 11:45 BCI plays Stayner. The Grand Championship is scheduled for 9 p.m.

School Volleyball Titles Are Decided

Madoc Township and V. P. Carswell of Trenton came out victorious in the Hastings County Junior Volleyball Tournament held recently at Queen Victoria School. Madoc finished atop the girls division and Carswell came up with first place in the boys division. The tournament was for grade five and six students.

Madoc edged Queen Victoria in the final 11-15, 15-12 and 15-11 to take the championship. It was the second time in the tournament the host school had lost to the Madoc squad. In earlier going Madoc combined a win over Queen Victoria and a bye to advance to the tournament final. Queen Victoria, on the other hand, battled back to finish on top of Sir John A. Mcdonald Frankford and Hermon Public Schools. That left them tied with Cannifton. The two schools played off and Queen Victoria won giving them the right to advance to the final against Madoc.

In boys action Queen Victoria won three consecutive games to catch a pot in the finals. The host team just ran out of steam for the final however, as V. P Carswell took the championship in two straight matches.

BCI Needs Overtime To Take Senior Match

NAPANEE (Special) — Belleville Collegiate (BCI) swept three games from Napanee District here, Tuesday night. The seniors had one of their tougher battles of the season as they edged the home team 57-51 in overtime.

Larry Wilson socred 15 for BCI and Russ Simonds had 14. Pat Da Silva replied with 14 for Napanee and Terry Thompson got 12.

In the other two games, BCI clobbered the Napanee juniors 75-49 and the home town midgets lost to the visitors 50-22.

Napanee was behind by seven at the half of the junior contest, but couldn't keep up with BCI in the second half. John Guthrie scored 20 points and Mitch Hannah was right behind with 18 for the Belleville school. Napanee got 14 from Rick Davis and 11 from John Paquette.

Chris Niblett was the big for Belleville in the midget encounter. He had 15. Mike Wright got 14 and Randy Donovan added 12.

Kapuskasing Housewife Is Test Driver for GM

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — Odette Loranger drives more than 200 miles a day in temperatures that rarely creep above 10 below zero and sometimes drop to 40 below.

33-year-old housewife is one of 10 test drivers employed by General Motors of Canada (GM) in this community about 80 miles northwest of Timmins.

Fritz Dantzen, an experimental engineer from Oshawa, says city drivers have problems in cold weather because they do not keep their cars in reasonable mechanical condition or do not read new-car manuals.

"For years we have stated quite explicitly what a driver must do if he wants to start his car correctly in cold weather," he said. "But the public, we find, refuses to read the instructions."

He said a car should start with no trouble on a cold day—"anything up to 20 below should be almost no trouble."

The correct way to start a car is to depress the gas pedal once before turning on the ignition to activate the automatic choke, Mr. Dantzen said.

GM picked this community to cold-test its vehicles and equipment after the Second World War because of its consistent near-arctic climate, its access by highway to Detroit and Oshawa, its airport and first-class accommodation.

After renting facilities in the area, GM opened its own 23-acre facility two years ago where it tests all sorts of vehicles, including locomotives built at London, Ont., in winter conditions most drivers rarely experience.

The engineers still laugh when they recall a colleague who stepped off the plane on his first visit here and accidently dropped the plastic covered suit he was carrying. The cover shattered in the 40-below temperature.

GM conducts an intensive program for three to five months each year.

"The idea is to try to duplicate in one winter here what most cars undergo in the full course of their existence elsewhere," one engineer said.

Test drivers, working six days a week for $170 a week, begin before dawn and rarely finish by 5 p.m. During daily drives to communities in the area, drivers must stop every few miles and slam car doors, wind their windows up and down, test brakes and lights and perpetually monitor special consoles in the cars.

Debt Costs Will Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of carrying the public debt—all the money borrowed by the government from taxpayers—is estimated to rise by 22 per cent in 1975-76 to $3.58 billion, say the main budgetary estimates tabled Wednesday.

These costs include bond interest payments, amortized discounts on new bond issues and commissions paid when new bonds are sold.

The government sells Canada Savings Bonds, treasury bills and other government bonds to cover the annual shortfall between its income from taxes and its required budget expenditures.

At March 31, 1974, there was a gross public debt of $55.6 billion, up from $51.7 billion owed by the government a year earlier.

Public Works Outlay Falls

OTTAWA (CP) — The government estimated Wednesday that federal public works spending in Ottawa during fiscal 1975-76 will be $135.3 million, down from $154.6 million this year.

Estimates tabled in the Commons show $52.2 million earmarked for Ottawa-capital construction in the new year beginning April 1 and $83.1 million for maintenance and operations.

Hungary Won't Extradite Demeter Murder Suspect

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Hungary has refused to allow the extradition to Canada of the man who Canadian authorities believe was hired to kill Christine Demeter, Peel Crown Attorney John Greenwood said Wednesday.

Peel region police said Imre (The Duck) Olejnyik was in Canada at the time of the slaying of the former fashion model and the Canadian government has been trying for several months to extradite him from his native Hungary to stand trial in Canada.

Mr. Greenwood said Hungarian officials have turned down the extradition request on the grounds that Hungary prefers to deal with its own nationals.

He said the extradition refusal represented "a severe setback" in the Demeter case, but the investigation is continuing.

Peter Demeter, 42, has been convicted of having persons or persons unknown murder his 33-year-old wife, whose body was found July 18, 1973 in the garage of their home in this community just west of Toronto.

Demeter is in Kingston penitentiary while his lawyers prepare an appeal.

Liberal Scolds Cabinet Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal MP stunned the Commons Wednesday by scolding some cabinet ministers for "obviously not doing their work."

The statement by John Reid, parliamentary secretary to government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, won hooting acclaim from the opposition and left embarrassed grins on the faces of some ministers.

Mr. Reid's comment on the tardiness of some replies to MPs' written questions was described by former prime minister John Diefenbaker as "a most unique occasion."

Mr. Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert), with 35 years in the House, said he had never witnessed such a "salutory spanking . . . of ministers of the Crown."

Outside the House, Mr. Reid (Lib—Kenora-Rainy River), responsible for tabling written answers, amplified on his charge.

"I was referring to the whole ministry in general. I have my own standards on how quickly questions should be answered and they're not being met."

Some MPs made "not unreasonable" complaints about answers taking more than six weeks, Mr. Reid said, and "I don't know if it's sheer laziness or blockages within departments."

The outburst was the first indication—since Mr. Reid assumed the job in 1972—that he is fed up with delays in the various departments.

Sighing In the Rain

LONDON (CP) — The British, probably the world's champion umbrella-carriers, have been hit by a brolly shortage. It's due partly to recent wet weather which sent sales soaring, and to a strike in the Italian factories that supply umbrella handles.

Broadcasts of Senate May Start Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Television and radio broadcasts of a Senate committee's study of the drug bill might begin as early as next week.

The Senate decided Wednesday to allow television and radio broadcasts of the legal and constitutional affairs committee hearings of the bill to lighten penalties for the possession of marijuana and hashish.

It is the first time that broadcast of day-to-day parliamentary procedures has been authorized.

Senator Carl Goldenberg, the committee chairman, said details of the broadcasts will be discussed by the committee as soon as possible. The committee meets Tuesday.

However, the public will not see the senators debate in the opulent red-carpeted Senate chamber. Cameras will be limited under the experiment to the boardroom-type suites used for committee meetings.

There never has been any televising of Commons and Senate proceedings except the opening of Parliament, which takes place in the Senate.

Cameramen are sometimes permitted to film the start of committee meetings, but must stop as soon as the official proceedings begin.

The decision came after a sometimes bitter debate that began when the Senate legal affairs committee voted to permit television cameras into its hearings on the marijuana bill.

UIC Image Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa advertising agency, asked to take a look at the communications problems of the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC), returned with a decidedly bleak assessment.

In a 27-page report, delivered last year and leaked to the press only a few days ago, York Advertising Ltd. says UIC guides and programs for communications "appear to be based on some combination of hunches and ad hockery . . ."

While there was a corps of dedicated, motivated and knowledgeable people in management circles . . . "there seems good reason to believe that the bulk of the employees are defensive, negative and poorly-motivated . . ."

The UIC, says the report, "has a formidable reputation for the restrictive way it handles information."

It says that many senior journalist in the Parliamentary Press Gallery consider the UIC as the "repository of the largest single mass of undigested, uninterpreted, inaccessible information in the government of Canada" next to Statistics Canada.

". . . A cursory review reveals that their (public relations staff) level of competence is lamentable," the report adds.

To improve staff morale and increase employer-employee communications, the report suggests, among other things, that a television film be produced about unemployment insurance which would provide the employee with an entertaining over-all look at the operation.

There is also the suggestion for incentive awards, such as a vacation trip to the Caribbean, "which would be a more personalized award than cold, hard cash."

A UIC spokesman said the report cost about $3,500.

Sheena's Blessed Events Pose Acute Space Problem

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

One thing about Sheena when she decides to have a family — she seems to get doggedly determined, about not quitting.

As a result, she's filled her home with nearly 30 offspring in the past two years.

Sheena is a German shepherd, the family dog of the Duffys at 40 Great St. James St.

And — she's a mother again for the third time.

Monday, around 6 a.m. in the morning — just as Mrs. Ethel Duffy was getting ready for work at Bata shoe factory — the four-year-old canine started delivering. She produced 16 puppies — two of them stillborn.

It even bettered last year's event, recalls 16-year-old Wendy Duffy — when Sheena gave birth to 11 pups.

Both times, the family were "quite surprised" at the size of the litters their household pet delivered. In fact, Wendy wonders if this week's batch mightn't be some kind of record. The two batches of newborns were way up in number from Sheena's first motherhood move.

Bought four years ago in Toronto, the pet had her first litter at a year old. It totalled four pups.

The latest arrivals were totally unexpected. With her earlier litters Sheena had been deliberately mated, says Wendy. But this last lot seems to have come from an unknown tete-a-tete in the family's backyard when they lived on Brassey St., she believes.

The biggest problem posed is accommodation, particularly as the pups mature. So, each time there's been a litter the family have advertised — by newspaper and word-of-mouth — that puppies were for sale.

Wendy, an animal-lover — she also has a canary — has mixed feelings about emptying the house of the king-size canine litters.

"If I had my way I'd keep them all," she says.

However, her problem may soon be solved with certainty.

After this week's litter, believes Wendy, her mother may be thinking of arranging matters so Sheena's productive days come to an end.

Airport Project Will Go Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposed giant new airport near Toronto was transformed into a dwarf Thursday but Transport Minister Jean Marchand said it may well grow much larger in a few years.

That leaves the government's controversial decision three years ago to build a big new international airport at Pickering near Toronto looking almost unchanged.

Mr. Marchand said in a Commons statement that the government will build a $204 million international airport at Pickering. This would include only one runway and "appropriate passenger terminal and related facilities" and would be completed by 1979 or 1980.

This is much smaller than original plans to build a huge airport costing up to $1.5 billion.

But the government had originally intended to build a two-runway first stage at a cost of about $300 million by about 1978-79. The rest would be completed by the year 2000.

Outside the Commons Thursday, Mr. Marchand said he personally thinks there will be further development after the first stage at Pickering.

The transport department has projected anywhere from 32 million to 66 million air passengers using airport facilities in Toronto by the year 2000. The latest estimate was 52 million.

The transport minister said in an interview later:

"Probably we will have to expand and perhaps start building another runway in three or four years."

Airport Decision Under Fire

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charles Godfrey, chairman of the People or Planes committee, said Thursday that despite the federal government's announced plans to go ahead with the international airport at Pickering, just east of Toronto, "no international flights will take off from there."

He added that "$204 million won't buy an international airport."

In Toronto, Donald Deacon, deputy leader of the Ontario Liberal party, said in an interview he believes the decision was "just something to satisfy residents near Malton (Toronto International Airport)."

In announcing the federal government's decision, Mr. Marchand said improvements would be made to Toronto International, but an additional runway, proposed by a federal inquiry commission, would not be built.

Premier William Davis said he would have no comment on the decision until he had time to study it in detail.

Environment Minister William Newman, who said he was speaking as MPP for Ontario South, the provincial riding in which the airport would be located, called the announcement "an idiotic decision."

He said the airport proposal only proves to him that a second airport in the Toronto area is not needed.

Ontario NDP Leader Stephen Lewis called the latest proposal for Pickering "a runway starting nowhere and ending nowhere."

He said it proved that no new airport is needed and "an expenditure of $204 million is just a reduced obscenity."

Ex-postman Says Parcels Looted

TORONTO (CP) — A former post office employee says at least 1,000 parcels a day are being looted by workers at the city's Front Street postal station.

"Big items to steal are guns, credit cards, liquor which is usually drunk on the spot or bootlegged, money, radios, stereos, cameras—really anything that is sent through the mail," the former parcel handler who wished to remain unidentified said in an interview.

He said drugs also are stolen. "Workers look for a Jamaica or Colombia postmark."

He said workers redirect parcels to their own homes, break them open by appearing accidently to drop them and open them when security guards aren't around.

Ed Roworth, a post office spokesman, Thursday admitted that thefts occur but said "the figure 1,000 a day seems high."

"Security in the past year has been stepped up and thefts are way down," he said. But in the old terminal it's hard to eliminate crime because of the construction of the building."

New post office terminals will be equipped with electronic surveillance, he said.

Lou Murphy, president of the Toronto local of the Canadian Union of Postal Employees, also confirmed the former worker's charge.

"It's the same as in any community of 7,000," he said. "Some people are crooks."

Sirica Sentences Watergate Trio

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three men closest to Richard Nixon when he was president of the United States were sentenced today to serve at least 2½ years in prison for covering up the Watergate scandal.

U.S. District Judge John Sirica pronounced the sentences of 2½ to eight years on John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, ignoring a plea by Ehrlichman's lawyer that he be allowed to work with New Mexico Indians instead of going to prison.

A fourth defendant, Robert Mardian, was sentenced to 10 months to three years.

All four men have said they will appeal and they were allowed to remain free without bail.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman had been convicted of conspiring to obstruct justice, obstructing justice and multiple counts of lying under oath.

Their sentencing marks the beginning of an appeals process that might take two years or more to complete. All were expected to remain free most of that time.

Tories Win Again--in School Vote

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

The Progressive Conservative party, led by Bill Maddox, captured 278 votes followed by the Liberals with a vote of 111 and the New Democratic and Social Credit parties, each with a vote of 106.

The new cabinet will hold its regular classes.

The next day, students will travel to Parliament Hill in Ottawa to watch the federal parliament in session in the House of Commons.

Blue-collar Workers Still on Strike

Mail Piles Up but Air Service Better

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian mail service was tied up by extensions of strikes Thursday but air service was aided by an end to some of the selective strikes of federal blue-collar workers, members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC).

Government and union negotiators talked at Ottawa a second day behind a news blackout scheduled to end today.

Mountains of mail piled up for the fourth day in Toronto, which handles about half the letters posted in Canada, as a union spokesman said that 220 postal maintenance workers would extend their strike. The spokesman earlier this week said the workers would be off the job until midnight Thursday night.

Snow removal and runway maintenance workers were back at Toronto International Airport at midnight Thursday night. Air Canada had resumed almost normal operations earlier in the day on the one runway kept open by employees designated essential.

Michael Lyons, PSAC regional representative in Toronto, said the union would decide on the next move for postal workers after the news blackout ends. He said he hoped talks would continue today with union members and postal officials in an attempt to find ways for delivering government social welfare cheques.

A treasury board spokesman said that it will ask the public service staff relations board for permission to prosecute if it finds any PSAC workers designated as essential and forbidden to strike legally have participated in walkouts that began Monday.

Meanwhile, mail service in the Metropolitan Toronto region was at a virtual standstill Thursday as the post office gave "leave without pay" to 7,000 letters carriers and other workers because of the strike by maintenance employees. Mail-delivery truck drivers and others had refused to cross picket lines.

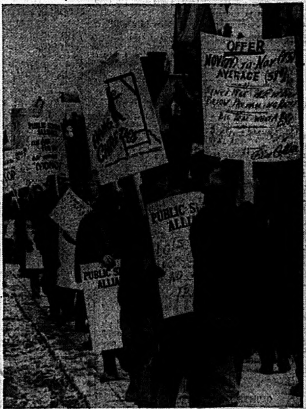
Robert McGarry, district business agent for the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada at Toronto, said the union will take legal action if necessary to get unemployment insurance benefits for its 2,000 members. Sending them off the job was stalling to try and get out of paying benefits, he said.

Government Is Determined To Deliver Pension Cheques

OTTAWA (CP) — The government seems determined not to let the strikes by its general laborers and tradesmen (GLTs) delay deliveries of old age pension and family allowance cheques.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey, replying in the Commons Thursday to Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and The Islands), said that if the selective strikes spread and hold up mail processing, pension cheques would be available at Unemployment Insurance Commission offices.

And, for disabled pensioners, the government was studying the possibility that service clubs might volunteer to deliver cheques.



Blue Collar Men Idle

Federal blue collar workers demonstrate on Parliament Hill Monday to back wage demands in contract dispute between the workers and government.

Hans Kung Won't Obey Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul has ordered Rev. Hans Kung, challenger of the 104-year-old dogma of papal infallibility, to stop teaching opinion contrary to Roman Catholic Church doctrine, but the Swiss theologian has retorted that he will stand by his beliefs.

"I will not be restrained from fulfilling my theological service for humanity in critical solidarity with the Catholic Church in ecumenical spirit . . ." Father Kung said in a statement issued at his office at Tuebingen University in Tuebingen, West Germany.

The Vatican said the order had been approved by Pope Paul after a six-year investigation of two books by Father Kung—The Church, and Infallibility? An Inquiry. It was the severest disciplinary measure against a theologian by the Vatican in 20 years.

Crown Attorney Named Ontario Lottery Head

TORONTO (CP) — Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch of Hamilton was named Thursday by Premier William Davis to head the new Ontario Lottery Corp., and seven others were appointed to the lottery board.

Mr. McCulloch resigned his office to assume the $16,000-a-year job and began immediately to plan for the provincial lottery.

The seven, who will receive a per-diem fee of $108 plus expenses, include Fern Guindon, former Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Stormont; Harold Freeman, a Toronto chartered accountant; Dr. Aranka Kovacs, a University of Windsor economics professor, and Edward Rigby of Hamilton, secretary-treasurer of the Anglican diocese of Niagara.

Also apppointed were Gisele Richer, secretary-manager of the Rockland Public Utilities Commission; Patrick Mahon, a Sault Ste. Marie realtor; and Walter McLean of Waterloo, a former executive director of the Manitoba Centennial Corp., which established that province's lottery.

Marshall Pollock, former assistant deputy attorney general, has been named general manager of the corporation and a member of its board.

Flora Gets Help

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) - The Progressive Conservative riding association in the federal constituency of Kingston and the Islands has pledged $1,000 to the as-yet-undeclared party leadership campaign of Flora Macdonald riding association president Paul Megginson said Wednesday.

Shampoo OK

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Shampoo given to prisoners at the Niagara South Regional Detention Centre does not make their hair fall out, a grand jury has ruled.

Thomas J. Arnold of Niagara Falls, Ont., foreman of the jury which visited the centre, said in a report Thursday that the jury was approached by a prisoner who complained that the shampoo was making his hair fall out.

Mr. Arnold said the jury discussed the complaint with the centre's deputy superintendent and believes the prisoner's hair is falling out because of a nervous condition and not because of the shampoo.

UIC Attacked

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Norm Cafik, Liberal member of Parliament for Ontario riding, says service in the unemployment insurance office here is "totally unsatisfactory" and "intolerable." In a letter Wednesday to Manpower Minister Robert Andras, he said auto workers in his riding laid off by General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Canada Ltd. have to wait as long as six weeks to receive benefits.

Water OK

TORONTO (CP) — Tests show that the amount of asbestos in waste water flowing from the Canadian Johns-Manville plant in the borough of Scarborough into Lake Ontario are consistent with the levels normally found in the lake, Environment Ontario said Thursday.

International Development Agency Under Heavy Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), its annual budget fast approaching $1 billion, is high on the government's spending hierarchy, surpassing all but four departments.

Yet its critics say the powerful foreign aid agency is a tightly-run, secretive fiefdom answerable only to its president, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, personally appointed by Prime Minister Trudeau in 1970 and responsible only to External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen.

Thursday, the critics tore into the agency repeatedly in the Commons as they debated a Progressive Conservative motion deploring CIDA's alleged secrecy and freedom from parliamentary control.

"This (secrecy) . . . casts public doubt on the quality of management and effectiveness of Canada's international assistance program," said Claude Wagner, the Conservative foreign affairs critic.

The motion did not come to a vote. It served only as a vehicle for debate in which the Liberals tried their best to tear holes in what the Conservatives termed constructive criticism.

Mr. Wagner's main complaint is that the House is not able to examine CIDA's spending programs in detail, as it can with the departments. He also noted there has been no definite government response to published reports highly critical of CIDA.

"Does the government have a defence? Will we hear it today? Does this government care enough about its foreign aid establishment to defend the key foreign aid agency?"

He said his questions were put not from antagonism toward CIDA, but rather from "a desire to ensure that our foreign aid programs are going to the right places . . . and providing the most valuable help possible to the recipient nations."

CIDA's 1975-76 budget is $933 million, ranking behind the finance department's $6.39 billion, health and welfare's $5.52 billion, defence's $2.8 billion and energy's $1.5 billion.

Eighty per cent of CIDA aid is given on condition that it is used to "buy Canadian." The rest generally has no strings attached. Some $23 million of the 1975-76 CIDA total is for administration.

Mr. MacEachen disagreed strongly with Mr. Wagner's statement that the agency "has become the personal fiefdom of one man." He said Mr. Gerin-Lajoie is a deputy minister who must be responsible to Parliament through a minister.

On claims that the Commons has no control over CIDA spending, he said outside the House that "its estimates, its conduct, have precisely the same opportunity for scrutiny that any other department has."

Mr. MacEachen said MPs can examine CIDA estimates "as well as they can get at any other spending programs of the government."

Dusty Mine Is Closed

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — Jim Goodwin, a manager of the Canadian Johns-Manville Co. open-pit asbestos mine and mill near here, said Thursday that the operation has been closed indefinitely because the plant is not able to meet asbestos-dust standards.

The mine and plant, located 23 miles west of here, employs about 200 persons.

Mr. Goodwin said in an interview that company officials will meet today with officials of the ministry of natural resources to seek exemption from dust-level standards the government has imposed on asbestos companies.

The company announced the closure and layoffs after the plant was visited by a government inspector.

Mr. Goodwin said the design of the plant and the equipment it uses are not capable of meeting today's standards.

Mr. Goodwin said the company is "willing to bring in people as soon as possible to clean up the problem."

However, J. R. M. Hutcheson, chairman of the board of Johns-Manville, said in a telephone interview from Asbestos, Que., that the firm has no intention of meeting the Ontario regulations.

He said the mines division of the ministry of natural resources had set standards for the mine that are "impossible to live with."

"The limit they have set can never be met."

Stewart Urges Ban On Food System Strikes

TORONTO (CP) — Laborers in the food distribution system should not be allowed to go on strike, Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Thursday.

"If we are serious about moving food to feed the world's hungry, a fundamental change in labor negotiating procedures will have to occur," he told the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies.

"It is one thing to ask North American farmers to open the throttle and expand agricultural production while at the same time crippling grain handlers strikes frustrate the best intentions of Canadian grain farmers," he said.

If a negotiated settlement is not reached before deadline, he said, "strikes should be ruled out and the matter referred to compulsory arbitration.

Any labor contracts in the food distribution system should not be allowed to run out unless a settlement is reached, he said.

Appeal Cost

VANCOUVER (CP) — An appeal by seven British Columbia penitentiary prisoners against a federal Court of Canada ruling that they could not sit as a group during a trial was dismissed Wednesday by the Federal Court of Appeal.

The seven men were suing the Crown and the penitentiary, claiming they were subjected to cruel and unusual punishment in solitary cells.

Mr. Justice D. V. Heald last week adjourned the trial because he said having the seven in court at the same time posed a "grave risk."

Watch Cat Die

OTTAWA (CP) — Residents of an east-end suburb are helplessly watching an animal die—and they don't like it.

A stray cat which climbed a hydro pole Sunday has refused to come down, residents say, and is near death.

Humane Society officials said the pole is too dangerous to climb because of high-voltage wires.

Samples Guarded

TORONTO (CP) — Core samples from a Kirkland Lake, Ont., property owned by Gateford Mines Ltd., Toronto, have been taken to an assay laboratory under police guard, Gateford vice-president H. I. Miller has told the Ontario Securities Commission (OSC).

Original assays showed high gold values but the company said last month it found evidence the core samples had been "salted."

Murray Balks at Higher Cost for Fire Protection

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

WOOLER — Murray Township council this week expressed astonishment at the fee wanted by Trenton for fire protection this year. The price has jumped from 1974's $12,000 to $30,000 for 1975.

The result is that Murray Township is shopping around to get fire protection from its other neighbors. Murray might even acquire some of ment, said reeve Harry Lafferty.

About Trenton's price increase and getting protection from other sources, Mr. Lafferty said "We might not save any money, but I don't like it. These guys have got pretty independent."

Councillor Bill Ellis said he didn't like it but they would probably have to pay it. Councillor Clifford Wannamaker said Trenton was "shoving it down our necks pretty heavy."

Township clerk Ken Rose said "It is a pie-in-the-sky figure taken by Trenton council, not by their staff. Whether it is negotiable remains to be seen. How Trenton council arrived at the figure, I don't know."

Council decided before it would reply to Trenton's letter, Murray would shop around. Council was to meet with Frankford in a private meeting later in the week. Individual members of council were to talk with Brighton and Ameliasburg.

Reeve Lafferty said the township might keep a fire truck of its own stationed near Wooler Road at Highway 2.

This truck would probably supplement the Brighton fire fleet, he said.

Councillor Ellis suggested using Sidney since they have a fire truck stationed at Batawa. Reeve Lafferty said "I don't want to deal with Sidney." It was suggested that CFB Trenton fire department should be asked since "they like going to fires for the practice."

In other business, Clare Dainard asked council for street lighting in Roseland Acres. "Last month was a pretty busy place as far as criminal activity was concerned," he said. He said there have been two break-ins and a car stolen.

Clerk Ken Rose said a "rough" figure for the lights would be $28 per year on a tax bill of $220. Mr. Dainard said a hydro spokesman had told him to approach council first, and let it speak to hydro.

Before anything was finalized, Ontario Hydro consults with all concerned, Clerk Rose explained, adding when definite costs are known people would have a right to withdraw. Council told Mr. Dainard they would communicate with him after talking to hydro.

Walter Palset, who owns land on which years ago sat the Trent Valley Roller Mills and its pond on Front St. in Trenton, asked council what it thought of his idea of developing the site, which extends into Murray Township, for a trailer park.

He said he was "expressing an idea, nothing more," that there is "nothing concrete". He said phase one could see 102 lots 40 by 100 feet, but "engineering would be required on the site."

Murray council didn't express an opinion, but gave Mr. Palset a planning book, saying they were "locked in by the province until Murray's plan is law."

Council Kept Silent

Walter Palset has an idea, and nothing more at this time, he said after showing this plan of a trailer park to Murray Township council this week. It would be developed in two stages, with phase one incorporating 102 lots. The location is off Front St. in Trenton, the entrance being through what used to be the site of the Trent Valley Roller Mills. Council gave Mr. Palset a book about planning, and said nothing about the idea. Left to right are councillor Clifford Wannamaker, Mr. Palset, standing with coat on deputy-reeve Jim Quinn, treasurer Angus Gunter, standing, and Reeve Harry Lafferty.

Merchants Back Meters On Bancroft Streets

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — The majority of businessmen who attended a public meeting here on Thursday indicated they would be prepared to accept the installation of parking meters on commercial streets and municipal parking lots in the village.

The 27 interested village residents who attended the meeting called by the council heard village Reeve Russell Hawley say "we would like to look after this problem of paying for the new parking lot and we cannot take that money out of the taxpayers' pockets".

Mr. Hawley was referring to the projected $100,000 the village will pay over a five-year period for the purchase and maintenance of a 200-space municipal lot on Hastings St. N.

Mr. Hawley indicated "council would rather do it some other way than with meters but it is not possible, and there isn't another village the size of Bancroft in Ontario that doesn't have meters on the main street".

Originally council and the business community had planned on assessing a parking lot premium to all downtown merchants who would use the lot, however village solicitor O. G. Anderson indicated this method would be too cumbersome to keep updated.

The assessment procedure would involve the establishemtn of a bylaw which would have to be amended by the Ontario Municipal Board each time a property use was changed in the business area.

Mr. Anderson said "I think that the village needs a parking scheme that will last for at least 20 years."

He also indicated that the assessment procedure would not help to remove the cars which park all day on the main street.

Council indicated that a parking authority would be established by the village to administer the parking fund which according to the Ontario Municipal Act must be used for the development of further parking areas.

The installation of meters in the village would result in a projected revenue of $16,000-$18,000 yearly.

MARMORA — The 1975 Red Crosys Blitz in Marmora will be held Monday, March 10, starting at 6:30 p.m.

Date for the blitz was set at the annual meeting of the Marmora Branch of the Red Cross Society.

Mrs. Gloria Featherstone agreed to act as chairman for the annual collection of funds again this year.

Last year $851 was collected, well over the quota which had been set.

Last year $250 of the $851 collected was donated to the swimming program at Legion Park. During the year the branch assisted a family who lost their belongings in a fire; in addition to which Red Cross headquarters supplied bedding valued at $80 for the same family.

Fairground Pool Location Worries Nearby Residents

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter,

PICTON —Several Maple Ave. residents are opposed to location of a community swimming pool at the rear of the grandstand at Picton fairgrounds because of the potential noise factor.

This site has been suggested by members of the Prince Edward Swimming Pool Committee although the fairboard, at its annual meeting, unanimously agreed the fairgrounds is not a suitable location for the proposed $120,000 pool.

Maple Ave. home owner Mabel Mein said Thursday she does not agree with any proposal to construct a pool behind the grandstand.

"I'd be against it myself. It would be behind my place and I could not stand all the noise," she said.

Miss Mein noted chairman of the pool committee, Ed Rae, visited homeowners with a petition seeking their agreement to a pool at the fairgrounds site.

She said she refused to sign because she is opposed to the noise that youngsters probably would create when using the open air pool all day and throughout the evening.

"I like to sit on my back porch in the summer but I couldn't do that with all the noise there would be from the pool," she predicted.

Miss Mein's property adjoins the fairgrounds directly behind the grandstand and is separated from the county-owned land by a chain link fence.

Another Maple Ave. resident, Mrs. Nugent, said her husband initially signed Mr. Rae's petition sanctioning the proposal for a pool on the fairgrounds site.

"Later, we decided it would be really noisy and my husband withdrew his name," she added.

She said both she and her husband support the concept of a community swimming pool but disagree with the suggested location at the rear of the fairgrounds grandstand.

"We want a pool, we do need a pool and I am all for a pool but not in my backyard," she remarked.

She said the proposed pool would be only 20 feet from their back fence.

"It would lower the value of our homes," she predicted.

Another Maple Ave. property owner, who recently purchased a house on the street, says none of his neighbors seems to approve the rear-of-the-grandstand location.

Ted Storms observed that as a new resident on the street he is hesitant to protest but he does not agree with the proposed site.

He referred to a community pool in Kingston that he has passed on several occasions and noted youngsters can be heard "for a quarter of a mile."

All of the property owners interviewed agreed that they would have no objections to a pool at the fairgrounds if it were located behind the County Centre instead of behind the grandstand.

Home owners in the Maple Avenue area have not, as yet, taken steps to circulate a petition of protest or to contact town or county councils regarding their opinions.

Trenton Awaiting Water Study Tests

TRENTON — Utilities commissioners are still awaiting results of water availability tests yet to be completed at the Murray wells field outside Trenton's western limits.

Douglas Manlow, manager of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, said Thursday the "crux of the study" — readings of water fluctuations — has yet to be done by Internatinal Water Supply Ltd. of Barrie.

The company has drilled a series of test holes at Tremur Lake, the town's major source of drinking water, but company field crews have not arrived to complete the study.

A crew should have been in Trenton this week, but as of Thursday, had not arrived. When they arrive tests are also to be conducted to determine the availability of groundwater at Hannah and Leopold streets.

The Murray wells study is to determine the rate of daily gallonage the town can expect from its west-end water source.

In Trenton's east end, a seismic survey will be conducted to determine the maximum depth of bedrock and the most suitable area for testing of groundwater.

Observation and test wells will be dug and the taste and rate of water flow will be studied for possible inclusion in east Trenton's water supply.

Total cost of the Hannah-Leopold streets study is $16,000.

PUC Rules Tank Repairs Clients' Duty

TRENTON — The town utilities commission backed away from any involvement with suggesting names of local contractors to members of the public whose hot water tanks malfunction.

The decision came Thursday amid fears that the PUC could become ultimately responsible for any dissatisfied customer of a contractor it recommended.

At one time, the PUC installed and maintained water heaters. However, the practice was discontinued about two years ago and the PUC directed people in need of repairs to their tanks to various local contractors.

A call now to PUC offices meets with the response that a customer should find a repairmen for himself.

Discussion Thursday was prompted by a letter from electrical contractor John Gimbel, who said the practice of not assisting water-heater-troubled customers is not "very good public relations" on the PUC's part.

Customers needing service are "now completely left in the dark" as to who repairs hot water tanks, he said.

Mr. Gimbel suggested local contractors be asked if they desired inclusion in a list of those providing repair services. he list, would be kept at PUC offices and names would be offered the inquiring public.

The problem with the suggestion, said PUC manager Douglas Manlow, is that some determination would have to be made concerning the competence of any prospective repairman.

It's not the commission's job to do so, he said.

In the end, commissioners agreed the local association of electrical contractors should compile such a list. The commission would then relay all calls from cold-water sufferers to the association.

Swim Team Does Well

One hundred and thirty-five children were enrolled in the Red Cross swimming program at Marmora Legion Park last year, Jennie Killian, water safety chairman, reported at the annual meeting of the Marmora Branch of the Red Cross Society.

In the pre-beginners class there were 15 children enrolled, 14 were tested and 13 passed; beginners class, 29 enrolled, 19 tested and 18 passed; juniors, 24 enrolled, 16 tested and 15 passed; intermediates, 21 enrolled, 17 tested and 7 passed; seniors, 5 enrolled, 5 tested and 3 passed; bronze 7 enrolled, 3 tested and 3 passed; Bronze Cross (only 2 had bronze cards) 2 were tested and passed; survival 18 enrolled, 18 tested and 18 passed.

The Marmora competitive swim team did very well in competition, Mrs. Killian reported, adding that it now depends on the largest number of swimmers in the teams to compete. "A small village like Marmora doesn't have much of a chance against Toronto,"

Law Enforcement

In a murder trial that has been going on in Alberta one of the accused, a 19-year-old reportedly into drugs in a big way, is alleged to have replied to a detective's questions thus:

"What if I did? I'm 19 years old and if I get 20 years I'll be 39 when I get out. I know lots of guys in the pen . . . There's always parole."

Then later. "I'll do my time. I don't want those . . . breathing down my neck."

And again: "I won't work. I don't like it. I only worked a couple of times in my life, just to please my probation officer."

An extreme example perhaps of the kind of mentality that is being spawned by the permissive society, but one nevertheless which to one degree or another plagues our times. For some, in other words, the "work ethic" is a no-no. They have never been instructed in it in the first place, and so fall prey to all the ills of an idle and feckless existence.

There are others who despite unemployment struggle with determination to find work and support their families. Like the young U.S. Negro on a recent U.S. TV news report from Detroit. Intelligent, concerned for his wife and small children, he was worried nevertheless that circumstances might force him into the sort of crime that plagues this and other U.S. cities. And he is just one of thousands facing the same difficulties.

In Oshawa meanwhile Sylvia Sawyer is an intelligent 20-year-old with a 24-year-old husband facing 23 months in jail for a number of charges. Mrs. Sawyer favors a Law Reform Commission working paper which suggests some convicted felons be obliged to make restitution rather than spend time in jail. Mother of an 18-month-old child, she likes the idea of work, rather than jail, for minor offenders, and the opportunity to earn a living rather than having the wife go on welfare and suffer the loneliness and isolation from friends any wife in such a situation must go through.

The young woman acknowledged to an Oshawa Times reporter that she was not sure if her husband's offences were in the category of "minor" as identified in the working paper. Yet there must be sympathy for her as she contemplates her husband's plight and others similarly placed.

There was a time when "hard labor" went with a jail sentence. Today things are rather different, some of the jails themselves being more like rest homes. There is also another side to the concept of restitution or work rather than being locked up. It is reflected by the skepticism of the authorities; as Durham regional police chief Jenkins put it, the first concern of law enforcement should be protection of the victim (that this is not always the case is common knowledge), while another officer observed that most people who commit crimes are "too lazy to work in the first place."

The psychological makeup of wrongdoers is as varied as the crimes they commit. Where manual labor as a means of therapy and restitution may work for one, to someone else it is useless. There are no easy answers. While rehabilitation should be the goal where possible, the prime objective should be the protection of society.

Realtor's Passing

The untimely death of city realtor Donald Whalen in a drowning accident in Jamaica is a loss to the city as well as to his family and friends.

Mr. Whalen's war service, his time as a city councillor and his prominence in the real estate business are on record. Perhaps less well known was his practical concern for others.

An example in recent years was Mr. Whalen's former ski operation at Ameliasburg which for a time was open to the public. Another was the setting up at the edge of town, near 401 highway, of a marquee for young hikers who a few years ago were passing through in large numbers.

Awareness of the needs of others was a characteristic of Mr. Whalen. He will be missed.

It's Too Early to Write Off George Wallace as Candidate

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace is used to snide remarks from Northern slickers and proper deference from his fellow Southerners, so it was something of a novelty to have the governor of Mississippi writing him off this week as a 1976 candidate for the United States presidency.

It's probably too early by a long shot, however, to count George Corley Wallace out as either a power in the Democratic party or a shake-'em-up influence in American politics.

Gov. William Waller of Mississippi, here for a national conference of state governors, startled the political corps in Washington on Tuesday by saying that, in Waller's Deep South state, Wallace "is not considered to be a viable potential candidate because of his disability, or physical infirmity."

The wheelchair-bound Wallace, who trounced both Republican Richard Nixon and Democrat Hubert Humphrey in Mississippi when he ran as an independent for the presidency in 1968, flexed his muscles and replied:

"Yes, I am a viable candidate—if I became a candidate. As long as we have this iniquitous income tax that's griding the middle class out of existence, I'm going to be alive and well and involved."

Although he is said to be several months away from announcing a formal decision about the 1976 presidency, Wallace has been building a war chest that is fatter than that of any other announced or likely Democratic nominee.

Campaign finance reports filed in Washington show that Wallace fund-raisers had gathered nearly $1.8 million in 1971, most of it in contributions of less than $100 from supporters who were treated to some of the most elaborate and professional direct-mail appeals yet seen in U.S. politics.

Wallace has maintained a nucleus of tireless campaign workers. His vivacious wife Cornelia—the politically-savvy niece of former Alabama governor James Folsom—is proving an important energizer for the governor's ambitions.

Wallace tried for president as an independent in 1968, then ran for the Democratic party nomination in 1972 before being paralysed from the waist down by an assassin's gunfire at a Maryland shopping centre. He was re-elected to a third four-year term as governor of Alabama last November.

His 1972 campaign, which dismayed his fellow contenders for the Democratic nomination, was based on the slogan, "Send them a message."

The message was based mainly on opposition to school busing for purposes of racial integration, an issue that was inflaming much of the white electorate at the time. Wallace rode its crest to some astonishing upsets in Democratic primaries not only in the South but also in such Northern states as Michigan.

With the American economy now in its most distressed state in decades, busing has all but disappeared as a talking point and the 1976 campaign is likely to focus on pocketbook issues. However, Wallace has already built up political capital in that field, too.

Critics may carp at Wallace's failure to do much for the impoverished in his own dirt-poor state, but the governor's appeal has rarely been based on what he has done so much as on what he stands for.

And his public speeches, for years before the economy was in trouble, have focussed on such classical populist issues as tax reform, increased public-works spending and tighter control of big business.

If he cares to pursue such issues with any of the vigor he has left from his wounds, Wallace could lose the support of several Southern governors and still make a strong impact on the millions of American voters who chronically feel ignored by the regular candidates from both Republican and Democratic parties.

Waste of Time Can Greet Witness

London Free Press

"Never again," groused the disgruntled witness, summoned to court to give testimony that wasn't needed because prosecutors and defence lawyers had moments earlier negotiated a dismissal of charges. "No wonder there are so many hit-and-run accidents they don't solve" he complained, pocketing $6.50 in witness fees for a wasted day. "Nobody can afford to be a nice guy."

The unhappy experience of the witness is the kind of incident that undermines our system of justice, which is so largely dependent upon the goodwill and voluntary service of citizens.

Our courts should not be turned into business, where it would become profitable for witnesses to give evidence. A sense of sacrifice — of doing one's duty — is a vital ingredient in the democratic judicial process.

But, neither should the token remuneration be so low that witnesses of crimes are discouraged from offering their stories to police and the courts. Present fees are abysmally low, considering the astronomical increases in costs of living in recent years. The fees deserve immediate review and upward revision.

At present, a witness in a criminal case can expect to receive only $6, plus nominal expenses. If the witness lives in the city, up to 75 cents is provided for public transportation. Outside residents are offered 10 cents a mile to get to and from the court, despite the economic fact that no one can operate a car for 10 cents a mile.

Professional witnesses — persons required to provide evidence on the basis of their occupations, like lawyers, doctors, engineers, architects — receive a paltry $15 a day, even though that might mean they are sacrificing as much as $100 in business in their offices.

Jurors are no better off. They receive only $10 a day under a fee schedule established more than a decade ago. Unless they are sequestered, in which case their meals and hotel accommodation are provided, they are expected to cover their meals out of the $10 although out-of-towners also receive travel and hotel money if they must stay over for an extended period of time.

Often, employers will maintain their workers' wage level while they serve as witnesses or jurors. But there are many exceptions to this rule and besides the benevolence of some employers does not relieve the Crown of its rsponsibility.

Clearly, inflation affects every aspect of society, including the administration of justice. Fees for witnesses and jurors should be raised to provide a more realistic compensation for lost time and wages.

Looking Backward

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

February 21, 1945

RSM Angus Duffy was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. He dealt in detail with the history of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and with their training for and participation in active duty service.

Three young instrumental and vocal artists from Belleville are taking part in the second annual music festival being sponsored by the Toronto Kiwanis Clubs in the Royal York Hotel. They are John Fenn, Donald Charlton and Robert Stebbings.

Fire of an unknown origin started in a storeroom in the upper part of a house in Trenton occupied by William Graham. Motion picture cameras and clothing were destroyed in the fire. Mr. Graham was employed at the Ontario Motion Picture Studio in Trenton until it was recently closed by the Hepburn government.

Belleville Post Office is probably the oldest in Ontario and one of the oldest in Canada. In Upper Canada, the post office was opened here in 1816 under the name of the Bay of Quinte. It was nine years later before Hamilton, London, Brantford and St. Thomas were provided with post offices.

Solicitor General's Heat Could Fry Mr. Allmand

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The heat, if it stays on at high, in the Solicitor General's Department just might be turning little old soft-hearted Warren Allmand into a 20-minute egg.

He is not exactly hard-boiled yet, but he is no longer runny.

His knees once so weak and watery begin showing signs of muscle and bone.

And if his heart is still bleeding, it doesn't show so much.

He came into the department cut from the same pattern of "reform!" — blaming society rather than the criminal — as his predecessors, Jean-Pierre Goyer and Lawrence Pennell.

Mr. Goyer, you will recall, argued that it was more important to rehabilitate the criminal — even psychopathic killers — than protect society.

And Mr. Pennell, since appointed to the Ontario bench, was the Solicitor General who became so emotional about rehabilitation as opposed to punishment that he broke down and wept the night Parliament voted to abolish capital punishment.

Warren Allmand has managed to keep his emotions under control, at least this side of tears, but he is still a leading abolitionist.

And while he persists in defending the loose bail, easy parole, lax leaves, and what police and prison guards angrily charge is the soft life criminals enjoy while serving shorter and shorter "time," he hasn't gone so far yet as to claim that rehabilitation of the offender comes before protection of the offended.

If you look long and carefully at the man and his performance as boss of the RCMP, the Penitentiary Service and the Parole Board, you might just catch the glint of tin, if not yet exactly steel under what almost everyone took to be marshmallow.

First hint of there being something stiffer than jelly there, came when the Indians and Maoists fought with the RCMP riot squad on the steps of Parliament.

The bleeding hearts were oozing their horror over those nasty RCMP officers actually defending themselves against the rocks and clubs of the rioters, when Warren Allmand surprised everybody by speaking up.

If it had been necessary, he announced, he would have called for the troops — there on parade for the Governor General's review — to go into action.

Then just the other day, he allowed that the new wire-tap law — the criminal must be notified after 90 days that he's under electronic surveillance — was making it difficult for the police and easy for big-time crime.

He was checking it out, he said, and he might be asking Cabinet to request Parliament to do something about it.

But the real tipoff that Warren Allmand may be shaping up at least as even a faint shadow of a law and order man came when he, well, almost boasted that it was through a wire-tap that the police nailed Richard Blass, career Quebec criminal, suspect in the fire-deaths of 13 in the Montreal Gargantua night club.

The Quebec Provincial Police Holdup Squad's Sergeant Albert Lisachek, known as "Kojak," on wire-tap information, booted open a Laurentian ski resort cabin door and blew up Blass as the killer suspect reached for his guns.

Warren Allmand seemed satisfied.

Maybe he has had enough, as Solicitor General, of multiple murderers, and is not upset when they are gunned down.

There have been plenty — but Blass was the first to pay with his life — five, in fact, before the mass killing at the Gargantua.

There was that part-time handyman who set fire to a home for the aged near Riviere du Loup and burned 40 to death. He got life.

Three freak-outs got life, too, for the fire deaths of 37 in Montreal's Blue Bird night club.

Another psycho was jailed for the shooting and stabbing deaths of eight near Weston Creek, B.C.

Imprisonment was the punishment of an axe-slayer who chopped up seven, including four children, at Buffalo Narrows, Saskatchewan.

And six fell victim to a berserk gunman on the run around Oliver, B.C.

Only Richard Blass in this saturnalia of slaughter was "executed," thanks to a police wire-tap which a harder, tougher Warren Allmand wants to make easier for the authorities to use.

Canadians Mark 'Celsius Day' April 1, 1975

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Celsius Day is coming cautions the February issue of Canadian Consumer, Mark April 1, 1975 on your calendar with a big capital C.

It is important that all Canadians heed this advice. On that date Canada's weather service will switch to the Celsius temperature scale. The time will have come to forget Fahrenheit readings.

The change is part of an overall commitment in Canada to conversion to the metric system, a system of weights and measures based on the decimal and multiples of 10.

The conversion to Celsius temperatures will get us into the metric stream so to speak. Later it is assumed that the more complex aspects of metrication will be introduced over a period of years so that we will at last conform with most of the rest of the world which already build cars, sells gas and measures distance in metric terms.

On the Celsius scale the freezing point of water is 0 degrees (zero degrees Celsius) as opposed to 32 degrees on the familiar Fahrenheit scale. Similarly the boiling point of water is 100 degrees on the Celsius scale but one of 180 degrees on the old Fahrenheit scale.

We are intrigued that although it is relatively simple to convert one to the other, the Canadian Consumer doesn't bother to tell how it is done. Instead it advises people to get a Celsius only thermometer and start using it, to throw away the old Fahrenheit thermometer, in effect to: Forget Fahrenheit and switch to Celsius.

You learn best by doing, it notes. In the long run this is probably right. In some countries they have continued to use both systems for years simply because people have been too lazy to get used to the new one. England is an example. It is apparent the Canadian government does not want this to happen here.

Here are some Celsius readings of temperatures which are familiar in everyday life: body temperature 37; room temperature, 21; heat wave, 40; cold winter days, minus 20; extremely cold winter day, minus 40; bake a cake, 200.

Take this Celsius business seriously. By next winter you will have to live by it; and it would be nice to know when to wear warm clothing and when to avoid it, how long to cook the corn beef and cabbage at that new reading on the package and so on.

Good luck. And don't forget that it usually helps to keep your sense of humor too.

Liquor Board Chairman Continues Erratic Ways

by DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Liquor Licence Board Chairman James Mackey continues on his eccentric course of administration of justice.

From the time he first took office a few years ago Mr. Mackey's decisions have often appeared to have been based on seances with himself or a second-rate crystal ball rather than reason or established principles or practices.

He now has come up with a further action which carries on the record.

In his most recent exploit Mr. Mackey suspended a Kitchener establishment for allegedly taking pay-offs from a couple of breweries and a distillery for pushing their products.

Subsequently he was approached by a Globe and Mail reporter and reportedly was asked for a transcript of the evidence at the hearing.

According to the reporter he replied that hearings of the board were open but he didn't feel he could release a transcript.

For one thing, he said, it would be costly to prepare.

The reporter volunteered that the paper would pay the cost.

But no, the chairman said, he still didn't think it would be right. He couldn't release the transcript.

This, of course was patently nonsense and without reason.

The board is a judicial body in that it passes out sentences for violation of its rules.

Its hearings are open (and how this came about is another story).

Under the same circumstances in any court a transcript is available to anyone willing to pay.

But not with the LLBO. For what reason? Who can say. Certainly not the chairman, it would appear.

It is an open secret here that the government is not happy with Mr. Mackey.

But still what can it do?

If it were to depose him it could look like fault on its part.

Controversy Confuses Diabetics

The Globe and Mail

If the estimated 1,500,000 diabetic Canadians and Americans who use anti-diabetic drugs orally in the form of pills — mainly tolbutamide — to control their condition are mystified, getting angry and, yes, beginning to get frightened by the continued bickering over the drug's value, they are to be sympathized with and understood.

It is reasonable of them to expect that after nearly 15 years of study, evaluation, debate and re-evaluation of the drug by the medical research and public health communities, the answers should be there for the asking.

Is tolbutamide (sold commercially as Orinase) — with its blood-sugar lowering properties — still what it was claimed to be on introduction into the North American market in 1957: "Potentially the greatest find in diabetes research in the past 36 years" — that is, since the discovery of insulin in 1921? Or does it bring on high risk of fatal heart disease? Or is it something somewhere in the middle that has not been adequately explained?

Ugly American Wasn't Tourist

Letter to advice column of The Globe and Mail

A week or two ago you printed a letter in which the writer used the expression "the Ugly American" as a derogatory term to describe a loud, bumptious tourist. The misuse of the title of William Lederer and Eugene Burdick's book is now so widespread that I suppose it is futile to protest, but at least once I am going to give it a try.

The Ugly American was not a tourist, he was an expert on heavy construction invited to an underdeveloped country to study and report on its needs for dams and roads. He was not loud, bumptious, chauvinist, ignorant, rude, flashy or a fool; he learned the local language, met the people, ate their food and spent a long time learning their ways and their economy. His report, when he made it, emphasized the needs of the local people, not the grandiose aspirations of the bureaucracy; needless to say, it was rejected by the latter and their U.S. advisers. He eventually went into business with a local mechanic, making simple irrigation pumps, and he and his wife established their home in the village and lived in the local style. He was called ugly simply because he was ugly, an unprepossessing man with rough, scarred, stained hands, casual clothing and a forthright manner — all, including his style of life, in contrast with the bureaucrats and advisers with whom he had to deal.

'Peaches' Hunt not Content To Sit on Her Millions

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The daughter that H. L. Hunt always called "Peaches" says she doesn't believe money should rule her life. She just wants to make it as a singer.

"Peaches" is June Hunt, 29, daughter of the Texas billionaire who died Nov. 29. She is thought to be one of America's wealthiest women because of her father's fortune.

But June says she isn't content to bask in the limelight cast by the Hunt empire. She's trying to make it in the entertainment world on her talent as a singer and guitarist.

She released her first record in December.

"It's kind of a novelty song. It's about a little blue man who follows this woman around," said Miss Hunt, who shuns flashy clothes and jewelry in favor of a conservative [illegible] gold necklace with a biblical fish symbol.

She crossed her hazel eyes twisted her face into a pixie expression and said: "He keeps telling the woman: 'I lub you, I lub you.' Finally, she pushes him off the top of a tall building. When she gets down to the street, there he is again. And do you know what he says this time? 'I don't lub you anymore'."

June Hunt says her singing began as a child when her father would pull her up next to sist that she sing tunes that he liked.

She studied music at Southern Methodist University, then launched into a career in religion, becoming a youth and college director of First Baptist Church in Dallas. She began touring the country on speaking engagements that usually included some singing.

Miss Hunt's singing career got a boost in 1972 when she staged her own USO tour in Vietnam. Then, Truth Records, part of Stax Records in Memphis, became interested in her. The firm, famous for the soul music it produces, signed her as its first white female vocalist.

The Little Blue Man record is the first result. It will be promoted through use of toy blue men sent to record shops.

Volunteer Therapists Help 'Sleeping Sickness' Victim

MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — In more than a year since eight-year-old Laura Jane Fox left the hospital, her parents and nearly 100 volunteers have been working day and night to learn what goes on in her mind.

She walks aimlessly, her eyes usually vacant, the apparent victim of viral encephalitis, or sleeping sickness.

Laurie is unable to speak or communicate. Her parents question whether she is capable of rational thought.

"Nobody knows what's going in her mind," said her mother, Mrs. Michael Fox.

Nonetheless, volunteers have continued to arrive, 10 every day, at the Foxes' small house to help with a rigorous therapy program which they hope will bring back some, if not all, of Laurie's faculties.

The spindly, brown-haired girl spends most of her waking hours being rubbed, coaxed, led through exercises, fed soft foods and forced to go through basic crawling and creeping motions on the floor while surrounded by toys she used to love.

She acknowledges the presence of others only by infrequently putting her arms around the neck of someone who picks up her 55-pound frame.

Only recently was tube feeding discarded.

In an attempt to renew her senses, she gets frquent massages, warm and cold sponge baths, food samples with strong tastes and continual patter of talk.

"The only way we're going to get her out of this state is through stimulation," Mrs. Fox said during an interview between exercises. "And we're always here to love her."

The uncertainty is nearly as tiring for those around Laurie as the treatment.

During Laurie's 10 - week stay in Yale-New Haven Hospital last fall, some of the nearly 40 doctors who treated her said she appeared to be deaf and blind. The Foxes insist she sees because she picks up some objects and steps over other.

Uncomfortable objects are put in oversized sneakers on Laurie's feet during her floorplay period to encourage her to crawl rather than walk.

"You wonder if it's being sadistic," Mrs. Fox said, but her daughter shows no sign of discomfort, although she stays off her feet.

Dr. Bennett S. Shaywitz, a pediatrics and neurology specialist who cared for Laurie in the hospital, said he expects she always will be handicapped.

The virus that forced her into a coma Aug. 30, 1973, was never diagnosed for certain as viral encephalitis, he said, but it left her with severe brain damage.

Ten other patients who recently were treated at Yale-New Haven for the same apparent disase have, for some unexplained reason, shown much greater recovery. Any recovery usually comes within about two years of the damage, he said, and the improvement apparently occurs naturally, without outside help.

Shaywitz said viral encephalitis is a fairly common disease but is seldom as severe as Laurie's case. There is no cure or immunization against it.

The virus that causes it is sometimes spread by mosquitoes and sometimes orally. An infected person usually is feverish and disoriented for a day or so before losing conciousness.

Laurie's treatment is being supervised by the Institute for the Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia, which advocates a technique called patterning.

The controversial technique is based on a theory that crawling and creeping motions are basic to development of the body's motor system and can stimulate undamaged brain cells to assume the job of directing movement.

Although the institute's directors contend patterning has helped many brain-damaged patients to achieve some degree of recovery, many physicians say there is no proof the improvement would not have occurred naturally.

"People say it's foolish to put a child on the floor when she's already walking," said Mrs. Fox. "But we're really starting all over again with everything."

The mother and father, who have two married daughters, said Laurie has shown progress since her return from the hospital a year ago Nov. 15, when she had to be tied into bed so she would not fall.

More than 80 persons—students, mothers, nuns, nurses—have volunteered to work a few hours a week at the Fox home, helping Mrs. Fox with Laurie's twice-daily therapy.

Other volunteers have raised about $6,700 in an attempt to keep pace with the girl's medicine and doctors' bills and the cost of travelling for treatment.

And the Foxes have other serious medical problems.

Fox, a utility man for a local manufacturing company, faces a repeat of leg surgery that kept him out of work for 12 weeks last summer. Mrs. battling the cancer."

Fox has had a breast removed and said she is "still

Retirement Means Freedom

Dear Doris: Yes, I am retiring. I know I shall miss the people I have met through my work — but this happens.

So far I have made no definite plans for retirement, with the exception of cleaning out 15 years' accumulated mess that is in our home. While working I have just been able to touch the surface and any cleaning women I have had have gone on to better jobs (which I encouraged) but I gave up trying to find a new one and the last lady left about three years ago.

I have also a couple of volunteers jobs in mind. But I don't want anything that makes me be at a certain place at 8 a.m. every day. No way! I have had many years of that and look forward to not running every morning to be at work.

I hope my husband and I will do a bit of travelling as well as enjoying lolling around and doing our gardening in the summer months.

Jean.

Dear Jean: I am glad you are letting up on the pressure while you are still going strong health-wise.

You are the sort of person who will not allow yourself to rust away, and you are so well known in your community that you may experience, at first, what many others have — too many requests and demands on your time.

The secret of growing old happily and healthfully is to know how to taper off. Retirement time should be a time to use your new freedom — freedom to sleep in if you like (and I question whether a person like you will do it regularly) — freedom to take off to far places occasionally; and freedom to continue to grow and develop mentally and spiritually Have a good time.

Dear Doris: I'm in my teens and with all my heart I want to be a dancer. Perhaps a cheerleader would better describe it, so that I can take part in football game parades and such things. I don't really want to be a person who actually does lead in the cheers.

Also, I love figure skating. Is there some way I can continues classes and still practise routines after school?

Teen.

Dear Teen: Do you want lessons in baton twirling? You can certainly do this and continue with schooling. And you can get experience by taking part in parades and competitions.

Look in the yellow pages of your telephone directory under Dancing Instruction, for a dancing school that teaches baton twirling. The same applies to figure skating.

If there is a skating club in your community, join it.

Dear Doris: You printed a story of my son, Kenny Arnold, not too long ago and I wanted to write and say Thank You and your readers for being so kind and loyal to Kenny. If they only knew how much it has helped us all! With the postage so high we just can't write you all back.

You have so many warm and very wonderful Canadian people there who are writing Kenny. We pray that God blesses you all in a very special way. I also thank you all for all the gifts that you sent Kenny.

Kenny is seven now. He turned seven on September 10. Doris, if it would be all right with you, I could keep your readers informed about Kenny's condition through your column.

Thank You Again.

P.S. Kenny has a wonderful Daddy too. Some of the readers were wondering.

Dear T.Y.A: Just to see Kenny's face light up must have been heartwarming for you, whose heart goes out to his all the time.

I will add my thank you to yours, to our wonderful sympathetic readers who never fail to respond to such a call.

We would be glad to hear more details about Kenny's condition at any time. Please do write to us. (And Kenny address, for anyone else wishing to write to this completely do write to us. (And Kenny's Arnold, 2843, Gary, Kansas City, Mo. 664129 U.S.A.)

Dear Doris: A guy and I plan to see a Christmas concert. There will be a silver collection. Should we both contribute? We're both in high school.

Just Wondering.

Dear Just Wondering: Your letter was written on December 7, was forwarded from the newspaper and arrived on my desk on December 16.

All the newspapers I write for have already set up columns for weeks ahead — so you couldn't possibly have received your answer ahead of that Christmas concert. Right now I am working on columns which will be appearing in newspapers towards the end of February.

In case there is some other concert or performance with a silver collection later on, a good deal depends on what the silver collection is for. If the concert is put on for charity and you would like to make a contribution, do so. Otherwise your escort does not intend for your evening out to cost you anything. It is his treat.

(Doris receves 10,000 letters a year, from readers. Please remember to supply the stamp for your reply, addressing your letter to her in care of this newspaper.)

Extra Help After School

TORONTO (CP — Despairing parents who feel their children aren't getting the opportunity to learn in the regular school stream, are flocking to a remedial education centre which opened here last fall.

The Toronto Learning Centre was the brainchild of two special educationists, Merle Langbord Levine and Martin Kravitz. Children go there after their regular school hours for remedial classes, tutoring or homework assistance.

Mrs. Levine left her job as a learning disabilities teacher after approaching Mr. Kravitz about her vision of such a centre. Although he and his family were living in Kitchener, Ont., at the time, he too was so fascinated with the idea that he and his wife and children moved to Toronto to take part in the scheme.

They have brought to the advisory board of the centre some of the best-known specialists in Ontario in the fields of psychiatry, psychology, speech therapy, social work pediatrics, ophthalmology, recreation, neurology and allergy.

The emphasis is on personal, individual approach. Although students are in small groups, they are taught on a one-to-one basis.

The resources room has audio-visual aids, such as control reading machines and tape recorders.

Remedial and development work is done in communication (oral and written), mathematics, study skills and homework assistance.

"I've never seen such a thing as a lazy kid where learning is concerned," said Mr. Kravitz.

"There can be any number of reasons. They may have been sick, and dopped behind. Or slow maturing. Or ready to learn, but inappropriately taught, so they become bored.

"School can be hours of misery to children with any of these problems," said Mr. Kravitz.

Ann Landers

Eyes That Have Seen Life Can Give New Joy to Others

Dear Ann Landers: I am 76, alone and have been blessed with good health and God's love and mercy. Last week I realized I should rewrite my will. Am I too old to give my body to whatever agency can make use of any part of it? How do I contact the appropriate people?

I have seen the beauty of the world, the kindness of people, the sweetness of innocent children and the adoration in the eyes of my beloved late husband. Can someone perhaps benefit from my eyes or parts of my body. Please advise me, Ann.—A Great Grandmother

Dear Grandmother—and you are great: Bless you for your good sense and eagerness to contribute to humanity. You need a Uniform Donor's Card and instructions. Please write to The National Kidney Foundation, 116 East 27th Street, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Eyes and kidneys are urgently needed. There are long waiting lists for both. Just think how wonderful it would be if you could give sight or added years to a stranger after you have departed this world! I urge all who wish to do so to make use of the address at once.

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago Ogden Nash wrote a poem about you. In that poem there was a very funny line about a fat girl. I clipped the poem but misplaced it. Will you please tell me what that line was before I wig out? Thanks, Doll.—Reader in White Plains

That "funny line" appeared in an Ogden Nash poem based on a letter in my column. A young woman had complained that her boy friend was unromantic. Nash quoted the gentleman's compliment to her: "You sweat less than any fat girl I know."

Thanks for asking me to repeat the line. Ogden Nash was one of my favorites.

Dear Ann Landers: When my husband announced, after six years of what I thought was a good marriage, that he was leaving me to enjoy the freedom he felt he had been denied, I was shocked and confused.

I blamed myself for having failed him. He assured me that such was not the case. He insists there is nobody else. I believe him. He wants to go off on his own and review some problems he has been unable to resolve. Of course I am heartbroken, but I decided it would be best to let him go.

I don't want a man who doesn't want to share my life. I have a good job and don't need his financial support. If he wants to send me money, fine. If not, that's ok, too. I am praying he will come back, but if he doesn't I won't curl up and die. I will make another life for myself.

Several of my friends are so furious they refuse to speak to him. I think this is unfair. If I'm not mad, why should they be? The point of this letter is to say I wish my friends would stop pitying me and asking me how I can tolerate such abuse. I'm handling the problem in my own way and I'd appreciate it if they would leave me alone. Sign me—Making It

Dear M.U.: You owe no apologies and no explanations to anyone. When your friends offer sympathy or counsel, simply tell them to buzz off. You didn't ask—and you might tell ME to buzz off—but my hunch is that you're better off without the guy.

Kids Dramatize Lessons

WINNIPEG (CP) — An experimental program allowing students to apply dramatic interpretations to the elementary curriculum has been received with enthusiasm by most of the province's teachers.

Headed by Kevin Burns and Elizabeth Coffman, the program is designed to enable students to act out lessons as an extension of the traditional lecture session.

During one such lesson, a group of Grade 5 students divided themselves into sections of four or five and huddled to determine how to interpret a segment of the day's astronomy lesson.

"Watch how much TV influences what they do," remarked Mr. Burns.

And sure enough, the first cluster introduced its act with a commercial-style announcement.

"Good evening, earthlings. Come to Uranus for your holidays. You will feel as light as air there."

The following group used a TV talk show format and exchanged ideas toward the day's lesson.

The program, sanctioned by the Manitoba department of education, recruited Mr. Burns from England last September to act as co-ordinator. Both Mr. Burns and Ms. Coffman stress that their role in the classroom is to enhance the work of the teacher.

"We're not replacements for regular teachers," Mr. Burns explained. "We work with them, try to merge our approaches."

The aim is to present information to a student in such a way that his approach to it is: "What can I find out?" rather than "What am I being told?"

Many teachers envision further application of the program in the areas of geography, history, science and the language arts. Often, the tachers feel unable to pursue the concept on their own. That's when th two dramatic specialists enter the picture.

An integrated arts program is a logical and desirable extension of the program, Mr. Burns said. In such a scheme, any number of specialists—a musician, a social scientist, a geographer—would visit classrooms to stimulate regular classroom study.

Before their one-year contract with the department of education expires, the specialists plan

However, one aspect of the effectiveness of the program.

The specialists said one hour in the classroom seems to reveal more of a child's basic character, possibilities, and limitations than many an hour in a normal classroom structure.

Volunteer Bureau Programs Explained

A slide show depicting special programs of the Central Volunteer Bureau was the highlight of the group's annual meeting held Wednesday at the Four Seasons Hotel.

From the Sunshine Luncheon Club, which allows 50 elderly persons to meet for lunch every Friday at Bridge St. United Church, to probation volunteers, which provides help from the community for persons convicted of offenses, the Bureau's programs were explained and illustrated.

Ina Bellstedt, who runs English classes for new Canadians, told the audience that seven volunteer teachers instruct new Canadians from a dozen countries in English. The group also holds a tea after each class to allow for social interaction, Mrs. Belstedt said, and an annual Christmas party.

Wilhelmina DeBoer said that members of the Friday lunch club had recently named their group the "Sunshine Luncheon Club" because "they said the weekly lunch brings a ray of sunshine into their lives." Mrs DeBoer said the group began meeting in October with 18 attendants and now more than 50 elderly persons attend weekly for a hot meal and companionship.

Programs for the elderly include weekly Meals on Wheels for 55 persons in need of nourishment and hot soup and sandwich luncheons prepared by home economics students at the high schools and delivered twice a week.

Pauline Bishop told members of the audience about the sewing and handicrafts club which meets weekly at Bridge St. Church.

There are 25 members of the group which is co-sponsored by Family and Children's Services. A nursery school is provided for children and the women learning sewing and such handicrafts as quilt making and crocheting.

Sue Jones, a student, told the audience about her work in the Community Involvement Program which allows students to receive high school credit for volunteer work in the community. She has been attempting to organize a tutoring service, she said.

Probation officer Bill Groten said he is working with 15 volunteers who, on a one-to-one basis, are assisting persons on probation. The program, begun in November 1973, has, so far, "just about a 100 per cent success rate," he said.

Terry Miskelly, who ran the furniture exchange at the Volunteer Bureau, talked about the Local Initiatives Project which has allowed her to employ five persons in what was once a volunteer project. Called the Low Income People Project, it operates a furniture and clothing sharing program, housing registry and information service for low income people.

The Christmas Sharing program and preschool programs were also topics at the meeting.

Dorothy Taylor

Missionary Work Lifetime Interest

Dorothy Taylor sees missionary work as the main goal of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church.

Her own personal mission, however, now that she is president of the Kingston presbyterial group, is youth work.

"This in itself is missionary work," she says.

"There are so many other attractions that grab the attention of our young people and young marrieds, that we have to work harder for their attention.

"We feel the church has to dig its heels in and work to attract young people."

Mrs. Taylor is married to Roy Taylor, a Stirling minister.

She's quick to point out that her interest in church work hasn't stemmed from her position in the community as the minister's wife.

"I've been active in the church since I was a teenager," she says, adding that until Roy became a minister six years ago they were both closely associated with the church in a lay capacity.

Now as a leader of Presbyterian women in the area, Mrs. Taylor sees her duty as an interpreter of needs within the area's 12 churches.

Along with women in those churches, she's developing programs to fit each community while remembering the group's primary function to support missions and missionaries in Canada and abroad. While she admits to being "old-fashioned" in her belief that men should lead the church, she believes women will in the future take a stronger position.

"This will happen in the church as it will in other institutions," she says, adding that, more than ever "ministers need the support of strong women's auxiliaries."

People and Events

BELLEVILLE GARDEN CLUB

Developing a personal landscape plan was the subject of Mr. Ross Hawthorne's address to the Belleville Garden Club at their February meeting.

Mr. Hawthorne, a gardening columnist for the Intelligencer and broadcaster on CJBQ, stressed the theme of developing a landscape plan which reflects the same sort of tastes which one uses in decorating inside the home. Examples illustrated how various plans might be developed which would reflect the homeowner's personality.

Flower arrangements on a Valentine theme were judged with first prizes going to Daina Honeyman for an arrangement of real flowers and Verna Roblin for an arrangement of artificial flowers.

After this talk, Mr. Hawthorne and Larry Johnson answered questions from the floor on a variety of gardening topics.

A draw for door prizes and refreshments closed the meeting.

MELROSE UCW

Dorothy Melburn, newly-elected president of the Melrose United Church Women, conducted the February meeting held in the church.

The treasurer reported a balance of over $200 remaining from 1974.

Ruth Pascoe was appointed to represent the UCW on the official church board.

ST. PAUL'S ACW

Rev. J.B. Peever, program director, and his assistant, Irene Cleland of Kingston, outlined some suggestions for more effective programming at the February meeting of St. Paul's ACW.

The importance of making meetings more interesting, revelent and instructive was stressed by Rev. Peever in his address. He suggested having speakers from such organizations as the Cancer Society, The Ability Fund, Children and Family Services or knowledgeable local residents.

Study programs, visits to such interesting places as the Anglican Church archives in Kingston, were also mentioned as ideas that could be used to make membership in the A.C.W. more meaningful.

Plans for the St. Patrick's Day Tea and card party at the home of Lillian Johnson on March 14 were completed.

Fifteen members of St. Paul's A.C.W. attended the meeting at the home of Mrs. Beverly Mullan.

24 HOUR SKI ATHON

These special events will not interfere with the regularly scheduled skiing for the weekend.

BARBERSHOPPERS COMPETE

The competition involves chapters from Brockville, Kingston, Trenton, Oshawa, and Peterborough.

A NEEDED NATIONAL HOLIDAY

"Holidays provide a special time for celebration and for remembrance."

— Heritage Canada Magazine.

Speaking of February as we did last week . . .

Did you know that an independent and federally financed conservation agency, known as "Heritage Canada", is advocating a new national holiday, and chose the third Monday in February, as the day on which the holiday "Heritage" would be celebrated?

It is true, and although official recognition has yet to take place, some citizens have already taken the intiative, and "Heritage" was celebrated for the first time, last year. The mayors of many cities proclaimed it — including Ottawa.

Many organizations, individuals and historical boards join enthusiastically in the belief that such a holiday celebrates the inheritance of each and every Canadian. That architectural gifts of past generations, which grace the present, speak of their hope and achievements. That these are priceless.

Marten Lewis, curator of the Hastings County Museum, Glanmore House is greatly in favor of an Heritage holiday. Especially at this time of year, he feels, when school children are readily available for field trips and conversational instruction which has been largely ignored. Learning of their heritage in this way encourages them to write and point out what inspired them to feel and think.

Here are several observations of 7th Grade pupils in Carleton Place, (whose teacher opened their eyes to their community's treasure of architecture and sites) which appear in the current issue of Canada's quarterly publication:

"Oh, old house standing so high
Tomorrow is your death
I could almost cry
Your master spent his life
Just to build you ...
They're putting a new modern House in your place
But leaving not a trace
Of happy times in that old place"

Faith Bush

"A flower without roots can't live and we can't live without our heritage ... If you tear down the old buildings of Canada, you're taking the roots from the flower..."

Tracy Neil

For those of Belleville interested in Heritage Canada, Rodger Grieg will explain the membership details for Heritage Canada in 1975. Phone 962 - 2329.

Renewed Romance One Way to Save Middle-age Marriages on the Rocks

Many middle-age marriages, already strained by discontent, altered interests and demands for personal self-fulfillment, may soon be under additional pressure from the economic crunch. And experts believe there may be even more "twenty year fractures" because of it.

"I had hoped the economic situation might bring couples together but, no I don't see it," reflects Alfred Messer, an Atlanta psychiatrist whose 1969 study on the trend toward the dissolution of long-standing marriages concluded that most breakups occurred in child - oriented unions, and when the last child left home, the marriage failed.

Reasons for splitting are much more varied today, Dr. Messer notes. Liberalized divorce laws and relaxed attitudes toward divorce are contributing factors. But most important, in his opinion, is a pervasive "I deserve more" attitude that has encouraged self-exploration, new freedoms, and frequently — divorce.

He predicts a recession will produce more marital disturbance and conflict. "If your approach to life is I deserve more, then you won't accept financial woes and the like. You'll want out."

Affluence has uncoupled couples — but money has held shaky marriages together, too. "I see husbands and wives who stay together because they can go their own ways, have fun — and still maintain the old homestead," says Mary Jane Hungerford, Ph. D., a California marital counselor. "If they can't afford their usual escapes, they're bound to break up."

Sexual compatibility is threatened too, as many men relate potency with economic power. Troubled by financial worries and male mid-life crises, they may look outside marriage for solace and escape.

If the forecasts come to pass, divorce rates, already epidemic, could go even higher. Latest government statistics show that of the United States' annual half million divorces, one of four divorces separated couples who were wed 15 years or more. And one in six — compared with one in 25 before World War 11 — terminated marriages of 25 years and more.

What can you do to prevent middle age divorce? Renew and revitalize the old relationship, advise the counselors.

"Start doing things you did during courtship," urges Dr. Hungerford. "Make dates. Go out once a week for coffee and just talk. Pay attention and listen to one another."

"Bring back romance," Dr. Messer concurs. "Couples of every age should make it a habit once a week or more to sit down to a candlelight dinner alone. You can awaken original feelings and fantasies in that setting."

Couples willing to work to beat the 20-year blahs may be helped by a recession, the experts agree. Thrown back on their own resources, they'll be forced to rely on one another once more.

Dr. Hungerford sums up: "If the relationship is good they can be inventive — even without money — and it's a great opportunity to revive the early days of their marriage. If the relationship is bad — cutting down will worsen things. They won't be able to afford to dull the pain."

You Really Are What You Eat!

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Emanuel Cheraskin says sugar-coated cereals should be labelled: "More dangerous to children than pornography."

And candy wrappers should carry a printed warning that the product may be dangerous to mental health.

Dr. Cheraskin, professor of medicine and chairman of the department of oral medicine at University of Alabama in Birmingham, says in his book, Psychodietics, that sugar-laden processed foods and other staples of the modern diet wreak social havoc.

On a recent visit to Toronto, he said improper diet has been linked with problems ranging from psychiatric disorders and juvenile delinquency to impotence.

"If nothing seems quite funny to you these days, don't blame the morning news. Plentiful servings of raw, green vegetables, whole-grain cereals, eggs, organ meats and nuts might help get you laughing again."

Dr. Cheraskin said scientific data show impotence is caused by a diet of processed foods, sugar and chemical additives and by poor eating habits.

He said many doctors prescribe birth-control pills improperly.

"Oral contraceptives often cause widespread derangement of nutrient metabolism. Long-term use frequently results in some evidence of psychological upset."

Dr. Cheraskin said studies by a New York specialist found that malnutrition in adults may alter or impair specific or general mental functions and eventually cause structural damage to the nervous system. In children, brain development may be retarded, stopped or altered.

He said poor nutrition may contribute to juvenile delinquency.

"A tiny decrease in calcium in the blood can produce uncontrollable temper outbursts."

Behavior could be changed by diet but few medical men had information about nutrition.

"Dr. Jean Mayer did a study of doctors at Harvard University and found that the average doctor knows a wee bit more about nutrition than his secretary—unless his secretary has a weight problem, in which case she knows a wee bit more about nutrition than the doctor."

His chief villain is refined white sugar, which is not only valueless but a chemical menace, he said, because it lacks the vitamins the body needs to assimilate it.

There's Still A Chance

There's still a chance for you to see that great Canadian group LIGHTHOUSE tomorrow afternoon in a matinee performance at the Mad Mechanic. Lighthouse will be performing in two 45 minute sets beginning at 2 p.m. If by some chance you don't know where the Mad Mechanic is . . . and I admit it's a chance . . . it's the night club of the Four Seasons Motor Hotel. And I hear there are a few other surprises in store too besides this great entertainment treat. Tickets are $4 each plus tax. Don't miss this. Tonight and tomorrow nights are sold out. But if you get cracking and call the Four Seasons now, you can still see LIGHTHOUSE.

Early Warning Home Smoke Alarm

The people at Moira Schuster have something new that you should definitely hear about and go and see. And I mean SHOULD. It's SMOKEGARD, an early warning home smoke alarm. It is an ionization-type detector which becomes activated at the earliest stages of a developing fire, when particles of combustion are still invisible. Because invisible combustion gases are produced as a fire is beginning the Smokegard will detect these and set off an alarm which will wake each and everyone and provide precious moments to get help. As you know, Moira Schuster are heating experts. They understand the nature of heat and fire and they're very impressed with the merits of this fire-detection device. Call them at 962-4504 or drop in at 17 Pinnacle St. South.

Here Comes The Ice

That headline is somewhat misleading but the ice has been here this week in its expected pre-spring showing. I'm glad to see signs of Spring, but I wish they weren't so dangerous. That's why you need Ice-Of, that miraculous de-icing product of ServiceMaster. This type of product is used to keep airport runways clear of ice, so it can certainly do the job at your house. You can buy it in 10 lb bags from ServiceMaster's retail outlet at the rear of Pinnacle St. Ice-Off works three times faster than salt; keeps on working once you put it on and doesn't stick to the sidewalk, shovel and to you, as does salt. You're going to need this product a lot more before you see lovely April. Get your Ice-Off now.

Cheer-Up Pastels

When I talked to Jean Smith this week, she remarked that it's really a bad time of year for clothes because we really don't know what to wear — for color, weight and warmth. But not to be at a loss, Jean has a few suggestions. One of these suggestions is a pastel leather coat from Israel. I have seen these coats and to say they are stunning is to sell them short. You won't see anything like them anywhere in the area. She also has some pigskin suede coats, which excite the same kind of fashion response. You'll see when you visit the West Wind Boutique at Actinolite on Hwy. 7. It's open seven days a week, don't forget And Jean's winter stock sale will last ONLY ONE MORE WEEK. So get up there. Look at the reasons.

Foods For Lent

Murray's Food Market on Front St. is now featuring Lenten foods. 'Featuring' means that there are not only special displays and special quantities of Lenten foods, but also special prices. So even if, as Murray say, you're not religious, you can benefit from the conscientiousness of those who are. And about that birthday celebration that's going to take place at Murray's pretty soon . . . I hear that the City of Belleville is going to be renamed 'Murrayville' for a day and Victoria Ave. will now be known as Murray Ave. The parking meters within a block on either side of Murray's store are going to be given to Murray as a present from the City to support the Boy Scouts, The TB Association and all those other worthy causes Murray believes in. Isn't that nice?

The Siding Seasons

Now you may not believe this, I know. But then you and I aren't experts on siding either, like the people at Highland Construction. Now is the time to call them at 962-1184 to have a free estimate made on your siding requirements. Highland Construction is the only local dealer of vinyl siding. And vinyl siding is one of the GREAT improvements in the whole home improvement field in many years. Vinyl siding is colored, clear-through, not just on the outside; it doesn't need painting; it doesn't dent like aluminum; has a 30 year guarantee and is absolutely kid-proof. Balls and stones and baseball bats etc. have met their match. Go see the exhibit of this miracle siding a 257 North Front St.

An 'Our Loss, Your Gain' Sale

That's a very good way to describe the 'scratched and dented' sale which is now taking place at Ruddy Electric's Consumer Division, 291 Coleman St. This sale is mainly on lighting fixtures. But the savings! You can save up to 50 per cent on some items Ruddy Electric is a quality lighting establishment. What they choose to buy is not only quality in workmanship and manufacturing standards, but also in fashion and taste to compliment quality interiors. Such as your house. So the selections from which you can choose and save is interesting . . . very interesting, as a matter of fact. All this you can substantiate when you visit Ruddy Elecric's Consumer Division.

They've Arrived

All those marvelous re-conditioned vacuum cleaners I told you about last week and recommended as second vacuums for garage, rec-room or cottage arrived at Gibbs and Son, 37 Albion St. last weekend. But how long they are going to stay there is another point. It's sure nice to know that people are reading this column. Mr. Gibbs and Michael will attest to that. So if you want to get one of these re-conditioned vacuums with their efficient motors and suction, you'd better hurry. I want one myself and I've been told to hurry up too. And don't forget the expert workmanship which has gone into these vacuums. That's Gibbs and Son for you. And for me too.

Spring At Trenton Optical

You won't see swallow's nests at Trenton Optical or robins flying around 34 Bridge St. E., or even any green grass. But you will see new life and style in the lately-arrived fashion frames which Trenton Optical is now parading. I'm going to be parading some new glasses frames too next week. Spring fever is starting to get me and even if I'll still have to wear my winter coat for a little while longer, I can wear a little bit of spring fashion around my eyes. Trenton Optical has just the style for you too. And you don't have to make an appointment either. Trenton Optical is also open Wednesday afternoons and Saturdays too.

For Many Reasons

People need to rent cars for many reasons . . . for holidays, for business, while car repairs are being made on their own car, or even if they don't own a car and wish to lease one for one day or a hundred. All these reasons can be resolved by Holiday Car and Truck Rentals, 11 West Moira St. Holiday rents Chrysler products, all sizes and models; all their models are automatic, however, and are changed every six months. So you know you are getting a quality product from a quality rental agency, the all-Canadian Holiday service. And if you want to know mileage and gas estimates, Holiday can help you there too. Just call 962-9114.

Like a Garden

The Cameron Art Gallery, 1½ miles west of Rednersville on the Rednersville Rd., is like a garden; it's certainly colorful, but like a garden, it's always changing too. You'll always find new things from the talents of the three Camerons . . . oils, watercolors, pen and ink sketches, prints, notepaper with original designs, and pottery from the hands of the youngest Cameron. You can't start growing your own flowers yet, but you can go and see the flowers at the Cameron Gallery. And I'm not just speaking figuratively. There are some happy Donnah Cameron paintings of magnificent flowers in magnificent colors. The gallery is open on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays and through the week by appointment.

Lot Size Debated

Hastings County planning board still wants to thresh out with provincial authorities a difference of opinion on the size of rural house lots.

Board chairman Reeve Felix Browne, of Bangor-Wicklow-McClure, got permission this week from council when it adopted his group's report again complaining of an issue that has bedevilled councillors since they received the county's official plan.

The plan permits homes in rural areas on one-acre severance sites. But, council has been repeatedly told, housing ministry officials have been pressing for larger lots — at one point up to 25 acres.

Legislation may be pending to reduce the 25-acre minimum, council also has learned.

Meantime, however, the county board wants to confront housing officials with Hastings' reasons.

Among points they want to emphasize:

— Development pressure in Hastings is not as crushing as in areas surrounding metropolitan centres.

— Lot size should relate to use. The one-acre rural severances seem to satisfy local health authorities as supporting sewage and water facilities.

Three Bridges Approved

A Belleville construction company has won the contract to build three small bridges on Hasting County Road 18 — which links the eastern limits of Belleville to the Shannonville Gravel road along Thurlow Township's second concession.

Tatham Construction Co., submitted the lowest bid — $80,972 — among 12 tenders on the project which ranged up to $129,358, Hastings County roads and bridges committee told council this week.

Liberal Seminar Saturday

Liberal party workers from across east-central Ontario will hold a seminar on election campaigns and political organizing in Belleville Saturday.

Among key personalities will be David Deacon, Ontario Liberal Party organizer and son of its deputy leader, Donald Deacon, and Paul Taylor, who scored the upset win for the Liberals in the recent Carleton-East byelection.

The day-long seminar will be open only to delegates.

Meantime, Friday night some of the workshop's participants and leaders are expected at a dance, organized by the provincial Quinte riding organization at the Trent Valley Rod and Gun Club.

County Roads Get Facelift

Hastings County has been allocated $2,019,800 subsidy for its roads and bridges building and upkeep program this year — up close to $1-million more than the 1974 allocation.

The allocation from Transportation and Community Minister John Rhodes' office, has been confirmed by Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

The big increase — amounting to about $935,000 — will permit an "extensive" road and bridge construction in Hastings during the year, [illegible] Rollins.

Veteran Steps Down

Myra Crossen stepped down from her Deloro Stellite wax machine this month after completing 19 years of service. With her is company manager Len Shacklock. The machine produces extremely high quality wax moulds in the stellite process. Mrs. Crossen of Marmora, worked a total of 21 years at the plant and was presented with a gold watch upon retirement.

Slumping Auto Sales Force Layoff at Stewart Warner

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The first shock waves of North America's slumping automotive industry reached Belleville's Stewart Warner plant this week as 20 employees were laid off and office staff hours reduced to four days a week.

Plant personnel manager Jack Warner said today, the layoff will last "indefinitely," and is due to the current "economic slump" in the auto manufacturing industry.

The Stewart Warner plant here produces brake hose and speedometer cable, among other things.

"It is not a permanent layoff — no length has been forecast," said Mr. Warner.

The company suffered some slackening of trade in December which brought about some "minor" layoffs but this marks the first layoff of any size, the company spokesman said.

The plant employs approximately 110 hourly-paid employees. The bulk of employees are unskilled or semi-skilled workers and will earn about $3.50 an hour by March when a new contract comes into effect.

Mr. Warner said no office staff have been laid off — rather, the entire office operation has been cut back in hours.

"No jobs have disappeared," he said. "We just have a smaller work load."

Mr. Warner was reluctant to guess at the duration of the layoff but said he believes there will be a "gradual pick-up in six to eight weeks."

Chief operations executive for the plant, Robert Reid, said today "we are taking every possible step to ensure the layoff will be as short in duration as possible."

Some products now being manufactured in American plants are being brought to Belleville for production locally, he said.

Local Firms Get Contracts

From the Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Two Belleville firms have been awarded federal government contracts for services to Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, the department of supply and services announced Monday.

L. G. Byrd and Son Ltd. has been given a $30,000 contract to refinish hardwood floors at the base, while Warren Whitley Rental Equipment Ltd. will receive $14,000 for the rental of trailer units at the station.

A third Belleville firm, Arthur A. Sills and Son Ltd. was also given a contract to supply the defence department with $10,000 worth of lumber and plywood.

They were among 212 unclassified contracts worth $10,000 or more that were awarded by the supply and services department to Canadian companies recently. Total value of the contracts amounted to $31,148,982.

Contract Talks On at Hospital

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Contract negotiations between Belleville General Hospital and its smallest organized labor group has gone to arbitration.

The hospital is negotiating with Local 796, Operating International Union of Operating Engineers. The local represents five second-class stationary engineers in the hospital's steam plant.

A BGH official said the pay rate for the men was $855 a month under the contract which expired at the end of last September. Clarence Hunt, president of the local declined to discuss details of the new negotiations.

A conciliation meeting in October proved fruitless after members of the local turned down a memo of agreement reached at an earlier meeting.

Wednesday, the situation was discussed before arbitration officer Howard Brown, Toronto labor consultant, during a hearing at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Both sides now are awaiting his report.

Ray Krock, BGH assistant executive director, said it is the only labor issue involving the hospital's 1,000 employees this year — aside from pay bargaining with nurses, scheduled for later this year.

The bargaining is scheduled for around June and will be conducted on a provincial-wide basis, said Mr. Krock. This is similar to the negotiations last year at which nurses in Ontario's public hospitals united for the first time in province-wide bargaining on salaries.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1975

Trenton Waterfront Hub Of CORTS Agreement

Major local impact of a federal-provincial agreement signed in Peterborough Thursday on the ice of the Trent Canal will be the upgrading of the Trenton waterfront, harbor and marina facilities.

The Canada Ontario-Rideau-Trent - Severn (CORTS) agreement provides for planning and development of a 428-mile land and water recreational corridor between Ottawa and Georgian Bay.

Judd Buchanan, federal minister of Indian and northern affairs, and Allan Grossman, Ontario secretary for resources development, took part in the ceremony sealing the agreement.

The agreement provides that the two governments will co-ordinate planning of commercial developments, picnic and camp areas, boat and canoe routes, recreational trails and scenic roads.

Earlier, co-ordinator David Bates said improved marina facilities should be a priority for the Trenton waterfront. Trenton, he said, has "a very decided role" in providing facilites for boaters.

Mr. Bates said a great deal would depend on local involvement and many projects would require more effort than money.

"Most of the money will come from the federal and provincial governments . . . very little from the municipality," he said.

The CORTS agreement provides for the establishment of an advisory committee to seek public opinion on the plans and a 10-member agreement board to plan land aquisition and development of facilities.

The federal government will still be responsible for the operation and maintenance of canal locks, aids to navigation and preservation of historic sites. The province is to encourage regional and municipal governments to assist in implementing programs.

Teachers Travel

Two teachers from Queen Mary Elementary School, Jennifer Davis and Leona Sine, attended last weekend's three-day conference on the family at the Inn-On-The-Park in Toronto sponsored by the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario. They were among about 400 women teachers of elementary schools who came from all parts of the province.

New Zealand Hit By World Trouble

Unemployment in New Zealand's egalitarian society, once numbering mere hundreds, today stands at about 3,000 out of a population of about three million.

Inflation has hit the country too, but it is at the relatively low level of 11 per cent, says Kenneth Graham, second secretary at the New Zealand High Commission in Ottawa.

In an address to the Belleville Y's Men's Club Thursday, Mr. Graham said that contrasted with Canadian wage levels, the New Zealand standard of living would be considered low, but this had to be set against the fact of individual choices. New Zealand provided an ease of living, in the sense of satisfying basic needs.

Food is still relatively inexpensive while by contrast cars and appliances are costly. There is emphasis on repair work with the result that cars are kept on the road longer and lavished with care. A pioneering spirit still prevails, he said.

Discussing New Zealand's place in the modern world, Mr. Graham noted the loosening of traditional links with Britain. The latter country's increasing orientation toward Europe had prompted a new outlook in New Zealand. Trade had diversified. The 66 per cent of exports to Britain in 1955 had dropped in less than 20 years to 20 per cent, and the 55 per cent imports to 19 per cent.

Trade with Australia had more than doubled, exports to Asia had increased ten-fold and imports more than tripled, he said.

Windows Favorite Target

Plate glass windows at three city businesses were broken by vandals overnight.

City police said they answered a call at 1:30 a.m. today to H. Morrison Real Estate 208 Pinnacle St. and an adjacent company, AGF Management Ltd. at 208½ Pinnacle St. Total damage there was $400, police said.

About 5 a.m. today police answered a call to Lafferty's Billiards on Bridge St. E. of a broken window. Total damage here police said was $150. All three windows were broken by someone heaving a rock through them.

Guest of Honor

Guest speaker at the Belleville Y's Men's Club dinner Thursday was Kenneth Graham, second secretary of the New Zealand High Commission in Ottawa. The club is twinned with one in New Plymouth, N.Z. and the dinner at the Y Thursday night featured New Zealand cuisine and the playing of tapes sent by the club "down under." Seen here with Mr. Graham (right) are his wife, Corrianne, together with Y's Men's Club president Harry Collins and his wife Lois.

Early Morning Blast Rocks East-end Plant

Six persons were taken to hospital today after an explosion at the Constellation Carpet Ltd. plant in Bellevile's east end.

Four of the injured were transferred to hospital at Kingston with electrical burns, while two were released after treatment at Belleville General Hospital.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the six were working in the electrical room of the East Dundas St. carpet dyeing-printing-finishing plant when "somehow there was an explosion" around 9 a.m.

Belleville General Hospital authorities said those taken to Kingston's Hotel Dieu Hospital were Lorenzo Harrington, 49, RR 5 Madoc; A.W. Chapman, 54, RR 5 Madoc; Allan Merpaw, 24, Cornwall and Jean Guy Massie, 25, Cornwall.

Treated and released from Belleville General were Richard Foran, 21, 13 Burton St; Belleville and Arnold Bell, 46, Ajax.

Fire and police officials were still at the scene late this morning and immediate details of the incident were scanty.

The Intelligencer was told when it contacted the plant that no management official was available "until later today" for comment.

Mock Job Interviews Ease Student Tension

Eighteen students in the English department at Quinte Secondary School received first-hand knowledge of an actual job interview in the second-annual Mock Interview Day this week.

Six personnel managers from area industries interviewed three students each in a project designed to remove the fear an applicant usually has when he goes for an interview.

Industries represented were Quaker Oats Co. of Canada Ltd. in Trenton, AOCO Ltd., Corby Distilleries Ltd., Brooke Bond Foods Ltd. and International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd.

"Far too often, graduating students have only the vaguest of expectations concerning getting a job," pointed out Peer Shortall of the English department.

"The interview is usually the most feared aspect of this search," he said. ". . . these personnel managers tried to remove much of this fear."

Paul Jobe of Quaker Oats commented, "I was impressed by the students' abilities, but appalled at their lack of knowledge of industrial organization.

"They did not seem to understand how they, as workers, would fit into the setup," he remarked.

Loyalist to Study Status of Women

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

A study of the status of women at Loyalist College was formulated this week, The Intelligencer has learned.

Lana Robinson, a public relations and advertising instructor at the college, said Thursday a meeting Wednesday to guage interest in such a study attracted 165 people.

"In terms of numbers, it was really heartening ... very encouraging," she commented.

The college study grew out of a provincial one funded by the ministry of colleges and universities to investigate the status of women in post-secondary education, related Ms. Robinson.

That over-all study began last June but the college was not informed until last November. Finally, Loyalist was contacted in January to appoint a liaison person to the study and Ms. Robinson was selected.

She said the provincial study is scheduled to end Feb. 28 but Loyalist will request an extension to the end of June when it hoped the college's preliminary report will be completed

Ms. Robinson said 16 colleges currently have studies under way. "It's a good time for us to say, who are we?" she noted.

An ad hoc committee of 11 members was formed from the meeting to look into a method for the study which will involve 10 subjects. It will report to a general session in late March.

Ms. Robinson listed the subjects as day care, course content, teachers' attitudes, women's studies, professional development, counselling, employer attitudes, age discrimination, marital status in employment and flexible working hours.

Sounds Too Good to Miss

Symposium:

1. A meeting for discussion of a particular subject.
2. A collection of comments or opinions brought together . . .

What if the particular subject to be discussed is hockey?

And what if the comments or opinions being brought together come from knowledgeable hockey people?

Sound interesting so far?

I hope it does because a symposium for hockey coaches (minor league, junior, intermediate, college, pro, you name it) is scheduled for the Four Seasons Motor Hotel, July 27-August 2.

The list of lecturers taking part reads like a hockey who's who.

Think of the wealth of hockey knowledge available from en like Philadelphia from men like Philadelphia Peterborough Petes' coach Roger Neilson; Team Canada '74 coach Billy Harris, still in the Toronto Toros' organization although no longer coaching; Frank Carney, coach of the 1974 Austrian National Team.

And participating in panel discussions will be Rev. David Bauer who certainly needs no introduction here.

Physical fitness expert Peter Elson of Toronto who worked closely with the late Lloyd Percival in that field will be here.

Dr. Richard Lonetto and John Marshall will deal with the psychological aspects of hockey coaching.

The chance of a lifetime for coaches in the Bay of Quinte area?

Sounds like it to me, too.

There is one catch.

Registration is limited.

More details can be obtained by calling Gary Green, in Guelph. His telephone number is 519-821-4262. The address is 107 Quebec St., Suite 6, Guelph, Ont.

You might well ask: "Who's Gary Green?"

I did.

Sharon Gaudaur, assistant recreation director in Trenton, verifies that the same Mr. Green is the new director of Tam O'Shanter Hockey School.

Seems Green took over operation of the hockey school from Larry Hughes late last year. That means the school's head office is now in Guelph.

But take heart. The school will continue to run at Trenton's Community Gardens with Albert College in Belleville the home away from home for many of the participants.

"Tam O'shanter is on its way back," vows Green.

And listening to the guy, one finds it difficult to disagree.

A former hockey player who didn't quite make it to the big league and did not feel the minor leagues were for him, Green has some excellent ideas.

His idea of a hockey school is to concentrate on hockey.

"When the boys aren't on the ice taking instruction, they'll be taking part in lectures and conditioning programs," he explains.

"It will be 100 per cent hockey," promises the new director.

Belleville's own Peter Fleming is listed as an instructor with Green. Others are Ted Brown of Trenton, Jim Turkiewisz, rookie defenceman with Toronto Toros, Jack Valiquette, Toronto Maple Leafs' No. 1 draft pick last year, and other professional players.

"These are all good instructors and some of them happen to be pro players," explains Green. "They are not instructors because they are pros."

Cut-off for hockey school registrations is May 1. And while it may sound as if we're being sold a bill of goods, Green expects he'll have to start saying "no" long before then.

The school will run from July 20 to August 30.

Oh, yes, Green says minor hockey associations in Belleville and Trenton deserve something out of this.

He says minor hockey groups in each community will receive $5 for each player registered from their respective groups.

Returning to that symposium for a moment.

Green advises that the program will be publicized in The Hockey News, and two Toronto dailies. We may beat them to the punch.

Can you imagine the response it's going to get from those involved in hockey south of the border?

Newsmen are notorious for their cynicism. Cynical or not, I don't think I'd take a chance on missing out on that summer date in late July.

Shero?

Neilson?

Harris?

Father Bauer?

If only one shows, it should be worth the price of registration.

And what's the price?

Sorry, with that glittering array of hockey knowledge tossed at me, I admit I forgot to ask.

You have the telephone number and address. The rest is up to you.

SLICES — South of the border?

That topic sounds familiar.

But here it is again. This time, two Belleville Minor Hockey Association OMHA representative teams will be hooking up in an exhibition series in Syracuse, New York, this weekend.

Making the trip are the Rollins major peewees and McInroy minor bantams.

The teams will play two games at the arena at Syracuse State Fair Grounds.

This International series has some familiar ties. Remember when former McFarland players performed in Syracuse? Would you believe a young man still treasures a hockey stick autographed by Fiori Goegan?

Olympics Get Go-ahead

A Closer Watch Planned by IOC

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The Montreal Olympics definitely are on. But the International Olympic Committee (IOC) will be keeping a closer watch on the city's planning from now until next year's Games.

IOC President Lord Killanin plans to go to Montreal in April to make a personal check on progress in building the main stadium and swimming pool, now several months behind schedule because of labor strikes. After that, the IOC will send someone once a month to keep an eye on things.

That is the chief outcome of the crisis that has been threatening the Montreal Olympics. Canadians attending the IOC executive meeting here are trying to dismiss it as "the crisis that never was."

Plans for the Games are unchanged. Killanin said he was confident the building will be completed in ample time for the Olympics to open on schedule July 17, 1976.

But the IOC's plan to keep such a strict watch on Montreal during the next 18 months is unprecedented. It was a clear sign that the IOC saw the situation as serious, although no one will admit that the Games were ever in any real danger.

Last month, the Canadian Olympic Association told the Montreal Organizing Committee it must decide once and for all whether it was going ahead with the Olympics.

"That ultimatum was unnecessary," said Roger Rousseau, Canada's commissioner general for the Games. "The association was over anxious. We never had any thought of giving up the Games, although I admit we did have doubts at one time that we could stage them exactly as we had planned.

"Those doubts are now dispelled. We are back to a normal situation."

The Games budget, estimated last year at $310 million, has since increased to $650 million and no one from Montreal has spelled out exactly how the extra $300 million is going to be met. But Rousseau, former Canadian ambassador to the Cameroons, said the worries of the last two months have only served to bring the Canadians and the IOC close together.

The IOC executive, after listening to a point-by-point analysis of the organizing committee's problems Thursday, accepted Montreal's assurance that everything will be ready on time.

The only modification of any significance affects the equestrian competitors. They now are to be housed at Bromont, 50 miles from Montreal, instead of in the main Olympic village. That will cut the cost of transporting them to and from the competition field at Bromont.

Settle for 6-6 Tie

Sabres Do Everything But Can't Beat Flyers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Sabres outshot Philadelphia Flyers 41-24, scored more goals against Flyers' netminder Bernie Parent than anyone else has in two seasons, and still wound up with a 6-6 tie in a National Hockey League game Thursday.

In the only other NHL game Thursday, Guy Lapointe's two goals and Pete Mahovlich's three assists helped Montreal Canadiens beat Kansas City Scouts 6-3.

"Everybody has somebody's number once in a while," said Fred Shero, coach of the Flyers, who have not lost to the Sabres since March 28, 1973—13 games ago. The Flyers have won 12 of those games.

"Actually, the Sabres play very well against us, even when we've beaten them by bigger scores," said Shero. "When you play Buffalo, you know you're in a hockey game."

Buffalo coach Floyd Smith said: "At least we finally got ahead of them."

The Sabres got ahead of the Flyers four times, at 2-0, 3-2, 5-3 and 6-5, as both Parent and Sabres goalie Gary Bromley had problems.

"It wasn't a goaltenders' night on either side," Smith said.

Rene Robert opened the scoring on a first-period power play and Buffalo's Craig Ramsay scored to make it 2-0 after less than four minutes of play.

Bill Clement scored on a two-on-one break at 8:03 and Bobby Clarke scored the first of his two for the night at 11:50 when two Buffalo defencemen were looking for their sticks.

Rick Martin opened the second period with a shot from beyond the blue line to make it 3-2 for Buffalo, but Gary Dornhoefer got the Flyers even once against at 8:23 with a shot off the post.

Bill Hajt and Danny Gare put the Sabres up by two once again, but Clarke and Ross Lonsberry made it 5-5 within two minutes of Gare's shot.

Brian Spencer put the Sabres up for the last time, 6-5, early in the third period but Reggie Leach got the final tying goal for the Flyers.

At times, it looked as if the Sebres were going to turn Smith into a prophet. "It's in the bag," he told Sabres' general manager Punch Imlach before the game.

"Just make sure the bag's closed," Imlach replied.

At Kansas City, Lapointe's two goals, his 21st and 22nd of the season, put him four points past his best previous season points total. The Canadiens defenceman now has 58 points. His best until this year was 19 goals, 35 assists and 54 points in 1972-73.

Mahovlich, too, carried his personal record season total to 90 points on 28 goals and 62 assists. Last season, the Montreal centre had a personal high of 36 goals and 37 assists for 73 points.

Mahovlich's assists came on goals by Larry Robinson, Steve Shutt and Lapointe as the Canadiens built a 6-0 lead in the first two periods before the Scouts rallied late in the third period.

Cougars Click In Overtime

By CHUCK SVOBODA
The Canadian Press

Chicago Cougars scored the fourth victory in their last 17 games Thursday night and player-coach-owner Pat Stapleton sounded like a man who had just chased a wolf away from his door but expected it to return any minute.

"We've been playing a little better lately and tonight was a exceptionally good game for us," said Stapleton whose Cougars beat the Toros 4-3 in overtime at Toronto.

"Our biggest problem of late has been the cutting down of goals against. We seem to have enough offence. That's not a problem. Our game plan is to set out and play a defensive style of game but we end up with the puck in our net more often than not."

But then Stapleton had to admit that the Cougars' offence had been stumbling, too. "Of course we didn't get the offensive breaks tonight. We hit five posts and if we'd scored on any of those we wouldn't have needed overtime to win."

The Cougars are in third place in the World Hockey Association East Division but their points total of 45 is better than only two other clubs in the 14-team league.

In other WHA games Thursday, Baltimore Blades beat Vancouver Blazers 4-3, the Blades' first home ice victory since moving from Detroit last month, and San Diego Mariners beat Quebec Nordiques 5-2.

Chicago took a 2-1 lead in the first period and extended it to 3-1 early in the second period before Toronto's Tony Featherstone reduced the margin with a goal midway in the second period. Toros centre Vaclav Nedomansky's 30th goal of the season late in the third period tied the score and forced the overtime in which Rosaire Paiement scored the winner for Chicago at 5:42.

For 3,164 Baltimore fans, the Blades' victory over Vancouver was met as a mixed blessing.

It was the Blades' first home win after seven consectuve losses but the Blades' management had also promised ticket holders to Thursday night's game that if the Blades lost, they'd be treated to another game free of charge.

Gary Veneruzzo led the Blades with a pair of goals.

GENE PEACOSH

Gene Peacosh scored two goals and assisted on another to lead San Diego against Quebec.

It was Quebec's third loss in a row following a nine-game road trip in which they won seven games.

JACK DEVINE

It's News To CAHA President

TORONTO (CP) — John F. Bassett, president of the World Hockey Association Toronto Toros, said Wednesday that he will sign underage junior hockey players.

He said after a meeting of the WHA owners in Las Vegas that he would never agree to any contract with the Canadian (CAHA) that would prevent the WHA from signing 18-and 19-year-old players.

"That is illegal," he said. "Eighteen is the legal age in Canada and no one can prevent a boy from making a living if he is good enough to play pro hockey."

The CAHA has never had a contract with the WHA regarding the drafting of either underage players or graduating juniors. Its agreement with the National Hockey League has expired and neg otiations have been taking place with both leagues.

In reaction to Bassett's statement, CAHA president Jack Devine of Belleville, said: "NHL and WHA representatives, along with federal government officials and the CAHA, have met and the understanding is the pros will not draft underage players (those under 20) in the future.

"I have not heard otherwise," he said. "Further meetings are planned with the pros. Other than that, I have no comment."

Gordon Juckes, CAHA executive director expressed surprise at the statement.

"Many junior A hockey operators in Canada have been hurt badly by the loss of underage juniors," he said. "The pros seemed to understand this, particu larly Canadian teams.

"Health Minister Marc Lalonde, the federal minister responsible for sport, has said the professional leagues should not sign underage player because it is detrimental to junior hockey.

Basset said the only way his club would refuse to sign underage players "is if the federal government changed the law."

12 Rule Changes

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League, having approved numerous rule changes, moves today to the task of choosing a 1976 Grey Cup site.

Toronto made its bid Thursday for the 1976 championship game and Montreal officials were to make their proposal today before the league makes a choice.

The CFL executive committee approved Thursday 12 rule changes, including blocking on punt returns and an optional two-point conversion, aimed at improving the entertainment value of the game.

The new punt-return rule allows blocking above the waist outside the scrimmage zone, providing the opportunity for longer punt returns.

Converts, previously restricted to a one-point place kick, now may also be worth two points if the ball is passed or run into the end zone.

Another rule change will allow a team which has had a field goal scored against it to demand the scoring team kick off from its own 35-yard line. Previously, the team scored upon could scrimmage from its 35 yard line or could kick off from the 35. The latter option was seldom used.

Other more-minor rule changes:

—After a single point, the team scored against scrimmages from its 35-yard line rather than the 25.

—On a rough-play or unnecessary-roughness penalty, the offensive team will be awarded a first down in addition to the yardage assessed against the defensive team.

—A kicker making any move to pass the ball from a normal punting position will be considered a ball carrier and no longer protected by the rule which forbids contacting the kicker.

—If a defending team intercepts in its end zone and the passing team is called for rough play, the penalty will be applied from the intercepting team's 10-yard line.

—When a ball carrier is grounded and, in the judgment of an official, has no intention of advancing, the play will be called dead.

—When the ball changes hands in the last three minutes of either half, time will not start until the snap of the ball on the next play.

—The ball will be declared dead, even if it is in bounds, when it is touched by a player who is out of bounds. The team touching the ball before it touched the out-of-bounds player will have possession.

—Corner posts marking goal-lines, sidelines and deadlines will be placed so that they are considered out of bounds.

Canada Winter Games

Three Gold Medals For Ontario Athletes

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Action continued in both the debating and sports arenas at the Canada Winter Games today as a three-man jury struggled with a controversy over weightlifting points while the figure skating, judo and volleyball competitions moved into their final rounds.

Ontario, the defending Games champion, had one of its better days Thursday, winning three of the four gold medals awarded—two in judo and one in weightlifting.

But because team points are not awarded until the end of competition in each sport, it did not necessarily make up any ground in its battle to overtake Quebec for the over-all championship.

Quebec has 143 points and Ontario 134 from the nine sports completed ubt they remain so close in the seven still to end that it is doubtful Ontario can overcome the nine-point difference. British Columbia, third with 131, and Alberta, fourth with 125, are also having trouble gaining ground.

Points in each sport are awarded on the basis of 12 for first, 11 for second, 10 for third and so on. Thus, even if one province finishes on top and another third, the difference is only two points.

Thursday's gold-medal winners were 11-year-old Yvonne Anderson of North Vancouver, B.C., in the women's B singles figure skating, Phil Takahashi, 17, of Ottawa, in the 127-pound judo, Harry Nadolny, 16, of Brampton, Ont., in the 187-pound judo, and Terry Hadlow of Elliot Lake, Ont., in the lightweight weightlifting.

Quebec and Ontario each have two golds in weightlifting and Quebec has a slight lead in the team standings. However, because of a marathon argument over whether to use the Games or international weightlifting points systems, their team points may not count toward the Games title.

The weightlifters want points counted on the basis of 12 for first place, nine for second, eight for third and so on down to one.

The Games technical advisory board proposed that the competition be allowed to go ahead and medals be awarded but that no weightlifting points be counted in team standings.

The chefs de missions, headed by Quebec, protested and the decision was left to a three-man jury which met Thursday and meets again today. It will render its decision before today's weightlifting competition so that the athletes may decide whether to finish their last five events or quit and go home.

Back in the sports arena, meanwhile, B.C., Quebec, Ontario and Alberta remained tied atop the table tennis round-robin standings with 6-0 records. At least two will drop from the undefeated column today as B.C. plays Alberta and Ontario and Quebec meets Alberta

In hockey, Ontario defeated Nova Scotia 3-2 to finish first in Division A with a 5-0 record while Quebec beat Alberta 4-1 to top Division B although each team won four and lost one.

Ontario meets Alberta in one semi-final today and Nova Scotia takes on Quebec in the other, the survivors clashing Saturday in the final.

In women's volleyball, favored Manitoba meets Quebec in one semi-final and Alberta plays B.C. in the other with the final scheduled for tonight.

Manitoba defeated Alberta and Nova Scotia Thursday to finish in first place in Dvision A with a 5-0 record. B.C. beat the Northwest Territories to come through undefeated in Division B.

In the men's volleyball B.C. defeated Quebec 15-6, 15-13 in one semi-final while defending champion Manitoba edged a surprisingly tough Ontario team 12-15, 15-8, 15-11 in the other. The winners meet tonight in the final and Quebec plays Ontario for the bronze.

The figure skating, in which there are no compulsory figures or compulsory free skating for the pre-novice women, produced a smooth, controlled performance by Miss Anderson in her short free- skating session.

The silver medal went to Susan Smith, 13, of Dollard des Ormeaux, Que., and the bronze to Kerry Smith, 11, of Calgary.

The 127-pound judo final ended when Takahashi threw Doug Wilson of Whitehorse, Yukon, and finished with a 5-0 record. Wilson won the Yukon's first medal of the games, a silver, beating Martial Despres of Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Que., who took the bronze.

Nadolny threw Jack Hirose of Richmond, B.C., to win the 187-pound gold. Hirose took the silver by beating Sylvain Dufour of Alma, Que., the bronze-medal winner.

Whitby Alone In Third

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Whitby McDonald's took sole possession of third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Thursday with a 9-3 victory over Napanee Comets.

Whitby took a 3-1 lead at the end of the first period and 5-3 heading into the final 20 minutes.

Carl Ahlsten and Greg Bodnar led Whitby with two goals each. Singles went to Bob Munro, Gord McCosh, Wayne Weller, Ken Clarke and Dave Nicholishen.

Wayne McConnell got two goals for the Comets with Wayne Elder adding the single.

Karl Bagnell stopped 38 shots in the Napanee goal while Bruce Durno turned aside 19 shots for Whitby.

RON HAYES

Silver For Hayes

While controversy continues to swirl around weightlifting events at the Canada Winter Games, Belleville's Ron Hayes, a member of the Apollo Barbell Club, captured second place honors Thursday in the lightweight class.

Hayes took the silver medal with a total of 217.5 pounds.

First place went to Terry Hadlow of Elliott Lake who had a lift total of 255 pounds. Third was Andre Rioux of Green River, New Brunswick.

Government Stands Firm

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will block any new attempts by the World Football League (WFL) to establish a franchise in Toronto, a spokesman for Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Thursday.

Chris Hemmeter, WFL president, said Tuesday there will be another attempt to establish a team in Toronto.

The spokesman said the government would take the steps needed to block expansion by the American league into Canada "should a crisis again arise."

The government introduced a bill blocking entry of the WFL last year but it was not passed prior to the July election.

Parliament had already stated its view on the issue by giving the bill second reading, approval in principle.

John F. Bassett of Toronto, who moved his WFL team to Memphis, Tenn., from Toronto because of government pressure, has said he would like to move the team back to Canada.

FATHER DIES

VICTORIAVILLE, Que. (CP) — Funeral services will be held here Sunday for Arthur Beliveau, father of long-time Montreal Canadiens all-star centre Jean Beliveau. [illegible] 71, died in hospital of a heart attack early Thursday. He entered hospital Wednesday night.

Reid's and Cornerstone Win

Cornerstone Construction and Reids Dairy each picked up wins in the opening round of the Quinte Hockey League playoffs Thursday night to give the teams a 1-0 lead in games in the best-of-five series.

Cornerstone matched up with the Belvedere Hotel team, came out on the long end of a 4-1 score, while Reid's Dairy blanked Stinson Construction 2-0.

Cornerstone opened the scoring at the 16:08 mark but Ron Urch's goal midway through the second period tied things up. Doug Jodoin was the goal getter on the first Cornerstone marker.

Three goals in the third period was all that was needed by the Construction team to put the icing on the cake. Terry Pope, Phil Meeks and Barry Pyear each added singles in the final period to record the win.

The losers took 10 of the 15 penalties including two fighting majors and a misconduct.

The Dairymen won over Stinson's on the strength of goals by Carl Boomhour and Brian Smith.

The winners scored both of their goals in the second period and managed five of the game's seven penalties.

Conditions Excellent For Madawaska Cup

BANCROFT — Following the heavy snowfall and cold weather of the last week the track for the Madawaska Cup snowmobile races here this weekend is considered to be in good shape by the organizing committee.

'The track looks good now and we're optimistic that it will be excellent by Saturday," said race chairman Jerry Howarth.

"We're continuing to flood it so it should be pretty fast too," said Mr. Howard.

The winner of last year's Madawaska Cup Trophy, Stan Shead, driving an Alouette, is expected to compete again this year.

Also vying for the more than $5,000 in prize money during the two days of racing will be local racer Wayne Thomas who drove his Polaris to third place this year in Peterborough's Kawartha Cup.

The Madawaska Cup races are scheduled to get under way at noon on Saturday and will have a repeat program on Sunday.

Men's Bonspiel Opens

Good Night for Quinte

Seven Quinte Curling Club (QCC) of Belleville rinks picked up wins as the 14th annual Bay of Quinte Men's Bonspiel opened on three fronts, Thursday night.

At the CFB Trenton Club, Chris Glithero defeated Bob Bonnett of Brighton and Pete Reston won over Bill Bouchey of CFB.

Curling at Quinte Club, Jim Loynes topped Ralph Nowe, CFB; Norm Moore beat Dick McGrath, CFB; and Fred Smith stopped George Peters, CFB.

In opening draws at the host Trenton club, Corky McCorquodale defeated Tally Uhrynuk, also of Quinte, and Bill Henderson got by Derek Palidwar of CFB.

Other early action saw B. A. (Doc) Birbeck, CFB, knock off Bill McDonald, QCC; Earl Carson TCC win over Verne Goodwin, and Ron Merriam, TCC defeat Gord Spencer QCC.

Draws continue tonight at 6, 8 and 10 p.m.; Saturday 9 and 11 a.m. 1,3,5,7 and 9 p.m., and Sunday at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. The finals are scheduled for the Trenton and CFB Clubs, Sunday at 4 p.m.

3 Teams Shoot for Ontario Title

Loyalist College has done it again.

Athletic director Rob Stinson and his staff have landed another special presentation for Bay of Quinte area sports fans.

This time, its the Ontario Colleges Athletic Association women's volleyball championships.

Loyalist seems to have a flair for hosting events of importance. And this one is no exception.

Saturday, teams from Algonquin College, Ottawa; Mohawk, Hamilton, and Rouyn will hook up in a double round robin playoff to decide the Ontario championship.

Algonquin represents the east; Mohawk, the west, and Rouyn, north-south.

Rouyn, champion the past two years, posted a 45-15 won-lost record this season and is not as strong this time around, according to Stinson who is convener for the playoff.

Stinson picks Mohawk, 54-0, as the pre-tournament favorite.

But Algonquin, boasting a mark of 61-2, could have something to say about that.

Action is scheduled for a 10 a.m. start, Saturday, and should wind up about 4 p.m.

Admission price for the day is a modest 50 cents. Cafeteria facilities will be available.

Following the tournament, participants will attend a dinner at the College's Restaurant 213, following which, trophies and plaques will be presented to the Ontario champions.

HALL REJOINS BLUES ..

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Glenn Hall, former National Hockey league goaltender, has signed with St. Louis Blues as a consultant to evaluate the team's defencemen and junior goalies in the forthcoming draft. Hall played with Chicago Black Hawks from 1957 to 1967, then joined the Blues, an NHL expansion club, and helped them make the Stanley Cup playoffs four times before retiring after the 1970-71 campaign.

Sparky Looks Ahead

By SPARKY ANDERSON
Manager, Cincinnati Reds

First of all, let me say that I'm glad that 1974 is behind us. Sure, we won 98 games and we gave the Dodgers a great race, but 1974 was the most disappointing season of my five years as manager.

I know some people think we were over-confident last season, but I really don't think that was it. We just seemed to start off the season with a lot of careless mistakes and we never could really get over it.

Anyway, I'm just glad it's all over with now and I've got a feeling that 1975 is going to be different. The main reasons that I feel this way are because I know that we're going to play better defence this year, and I know we're going to use our speed better. We're basically a set team, as we were in 1974, but there will be a few changes and there will be some interesting developments in spring training.

We'll be going to Tampa with that third base job wide open. We've got some good-looking young players who are going to be in a real scramble there. The rest of our infield is as solid as there is in baseball. When you've got players like Tony Perez at first base, Joe Morgan at second base and Dave Concepcion at shortstop you have no worries.

With Danny Driessen available, I'm going to be able to give Perez more rest and that'll make Tony stronger. When Danny isn't playing first, he's going to be in the right field picture, because I sure want his bat in the lineup.

I'd like to get Johnny Bench a little more rest, too. He was in 160 games. He's a strong man but he can use a breather now and then, too.

While the right field job is open, our other two outfield spots are in good shape. Pete Rose had an "off" year in 1974, compared to what we've come to expect from him and what Pete expects from himself. But I know the kind of pride Pete has and I'm looking for him to bounce back with a big season. Cesar Geronimo had a fine year in centre. He knows he can hit now.

VANCE — In loving memory of my dear father Everett G. Vance who passed away Feb. 21, 1974.

Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest.

The flowers we lay upon the grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.

—Ever remembered by son Gary.

VANCE — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Everett Gray who passed away February 21, 1974.

Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest.
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.

—Sadly missed by daughter Marjorie and family.

VANCE — In loving memory of a dear father, Everett Gray who passed away February 21, 1974.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
There's not a day, dear father,
We do not think of you.

—Sadly missed by sons Donald, Elmer and family.

VANCE — In fond and loving memory of a dear husband Everett O. who passed away Feb. 21, 1974.

The golden gates stood open a year ago today,
With farewell left unspoken you quickly slipped away,
God knew you were weary,
The hills too steep to climb,
He gently took your hand in his and whispered peace be thine.
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone,
For part of us went with you, the day God called you home.

—Missed and ever remembered by wife Edna and son Everett.

VANCE, Everett — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather who passed away Feb. 21, 1974.

A million times I've needed you,
A million times I've cried,
If love could have saved you Dad,
You never would have died.
Things we feel most deeply,
Are the hardest things to say,
My dearest dad, I love you,
In a very special way.
If I could have one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
I'd pray to God with all my heart,
For yesterday and you.

—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by son Lyle, daughter-in-aw Jackie and grandchildren and Dave and Chris.

VANCE — In loving memory of a dear dad, Everett Gray who passed away February 21st, 1974.

One year has passed and gone,
Since one we loved so well,
Was taken from our home on earth,
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who sleeps beneath,
Shall never fade away.

—Always remembered by son Bartley, daughter-in-law Donna and grandchildren Julia and Kelly.

VANCE — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Everett Gray, who passed away Feb. 21, 1974.

I often think of bygone days,
When we were all together,
The family chain is broken now,
But memories will live forever,
To me, he has not gone away,
Nor has he travelled far,
Just entered God's eternal home,
For resting where no shadows fall,
In peaceful sleep, he awaits us all,
God will link the broken chain,
When one by one we meet again.

—Son Alvin and daughter-in-law Marlene, granddaughters Christine and Tammy.

HARRIGAN — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Archibald who passed away Feb. 21, 1974.

IN MEMORIAM

KNOTT — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Joseph Henry who passed away Feb. 21, 1953.

The years go by and life moves on,
The world is changing ever,
But in our hearts dear dad,
Your memory changes never.
We cherish all the precious thoughts,
Of many happy days,
For in our hearts you're still,
Our dad and never far away.

If death should come for me tonight,
With fingers cool and footsteps light,
If he should touch me in my sleep,
Lets us go forth on eager feet,
For there are those I long to greet,
And there is no one left to weep.
My friend why tarry so.

—Hazel.

McCONNELL — In loving memory of my dear mother who so suddenly was called away one year ago today Feb. 21, 1974 and my dear dad, who followed so soon after on March 8, 1974.

I watched them suffer day by day,
It caused me bitter grief,
To see them slowly pine away,
And could not get relief.
Their weary hours and days of pain,
Their troubled nights are past,
And in my aching heart I know,
They have found sweet rest at last
'Tis sweet to know, we will meet again,
Where parting is no more,
And my dear parents I loved so well,
Have only gone before.
God knows how much I miss them,
He counts the tears I shed,
And whispers "Hush they only sleep,
Your parents are not dead."
Someday, sometime my eyes shall see,
The faces I loved so well,
Someday, sometime, their hands I'll clasp,
And never say farewell.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered "Lonely Ila."

Forecasts Bad Year

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Possibility of a hard year ahead for Kent County corn growers was suggested by John Harris, general manager of Pioneer Hybrid Ltd. An early freede last year reduced the supply of seed corn which at present is limited and marginal and a good system of distribution will be needed to ensure seed for all. More than 80 per cent of corn grown in Ontario comes from Kent County.

Listening Best With Right Ear

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York research psychologist has some advice for all of those who, at a party, are more interested in the conversation next to them than their own.

You will probably hear that conversation better if you listen with your right ear, says John Andreassi of Baruch College.

Andreassi has found that because of the crossover effect within the brain, sounds coming in the right ear stimulate more strongly the left hemisphere of the brain, the area which usually contains the language processing centre.

The real object of Andreassi's work, however, is not pioneering scientific breakthroughs for frustrated eavesdroppers. Under a grant from the United States navy, he is conducting a wide range of studies inquiring into the relationship between the brain's electrical activity and its ability to process information. In the process he has discovered some interesting things about the way the brain works.

For example, a person will remember bits of information flashed on a TV screen better if they appear in different areas of the screen than if they are flashed continually in the same spot, a finding that may have some impact on the teaching techniques of Sesame Street-type programming.

In another study he found he could measure with great accuracy how fast information can be flashed on a screen before the data become confused in the mind. The ressearch may lead to the redesign of information systems used in such places as air traffic control rooms.

"What we are really trying to learn," Andreassi said, "is how we can help make processing of information by the brain more efficient."

Goes to Jail

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Frederick Myerscough, 58, was sentenced to one day in jail after he pleaded guilty to a charge of false pretences. He was charged Nov. 15, 1973, after he purchased an electrical-safety-code book at the Ontario Hydro inspection office and paid the $4 with a worthless cheque.

Youths Saved

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Quick action saved the lives of two Welland youths from the chilly waters of the Welland River. Robert Smart, 13, and Carl LaRose, 15, were crossing the river when the ice gave way and both fell into the river. Barry Hicks saw the incident and, ran home and notified police and the fire department. He returned with a length of rope just as two unidentified youths were helping the Smart boy out of the water with a board. Mr. Hicks threw the rope to Carl LaRose "just as he was going under" and pulled the boy to safety, police said.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, February 22

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An outside influence has shaken things up domestically. It will still have some effect today, but its power is diminishing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your going to run into someone whose opinion is contrary to yours but equally strong. Handle this person tactfully.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be bashful about seeking an adjustment for something that seems overpriced. Grind out a better deal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You and your mate will not see eye-to-eye on the way to handle things. Each must yield a bit if peace is to be maintained.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be inconvenienced because of another's problems. You will put yourself out because this individual has done the same for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's an unresolved issue with an old friend. It has been smoldering too long. It could be patched up now, if you try.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Resign yourself to see things through to completion today. You will come out the victor, if you're determined enough.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone will anger you today. You'll be tempted to give him a piece of your mind. Your better judgment will prevail. You won't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone in your family is spending too much money. Better revise the budget. Be sure all stick to it faithfully.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The actions of your mate or partner will bug you—mostly because you don't appreciate his point of view. Once you do, harmony returns.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The work load you have to contend with today will be very trying. Keep your mind on the rewards. It won't seem so heavy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A friend you seldom seem at ease with will cross your path. This time, her presence will prove enjoyable.

Bleeding Breast Not Sure Cancer

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A month ago I found a slight sprinkling of blood on my nightgown from the right breast.

Upon squeezing the nipple I got a few more drops of dark, reddish brown blood. This came from only one duct.

A surgeon examined me that day and could find no lumps. He made a smear of the fluid, and a mammogram was made. The smear was negative and the mammogram was normal.

He examined the breast again the next week and could find nothing abnormal, could not even get a drop from the nipple. It was his opinion that the breast should be watched and examined often.

I have been examined by a second surgeon who gave me the same advice — watch for any discharge, have the breast examined every two months, and have another mammogram in six months or a year.

He felt that with no discharge surgery would not be necessary, but that if it happened again he would remove the milk gland and check it. He felt sure it was a small papilloma.

Could you give me any further advice? Have I done what you consider necessary? I am 53 years old.

Our paper carried your article a few weeks ago about the woman who had no lumps but bleeding from the breast at about the same time I was having this problem. With breast cancer so much in the headlines these days, one does worry.—B.R.

I print your letter in full to point out that nipple bleeding can be non-cancerous. True, one has to suspect cancer, but too often women live in blind fear when proper examination could put their minds at ease.

Your letter also provides a splendid example of the correct way to approach such things.

Yes, you have done everything reasonable—prompt examination, a smear, a mammogram, and a second opinion.

Your breast should be examined every three or four months.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been told that taking niacin improves circulation, and that everyone over 35 should take it. My doctor says he knows of no such benefit from niacin. What do you say?—V.C.W.

Niacin is a member of the vitamin B-complex group, and it does help dilate blood vessels. This is obvious in persons first put on niacin therapy. A sudden flush of warmth can be experienced, the result of a surge of blood to the skin as small capillaries enlarge.

It has its medical value, but I would not recommend wholesale, mass use in any age group. That is not rational. I have known cases where niacin was taken to lower blood cholesterol and the result was a lowered tolerance for sugar.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you give me some information on vitiligo? Is the pigment of the skin dead in areas where the color is faded? I also would like to know if anything can be done for this, and what causes it.—Mrs. C.T.

The pigment is not "dead," it is just not there. Or, more correctly, the melanocytes (cells) that produce and deposit melanin, the skin-coloring substance, are not at work in isolated areas.

The cause is not known, although it has been associated in some instances with a mild anemia. It occurs more often in dark-skinned persons, appearing any time up to 50 years of age. When it affects hairy areas of the body there is usually a simultaneous fading of the hair color.

Cosmetics are the only answer, blending in the areas with the surrounding skin.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that one cannot give a blood transfusion after one has been operated on for varicose veins?

I also would like to know if you could tell me who I could get in touch with about leaving my body for medical research. I am a woman of 66 and still in good health.—B.S.

If you were rejected as a blood donor, I suspect there is some misunderstanding on your part as to why. The varicose vein operation would not rule you out. Your age is probably the reason for the rejection.

As to your second question, you might contact the National Kidney Foundation, 315 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10010, or your state branch of the foundation, or for that matter any medical school in your area.

Opening lead—Q♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

If West could have seen all the cards, he would have opened his singleton club and South would have had no play for the spade slam. Fortunately for South, West led the queen of hearts.

South won, looked over dummy and saw that he had 11 top tricks. One simple way to play the hand would be to draw trumps, cash dummy's ace of clubs, come back to his hand by ruffing a diamond and lead a second club. That would bring home the contract, unless East had started with the guarded king-jack of clubs, which is just what he did happen to hold.

A little bit of sound thinking showed South that there was no hurry about trying clubs; he could go after diamonds first and make a 12th trick if that suit broke 4-3.

Therefore, South cashed one high trump to see that no one held all five, led a diamond to dummy, ruffed a diamond, entered dummy with the nine of trumps, ruffed another diamond, drew the last trump. He tried the club finesse to see if he could make seven and claimed the contract after that finesse lost.

A—Bid two spades. You want to compete a trifle further with your 16 points and three suits.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid two spades. West bids three hearts and your partner doubles. What do you do now?

Distant Relatives

BUSHTON, England (CP) — Zakaria Dawood, Egyptian-born businessman, has applied to council in this Wiltshire village for permission to convert a 100-year-old cowshed in his garden into a cottage—for his mother-in-law. "We don't get on very well," he said by way of explanation.

Meat Porter's Beef

LONDON (CP) — Champion meat porter Edward Clift, 41, has been awarded £1,500 ($3,450) libel damages from a magazine for using a picture of him winning a meat-carrying race at Smithfield market. The photo was used to illustrate an article on meat-thieving and the editor said it was the best picture available of a man running with a piece of beef. Clift said it implied that he was a thief.

Bill Kyle, 24-point man in Loyalist Lancers' Thursday defeat of Sir Sanford Fleming, gets shot on target in spite of defensive effort by John Wilson (11). Kyle connected for 14 points in the first half and added 10 after the interval to lead the charge.

Lancers Finish with Rush

The Loyalist Lancer basketball squad finished up the Ontario Colleges Athletic Association regular season in fine form Thursday clobbering the Sir Sanford Fleming Knights of Lindsay, 72-55.

The locals ended the season with a six-win, nine-loss record — one win better than last year's five and 10 effort.

The Loyalist team however, wound up in fourth place as compared to a third place position the previous year.

The Lancers will now head to the playoffs in Kingston the last weekend of February. Algonquin College of Ottawa and St. Lawrence of Kingston will do battle tonight to decide first place, the team that will meet Loyalist.

In the Lancer's victory over the Knights, the winners played a cat and mouse game with the Lindsay team, never letting them get too close.

"Both teams started out slow," explained winning coach Rob Stinson. "They just played zone and took the shots they had. Then we started running and clearing the boards and that was the game."

The winners held a slight 33-32 lead at the halfway point in the contest but came out flying in the opening minutes of the second half literally running by their opponents.

A familiar trio of names came up on the Lancer score sheet. Although used off and on throughout the game, Bill Kyle led the point getters with 24. Jim Sutton and Peter Scott were next on the list with 13 and 12 respectively.

Dan Chow showed the way for the losers counting 17 points and Rick Blackwell followed with 12.

Other scorers for the winners were Dave Culmer with seven Larry Green six, John Smith and Bill Balfour each with four.

Gas Prices Likely Going Up 2 Cents

OTTAWA (CP) — Oil company executives planned to spend the weekend setting new prices for gasoline and home heating fuel following a decision by the federal government Friday to lift voluntary price restraints.

Major oil companies forecast "small increases" will result, with Shell Canada Ltd. saying gasoline prices may go up two cents a gallon by March 3.

The other large petroleum companies, including Imperial Oil Ltd. and Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., said they had been caught unawares by the announcement and had not decided what increases to make.

The government's decision, ending restraints in effect since September, 1973, drew fire from opposition energy critics who said it will allow the companies to do what they want with prices.

In his announcement, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the government will continue to monitor prices and companies will have to justify any unusual price changes.

"Should abuse occur there will be a return to administered pricing," he said.

The latest increase for the oil companies, approved by government under the restraint program, went into effect last spring, boosting prices by 9.2 cents a gallon.

But the oil companies said 8.2 cents of that went to meet a $2.70 increase in the price of a barrel of crude oil, six-tenths of a cent for higher taxes and only four-tenths of a cent for higher refinery and marketing costs.

A survey last month by the Canadian Automobile Association showed average national gasoline prices of 63.9 cents a gallon for regular grade and 69.1 for premium.

Public Service Workers Threaten More Strikes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Talks between government and 18,600 blue-collar workers broke off Friday after two days of fruitless negotiation, with union promises to make some informal contacts with the treasury board during the weekend.

Talks ended Friday with Public Service Alliance leaders threatening to step up strike action and Bill Doherty, vice-president of the alliance, telling a news conference the workers will continue to strike if necessary.

He said talks broke down because government negotiators would not budge from a position that would give workers from the general labor and trades group (GLTs) total payroll raises of 25.7 per cent over two years.

The GLT group includes postal maintenance men, airport runway cleaners and grain weighers and samplers, as well as other laborers and tradesmen.

Mail and air travel have been disrupted by the selective strike action of the workers across the country. Postal service in Toronto, which handles about 50 per cent of the country's mail, has been the hardest hit by the strike and some grain shipments have been halted.

A spokesman for the Canadian wheat board said Friday night more than 14,000 boxcars of export grain are sitting idle in Winnipeg because of the strike.

He said grain shipments of Thunder Bay and the West Coast terminals have reached an impasse with at least 28 ships waiting to take on grain in Vancouver harbor, including one bound for Bangladesh.

A spokesman for the Winnipeg transport department said the four snow removal workers employed by The Pas airport walked out Friday.

Dave Austin told reporters that essential workers—those not allowed to strike because of the work performed—would be called in to operate snow removal equipment.

Oag Caught

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prison escaper Donald Oag, who said he would never be captured alive, quietly surrendered to police Friday after 13 days at large.

Oag, of London, Ont., escaped Feb. 9 when he forced a prison guard to drive into the city from Vancouver International Airport. He was being transferred to the B.C. Penitentiary from Millhaven penitentiary, near Kingston, Ont., and was to have appeared as a complainant in a court case.

Oag was serving 14 years for manslaughter and robbery.

What's happening in Belleville? National Chamber of Commerce president, E. R. (Bob) Olson, right, finds out in a glance at a copy of a local chamber booklet provided by Belleville president George Thompson. Mr. Olson was in Belleville Friday to address a meeting of the city's chamber members and guests.

Better Economic Education Urged by Chamber President

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Schools should do more to stress economic education as a way of helping clear up many misconceptions the public has of business and businessmen, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, E.R. (Bob) Olson said Friday night.

Mr. Olson told a meeting of the local chamber that the national organization is one several major associations concerned about the level of economic understanding of the general public.

He said that polls reveal the majority of Canadians believe profits are five or more times higher than they actually are.

"The chamber became convinced that one of the causes of this lack of understanding of economics and consequently, of our system was in the quality and quantity of the economic education being taught in our schools.

He said the chamber then asked a leading educator to study the situation with members of the teaching profession and to report his findings.

Mr. Olson said the study indicated the teaching profession was aware of the shortcomings in the field of economic education and it would welcome help in correcting the situation.

"The end result of this process was the formation of the Canadion Foundation for Economic Education (CFEE), which opened last June. He said it has an office in Toronto and national board of trustees and tries to develop basic economic information for delivery into the school system.

Mr. Olson added that OFEE is a totally independent, nonprofit neutral body dominated by no single sector or interest group with a board made up of such people as educators, (the largest group), and representatives from labor, business, agriculture and others.

He said it is likely that branches will be established in different parts of the country and advised local and provincial chambers to keep abreast of this new development so that all Canadians have a sound knowledge of economics and particulary of the working of our competitive enterprise system.

Income Tax Refunds May be on Way Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — There were signs Friday that the weeks-old income tax debate in the House of Commons might end next week, allowing release of 1974 tax defunds.

A backlog of more than $15 million in refunds had built by Friday as the House dragged through its 16th day of debate on the government's omnibus income tax bill. The bill covers tax changes announced in the Nov. 18 budget and the government says refunds cannot be mailed until it is approved.

Predictions varied on the possibility of ending the debate sometime next week, but work on the bill quickened late Friday afternoon.

Sixty - six non - controversial clauses in the 142-clause, 287-page bill were approved in less than four hours of debate, leaving only those covering the contentious plan to charge income tax on royalties paid by resource companies to the provinces.

Constellation Fire Claims One Life

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

One of six men taken to hospital following an explosion at Constellation Carpets' Belleville plant Friday died about four hours after the accident.

Dead is Jean Guy Massia, 25 of Cornwall who died at about 1:30 p.m. Friday at Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston where he was admitted with burns to 95 per cent of his body.

Mr. Massia and Alan Merpaw 25, of Cornwall, in satisfactory condition in Hotel Dieu Hospital, were doing contract work for the Belleville-based Andreynolds Company at about 9:30 a.m. Friday morning when an explosion and flash fire occurred.

Also in Hotel Dieu Hospital are Lorenzo Harrington, 50, in critical condition with burns to 75 per cent of his body and Archie Champman 55, of Madoc in fair condition with burns to 35 per cent of his body.

Treated and released from Belleville General Hospital were Richard Foran, 21, of Burton St. and Arnold Bell, 45, of Ajax.

A company spokesman refused to elaborate on the incident oher than to say it occurred in a very small area and was confined to that area. He said the explosion occurred in the main distribution electrical panel and that the plant hopes to be in operation Mond

The Belleville plant, here for about five years, employs about 100 people.

Clement Acting Solicitor

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis appointed Ontario Attorney-General John Clement as acting solicitor-general Friday after the surprise resignation of Solicitor-General George Kerr.

In a three-page letter to the premier, Mr. Kerr said he was resigning because of allegations made about him at a criminal court preliminary hearing of Kenneth Elliott on fraud and other charges in Hamilton last November.

Elliott, a former member of the Hamilton Harbor Commission, was committed to trial after the preliminary hearing.

Premier Davis said he intends to restore the 51-year-old minister to the cabinet when the court case is resolved.

In a news conference, Mr. Davis and Mr. Kerr said they regretted the resignation, but added it was necessary to keep the government and ministry above suspicion.

Mr. Kerr said in an interview that some rumors were reaching into the police service. The solicitor-general's ministry is responsible for police activities in the province.

GM Follows Rebate With Price Cut Program

OSHAWA, Ont (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. will cut prices on six of its smaller cars, President David C. Collier announced Friday.

Mr. Collier also announced that GM will be embarking on a major new product design program to improve the fuel economy of its cars.

GM's temporary rebate program ends Feb. 28. But Mr. Collier said the firm will follow up the rebate program by expanding its lines of small cars. "We will offer six of our smaller cars with less standard equipment and therefore lower base prices. We will soon be taking dealer orders and deliveries will begin next month."

The lower prices range from $122 to $381. Various items of standard equipment will be made optional.

The retail price of a Chevrolet Nova will be reduced by $122, a Pontiac Ventura by $155, an Oldsmobile Omega by $260 and a Buick Skylark by $272. On the Chevrolet Monza, the reduction will be $296 and on a Buick Skyhawk, $381.

Earlier, General Motors Corp. announced in Chicago that the United States parent firm had also cut prices and embarked on a new-car program that will affect every automobile it makes between now and 1980.

Ethiopian Fighting Steps Up

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — The Ethiopian government has sent troops, artillery and warplanes against rebel strongholds around Asmara in the most severe fighting since the civil war escalated a month ago.

Residents of Asmara, 450 miles north of Addis Ababa, said Friday that Ethiopian jet fighters raided Waki Deba, a reputed guerrilla hideout four miles from Asmara, while other battles raged around the city as far away as Keren, a military strongpoint 56 miles away.

Army troops positioned howitzers on the Asmara golf course and shelled Zazega, a suspected guerrilla base a mile from Asmara.

Residents said some of the shells flew over the U.S. communications station at Kagnew.

Although government forces have succeeded in driving the Marxist and Moslem rebels out of Asmara, the insurgents encircle the city and are restricting food and fuel supplies to its 200,000 residents.

Deseronto Searching For Ideal Replacement

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

DESERONTO — The hunt — which has now drawn senior government attention — goes on for a substitute economic stabilizer for this community of 1,800.

Even Industry and Tourism Minister Claude Bennett has indicated his department's awareness of the pursuit — and willingness to financially help any suitable find.

The search is for a replacement for Ideal Venders — to close in June — which, with its 220-member labor force is the community's biggest industry.

It's also the town's biggest single taxpayer, accounting for about 48 per cent of the community's industrial-commercial assessment, estimates a townhall official.

The plant's parent — Eddy Match Co. — has been seeking a compatible industry to replace its Deseronto vending machine operation which has become a victim of market shrinkage.

Eddy's ideal — one reiterated by Mr. Bennett — is a company that can step in with an operation that will cause the least dislocation to both personnel and community, indicated a plant official Friday.

"Obviously the best approach is to sell the company as a going concern," said general manager Richard Moore.

Eddy has been trying to find a new industry, still is searching, and will keep right on "right to the day we close", he said.

"Certainly we've had people looking at the plant", he added.

But, "there is no serious interest indicated so far."

Earlier this week in an interview during the Ontario resources cabinet meeting in Belleville Mr. Bennett indicated his ministry had been involved with one possible applicant.

His department is responsible for helping promote industry in provincial communities — and includes the Eastern Ontario Development Corp (EODC) which advances low-cost loans to qualifying manufacturers.

"We've had at least one inquiry that was looking at the plant. Unfortunately — the number of people that they would employ does not come anywhere close to what Ideal Venders employ in that plant."

Mr. Moore said Friday he had "no knowlege of what Mr. Bennett was talking about."

Nothing has "materialized" at this point, said Mr. Bennett in the earlier interview during the Belleville conference.

"Really what we're trying to do as a ministry along with Ideal Venders," explained Mr. Bennett, "is to find a firm that is somewhat compatible to Ideal Vender and would employ the same type of people and likely the same number."

An industry that falls within EODC policies would receive the agency's assistance, he said.

The Ideal Venders shutdown was brought to cabinet session attention by a brief from J.H. McKechnie, of Green Point, across the Bay of Quinte, pleading for government aid. The factory shutdown would affect district morale and cause a "heavy drain" on social assistance funds — including unemployment and, eventually, welfare programs, warned the McKechnie submission.

Replace not Fix Old Swing Bridge

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Who says traffic jams, the curse of sweating summer drivers, only happen in Toronto and other metro areas where downtown streets are too narrow, traffic lights too frequent, and pedestrians too numerous?

Right here in Trenton, those traffic jams occur in summer. During these hot months, when boaters play the waters of the Trent River, we experience the very same.

Traffic stops dead when the Dundas St. bridge swings its rusty girders and bolts to let the occasional cruiser through. It's been happening for years and, it now appears, may continue to happen for years to come.

During that time the town has also been concerned with the safety and state of disrepair of the structure. It tried to do something about it this week and got little satisfaction.

In a three-point brief presented to the resources ministers of the provincial cabinet in Belleville Monday, Mayor Robert Patrick asked what help the town could get in repairing or replacing the half-century-old bridge.

For an answer, he got little to base any hopes on.

Transportation minister John Rhodes said Queen's Park has other priorities — one being the Belleville-Rossmore link, now under study.

Take 2

Mr. Rhodes assured the town that the province will be in touch. But the question is when, and for what reason? Will Queen's Park simply reiterate statements made by Mr. Rhodes this week, and say it has other priorities: "You'll have to take a back seat Trenton". Money from the province may not be forthcoming.

If this should be the case, and there is no indication it will not, the town will have reason to worry. No longer will those summer traffic jams be a bothersome occurence to endure, but eventually conquer. If the bridge deteriorates further without repairs, it is possible that it could become entirely unsafe to use.

Toronto engineers tell Trenton an overhaul will cost an estimated $.5-million. Twenty years after it's done, repairs will be needed again.

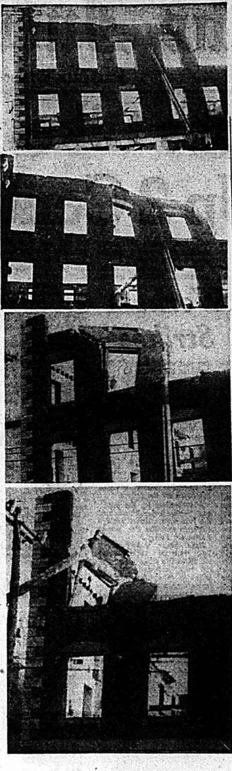
It is more than just doubtful the town can alone bear a $500,000 repair bill. The town itself has other priorities, mainly the increase of badly needed land for housing and industry. It is already quite literally sinking a fair portion of its dollars into the ground for services.

Convincingly, Mayor Patrick argued this week that a new bridge will save everyone money — both the town and the province. One with a life-expectancy of 60 years would cost $1.5-million, he says.

Repairs to the fondly-looked-upon span would be uneconomical in the long run, says the mayor. It would be throwing good money after bad.

Given the situation — the need for continuous expensive repairs — one can hardly argue with the man. However, whether his arguments, armed with a completed study by the consulting engineers, will convince provincial authorities to loosen their purse strings for a new bridge is an entirely different matter.

Let's hope the mayor of Trenton has the speech to produce the silver.



Going...going gone

Those walking down Bridge St. late Friday afternoon had a ring-side seat to watch the demolition of the old McNeill Fabric Centre. United Rigging, in order to safely knock down the front of the brick building, closed Bridge St. to traffic. Crowds gathered opposite the building to watch the gradual disappearance of the old building. Slated next for demolition at the first of next month is the corner building on Front and Bridge streets.

Something you would like to ask about Funerals?

Most people have questions they would like to ask of a funeral director but rarely have the opportunity.

Members of the Ontario Funeral Service Association agree that the questions most asked are:–

- What should a funeral cost?
- Should the casket always be open?
- Should children be taken to the funeral home and to the funeral service?
- Must we go through a two-day visiting period?
- How does one go about pre-arranging his own funeral?
- What is meant by embalming and is it always a legal necessity?
- What if I should die while vacationing in Mexico, Europe, Etc.?
- What is involved in arranging for a cremation?

There are so many questions which should be answered that the Ontario Funeral Service Association respectfully suggests that it is wise to visit your funeral director where your questions can be answered in confidence and without obligation.

Gardening Column

Sowing Seeds Without Soil

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

There are many similarities between the artist and the gardener. Both deal with composition, color and form, all melded by the catalyst of creativity. But perhaps one of the most apt parallels deals with raw materials.

It is said that the enthusiasm of the neophyte artist increases ten - fold when he completes his first painting, that began not with pre-mixed colors, but with the raw pigments mixed by his own hand. And the same might be said of the gardener.

He has never known true satisfaction until the plants in his garden, rather than purchased at a retail store, were germinated, transplanted and nurtured to flourishing maturity, by him and him alone.

And if you want to grow a wide variety of plants from seed, you must become an indoor light gardener. Primmarily because some plant species require such a long period of time between seeding time and maturity. And there just isn't enough outdoor growing time available Pentunias are one example. Geraniums are another. And these are only two of many example of seed that must be planted now if you expect to see flowers by early summer. That's why you'll find the seed packets in full display right now in your local nursery or garden centre. And fortunately too, you'll find bagged soil mixes suitable for seeding and transplanting. Otherwise, unless you stored away earth from the garden last fall, you could be in trouble. But not as far as germination goes. Not if you what to try a soiless mixture for seed germination. A medium composed entirely of peat moss and fine, (and I stress the word "fine") Vermiculite.

Simply grind, powder or pulverize ¼ bushel of peat moss, as finely as possible, and place in a waterproof container such as a plastic washtub or a heavy plastic garbage bag. Add ½ bushel of fine vermiculite, 1 teaspoon powdered fungicide, 3 pints of warm water and mix thoroughly. And that is your germination medium. By the way, two or three days before you begin this preparation, pop your seeds — except for lentils — into the freezer. A touch of winter often considerably improves the germination of some varieties. And now you need a container for germination.

I use fish boxes, about 14½x9½x3 inches. Partly because I used to have a cheap source of supply, mostly because they serve admirably. But any container that will hold about 2 inches of the prepared medium, will allow water to seep in at the bottom and can be covered with glass or clear plastic film will do. Fill your container with about 2½ inches of the mixture and shake down well by rapping the container on a flat surface. And now you're ready to seed.

Some seed should be broadcast on the surface. Others covered with a light sprinkling of your germinating medium. Others buried slightly below the surface. And I haven't room in this column to tell you which to do with what seed. Fortunately, there's a new seed packer on the scene who provides adequate directions on his packets. And except for some direct mail seed house, he's the first one in history. Once the seeds are planted, set the container in about ½ " of water that has been let sit at room temperature for 3 to 4 hours until the surface of the mixture is damp. Let drain, and the planting process is complete.

Now some seeds like to germinate in the heat, some in the cool. Some in the light, some in the dark. Again look to your seed packet or the local library or your bookstore.

And it's a good idea to provide your seeds with a clear, near air-tight cover. I use glass, cut to size, but plastic film will do. But once those seeds germinate, get the cover off fast. Otherwise your seedlings will stretch and fall flat. And don't pay any attention to germination times no matter where they're printed. If the packet or book says germination will start in 10 days, start checking after 5. And the moment you see the first tiny sprinkling of green, get those covers off.

Demolition Often Too Easy

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "Public input" a catch phrase of the seventies, has been applied in Prince Edward in everything from a draft official plan to an Ontario Hydro line.

Frequently, public opinion is sought in resolving local issues but just as often it is apparently ignored.

Several years ago Picton town council decided, in its wisdom, that the old Mary Street school should be demolished.

About the strongest reasons for the demolition were vague references to "an eyesore" and "vandalism."

A petition was circulated and signed by a substantial number of Picton residents eager to preserve the school building. A citizens' committee headed by local businessmen was organized and delegations sent to council.

The committee solicited pledges from the community and council was told money would be donated from concerned town residents toward a new front for the school building should it be used for town offices and other municipal services.

The school lived in the shadow of the wrecker's bar for several weeks while the citizens' committee battled with council but council defeated all action to preserve the school building as a potential location for police offices, a fire hall and town offices.

The old Mary Street school was demolished and the site it occupied converted in a haphazard way to a free parking lot.

The lot never has been developed to full potential as a parking area and its popularity is doubtful, owing to the fact it is located well off Main Street away from police supervision.

This week, Prince Edwaed County council was approached by the Prince Edward Historical Society in a bid to halt demolition of the old county home for the aged.

Although this building has little historical signifigance it is felt it is still structurally sound and potentally useful.

County council decided not to take action to stop demolition and in consultation with the county solicitor learned that to do so could invite a damage action unless all parties involved approved and stated sanction through a contract.

Obviously, it is too late to preserve the old building and if preservation had been a goal it should have been part of a long range plan initiated simultaneously with construction of the new home.

Council, however, should not be off the book. Potential uses of the building perhaps could have been discussed at a community meeting inviting public input.

Demolition for the sake of demolition is the poorest possible reason to destory the old brick building that has served as a county home.

In the suggestion-filled seventies where public input is invited in so many issues Prince Edward residents should have been given a brief period to propose potential uses for the old home. If no feasible ideas were forwarded council then could have swung the wrecking bar in good conscience.

Ministers Told Quebec Subsidies Harming Ontario Farm Operations

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The Prince Edward County Federation of Agriculture this week charged subsidies to farmers in Quebec by the provincial government there is destroying the confidence of Ontario farmers.

M. B. Brown, federation director, told the cabinet committee hearing on resources development at the Four Seasons here there "is a loss of confidence in Ontario that is causing an alarming increase in contract farming."

He pointed out, "Ontario farmers do not enjoy equality of opportunity with the farmers of other provinces ..."

Mr. Brown produced statistics which showed Quebec offers three different low interest loans of a $90,000 total at about five per cent interest payable over 38 and one-half years.

They also revealed Quebec subsidies to beef - cow calf farmers and egg producers with the $2 million example "announced recently to cover the low period of November last."

Mr. Brown noted the egg subsidies "are being used to drive Ontario eggs from markets in that province which have been traditionally served by Ontario producers."

"If this trend continues, we may well see some obsolescent farms in Ontario unable to compete and Ontario markets being progressively served by modern units in neighboring provinces," he commented.

"Facilities are not being modernized and a new type of 'peasant' is developing in the rural areas," remarked Mr. Brown.

William Stewart, agriculture and food minister, said he does not agree with the Quebec subsidy philosophy but added he is concerned about Quebec eggs moving into western Ontario markets.

He related Ontario's egg production decreased by 2½ per cent last year while Quebec's increased by 34½ per cent.

Mr. Stewart said he met last week with representatives of the National Marketing Council and the new manager of the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) and proposed regulations to solve the problem.

Noting it is possible CEMA might dissolve through lack of provincial participation, he said it is necessary for all provinces to be members of CEMA for a "stabilization process right across Canada."

"We, as a province, are anxious to see it (CEMA) continue," commented Mr. Stewart. He added he does not want a return to the "deplorable days" of three-four dozen eggs for a dollar.

Babel of Tongues

Everybody is speaking with different tongues — usually "forked" — where pollution is concerned, and depending of course on the color of the critic's politics.

Where water treatment and water pollution control are concerned, the provincial government says "there is not a system in the world better than the one we have right here in Ontario."

That was Environment Minister William Newman's assessment during his visit to Belleville with other cabinet ministers in recent days.

On the issue of the International Joint Commission's work on cleaning up the Great Lakes, the feeling here is that the Americans have been dragging their feet. However Mr. Newman says he understands they are now going to move ahead with their program "and will have all projects under way by the end of 1975."

The Americans for their part see it rather differently, again depending on who is doing the talking. On CBC news the other day U.S. Senator Hartke told newsman Ron Collister that both the U.S. and Canada had been "derelict in their duty" where the lakes were concerned.

In the minds of some people of course it is of little consequence what this or that authority does in the battle against pollution or any other public nuisance, it will still never measure up. That is the nature of the beast, of homo sapiens — and of self-serving or party politics.

Farm Experience

Exchange visits are a wonderful experience for young people, whether they are between Ontario and Quebec, or between Belleville and its German sister city of Lahr, or between Belleville and other Commonwealth countries.

But what about exchanges a few miles down the road as it were — between urban and rural dwellers?

In this context there will surely be support for the suggestion by Northumberland Federation of Agriculture president Maria Heissler for giving urban youngsters a taste of country life and work in a farm environment. (

There is no mention of rural youngsters spending some time in an urban environment, but there is no reason why that should not be arranged as well. It may be though that there is more to be gained in the other direction — by city youths acquiring some of the discipline and hard work associated with farm life.

Something, that is, along the lines of Big Island farm manager Maurice Rich's experience. Somerset-born Mr. Rich has told Intelligencer correspondent Terry Sprague of spending school holidays on a farm and working as a herdsman.

In the United States there are people — professional agitators of a sort — who are preying on people's fears, to the extent that they are going out and buying up food supplies against some anticipated shortage. We don't believe things will come to such a pass, but we do know there is a need for farmers to keep on producing, for young people to pursue a career in agriculture, and for people to help in the farm operations.

One way to maintain this interest is through such a scheme as Frankford's Maria Heissler. It is the sort of thing groups such as 4-H are already familiar with, and would afford further gain through participation of young city folk.

Property Bylaw

It is clear that City Council's draft property standards bylaw is causing some disquiet and that it will require modification.

It may be too that there is a communication gap between Council and general public with regard to such matters. One interested party informs us he was unable to obtain an advance copy of the bylaw at City Hall — or at the Chamber of Commerce to which he was then referred.

Meanwhile the feeling is that this is a heavy-handed, authoritarian, and unrealistic document.

It is subject to amendment though, and it looks as if it is going to need a lot of that.

Extension of Retirement Savings

Home Ownership Savings Programs Can Help Save Tax

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The newest way to trim income taxes—without actually cheating — is the Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan (RHOSP).

And, contrary to the popular impression, this tax-saving technique is not limited only to young people who are putting money aside for that little cottage with white picket fence and rambling roses.

Even if you have no intention of buying a house now or in the future, the RHOSP can be—in effect—an extension of the familiar Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) over and above the usual limits.

The plan was proposed in the government's May and November budgets last year. Here's how it works:

If you are an adult resident of Canada, and have not owned an interest in any residential property during 1974, you are eligible to start your own RHOSP, contribute up to $1,000 to it annually (to a lifetime maximum of $10,000), and reduce your taxable income by the amount of your contribution.

The plan is that you will eventually withdraw your contributions and use them to help buy a house or furnishings for the house in which case you escape all income tax on the money you have saved.

But if you don't choose to do that, you have the option (if you are under age 71) of transferring the total value of the plan into an RRSP, or—as in the case of a maturing RRSP—using the total value of the plan to buy an income-averaging annuity contract.

Although the proceeds of any RRSP become taxable when you receive them, you would normally take the income after retirement, when your top tax rate is likely to be relatively low.

(You also have the option of withdrawing your RHOSP contributions without using them to buy a house or furnishings, nor as an RRSP—but in that case you must pay income tax on the full amount in the year of withdrawal).

What about the case of a taxpayer for whom the government created the RHOSP — young people who are wondering how they will ever scrape together the down payment for their first house?

For them, the plan could be a real winner.

Not only does it provide genuine tax savings year by year, but it also offers a strong incentive for saving, to people who might otherwise be tempted to blow the $1,000 on some temporarily exciting luxury.

Let's assume that both husband and wife contribute the maximum $1,000 each, annually for 10 years, and that interest is compounding at nine per cent.

At the end of 10 years, their $20,000 in contributions would be worth well over $30,000. If they had chosen instead to pay taxes on that income and spend it as they went along, they might have had only $125,000 or so to spend during the decade.

Trust companies and other trustees are taking RHOSP contributions, usually paying an interest rate slightly above that paid on ordinary savings accounts.

This year only, contributions made up to March 30 may be used to offset 1974 taxable income. In future, the annual deadline will be the same as for RRSP contributions—Feb. 29 in leap years, March 1 in other years.

Premier Davis' Image Is Getting Going-over in Election Chit-chat

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Those of you who saw the Barbara Frum show on CBC-TV last week, and this perhaps is not too many because the show didn't start until midnight and ran for an hour, may have had the same reaction I did.

This was that the show had some interest and gave us a bit more insight into Premier Davis (whom it was all about) but as a political contribution it wouldn't rank much above zero degrees celcius.

The show consisted of a 20-minute interview with the premier, then 20 minutes of comment by three of the resident genii from the gallery here and finally 20 minutes with a panel of four advertising people.

The talk with the premier showed us that Bill Davis is still Bill Davis, on TV at least, even though he is trying to be more tough these days.

Notably he said he wasn't over-confident of the coming election but he wasn't at all afraid of it.

In this last philosophy he was going against a key characteristic of two of his most successful predecessors. Both John Robarts and Leslie Frost went into elections scared stiff. And they wanted it that way, calculating it made for a better fight.

The newspaper mens' contribution consisted of such profound statements as "You can never dismiss the Tories."

And the advertising people tended to confirm what many of us have tended to believe: that advertising people really know little about politics.

The four ad people were supposed to suggest how they would "merchandise" the three political leaders.

Davis was the centre of the attention and one said he would have him take off weight, a second said he would have him talk more quickly and a third, a woman and a PC said, in effect, that he didn't need any.

The one man who showed any perspection, George Elliott of Maclaren's, said the key to the election is in the ridings. This is part of the story all right, but no party will win strongly in the ridings with an unacceptable leader.

Notably all four missed the most notable Davis leadership weakness, which is that he doesn't have, or hasn't found, the capacity to dominate.

If you go back to his three successful predecessors all had this quality, even if in different ways.

Drew had baronial style, Frost was the father figure and Robarts the chairman of the board.

Davis hasn't got it, to date at least. He may find it (both Frost and Robarts did). They didn't have it at the start.

Abuse of Bail System in Canada

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

It has become almost a commonplace of the news, in the past two years, that charges should be laid against someone found to have committed a crime while out on bail awaiting trial on a charge of having committed a previous crime. Senior police officers across Canada tell the same story about their work being made more difficult because of the easing of bail requirements that took effect in 1973.

Isolated reports of abuse of the bail system do not necessarily make a case. It could be that exceptional instances are the ones that make news and create an impression.

Ottawa is one place where a careful look has been taken to find out whether there is general abuse of easier bail. The police department there has reviewed its records to compare the experience of 1972, the year before the bail law was softened, with 1974, the year after. In 1972 they had 155 cases of bail-skipping. In 1974 there were 407 cases.

From one year to the other, the number of accused who took advantage of bail almost tripled. Every such case increases the workload of the police, who are expected to seek out and arrest again the accused person already arrested at least once.

The added reform to the bail law that may be needed is to make bail-skipping itself a more serious offence, with heavier penalties, and to provide even more severe penalties for any crime committed while on bail.

Oshawa Times

We would never urge that the country go back to the pre-bail reform days when a man could be held in jail just because he couldn't produce $100 bail.

But it's certain that our federal legislators did not contemplate so much bail reform that the procedure of getting bail would become automatic.

Persons who are picked up by police while on bail must be considered in a different category than those appearing for release on a first arrest. They must either be kept in custody until their trial, which is really unsatisfactory, or they must be asked to put up substantial cash bail. Failing that, of course, they should stay in jail.

'Accidental' Death's Heavy Toll In the Canada of the Seventies

Royal Bank

Some people enjoy the spice of danger, but today's dangers are too dangerous to trifle with. It has been estimated that there are 350 deaths from 'needless' accidents in North America every day. In one year in Canada, accidental death claimed 8,480 male citizens and 3,551 female citizens. Traffic accidents account for about half this loss of life; accidents in the home cause 20 per cent of all accident fatalities.

During almost the whole of the time that mankind has been living on this planet his life has been a continual struggle to keep himself alive and to rear his young.

The four features contributing toward our hope of living long are: physical well-being, emotional control, respect for danger, and 'the desire to live.'

Things that we brush off as "chance occurrences" are not uncaused. Voltaire said that we invented the word "chance" to express the known effect of unknown causes. To be safe, we need to uncover the things and situations that threaten our safety and eliminate them or avoid them.

In the big industrial concerns, physical dangers are to a great extent guarded; fumes and dust are trapped and sucked away; good hygiene standards exist.

Most industrial accident, generally about 85 per cent, are the results of unsafe acts. Devices, however ingenious and effective they may be, are futile unless they are used by the workers. Having a safety program is not a guarantee of safety, but a means toward safety that must be respected.

Offices, too, have their hazards: slippery stairs and floors; open file cabinets; dangling telephone cords and typewriter connections; swinging doors, faulty chairs, and cluttered aisles.

The key to a good safety program in workshop or office or home is organization. There should be safety standards; education and training; warning signals and mechanical protection and inspections.

Many associations are at work in the field of business and industry to propagate safety: this Monthly Letter is addressed particularly to homes.

Among the causes predisposing us to accidents are our emotions, worry and anxiety, anger and fatigue. When one's brain gets out of gear the drive of emotion heads us toward a smash. Emotions can block the senses so that we are really "deafened" or "blinded" to possible dangers. They interfere with clear thinking.

Being in a bad humor, is a dangerous state. A person in cheerful, kindly, happy mood is less likely to incur an accident than one in a mood of discontent, grief or despair. When we are irritated, feeling below par or frustrated, we have to be extra careful in everything we do, for these feelings make us sitting ducks for accidents.

Irritability may arise from unsatisfied desires or the annoying actions of people. A succession of irritations over trifles — and some days seem to be full of them — may build up a condition that makes it impossible to exercise control in an emergency. We may drive the car without care, or walk the streets without caution, or handle a tool negligently. When we feel an irritation nagging at us we should try it out for size: is it big enough to justify us in risking our lives?

Boredom, which is essentially a thwarted desire for events, and despondency over the course of personal or world affairs, invite us to go on a spree of danger-courting. Some people believe that the only remedy for these mental upsets is action, and the action they take may be hasty and unthinking. Others take as their patron saint St. Vitus, and are nervous, high-strung and tense. They worry like the centipede which was asked by a frog: "Which of your hundred legs do you move first?"

A person who keeps in good temper is more secure from accidents than one who is angry. Anger is not only one of the seven deadly sins but one of the unbalancing forces that incline us to do dangerous acts. It makes us less ready than usual for accuracy of thought, and interferes with our exercise of control in an emergency.

We are not only likely to speak harshly when angry, but to behave recklessly. When we bruise our shins on a chair in a dark room the emotion of anger often instinctively arises before reflection shows that the chair was not to blame. Then we kick the chair and we hurt our toes.

When the feeling of anger arises, all bodily changes, such as scowling, clenching the fists and quickened heartbeat, are reflected back upon the mind, lessening its capacity for reasonable thought.

Fatigue, another ingredient of accidents, is a device of nature to keep us within safe limits. It makes sufficient rest of body and mind obligatory.

Children's safety is the paramount interest of adults and it requires special attention. All the ordinary safety precautions apply, but more is needed because children have not the experience to make them careful.

A Look at Environmental Needs

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The criteron used by the Ministry of the Environment to evaluate acceptable levels of chemicals, pesticides and other contaminants in the environment, is causing concern that the ministry may have let loose a Pandora's box in our midst — by allowing levels of contaminants that have contributed to the death and serious illness in Ontario.

A citizen's involvement with representatives of the Ministry of the Environment can be a very frustrating experience, for the ministry reacts very slowly to complaints of environmental pollution.

High levels of lead, asbestos and mercury and other contaminants are being reported more frequently in Ontario. Will we acquiesce to a policy of growth at any cost, while people die. By the failure of the Ministry of the Environment and other government agencies to enforce their own regulations, to protect the health and safety of people in Ontario. Is it not time those entrusted with the responsibility to the citizens and the environment, fulfilled their obligation to the residents of Ontario.

The Ministers of Enfironment, Health and Labor were very upset when New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis had the temerity to bring up in the legislature that employees at Johns-Manville Co. Ltd. Scarborough, had been exposed to dangerous levels of asbestos contaminants for years; that some had died and others were seriously ill. Why had these conditions been allowed to exist so long, is a question that remains unanswered.

Where are we headed? It is obvious that the Ministry of the Environment and other government agencies are out of touch with reality, apparently health, safety and the natural environment are all expendable, as long as no one disturbs the industrial polluters of Ontario, who seem to be able to do no wrong. Is this the Ontario we want?

Children's Psychiatric Services

Letter in
The Montreal Gazette

I would like to add a few written comments to the article by Angela Ferrante, entitled "Young Inmates denied Mental Care", to clarify some of the points we discussed in preparation for her report.

The cardinal point was well taken, that none of our psychiatric services can cope with certain children who present problems of security and psychiatric disorder at the same time. Some children can break loose from or totally disrupt a treatment setting, and when in another setting which provides security they can cause great concern with their "mental" behavior with which untrained staff cannot cope. These are generally screened by the court clinic who make recommendations as to treatment.

Our hospital's "riot" of July 1973 was not the first or the last difficult or destructive outbreak among the children; our centre and many of the other treatment centres take a calculated risk in putting together any group of susceptible children at a given time on a unit, and are prepared for the occasional loss of control. Without risk, no treatment is possible. The selection of patients, and the admission of defeat when a treatment program has become more noxious than helpful are also pre-conditions for any kind of therapy. This was the case since the program opened, not since that particular disturbance.

The present solution for such children is still to try one approach after another, which often means one treatment team or institution after another.

The hospital, the court clinic, and detention centre have been co-operating ad hoc over the treatment of some individual children, along with the non-medical programs such as Boys Farm and Marian Hall.

Is there any indication of a preferred treatment method for the various classes of "tough cases" that give difficulty through the system? Individually we have made periodic surveys but a valid study would require its being applied uniformly across the network, and such research is still a thing of the future, administratively as well as financially. Meanwhile we rely on clinical judgement, common sense and trial and error.

Bible Digest

by H. B. DEAN

"And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church: and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Matthew 16:18

The church is not only what Christ has made, but what we make of it. If it is a lighthouse for the weary traveler on the storm tossed sea of life, we have made it so. If it becomes a bedlam of confusion, compromise, a burden to the community and a shame to Christ, we have also made it so.

Portuguese Problem

Political Change Faced By Conservative Church

LISBON (Reuter) — In Roman Catholic Portugal, a land officially dedicated to the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary, priests are debating the relevance of communism to Christianity.

Even before last April's military coup ended nearly half a century of authoritarian right-wing rule, many opponents of the old regime had acted under the protective mantle of Portugal's Catholic Church.

The Bishop of Oporto spent 10 years in exile for defying the late dictator Antonio Salazar and the Bishop of Nampula left his diocese in Mozambique after denouncing Portugal's colonial policies.

Progressive Catholic youths occupied Lisbon churches to protest the colonial wars and allegations by foreign missionaries that Portuguese troops had massacred Africans in Mozambique hammered several nails into the old regime's coffin.

The Lisbon clergy generally acquired a reputation for radicalism and Salazar's successor, deposed prime minister Marcello Caetano, once said the new Catholic thinking and changes introduced by the 1962-65 Vatican Council only confused people, leaving them "more receptive to revolutionary ideas."

In Portugal's case, Caetano was speaking prophetically, but in spite of the church's resistance record, its position in the past was more often close to that of the old regime.

This was practically inevitable when the avowed guiding principles of the ex-seminary student Salazar were God, country, authority, family and work—in that order.

The fact that Manuel Cardinal Cerejeira was patriarch of Lisbon for much of the time that Salazar—with whom he had shared rooms at university—ruled the country only seemed to confirm the link between church and state.

In spite of the radicalism of some priests, the Portuguese church as a whole is staunchly conservative and last April's coup took it largely unaware, leaving it in a politically ambiguous and vulnerable position.

One of the consequences of the political upheaval has been the current revision of the 1940 concordat (treaty) between Portugal and the Vatican.

Permitting divorce in Portugal is the most controversial issue involved, but there is a strong feeling here that the concordat might be revoked altogether. This would deprive the church of its officially privileged status in Portugal.

A political rift within the Portuguese church was revealed recently when Bishop Manuel Falcao said the last episcopal conference had heard "numerous and repeated accusations about the behavior of the Catholic hierarchy under the old regime."

Ecclesiastical sources said no names were mentioned but one of the most bitter controversies currently dividing the Catholics here is over the excommunication of a parish priest by the ultra-conservative Archbishop of Braga.

The archbishop's opponents are calling for his resignation and have thrown back at him the fact that he wrote a funeral eulogy for Salazar in 1970.

The issue was politically charged in a pre-election period, especially as the archbishop's diocese counts one million souls, a large part of them in devout rural areas.

Officially, the church is neutral in Portugal's first elections in 48 years, scheduled in March.

But Bishop Falcao, who is secretary-general of the bishops' conference, recently said: "Christians should not join parties which defend an ideology opposed to the gospel and its spirit.

That seems to be as close to excommunicating the Communists as the hierarchy is prepared to go.

The Communists themselves are well aware of the church's strength and its traditional opposition to them and the party has recently made special efforts to woo Catholic voters.

The Communist-dominated Portuguese Democratic Movement (MDP), for instance, included the principle of religious liberty in its party program.

The Communists have a hard struggle to overcome years of hostility and the influence of what Portuguese Catholics consider the Miracle of Fatima.

In the year of the Bolshevik revolution in 1917, the Virgin Mary was reported to have warned three Portuguese shepherd children of the danger of Russia spreading its "errors" throughout the world.

About 100,000 pilgrims are estimated to have visited Fatima—Portugal's most sacred shrine—last year.

It is difficult to estimate the political strength of the church since the coup. Its national ultra-conservative newspaper has not published since then, its radio station is under the control of left-wing militants and its hierarchy is cautious in its public pronouncements.

Priesthood Candidates Are Scarce

TORONTO (CP) — A dwindling number of candidates for the Roman Catholic priesthood is causing concern among church leaders in this area.

Rev. Brian Clough, spiritual affairs chancellor for the archdiocese of Toronto, says about 10 new priests are needed annually "just to keep even" with the number lost through death, retirement or resignation.

He noted that only three men are in the graduating class this year at St. Augustine's Seminary, the main diocesan training college.

Father Clough said the shortage is being felt in many ways.

"What has suffered especially is the ability of the priest to find time to go and visit people in their own homes."

Archbishop Philip Pocock, in a recent appeal for more candidates for the priesthood, said that when he came to Toronto about 14 years ago there were the same number of priests as now. However, he said, the Catholic population doubled in the same period to about a million people.

God Reveals His True Power By Beginnings at Endings

By

Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

Throughout the pages of the Bible, just when an individual or an incident seems to be on the threshold of some wonderful new beginning, an ending suddenly climaxes it all. In reverse, surprisingly new beginnings are constantly arising out of blind alleys. Beginnings and endings come in the most unexpected places.

Moses appears on one side of the ledger. His hesitant acceptance of the leadership of Hebrew slaves, plus his dramatic escape from the armies of Pharaoh, plus his years of wandering, all seemed to add up to a glorious new beginning the day Moses stood atop Mount Nebo and viewed with his own eyes the land of Canaan.

But for Moses that ascent marked the end. For Moses would never enter the Promised Land, but would die on Mount Nebo, viewing at a distance the prize for which he had dedicated his life. And yet, in retrospect, his mission was not in vain.

Elijah appears on the other side of the ledger. His thunderous victory over the prophets of Baal, on Mount Carmel, caused him to flee miles into the wilderness. In sheer exhaustion he dropped to the ground, moaning, "Take away my life, O Lord, for I am no better than my fathers."

But what was the surprising response of God? In effect, "Elijah, rise and eat. It is not over. For there are seven thousand in Israel who have not bowed their knees to Baal. This is not the end. It is only the beginning."

Actually, it takes little faith to glide through exciting beginnings. Faith comes when, unequal to the task, we place our hope and our lives in God.

St. Paul sensed this truth when he wrote, "Why, we felt that we had received the sentence of death..." Then, looking back on this thought with the perspective of God's strength, he added, "but that was to make us rely not on ourselves but on God who raises the dead" (2 Corinthians 1:8-9).

Paul realized that when he added up all a missionary's trials and dangers that he experienced in Asia Minor, he had forgotten to count God. He had momentarily lost sight of the greatness of God. Then, coming to himself, the apostle saw that is is in the endings of life that God reveals how truly powerful he is.

The principle of resurrection should be at work in our daily lives. Even though our old self may die through sorrow, through misfortune, through the passing of a major epoch in history, yet here is where a new life or a thrilling new age is emerging from the grave.

Nothing can compare with "beginning at the end". It is here that God becomes meaningful to us and we find in him our power.

Designers Foster Quality Fashion

Twelve Canadian designers banded together last year to form the Fashion Designers' Association of Canada with the main aim of fostering interest in high-quality Canadian fashions.

In October, the association fired its opening salute with seminars in Montreal and Toronto for students of fashion design, retail buyers, sales personnel and the press. The seminars were sponsored by Fashion Canada, a federal government agency.

President of the association is Michel Robichaud of Montreal. Founding members are Robert Chernin, Leo Chevalier, Tom d'Auria, Marielle Fleury, Hugh Garber, Elvia Gobbo, Vall Dubsky, John Warden and Donald Richer, Montreal; and Clair Haddad and Pat McDonagh, Toronto.

Highlight of the seminars was the presentation of five garments from each designer, not necessarily from current collections but intended as statements of their fashion belief.

It was not the first Canadian designers' association. A little more than 20 years ago six Canadians formed the Association of Canadian Couturiers whose membership soon rose to 14. Its aim was to set distinctive Canadian fashion and fabric trends.

That year the association presented in Montreal the initial showing of Canadian-designed costumes made from Canadian fabrics.

Much has happened since in the presentation of Canadian-designed clothes at home and abroad. Combined collections have been shown in major Canadian cities and in New York, Paris, Milan and Brussels.

In 1959 two large department stores took the unprecedented step of featuring Canadian-designed clothes. Canadian designers had suffered because there had to be outside recognition, especially from the United States, before Canadians as a whole would acknowledge their talents.

By 1960, seven Montreal manufacturers had reproduced several of the costumes shown in the association's spring collection. It was a good beginning.

Then the Association disbanded. Couture was bowing to boutiques. Women were not spending as much for couture clothes. However, the designers recognized that a new field was opening—selling to or designing for Canadian manufacturers.

Auckie Sanft of Montreal brought a young Canadian designer back from New York to work for him. This was Niagara Falls-born John Warden.

In the following few years other Canadian manufacturers hired Canadian designers. An example is Montrealer Hugh Garber, hired by Margo Dresses practically from design school. He has been with the firm ever since.

Leo Chevalier gave up his own salon to design for several Canadian firms. Warden kept his salon but added an impressive list of manufacturers to his work. Some of the designers are manufacturers, as Claire Haddad with her at-home and loungewear and Elen Henderson with her couture clothes for little girls.

The designers have also been helped over the years by national fashion shows. The Association of Couturiers started them but oddly enough it was the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union (ILGWU) that gave them their impetus.

In the spring of 1961 the first union label was sewn into Canadian-made garments and the following September the organization launched its first national collection, showing clothes from Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

The annual shows continued into the 1970s, alternating between Montreal and Toronto, with a Winnipeg show for Manitoba's 1970 centennial.

At the January, 1970, show, a top Montreal fashion writer wrote:

"Over-all what the show did was to indicate a vast improvement in Canadian design. More and more Montreal and Toronto manufacturers are employing designers to work on original looks and original lines, a fact that cannot help but upgrade the standard of Canadian fashions."

In 1967 the ILGWU presented a gala Centennial edition of its national collection at Place des Arts in Montreal. At Expo 67 there was an outdoor Canadian fashion show that drew a large international audience daily.

The Ontario Fashion Institute, a group of designers and manufacturers, presented a show in the Ontario Pavilion to which American and European buyers were invited. It was actually the third annual Eedee—for excellence of design—Awards show, started by the provincial government to give Ontario fashions a boost. A couple of years ago the institute disbanded. The provincial government also gave up the awards shows. It was time for another entrance on the fashion stage.

This was Fashion Canada, formed by the federal government to promote Canadian fashions. It has tried various plans; including national fashion shows and now is concentrating on helping young designers by means of scholarships abroad.

Last year's show was attended by leaders in the American retail field.

Some Personalities Just Don't Click

One time I said to my aunt, who was a mother to me: "Nana, no one can make me like someone other than the person, herself or himself; and no one can make me dislike someone, except that person herself or himself."

Nan

You are right, Nan. And that was a wise observation for a very youthful philosopher, like you were, to make.

I have observed so many older people trying to bring two youthful personalities together and the whole thing falling flat, that I agree with you. There are also some would-be matchmakers who bring an eligible young man home to dinner, (to meet a daughter) only to watch an evening of conversation which is a dismal failure; simply because the two people, try as they will, cannot get on the same wave length, conversationally or any other way.

However, this does not mean families should not enjoy the privileges of open house. Many a mother or elder sister has been the link who started something which ripened into romance. The point is, we should have many friends, and make it possible for our young people to associate in casual, comfortable ways, where they can make up their own minds about companions and lifetime partners.

Dear Doris: I am a nice well-brought-up girl who married a nice well-brought-up boy. In the six years that we have been married we got along extremely well together except for one thing. I have found it very difficult to have sex with my husband, who is very good looking clean, and treats me like a queen.

This last year and a half I have been having an affair with an older married man who can satisfy me sexually and I love him very much, but he lacks a lot of good qualities that my husband has. I have two young children. There is a question who the father is of my youngest child.

My husband knows about how I feel, the affair, sex problem, and the baby, and wants to forget everything and continue on. My lover does not want a divorce from his wife though he claims he doesn't love her but material-wise would have lots to lose.

My husband is away for 10 months on a course and tries to come home on week ends. During his absence I think of my lover a lot and I get to see him occassionally.

I cry a lot when my husband is home, when I am by myself with the children and when I am with my lover because I am afraid of losing him. I feel I am living with one man but in love with another.

Pulled Two Ways.

Dear Pulled: Several things occur to me: your lover, an older man, has learned how to be smooth and persuasive — and glamorous. He has learned also how to eat his cake and have it too!

Then there is your husband — who is such a good family man that he is willing to keep on loving you, and to make something of himself (with his studies) for all your sakes. Legally, of course, both children are his.

You need to learn more about sexual relationships and how they can be improved; and your young husband does too. If you could spend as much time reading and discussing this with your husband, as you are at present crying over the situation, you would get somewhere.

I am sending you my list of recommended books on sex. Get busy straightening things out — and try to see that self-loving "lover" of yours in his true lights.

(Putting it down on paper helps — in a letter to Doris, a Canadian journalist with a master's degree in social work —in care of this newspaper.)

Hot Baths and Fresh Air Cure Afternoon Fatigue

OTTAWA (CP) — A hot bath and frequent doses of fresh air may be the ideal prescription for office workers who suffer from mid-afternoon fatigue, headaches and tension. Blame it all on those nasty positive ions.

Dr. Edward Napke, a member of the International Society for Biometeorology, said an atmosphere with a high concentration of positive ions may produce feelings of irritability and fatigue, as well as a lower resistance to respiratory ailments, including influenza.

Ions are invisible positive and negative electrically - charged particles released in billions by cosmic rays, radioactive elements in the soil, storms, waterfalls and winds.

Dr. Napke is employed by the federal government in its poison-control and adverse-reaction program. But his interest in positive and negative ions goes back 20 years and has little to do with his present job. The Society for Biometeorology has published reports on the effects of weather and ionization on life, growth and vegetation for years.

Medical and scientific experts say negative ions have a soothing, rejuvenating and stabilizing effect on the human system. But these beneficial negative ions are swept away by modern air - conditioning equipment. found in what Dr. Napke calls the "window-sealed glass and steel conglomerate."

Thus, the air in office buildings becomes supercharged with potentially harmful positive ions.

In an interview, Dr. Napke proposed some temporary remedies for those who often feel run-down.

"Most people know they feel good after a bath but they don't know why," he said.

"In fact, the hot bath and subsequent sweating result in a neutralizing of positive ions and eliminate detrimental salts from the body."

He also suggested that air-conditioning manufacturers can easily change a positively-charged atmosphere to a negative one.

"They can take ion readings with specially designed equipment and, if a generator is charging the air with positive ions, simply reverse the polarization so that negative ions are produced."

Nothing had been done because manufacturers simply did not believe reports on the effects of positive and negative ions.

"You can't force someone to accept your views or theories," said Dr. Napke.

In the meantime, he recommended that office workers escape outdoors whenever possible for several deep breaths of fresh air.

Ann Landers

Hassled Daughter Just Digs in Heels

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 years old and very mature for my age. I like this kid (I will call him Keith) very much. My parents can't stand him. They think his hair is terrible. They don't like the way he dresses. All I hear from them is how sloppy he is and how awful his manners are. I am sick of it.

The more they hassle me about Keith the more determined I am that they are not going to break us up. I am old enough to know who I want to go with. Maybe one of these days I will meet somebody I will like better than Keith, but as long as my parents are on my back I'm going to keep going with him just to show them they can't run my life.

Please print my letter, Ann. Mom and Dad are always shoving your column in my face. Here's one I will shove in theirs.—Mind of My Own

Dear Mind: I'm printing your letter so a few million parents around the country can gain some insight into what goes on with their teen-age children. Your letter has a powerful message. I hope they get it.

Dear Ann Landers: In 1963 you printed a letter from a relative complaining about a doctor bill. It seems his young cousin had just set up practice and sent a bill for services rendered during office hours. The complaint was, "The boy was just getting started and I thought I was doing him a favor by giving him some practical experience."

Please rerun that letter for the benefit of those who have forgotten it. I'm in my last year of specialty training and receiving long-distance calls asking for advice about sunburn, headaches and backaches, requests to write notes excusing kids from gym class, prescriptions for tranquillizers, diet pills, etc., which I cannot fill.

Please hunt up that old column and rerun it, Ann. Thank you.—A.H.Z. of London, Ont.

Dear A.H.Z:, No need to rerun it. Your letter states your position clearly. If your relatives continue to impose on you I hope you'll tell them exactly how you feel. If you don't have the guts to level with them, prepare for more of the same—and I can promise you, it will go on forever.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son has been married to a very nice young woman for nearly three years. We've tried to be friendly but she has made it plain that she wishes to keep us at arm's length.

Our daughter-in-law has never called us by any name whatever. It's always "Hi there." When they go on vacations our son always writes the postcards to "Dear Mom and Dad." But they are from him, not her.

We sign our gift cards to her using our first names, but she has yet to call us "Mary and Bill." I do feel "Mr. and Mrs." is too formal for in-laws. This is quite a dilemma and we would appreciate some guidance.—At A Loss

Dear Loss: Why don't you raise the question to her face? Simply ask your daughter-in-law what she would like to call you. Tiptoeing around for three years makes no sense. If she says it doesn't matter, suggest your first names, since obviouly she doesn't wish to call you Mom and Dad.

Chief Says No

Girls Volunteer for Fire Brigade

FORT LANGLEY, B.C. (CP) — It wasn't the kind of beat the Fort Langley volunteer fire department was accustomed to dealing with.

Chief Bill Bergeron, seeking additional manpower, sent fireman Al Davis to the junior high school in this Fraser Valley community to recruit.

Fifteen boys volunteered. So did 30 girls.

Although all 30 had parental approval, the chief turned them down, saying firefighting drill is "something the men enjoy doing away from women."

"Let's face it, these women have their Tupperware parties and things like that," he said. "We don't butt into their things. The weekly fire practice is our night out and we don't want the women butting in."

The girls' parents, noting that the department is publicly financed, pressed for a meeting with the chief and booed him vigorously when he stuck to his stand.

Debbie Griffin, 15, said the girls came forward when the boys seemed uninterested in the recruiting appeal. So did some female teachers.

She said fire officials told the girls they would be subjected to locker-room talk if they joined.

"We wouldn't have heard any swear words we don't hear at school and worse."

Heather Wall, 15, said the girls harbor no hard feelings.

"It was just one of those things," she said. "But I do wish we'd had the chance to show what we could do."

FUNERAL QUESTION
WE ARE OFTEN ASKED

JOHN R. BUSH

R. DOUGLAS RUSHNELL

Q. A reader writes asking WHAT DO PEOPLE DO WHO HAVE NO MINISTER, also do they charge for conducting a Funeral Service?

A. This is an area where we are able to help because we are acquainted with many Clergymen of various denominations. Most of the clergymen we know do not limit their offices only to members of their congregation but are willing to offer divine service to all who seek it.

Regarding your second question DO MINISTERS charge for conducting a funeral service?

A. NO, however an honorarium is usually offered by the family if the deceased was not a contributing member of the minister's church. Offerings for requiem Mass should be discussed with the priest.

The answers are as varied as the peoples' needs, and only YOU can know what is best for you.

What are your hobbies? What is your family formation? There are many questions to answer.

Experience tells a Realtor that the young family can live anywhere but when your children are from 10 to 16, it is better for all concerned if you are near Public Transportation. Independent children have to be able to get to the "Y", the library, swimming on their own. Perhaps some parents like to run a taxi service, but they usually end up feeling like martyrs.

Consult your family, your friends and then get advice from a Realtor.

Super Stock Car Driver Loves Her Drag Strip Life

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The time Judy Lilly blew two front tires at 130 miles an hour, all she can remember is being mad.

The screech of metal on asphalt had barely stopped, the dirty burnt-rubber smoke hadn't cleared, and Judy was out of the car, slipping on the spilled oil, kicking what was left of the tires.

"I don't remember doing it," she recalled with a laugh. "But somebody took my picture and it made all the papers."

That's not surprising. Judy Lilly makes good newspaper copy.

Voted Super Stock Driver of the Year by readers of Car Craft magazine, she has made it big in drag racing, where the idea is to drive her souped-up stock car as fast as she can in a quarter-mile acceleration test.

Her top speed is 138 m.p.h., 9.9 seconds from standing start to finish 1,320 feet later.

There's nothing like it, she said. "Sitting in the car, you're subject to two Gs force off the line. Driving is like sitting on a bowl of jelly. And there's nothing like the thrill of hanging in there and knowing any minute you could lose it."

But the short 112-pound driver hasn't lost it much. Her biography lists a string of victories since she began racing in 1961.

At first, even competing was rough. "There was always someone hanging on the fence, waiting for me to make mistakes."

Because she was concentrating so hard on not making mistakes, she said, she didn't make many. "But still for years so many people would remember that one time I missed a gear, and not the way I was winning a lot of races."

A native of St. Petersburg, Fla., Judy has been interested in cars since she was a teenager.

"I was always good at sports, and liked racing. And I knew if I was going to do something, I had to do it well So I started learning and, little by little, I learned to do it well."

Although Judy estimated there are a couple of thousand women who race on weekends, only two or three race professionally. "There would be a lot of good women racing drivers but they just don't take it as seriously as they should."

Judy drives the 40-foot truck containing her car and an austere bunk more than 50,000 miles every year, competing in races throughout the country.

She said the worst part of the life is "being alone a lot, the hours and days on your own."

"Sometimes, when I stop at a truck stop along the way, the first person who talks to me gets quite an enthusiastic reply, I'm so anxious for a little conversation."

But at every race there are hundreds of people she knows, most especially her husband, Dennis Maurer, who is also her chief mechanic. During the week he works for an auto dealership near their home in Golden, Colo., but on weekends he flies to whatever race Judy is in.

Judy said her philosophy is "to shoot for the stars, expect nothing and be happy with what you get."

With all the hard work and disadvantages, she loves being a dragster.

"There's nothing like the thrill of competition. And I love the freedom of the life—I guess I'm part gypsy.

"I see my friends, tied down, never doing much of anything. Me, I just get in my truck and down the road I go."

The Consumer — Sharon Airhart

Good Balm, First Cure-All

Asthma, bronchitis, croupe, quinsey, neuralgia, rheumatism, chapped hands, frosted feet, corns, sprains, stiff joints, earache, toothache, burns, dysentery, chilblains, sore throats and even headaches.

These are some of the ailments Good Samaritan's Balm was supposed to help.

And it made Canadian history. Not, you understand, because it was a cure-all but because in 1861 it was granted Canada's first trademark. Ransom Irwin, in case you're interested, was the owner.

Dr. Morse and his Indian Root Pills received Canada's second trademark and was followed by a remarkable array of horseshoe nail-makers, chewing tobacco wrappers and assorted herbalists.

From that modest beginning there are now 123,000 trademarks registered here and the Consumer and Corporate Affairs Department accepts another 11,000 a year.

What purpose do trademarks serve? According to the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, they create orderly competition in the market place. They represent a commercial reputation and they distinguish a firm's goods from others. In a way, they're a guarantee of consistency of quality.

More on metric: crocheters are using continental hooks already marketed with metric markings. The sizes 2, 2.25, 2.5, up to 7.5. When the hooks were changed several years ago it was a welcome relief to needlewomen who had struggled with hooks marked K which were also a size 4. Knitters will now have that advantage, too: knitting needles currently running from 000 to 15 (big to small) in Canada and 15 to 000 (big to small) in the United States, will now be marked from 1.75 (small) to 9.

One more tip: a one-ounce ball is about 28 to 30 grams.

It's definitely time for a little bit of spring; you can give nature a shove by forcing a few stems of an early flowering shrub to bloom indoors.

Goldenbell forsythia, for example, will bloom indoors as will pussy willow. Young birch twigs will do the same.

Cut off long wands of flowering wood and place in a vase of water in a warm room.

If you're thinking about beginning your garden plants indoors, it might pay to sterilize the soil mixture now.

Spread your soil mix in a shallow pan about two inches deep. Place a small potato on the soil. Bake in the oven at 375 until the potato is cooked. That's how you'll know when the soil is sterilized. At this point, don't re-contaminate the soil with tools and containers. Wash them for 30 seconds in a chlorine solution of one part bleach to nine parts water.

Public Invited to Seminar About Child Abuse Problem

Every year in this county a dozen or more cases of child beating are reported.

Many of these children are hospitalized. All come under the supervision of the Family and Children's Services — the Children's Aid Society — of Hastings County.

Who are these victims of child abuse? Usually the children are under two years of age, often less than a year old.

What do they suffer? Many abused children are permanently crippled, blinded or mentally retarded because of head injuries. A high proportion die.

Child abuse takes many forms, from thoughtless neglect to malicious maltreatment. It cannot be attributed to any particular type of person or segment of society, except for one frightening fact: most child abusers were beaten by their parents, and are repeating this behavior pattern with their own children.

"Child abuse in Hastings county isn't more prevalent than any other place," says CAS Director Bruce Kerr. "But we believe that if public programs can save the life of even one child, we will have accomplished our purpose."

For this reason a child abuse seminar will be conducted in Belleville on Wednesday, February 26, sponsored by the CAS and the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Medical Association.

Professor Cyril Greenland, widely-known expert in the field of child abuse, will lead the seminar. Professor of social work at McMaster University, he has recently completed a provincial government survey of the Character and Incidence of Child Abuse in Ontario.

The television film "12½ Cents", which deals with child battering, will be shown at the seminar. The evening will include comments by a panel of Belleville men who are knowledgeable in this area: Judge Robert J.K. Walmsley of the family court division, Dr. James Nelles, pediatrician, and Dr. E.B. Conn, psychiatrist.

Scott Orfald, head of the CAS Family Services Department, will act as moderator for the panel.

The seminar, which is open to the public, will begin at 7.30 p.m. in the Park Room at the Four Seasons Hotel.

February Gardens

There are plenty of gardening chores for February — even after the garden is planned and the seeds ordered.

"For example," says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist, P.F. Gomme, "although it is early to start annuals from seed indoors, it's not too early to fill containers with soil ready for the seeds."

To make gardening easier next summer, repair, clean and sharpen tools now. Scrape flat metal areas to clean them and rub them with oil to inhibit rust. Sharpen hoes and shovels with a file. Paint brightly colored stripes on tool handles, so that they will be seen easily in the garden.

Snow and ice can weigh evergreens down and damage branches. However, because frozen trees are brittle, shake snow from them gently after each winter storm. To avoid breaking branches, do not remove ice from them. Instead, carefully prop ice-laden branches up until melting begins.

Inspect begonia and dahlia tubers to make sure mildew or rot has not set in. Discard any that are diseased. Gladoilus corms should also be inspected for disease. Remove loose husks and pinch away old corms to make them ready for spring planting.

Finally, read nursery and seed catalogues from cover to cover "In addition to prices and descriptions, most editions contain vegetable gardening hints and easy-to-follow instructions," says Mr. Gomme. "Make use of this information next summer and you will enjoy your vegetable garden much more."

Order Annuals Soon

Winter also gives gardeners the opportunity to plan next year's flower beds from the seed catalogue's newest varieties.

"Daydreaming about next year's garden is not time wasted," adds Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist, R.A. Fleming.

"Wow, and certainly before the growing season begins, is the best time to choose new trees, shrubs and vegetable and flower seeds."

Many popular annual flowers are best purchased from garden centres in mid or late May. However, several attractive, little-known annuals should be ordered soon, because they grow well from seed planted outdoors as soon as the ground is workable in the spring. Two of these are Calendulas and Nemesia.

Calendulas have composite blooms that come in shades of yellow and orange and sometimes have brown-tipped petals. Their flowers are exellent for cutting and more blossoms are produced after each bunch is taken. Calendulas also withstand light fall frosts.

Nemesia plants grow 10 to 20 inches high. Like Calendulas, they produce flowers just right for cutting. However, their blooms are white, blue or purple, as well as yellow, and there are often two colors in the same flower.

Start Gloxinias Now

For a colorful display from May to September, you should start gloxinias now. "If treated with care, these houseplants produce big, broad, tubular flowers in red, violet, white, pink or variegated colors, against a background of large, velvety leaves," says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist, D.M. Sangster.

In commercial greenhouses, gloxinias are grown from seeds to mature plants with good shows of bloom in about three months. At home, they can be started from leaf cuttings which, when rooted, produce tubers and then plants which flower in four to five months.

When your tubers are ready for planting, they should be placed round, smooth side down in a mixture of equal parts soil, peat and perlite or sand. Barely cover them and keep them in a warm area. Water sparingly.

As soon as sprouts appear, remove all but one for a more shapely plant. Place the gloxinias in a strong light, but not in direct sunlight, and keep the temperature around them at 65 degrees F. At this stage, water them well and regularly, but avoid wetting the leaves. To encourage the growth of developing buds, remove all old blooms.

After flowering has ended, induce dormancy by withholding water for several weeks. Rest the tubers in pots of soil, at a temperature of not less than 45 degrees F, until next February.

People and Events

MARMORA WI

The February meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Bessie Sabine.

A thank-you letter was received from Jean Green, chairman of the Christmas Gift program for mental health patients.

Maude Carman, president, announced that the 4H spring project will be a garden club, and home accessories.

It was decided that a bake sale and tea would be held at the senior citizens' clubroom on Friday, March 21.

Easter gifts for the residents of Sherrett House and patients at the Centre Hastings Nursing Home in Deloro will be purchased by the WI.

Two articles, "Bangladesh Cleans up on its Poor", by Ruth Moffatt, and one on "Milk Maids", by Mrs. Carman were presented. A paper on family and consumer affairs was given by committee chairman Ethel Nobes.

"To be able to speak in several languages is valuable but the ability to keep one's mouth closed in one language is priceless" was the subject of a talk by Eileen Demorest.

CHRIST CHURCH A.C.W.

At their February meeting, members of Christ Church Anglican Church Women were given a demonstration and account of the duties and activities of the Church Altar Guild.

Catherine Roulet described the various vessels and linens and demonstrated the setting-up and preparation for Church services. Many of the beautiful vessels had been given as memorials to parishioners and loved ones and the linens sewn and embroidered by members of the Guild.

Laura Ragsdale spoke of the work of the Save the Children Fund in Canada and some members volunteered to knit for this cause.

Members were reminded of the World Day of Prayer, and that they will be hostesses for the reception following Confirmation Service on Palm Sunday. This service will mark the first official visit of Right Reverend Henry Hill, the new bishop of the diocese of Ontario.

At the March meeting F.A. Beeby will speak on behalf of "Pensioners Concerned", a voluntary organization working for the benefit of all senior citizens. Husbands of members and men of the congregation will be invited to attend.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Ethel Day and Win Wilkins.

BOY SCOUTS AND INDIANS

To commemorate Baron Baden-Powell's birthday and the founding of the Boy Scout movement, the Hastings County Museum will open a display on Scouting History in the Quinte Area at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, February 22.

In addition there will be a companion exhibit of Indian Artifacts from the extensive collection of Mr. Melville Hill from the Tyendinaga Reserve. The exhibit continues until March 14.

WEAVERS' GUILD

A mystery was solved Thursday night when members of the Belleville Weavers' Guild met to look at weaving samples.

The weavers had constructed their fabrics from a "mystery draft" supplied by member Ruth Rimmer.

At the meeting, Mrs. Rimmer revealed that the mystery weave was an interpretation of her daughter's name. She showed members how to design fabrics from their own names.

Ellie Nurcombe and Mary Freeman provided lunch after the program.

Annie Tanner's talent for preparing oyster stew has been employed by the Anglican Church Women of St. Mark's church in Bonarlaw for many years. Beside Mrs. Tanner is her sister-in-law Jean Morgan, assistant cook for the occasion. Local people can't wait to be seated, and jumped the gun at 5 p.m. Thursday, an hour earlier than last year's feast began. The popular event is attended by approximately 250 oyster-lovers every year.

In Bonarlaw:

Annual Oyster Supper Is Tasty Success

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

BONARLAW — Believe it or not, this is oyster country.

For decades people in this area south of Marmora have been waiting patiently for the annual oyster stew feast.

It doesn't reach orgy proportions, but for the past 25 years about 250 oyster lovers have come out of St. Mark's Anglican Church in Bonarlaw with big contented smiles on their faces. Long before the Anglican Church Women started holding the gatherings the Orange Lodge and the Oddfellows held them.

Bill Barlow has been buying oysters for 25 years. He was issuing tickets to patrons of the feast Thursday.

"I bought ten gallons from Toronto, and it cost $19 a gallon delivered here," he said. "I buried them in a snowbank Tuesday until we needed them here."

Mr. Barlow said the price for the meal was $4, and this was the first year it has been that high. It was $3.25 last year, but oysters are up by $1.25 a gallon, he said.

Going back many years, Mr. Barlow recalled that a former reeve of Rawdon, the late John Morrison, used to be the chef. Thursday's cook, Annie Tanner, formerly of Minto, and now of Stirling, said she helped the late Charles Lough when he took over from Mr. Morrison. She was doing this for the Orange Lodge before the church women started the oyster stew suppers.

"Anybody can do it," she says. But not according to those who demand her talents year after year. She, too, has help this year, from her sister-in-law Jean Morgan. Mrs. Tanner started preparing the oyster stew at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

It's a far cry from the canned variety.

There are no potatoes for fillers. Lots of butter, and at the last minute, rolled crackers are poured in.

Does anybody eat the oysters raw? Mr. Barlow said that the late Dr. E.A. Carleton of Stirling used to bring a carload of people every year, and he would get a soupbowl of raw oysters, and several bowls of oyster stew afterwards.

"He always used to joke, it was good to have a doctor in attendance" Mr. Barlow said. "I always told him you'd be the first one sick."

John Lombard, rector, Parish of Marmora, said "I came here from Windsor four years ago and never had oysters before. They converted me. I love them." He had a kiss for Mrs. Tanner before dining. And a kiss for Mrs. Morgan.

Bill Lavender, a retired warden for Marmora, is in Belleville General Hospital, but he still got his oyster stew. His wife Hazel stopped in and filled a thermos for him. A minister even made a special trip down to Bonarlaw from Grafton for the oyster stew.

And now it's time to clam-up.

Recipe for Oyster Stew

Annie Tanner, who is in charge of making the Bonarlaw stew, works with far larger quantities than one would use ordinarily. Her recipe calls for 10 gallons of oysters (shelled), and at least 12 gallons of milk, in order to feed more than 200 people.

"We cook the oysters in their own juice first. It's important to simmer them instead of boiling them. We do five gallons at a time, and it takes about three-quarters of an hour. The best test of whether they're done is to take one," she suggests.

Then the oysters are added to the hot milk — about six gallons — to which celery salt, pepper and salt and butter are added.

"There aren't any specific instructions," says Mrs. Tanner, "I just combine the ingredients and let the stew simmer until it's ready.

"The most important thing to remember is to be especially careful not to scorch the milk. We put an iron plate on the stove burner to make sure the heat stays even."

'Miracle' Operation Restores Sight

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — When you've been blind for almost half a century and suddenly see again, it's nothing short of a miracle.

Mrs. Critchley lost her eyesight just three weeks after her marriage

At 66, life is just beginning for Elsie Critchley of Port Sunlight, Cheshre, England, who is seeing Canada for the first time, although she has visited the country on several occasions.

Mrs. Critchley is the first person to have had the futuristic eye surgery which restored the complete sight in her right eye, even though the doctors said they would promise her nothing.

"What did I have to lose?" she said n an interview at the home of her daughter Kim, whom she was seeing for the first time.

"As I understand it, they took the eye out, made an incision back of the capsule lens to introduce light through the crack and returned the eye to the socket."

The doctors ould not explain why she suddenly lost her eyesight, but believed it may have been caused by shock or an accident.

Mrs. Critchley has had to make traumatic adjustments. The thing she finds most terrifying now is the traffc. "I used to cross roads when I was blind by just cocking my ear and listening for the sound of the cars. Now that I can see, I just seem to freeze.

She can still crochet, sew and knit in the darkest room and cannot shed the habit of using her fingers to feel things.

It all began last June when she first saw the eye surgeons at St. Paul's Old Hall Street Hospital, Liverpool, who said they believed she had about four weeks left before the total loss of sight in her right eye.

They stressed that they could promise her nothing, she said. But 24 hours later, surgery was completed and she was assured of her sight.

Absenteeism Reduced If Workers Set Hours

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Allowing clerical workers to set their own work hours each week improves employee morale and reduces absenteeism, says a large firm that has tried it.

Pitney Bowes, a manufacturer of business equipment, experimented with the concept with more than 250 of its employees late last year and plans to expand the program.

"It destroyed the old adage that people don't work if you don't watch them carefully," said Jerome Perrone, manager of policies and practices who directed the experiment.

The program is working out so well that it probably will be extended to two or three times the current 250 participants, said James L. Turrentine, vice-president for employee relations.

"I see this as part of a general trend business is coming to," he said. "It is one way of acknowledging that employee are grown up."

A three-month test of the program produced an "overwhelmingly positive" acceptance by employees and supervisors alike, Perrone said.

Flexible time allows employees considerable freedom in setting their schedules from day to day during the regular five-day work week.

They may start any time after 7 a.m. and may work up to 6 p.m. The only time they must be on the job is during the busiest period of each day, when each department needs its full staff.

Flexible time allows employees to put in more than the regular 7½ hours one day and have the corresponding time off another day.

"Lateness with this kind of program becomes non-existent," Perrone said.

Each employee begins the workday by using a personal plastic "key" to start a clock-like timing device.

The desk-top device records only the amount of time the person puts in during the week, not the daily amount.

During the trial period, Pitney Bowes found participants were absent less often, on the average of one hour a month.

At that rate, extending the program to 2,000 employees earning the hourly average wage of $4.15 would save the company nearly $100,000 in three months, Perrone said.

"Most people, believe it or not, work their regular schedules anyway," Perrone said. The important factor was freedom to rearrange their schedule if they wished.

The popularity of the program was reflected in a sampling of opinion showing that 72 employees were more satisfied with their jobs because of flexible time, 28 felt no change and only four were less satisfied.

Perrone said one surprising fact emerged from the poll: the supervisors approved of flexible time as much as the employees although it meant they lost authority over scheduling.

He attributed that to the elimination of disciplinary problems and to improved morale.

He said he and other salaried employees also felt more relaxed about occasionally taking a few hours off when the hourly paid employees began doing so.

"But there were no situations in which the job didn't get done because a person didn't do it."

Flexible time was found unsuitable for certain employees who spend much time outside the office. It also cannot be extended to manufacturing employees involved in government contracts, as Pitney Bowes is, because of federal regulations pertaining to daily overtime pay.

It's Dangerous Life For North Sea Divers

ABERDEEN (CP) — It was a balmy summer Sunday afternoon when they hauled diver John Dimmer from the swirling waters off the northern tip of Scotland.

For him, it had been a routine dive to 500 feet beneath the raging surface of the North Sea in the lonely expanse of ocean about 100 miles east of the Shetland Islands.

At that depth the water pressure was enormous: Nearly 200 pounds per square inch compared with a normal atmospheric pressure of 15 pounds.

But Dimmer, an experienced diver, and his companion worked quickly and within 20 minutes they had repaired a fault in the base of an oil drilling rig which they had been sent down to fix.

They then swam back into a pressurized diving bell and were pulled to the surface where, still under pressure, they were locked into a decompression chamber for a gradual, eight-hour return to normal.

At that point, there was no sign that John Dimmer was soon to become another fatal victim of the rush to develop North Sea oil.

KD Marine (UK) Ltd., a firm once based in Canada but now with head offices in Bermuda, was Dimmer's employer and the company's safety procedures were among the best in the world.

Everything went normally during decompression and Dimmer and his friend played cards and chatted until the pressure reached 35 pounds a square inch.

At that point he developed piercing chest pains and his breathing became irregular.

There was no doctor on the rig but by Wednesday, KD had sent out its top scientific adviser in Aberdeen, Alan Kransberg, and a local doctor, William Houston, by helicopter to see him.

Kransberg immediately diagnosed the problem as a pneumothorax, the presence of an air bubble between the left lung and chest wall which expanded when pressure was reduced, forcing the lung to collapse. He recommended inserting a hollow needle in the chest to remove the air.

But the doctor disagreed and insisted on treating it as pneumonia, using penicillin, painkillers and tranquillizers. Suddenly, Friday morning, the arguments ended. John Dimmer was dead.

A later investigation showed the doctor to be at fault but there has never been a hint of any disciplinary action against him.

There are no reliable statistics for the number of divers who have died in the North Sea. The government puts the figure at 11. Jann Flury, head of KD's British operation, said there have been at least 16 since 1972 and John Prescott, Labor MP for Kingston Upon Hull said one diver dies each month. Last April, London's Daily Telegraph said at least 20 divers had died in the previous eight months alone.

There have been no strict procedures for reporting deaths in the past and even if there had been, most would be passed off as due to "natural causes."

But in this Americanized city at the heart of Britain's oil boom, the peril of divers is a constant subject on nearly everyone's lips.

About the only productive result of Dimmer's tragic case last year has been that the government instituted broad regulations covering divers: They must be over 18, medically fit, not dive more than three hours of every 24 and use a submersible compression unit when going below 50 yards.

Nevertheless, there are still grave doubts about the qualifications of many of the 800 divers in the North Sea and about measures for their protection.

Said Jann Flury: "Most of the deaths are due to faulty procedure and bad equipment. Men are diving to greater depths here than anywhere else in the world and divers are in extremely short supply so some of the companies are virtually grabbing people off the street."

Men from all over the world with any interest in diving have been attracted here by the extraordinary salaries offered. A diver working on underwater construction, for example, earns a basic wage of $2,000 a month plus $250 for each day he dives. Ordinarily, he would dive about 14 days a month.

"But," said Robert McCandless, an experienced Texan diver, "this has meant a proliferation of cowboy companies coming up here to make a quick buck, whatever risks are involved, and then get out.

come a menace to themselves, to anyone who works for them and to everyone who works near them."

Roger Lute, a 31-year-old Montreal diver, said the oil companies themselves have to bear a great deal of responsibility.

"They're always pressuring, pressuring, trying to get us to take more and more chances, to go deeper and deeper until eventually someone is killed. Then they ease off for a while. But just for a short while."

Michael Critchon-Todd, head of the newly-formed British divers association, said only far tougher safety requirements will improve the quality of men hired by the diving firms.

"Some divers are totally inadequate," he said. "They are out there unable, many of them, to handle underwater equipment properly and are putting their lives at risk and also those of men who are professionals.

"In addition many of them feel under pressure from the oil companies to go down when conditions are bad. Some companies are good but the majority are ruthless."

Adding to the problem is the lack of medical experts in the fields of compression, decompression and illnesses caused by deep-sea diving. There are probably not more than a dozen such specialists in the world, medical sources say.

The British medical journal, Pulse, says that more than eight hours spent below 200 feet makes a diver susceptible to aseptic necrosis, a chronic weakness of the bones which causes crippling. Many divers are haunted by the fear that their work will produce some form of bone cancer. There is also great difficulty getting doctors to the scene of accidents quickly.

Ken Beck, operations manager of Oceaneering, one of the biggest diving companies here, said: "Deep diving started as recently as 1966 and it's just too early to say what its long-term effects will be."

Beck has reason for concern. After 14 years of diving he got an air bubble in his inner ear while working below 400 feet. "It got so that I couldn't even keep my balance, especially in the dark."

Wardens Battle Poachers

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotia game wardens wage a "battle of wits" with deer poachers, according to the man who co-ordinates the enforcement of the province's game laws.

Illegal hunting is on the increase, says Fred Sturmy, forester-in charge of special projects for the lands and forests department, and public co-operation is the main key to eradicating this threat to the deer population.

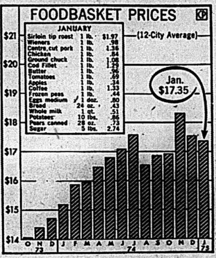
Mr. Sturmy says public opinion appears to be growing more and more adverse towards the offender, especially as people become more aware of the value of wildlife, but the department needs more co-operation.

Illegal hunters were becoming more sophisticated, using two-way radios to avoid and deceive wardens, who had to resort to means of outwitting each innovation.

Mr. Sturmy said the use of a light at night to locate, "freeze" and kill deer still is the most common offence.

The individual who makes a habit of deer-jacking can't continue to escape detection and prosecution.

It was almost inevitable "we'll get him especially if he brags about it."



Food Cheaper

There was a slight drop, due to falling sugar prices, in the cost of the monthly foodbasket, according to a Canadain Press Cross-Canada Survey. The foodbasket — 17 basic food items in the survey — cost $17.35 in January, compared with $17.55 a month earlier. Graph shows national average prices for each item in January, and the average total for each month since October. 1973. (CP Newsmap)

Future of North Sea Oil Beclouded by Controversy

ABERDEEN (CP) — In the wintry mists and lashing gales off Scotland's east coast the development of Britain's richest single resource has become wrapped in a cloud of uncertainty.

North Sea oil, black hope of the British economy, is going through one of its stormiest periods since British Petroleum made the first major offshore find northeast of here four years ago.

Confusion over future government policies, soaring costs, prohibitive interest rates and widely conflicting estimates of potential reserves are troubling most of the 240 petroleum companies here, many of them Canadian-, American-or Australian-owned. Some of them are already planning to leave.

A little less than a year ago the newly-elected Labor government was telling the country North Sea oil would eventually make Britain one of the world's wealthier states.

Denis Healey, the new chancellor of the exchequer, told an enthusiastic Commons that here was the asset against which Britain could borrow all the money it needed abroad to see it through its present crisis. Prime Minister Harold Wilson added his pledge that the state would take a fair share of all the enormous profits to be made.

But suddenly those profits no longer hold so much promise and the real problems of getting North Sea oil ashore are being seen in a harsh new light.

The public awakening came with a jolt when the huge Burmah Oil firm, Britain's third largest petroleum company and a major North Sea developer, announced it was in serious financial trouble and needed an emergency government rescue operation to save it.

Although Burmah's troubles are not entirely attributable to its North Sea operations, its problems there of liquidity, ready financing and the scale of capital demands undoubtedly reflect the experience of many companies and intensify the nervousness over offshore oil now felt in many parts of the economy.

Exploration, extremely strong in recent years, now appears to be moving into a slower phase of smaller finds and less dramatic success rates—until recently one well in eight compared with one in 15 in most other oil-producing areas.

United Canso Oil and Gas Ltd., a major Canadian participant in the North Sea, recently announced its cash shortages had become so severe it was being forced to sell off all its interests here.

The tremendous profits from development which were suggested by the quintupling of world oil prices last year have been partially eroded by cost escalation which seems almost out of control and by the prospect that oil prices may fall in the long run, in real if not in absolute terms.

British industry's share in the offshore market for goods and services has improved but earlier hopes that the development might give rise to a major stimulation of the regional and industrial sectors have not been fully realized.

Bankers who were once saying they considered the North Sea as a prime lending area now have to be much more cautious and adding to this source of uncertainty, the government has confused everyone with its proposals for getting a share of the action.

Basically, the government wants 51-per-cent ownership of oil firms in the 12 largest fields. But ministers refuse to spell out whether they will make a cash payment for this stake, whether such a payment would take account of past exploration and development costs or whether they will instead pay a fixed sum to the companies out of future earnings.

Also, a proposed petroleum revenue tax, details of which still are vague, promises to take a hefty chunk of the profits left to the companies after the government becomes a senior partner.

Cowboys Quaff Bourbon In Scotch Whisky Pubs

ABERDEEN (CP) — A lean Texas in stetson and wrangler's boots, a caricature of the lonesome cowboy, props up the bar in what used to be strictly a scotch whisky and haggis pub in the heart of Aberdeen.

At one elbow is a brimming glass of bourbon. At his fingertips is a king-size package of a popular brand of United States cigarettes.

The establishment is called the Tartan Lounge. It might just as well be the Longhorn Saloon. The Americanization of this part of Aberdeen seems complete.

Behind the bar, sweet-faced Suzanne faces her customers, fresh from months of isolation on the oil rigs that proliferate off the Scottish coast in the North Sea.

To a man, they are anxious at least to touch Susie, as she is inevitably known to the Americans. But she's having none of it. By keeping her back firmly against the far edge of the bar, amply stocked with Canadian and American whiskies but with only a few bottles of scotch, she can just evade their grasp.

Her one concession seems to have been permitting the hanging of a cheeky sign on the bulletin board which reads: "Divers do it deeper."

To Suzanne, all North Americans are known as Tex. "Because that's the worst I can call them in public and get away with it," she said. "But for all their bloody money, I can't stand their guts."

"Australians are OK. I can put up with them. And oh, aye, even the Canadians aren't as bad as the Americans but that's probably because there aren't as many of them."

But even Suzanne will acknowledge that the Americans have brought both the best and the worst of themselves to Aberdeen, the jumping-off port for the North Sea oil fields.

The 5,000-odd Americans who actually live in this city of 180,000 seem to be generally regarded as acceptable. Robin-Arthur, an oil company executive from New York, said they are mixing well with the local people.

Roger McCowan, who runs a local automobile dealership said the American executives who have moved into Aberdeen have been a tremendous boost to local business and have provided jobs for thousands of people who would otherwise be in dole queues.

Taxi driver Jeremy Owen agreed that the better-off Americans and Canadians—he, like most other Aberdonians, makes little distinction between the two—are generally subdued and unobstrusive.

But one of them, he said, introduced him to the music of the American country singer Charley Pride and that, as it turns out, was no favor.

Jeremy has become a Pride addict and Charley's tapes play non-stop in his cab 12 hours a day, seven days a week. The trouble is Jeremy can't resist singing along, with the result that he is permanently hoarse and sucking lozenges.

But Suzanne's views are probably most typical of the general feelings of the local people.

"OK," she acknowledged. "If you just want to talk about the rich Americans who live here all the time, I guess they're not bad. The trouble is they can afford to pay so much more for houses and flats than we can that they've driven prices out of sight.

"But it's these louts who go out and work on the rigs, the divers and the construction hands and others that make us hate the whole lot.

"They come back in with so much money they can buy anything and they boast about it. They even buy the girls. I don't know what the prostitutio rate is but it's sure a hell of a lot higher since the foreigners came."

Electronic Reader Devised for Blind

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia professor has developed two machines to bring blind persons into closer contact with the world around them.

Prof. Michael Beddoes of the university's electrical engineering department has produced a talking typewriter, which speaks each letter as the operator types it, and an electronic reader, which gives a blind person access to material not published in braille.

The typewriter's voice, which has a clipped, somewhat mechanical accent, gets information required to make the sounds of 45 letters, numbers and special characters from storage in two inch-square solid-state "chips" similar to those used in computers.

To squeeze in all the information, engineers recorded separate speech sounds and, using a slowed-down playback, simplified and edited the sounds.

If the typist hears himself make an error, he can correct it by pressing two keys on the typewriter, a standard IBM erasing model.

The reader, similar in size and shape to a cassette tape recorder, uses a tiny camera to pick up the image of a printed letter. The image is transmitted to 144 pulsating pins which form the outline of the letter which the operator reads with his finger.

Called an Optacon, short for optic to tactile converter, the machine allows a blind person to read printed material without using braille or relying on outside help.

So far, only a few have been able to take advantage of this new technology as cost prevents it from being accessible to all blind persons.

Mr. Beddoes perfected the talking typewriter two years ago but the system was tied into a medium-sized computer and required a specially designed typewriter. Now the computer has been eliminated and the typewriter is a standard office machine.

But even with these improvements, it still would cost about $3,000. produced in batches of 10.

Further improvements and manufacture in larger batches should reduce the size of the electronics package to that of a pack of cigarettes and the cost to about $2,000.

The Optacons are in the same price range. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind recently purchased five for $18,975.

But some people have already benefited from the machines. Four persons from B.C. have been chosen to do training on the Optacon in Toronto while 13-year-old Karen McDonald, a Grade 8 student, will receive training in Vancouver.

The machines are expected to lead to others. Mr. Beddoes said his lab is thinking about building a talking cash register for use in stores.

Bemis Wants Provincial Help in Bringing Industry to City

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

City industrial commissioner Fred Bemis wants the provincial government to "recognize Belleville as a designated growth area and to respond with increased financial aid."

Mr. Bemis made the comment Friday at a meeting of Quinte area insurance underwriters in SunLuck Gardens.

Recapping city growth in recent years, Mr. Bemis said the city's 1974 record of eight new idustries is "unbelievable — due mostly to the foresight of city councils."

He pointed to the city's active land banking in past years that left highway frontage property in the north end of the city open for industrial development.

Mr. Bemis intimated that a number of companies currently are taking a seriuos look at the city as a possible site. He said he is "optimistic" about some new companies for the city this year but would not elaborate.

Mr. Bemis said to accommodate large-scale growth, it is necessary to purchase more land and to have it serviced. All of these costs are retrieved at the time of sale to the firm, he said.

"We need increased provincial participation in developing the city's growth potential," said Mr. Bemis He referred to recent announcements from the province that forgiveable loans might soon be available to communities developing industrial land.

"I hope Belleville will qualify for theses loans — I don't see why the city wouldn't," he said following the meeting.

Mr. Bemis said there are no firm guidelines at present but expects ministry leaders to bring some information before the legislature shortly. "Municipal guidelines will then be spelled out," he said.

He referred to 1975 as "the impact year," when Belleville would feel the total affects of the eight industries signed up in 1974.

"As these companies come on stream (full operation), a weekly payroll of some $42,000 will be added to the city," he said.

He said city growth will be a continuing thing because of Belleville's "vital" location in the province.

He said Belleville has access to several forms of transportation "giving city manufacturers high-speed access to the major marketplaces of Toronto and Montreal."

In general, Mr. Bemis said the city's industrial commission is looking for industry that blends "harmoniously and compatably" with both the existing industry and the rest of the community.

"We are also looking for diversification and want to stay away from becoming too top heavy in a particular manufacturing field," he said, pointing to the danger of soft markets in car town Oshawa.

"We are continually trying to broaden the scope of our industrial community," he said.

Province to Examine Credit Union Controls

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Consumers and Commercial Relations Minister Sidney Handleman said Friday he hopes to have new legislation updating provincial government regulations on credit unions approved by the end of June.

The minister met in Belleville with spokesmen for more than 50 credit unions in the Peterborough-Kingston region to discuss the new proposals.

The disucssion was one of 15 such meetings — being held around the province by Mr. Handleman and his aides on the proposed changes to the Credit Unions Act.

In an interview later, he said he hopes to have to legislation ready when the legislature begins its new session March 11 with the approved changes in force by next January.

Credit unions have provided services to the small borrower and depositor when other institutions were less interested, he said in a speech prepared for the closed session.

The movement has grown rapidly in the province — there now are nearly 1,300 with assets of about $2 billion.

Phyllis Cherry treasurer — manager of the biggest such organization in Belleville — the Belleville Community Credit Union, with about 2,000 members and $2 million in assets — estimated there are about 14 such organizations in the Belleville-Trenton district.

Credit unions, which belong to members, usually of common work organization, provide lower interest loans while members also share in profits.

Mr. Handleman is proposing five new changes in legislation — a major one being a government guarantly fund to insure deposits and provide emergency funding to organization needing assistance.

Mrs. Cherry said the insurance proposal was similar to a stabilization fund already available to groups through the Ontario Credit Union League.

Today, Mr. Handleman's group was to discuss the proposals with Ottawa-area groups.

Three Women Jailed On Theft Charges

Three Ohio women charged with the theft of over $4,000 worth of clothing from four city stores were sentenced to jail terms when they appeared in provincial court Friday.

Juanita Ellis, 25 of Cleveland, Ohio was sentenced by Judge J.L. Clendenning to two years less a day while Jackie Moore, 23 and Joanne Mills, 24, both of Columbus, Ohio were sentenced to 18 months indeterminate.

All three had pleaded guilty to six charges each of theft and possession of stolen goods over $200.

The charges resulted from a Jan. 14 incident in which city police arrested three women after a search of their vechile revealed merchandise stolen from four city stores and a store in Kingston.

The women were represented by Rick Ketcheson and David Ross while Crown attorney was Glen Deline.

Meeting the Minister

Consumer and Commercial Relations Minister Sidney Handleman (left) talks details of proposed legislation with William Bryce, president of Kingston's Provincial Civil Service Credit Union, who was among more than 50 spokesmen for credt unions in Belleville Friday. The event, at Four Seasons Hotel, was among regional meetings across province at which minister is gathering local reaction.

Chamber's Image Questioned

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

The Chamber of Commerce in Canada must strive to change its image and the "problem of the general lack of public respect for and understanding of business and business people."

This was the message given by E.R. Olson, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, during a meeting Friday of the Belleville chamber at the Four Seasons Hotel.

"There must be a concerted effort to explain ourselves and business candidly and concisely," said the president.

"It is clear that those who appreciate the benefits of the competive enterprise system, must communicate the many advantages of our market system at least as effectively as our detractors present their case," he advised the groups.

Two Hurt In Crash

WEST LAKE — A Picton woman was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Friday night with injuries received in a one-car collision causing $3,000 damage on West Lake Rd.

Marilyn Conler, 17, of Owen St. received a broken leg, and cuts and bruises when her car left the road, striking a tree in the ditch. Her passenger, Patrick Munings, 22, of Picton received lacerations and bruises.

The accident occured at 10:25 p.m. on the West Lake Rd. about four miles south of Bloomfield.

Snowmobile Hits Tree

REDNERSVILLE — Two Prince Edward snowmobilers were injured early today in an accident on the Bay of Quinte about one mile west of Rednersville.

Randolph Haggarty, 21, of RR 1, Carrying Place was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with a broken collarbone and minor head injuries after his snowmobile struck a tree jutting into the bay.

His passenger Atta Berg, 17, of RR1, Carrying Place was treated at hospital for minor injuries and released.

Picton Firm Lays Off 85

PICTON — Proctor-Lewyt Division of SCM (Canada) Ltd. will shut down February 28 for a four-to six-week period.

Reason for the layoff, the second in three months, is due to a surplus of inventory and slow sales, said plant manager J.W. Stewart.

A total of 85 employees will be affected by the temporary shutdown.

The Picton plant employs 105 persons.

Educators Urged to Teach At Students' Ability Levels

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Separate school teachers gathered from across Prince Edward and Hastings Counties Friday to gain further insight into the unique problems of teaching the handicapped and the gifted student.

The seminar is one of a series of meetings sponsored this year by the separate school board designed as professional development for area educators.

The seminar began early Friday with opening remarks by school board education superintendent D.S. O'Sullivan followed by a seminar introduction by Dr. E.B. Conn of Belleville General Hospital.

The morning session centered on pressurers and possiblilities involved with teaching the handicapped learner — a session marked with presentations by Diana Savage, a teacher of the deaf at Sir James Whitney School (OSD) and Lilly Cheng, speech pathologist from BGH.

Also included was a discussion between teachers and principals of area schools.

The afternoon agenda moved to a special presentation by Carleton Board of Education designed towards the gifted student.

Each presentation, for both the handicapped and the gifted student, was designed to impress on teachers that equal care is needed for both students.

In much the same manner that the gifted student loses interest in classroom activities which move too slowly, the handicapped learner will also become frustrated at not being able to maintain the pace of his supposed peers, teachers were told.

Several speakers urged teachers to "teach the child at his or her level of ability and not at the average level of the class."

"While a Grade 6 student might need to go back to Grade four spellers to brush up, the gifted student might need enriched class programming to maintain his interest," a seminar spokesman said.

Committee Offers Pool Supervision

PICTON — Picton's recreation and parks committee has agreed to take over operation ahd management of a community swimming pool subject to town council's approval says Picton deputy-reeve Larry Richardson.

Deputy-reeve Richardson noted the town would require the backing of surrounding municipalities to operate the pool on a cost-sharing basis.

The deputy-reeve added the swimming pool must be paid ward swimming pool committee before the recreation department would take over operation and management.

He said a motion by the recreation committee states it will take over the operation of the pool with the main goal being to place a municipality fully behind the project.

"We have gone about as far as we can go," observed the deputy-reeve referring to the town's participation in supporting a community pool.

Outcome of OFY Grants Expected in Two Months

TRENTON — In less than two months, Quinte youth who have applied for Opportunity for Youth (OFY) grants will know if they will have jobs during a part of this summer.

On that date, Manpower and Immigration minister Robert Andras will annouce the disposal of $27.5-million in federal funds to various projects across Canada.

Of that sum, $8-million will pay for projects in Ontario, but precisely the amount allotted for the counties in the Quinte area is not yet known.

Mary Ellen Marus, an OFY project officer, said in an interview from Kingston Friday that the federal government has not yet broken down the allocations to the county level.

As yet, said Ms. Marus, it is not known how many students from age 16 to 25 have applied for grants from this area.

Cheques Delivered

James Valladares, Workmen's Compensation Board auditor, works on a pile of disability pension and compensation cheques at board emergency location in Room 214 of the Hotel Quinte. He will remain to serve Hastings and Prince Edward counties until the mail disruption in Toronto is settled.

Emergency Office Set Up For Disability Cheques

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The emergency location of the Workmen's Compensation Board here has been swamped with useless telephone inquiries about other government cheques such as old age pension and guaranteed income.

And that has kept board auditor James Valladares hopping as he attempts to accomplish the work for which he was sent to Belleville — that of distributing board disability pension and compensation cheques.

Mr. Valladares' operation is set up in Room 214 of Hotel Quinte to serve Hastings and Prince Edward counties during the current mail disruption in Toronto.

He arrived here Wednesday noon and will continue until the postal situation clears.

Mr. Valladares's problems began with a board advertisement in Thursday's newspaper proclaiming pension and compensation cheques will be dealt with here. However, the word disability was omitted.

He estimated Friday over 75 per cent of calls he has taken have involved other government cheques. He recommended those with such inquiries contact the appropriate government office in the area.

"I get calls as late as 11 o'clock at night," he remarked.

Actual hours of operation are Monday-Friday from 8:30 a.m. — 6 p.m. with a lunch break from 12-1 p.m.

Picton Residents Polled:

Should Old County Home Be Saved?

CONNIE NORTON

"I think they are crazy to tear it down. It could be used as a home for retarded children. It would be an ideal spot.

"That building could be used for many things. Its too nice to tear down," she observed.

MARILYN ST. DENIS

Mrs. St. Denis, a relative newcomer to Prince Edward County said she is unbiased in the question. She did not feel that she could criticize council's decision as she has never visited the old home for the aged and is unfamiliar with its potential.

JACKIE NORTON

"I like to see old buildings stay. I'm sure they could put it to some use.

"There will soon be a need for an addition to the new home for the aged. Why spend a million dollars for a new addition when half a million might renovate the old building?" she asked.

GERALD NELSON

Mr. Nelson supported council's decision to demolish the old home.

He observed that any attempts to renovate the old building could prove quite costly. Also, if allowed to stand, the old building would be an eyesore adjacent to the new home.

EARL GRUBIN

Mr. Grubin noted that originally he felt the home might be preserved for other uses but in recent months he has changed his views.

He suggested that renovations would be expensive and council's decision to demolish the building is wise.

"Its not like Mary Street School where the building still was in very good condition."

"Unless a pivate individual wanted to convert the building to apartments it is better demolished," he said.

Yes, It's Shero, Friends

SLICES — When a typographical error fouled up his column, a former associate of mine would explain to his readers next day that the Gremlins had been at work.

Gremlins or not, there was a flub made here yesterday and it may have left some of you wondering who one of the keynote speakers at that hockey coaches' symposium is.

Philadelphia Flyer coach Fred Shero is the man.

Now, with that cleared up on to new business.

Had another short telephone conversation late yesterday with Tam O'Shanter Hockey School director Gary Green, the fellow promoting the symposium. And it might be well to tell you now that if you're calling Gary and having trouble getting through, be patient. He's already getting some response from this area.

Registration fee for the week-long symposium at the Four Seasons, is $90.

Green says many pro coaches have expressed interest in attending the July 27 to August 2 sessions. Punch Imlach, chief cook and bottle washer in Buffalo, is said to be very keen on the idea.

Turning to the hockey school, weekly fee for day-school participants is $65. Youngsters in this area some under that plan, since they can live at home while taking instruction.

Trouble with naming names when it comes time to hand out accolades, is that too often, a deserving individual is left out.

Add Ken Brooks to the coaching staff of the Belleville Yardmen Minor Midgets who are awaiting their next playoff action after getting by Peterborough.

Ken is known as Punch (Imlach) to co-coach Floyd Crawford who has picked up the nickname Toe (former Montreal Canadiens coach Blake).

"The only similarity between Toe Blake and I is the gum-chewing routine," chuckles Crawford.

Followers of the Gas House Hockey League may be a little confused if they've been watching the standings and the point totals of Belleville Generals and Rollins Lumber in particular.

Here's what happened.

Generals protested to the league executive, following a Monday night loss to Rollins. The executive upheld the protest which claimed that Rollins had a suspended player helping with bench duties during the game. That's a no-no.

But hold the phone.

Apparently, Generals' protest was not lodged strictly according to the letter of the league's laws.

All parties concerned appear to favor the final decision on the matter. The game has been thrown out and will be replayed at a later date.

Generals and Rollins are involved with Chuckwagon Foods in a close battle for second place. So it is definitely an important game at this stage of proceedings.

Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles of Trenton, aiming to pull off three straight Ontario Minor Hockey Association AA championships, can wrap up their first-round series with Kingston Township, at home, Sunday night.

Game time Sunday is 7:15 p.m. Birt's leads the best of seven set 3-1.

Oldest Rink Also the Best

CALGARY (CP) — Prince Edward Island's Wendell MacDonald of Charlottetown culminated a week of excellent shotmaking Friday to breeze by Manitoba 8-6 and win the Canadian Senior Men's curling championship for the second time.

MacDonald, who at 66 was the senior entrant—skipping the rink with the oldest aggregate age—finished with a 9-2 record in the 12-team competition. Using a combination of experience and superb shotmaking, he won one more game than runner-up Saskatchewan which finished at 8-3.

MacDonald won the 1971 title at Halifax following a sudden death playoff against Saskatchewan.

In this year's final MacDonald, a retired radiologist-physician, faced the possibility of another playoff until Manitoba's Lyle Henry blew takeouts with both his rocks in the 10th end of the final to leave the Islanders with a stolen pair.

Morrie Thompson of Saskatoon thrashed Lawrence Carter of Nova Scotia 12-6 and was hoping for a Manitoba victory over P.E.I. to force the sudden-death playoff later Friday. But Henry's missed takeouts, the last one wide-open, gave MacDonald the trophy for the second time.

Curling with MacDonald were third John Squarebriggs, 64, second Irving MacKinnon, 55, and lead Don Hutchison, 52. Squarebriggs was with MacDonald at the 1971 triumph.

Del McIntyre of Alberta and Ken Melvin of New Brunswick were in a third-place tie at seven wins and four losses. McIntyre whipped Melvin 8-4 in the last round.

Seals Upset Bruins 6-4

Suitcase 'Socks' Islanders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

You could call him Gary Six-Pair Smith, except that he may soon add a seventh pair.

Smith, who earned the nickname Suitcase from the days when he played goal for Toronto Maple Leafs and kept a suitcase handy for his frequent trips to the minors, was caught in the act of peeling six pairs of socks off his feet after he stopped 31 shots in a 4-1 Vancouver Canucks victory Friday over New York Islanders.

"I set the NHL record last year by wearing nine pair of socks," Smith said with a sheepish grin, "but now I'm down to six.

"At the start of the year my skates fit me, but now they're miles too big and I could go to seven pair."

As long as Smith keeps the puck out of the net—he took a 2.87 goals-against average into Friday's game and his 28 victories and six shutouts are second to Philadelphia's Bernie Parent—the Canucks couldn't care if he played in his bare feet.

The Vancouver victory, also aided by John Gould's three-goal performance, helped the Canucks increase their National Hockey League Smythe Division lead to seven points over Chicago Black Hawks.

In other NHL games Friday, Buffalo Sabres beat Washington Capitals 9-4 and California Seals upset Boston Bruins 6-4.

The Vancouver goalie was busy in the first period when the Islanders came out flying, pouring 15 of their 32 shots at Smith and taking a 1-0 lead on Bob Bourne's 30-foot slapshot at 12:33.

Gould tied the score early in the second period when he steered Mike Robitaille's long shot past Islander goalie Billy Smith, no relation to Gary. The deadlock lasted until 10:23 of the final period when Gould tipped in Bob Dailey's long slap shot.

The NHL sophomore completed his first major league three-goal game by converting a passout from Greg Boddy at 17:25 for his 26th goal of the season. Gerry Meehan's empty net goal finished the scoring at 18:24.

"Credit the first goal to Chris Oddleifson, who got the draw, and Paulin Bordeleau, who passed to Robitaille," Gould said. "On the second one, the credit goes to Oddleifson and Moose Dailey's great shot from the point. On the third one, Greg Boddy did all the work in the corner."

Washington suffered its 49th loss of the season while Buffalo picked up its 37th victory, led by Craig Ramsay's three goals.

Gilbert Perreault added two goals for the Sabres who increased their Adams Division lead to 13 points over Boston.

California rookie Dave Hrechkosy scored his 24th and 25th goals of the season on power plays before the Seals' first sellout crowd of the season.

It was only their 11th sellout in eight years of NHL play and the first time the Seals have won before a full house.

Phil Esposito scored his 53rd goal of the season for Boston and Bobby Orr added his 35th.

Dave McNally Among Missing

DAYTONA Beach, Florida (AP) — Four pitchers, including left-hander Dave McNally, were missing Friday as Montreal Expos' batterymen went through a three-hour workout.

DAVE McNALLY

McNally, acquired from Baltimore Orioles in a five-player trade last December, is unsigned and is reported to be seeking a multi-year contract at $150,000.

Jim Fanning, vice-president and general manager of the Expos, said he has been in daily contact with the pitcher for the last week and said progress is being made in negotiations.

McNally came to Montreal with outfielder Rich Coggins and minor league pitcher Bill Kirkpatrick in exchange for pitcher Mike Torrez and outfielder Ken Singleton. Kirkpatrick, invited to the Expos' camp as a non-roster player, also missed Friday's workout. He also has not signed for 1975.

The other missing pitchers were right-hander Don Stanhouse, who signed after the workout, and left-hander Brian Abraham, reported en route from his home in Biloxi, Miss.

McNally is one of three players on the Expos roster still unsigned. The others are Coggins and infielder Pat Scanlon.

Oilers Keep Striking Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The memory of sellout crowds and a five-game home winning streak appears to have faded fast for Edmonton Oilers.

The World Hockey Association club drew a sellout crowd of 15,326 to the opening of its new arena on Nov. 10 when they started a five-game win streak and showed promise of rising from the Canadian Division cellar after a shaky season start.

Now, three months later, the Oilers have climbed to third place but they are not winning consistently at home or on the road, the crowds are smaller and the club keeps missing chances to gain ground on the division leaders.

A crowd of 10,302 was on hand Friday but the fans made enough noise to let the Oilers know their play in a 4-2 loss to New England Whalers was not appreciated.

In one other WHA game Friday, Indianapolis Racers defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 6-2.

The loss left the Oilers nine points behind second-place Toronto Toros and only one point in front of fourth-place Vancouver and three ahead of last-place Winnipeg.

New England's Wayne Carleton scored two goals in the third period, the second into an empty Edmonton net with five seconds left to play.

Terry Caffery and Tom Webster scored once each for the Whalers who increased their first-place margin in the Eastern Division to 11 points over Cleveland Crusaders.

Tom Gilmore and Tim Sheehy scored for Edmonton.

At Indianapolis, Jim Wiste scored twice to lead the Racers against Minnesota.

Nick Harbaruk, Bill Horton and Kerry Bond added single goals for Indianapolis which still trails the Eastern Division with only 12 wins, but managed to attract a crowd of 11,360.

"There's no doubt who the better team was tonight," said coach Harry Neale of Minnesota.

"They were flying like I've never seen them fly before. It was just a completely ineffective effort by us, and we backed it up by not being very physical. If it wasn't for John Garrett, it would have been a complete rout."

Garrett, returning as Saints' goalie after a two-game rest following 11 straight games, faced 49 shots.

Racers goalie Andy Brown faced 23 shots, only two of which came in the second period when Indianapolis scored three times and had 21 shots on goal.

Toronto Gets 1976 Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League wrapped up its annual meeting Friday and Sam Berger went home angry.

"I think we're dealing with a lot of small minds," said Berger, president of Montreal Alouettes, after the CFL decided to award the 1976 Grey Cup game to Toronto instead of Montreal.

"Having the Cup would have helped us in building Montreal into a good franchise. If they feel we don't need any help, then they're very, very wrong."

The Alouettes have been plagued by poor attendance the last few years and Berger put the club up for sale early last season but later withdrew it when he failed to get bidders to meet his price. The team went on to win the Grey Cup last season.

Gerry Snyder, representing the city of Montreal in the bid for the 1976 game, was more restrained than Berger.

"It would be wrong to say that we aren't disappointed," said Snyder who had tried to pursuade the CFL that Montreal's new Olympic Stadium would be ready for the 1976 game.

"Obviously, I didn't convince the members that the stadium would be completed on time," he said.

The CFL's offer to hold the 1977 Grey Cup game in Montreal did little to mollify Berger and Als general manager Bob Geary.

"No, I'm not appeased," said Geary. "I'm just very disappointed in the managers of this league. Our owner walked out and I don't blame him."

Asked if he thought Toronto would stage a good Grey Cup festival; Geary said: "Toronto will be the same old Toronto. How they could pass up the magnificence of our new stadium, I just don't know."

Next year will be the 40th time the Grey Cup game has been held in Toronto. Montreal has had the game only once, in 1969.

The decision to hold the 1976 game in Toronto came after about three hours of heated debate.

"Usually, it takes us only about five minutes to decide on the Grey Cup host," said CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur.

Gaudaur said several factors influenced the vote for Toronto, including uncertainty over completion of the Montreal stadium.

Snyder said that while the league said it would like to play the 1977 game in Montreal, this was not yet official. "There still has to be a formal agreement arranged with Montreal and the league.'

The 1975 Grey Cup game is scheduled for Calgary on Nov. 23.

Winter Games

Quebec Battles To Hold First

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — The third Canada Winter Games, 11 days of competition in 16 sports, end today with Quebec fighting to protect a seven-point lead over British Columbia to win the team championship.

With all but hockey, boxing, table tennis and figure skating completed, the powerful Quebec team had 183 points. British Columbia was second with 176 and Ontario, which won the 1967 Winter Games in Quebec City and the 1971 edition in Saskatoon, was third with 173.

For host Alberta the most exciting event of the 11 days of competition comes today when Lethbridge Native Sons, the junior B team representing the province in hockey, meets a powerful all-star squad from Nova Scotia for the championship.

A hometown crowd cheered itself hoarse Friday as Alberta held on for a 3-2 victory over Ontario's Oakville Blades in one of the hockey semi-finals. Nova Scotia, rated by some observers as the equal of a junior A team, edged Quebec 5-4 in the other semi-final to set up the confrontation between East and West.

Nova Scotia athletes had something else to cheer about Friday as they watched Graham Eldridge of Windsor, N.S., win the province's first-ever gold medal in Winter Games competition.

He won the middle-heavyweight title in weightlifting with Grant Matthew of Ottawa taking the silver and Andrew Fisher of Nanaimo, B.C., the bronze.

Daniel Robitaille of Elliot Lake, Ont., won a gold in the middleweight class, Jarnail Biln of Campbell River, B.C., earning the silver and Oleh Markiw of Edmonton the bronze.

Bill Samborski, a 285-pounder from Montreal, won the super heavyweight gold with a total of 617 ½ pounds. Jean-Marc Cardinald, 18, of Ottawa, the only other competitor, set three teenage weightlifting records but had to settle for a silver medal.

Quebec won four of the nine weightlifting gold medals but Ontario, with two, finished on top in team standing, B.C., taking 11 points for second and Quebec 10 for third.

Moira McPherson, 15, of Dollard des Ormeaux, Que., won the women's A singles for skaters who have passed their silver medal tests. Second was Nancy Buys, 14, of Mississauga, Ont., and third Lori Anderson, 15, of Red Deer, Alta.

Cori-Jo Petrunik, 12, of Lethbridge and her 15-year-old brother Bill won the B pairs with Lee-Ann Jackson, 12, of Brantford, Ont., and Rodger Collins-Wright, 15, of Cambridge, Ont., second, and Dorothy Miller, 16, and James Downton, 16 of St. John's, Nfld., third.

Quebec picked up its third and fourth gold medals in judo competition and won the team competition while Ontario was second with two golds and B.C. third.

Nicol Minier of Alma, Que., won by a decision over Kevin Edlund of Kenora, Ont., to take the gold in the heavyweight class. Edlund won the silver and Randy Burke of Edmonton took the bronze, forfeiting to Edlund in what would have been the match to determine Minier's final-round opponent.

Pierre Levasseur of Montreal won the over-187-pound title when he threw James Graham of Rainer, Alta. Graham won the silver medal with a decision over Robert Kasuya of Vancouver who took the bronze.

NO U PSET

The bockey semi-finals, played before a sellout crowd of 3,500, were regarded as upsets by some observers but Ontario coach Doug Johnston didn't agree.

After his team defeated Nova Scotia in the final game of division play Thursday, he predicted that the Maritimers would be back for the final. He was right there. Where he was wrong was in predicting his own team would also make the final.

Explaining Ontario's defeat by Alberta, he said "they skated harder than we did."

Joe Meli scored two goals for Alberta and Glen Scheibner got one as the western team led 2-1 after the first period and 3-1 after the second. Ontario goals were by John Holmes and Kevin Reid.

Nova Scotia, the only province without a junior A league, defeated Quebec on a goal by Mickey Henderson at 14:57 of the third period. Henderson, the team captain from Brookfield, scored two others while Charlie Reid of Milford Station and Jim Cumming of Truro got one apiece.

Jean Coutu scored twice for Jets and Dan Chausse and Donald Beauchamp got the others as the Montreal-area team held the lead three times before falling behind for the first time on Henderson's game-winner.

Twenty-two bronze medals were settled in boxing Friday—two in each of the 11 weight classes—with the golds and silvers to be decided today.

CURLING TITLES WON

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) —Rinks skipped by John Bremner of St. Clair Collegiate, Sarnia, and Paula Lyle of St. Thomas Parkside won the Western Ontario Secondary School Association curling championships Friday. Bremner's foursome now will compete in the boys' Ontario championship March 17-19 in Sudbury, while Miss Lyle's rink advances to the girls' provincial inal March 24-25 in London.

Bulls Subdued By Lancers

The Loyalist College Hockey Lancers of the Ontario Colleges Athlectics Association Friday night finished up their regular season but in an unfamiliar style — winning.

The Lancers defeated their rival opponents, the Brockville Brahma Bulls by a 6-4 margin, ending the season for both clubs.

The Lancers did not have one of their better years finishing up on the bottom of the league standings and suffering a coaching switch midway through the year.

Coach Paul Zakos took over the club from Bruce Cameron just after the start of the second semester in January.

In Friday's match, although termed a "nothing game" the action had it's serious moments for both clubs.

The visitors showed a little bit more hustle than the Loyalist squad in the opening frame and before long had compiled a 3-0 lead. John Follet put the home team on the scoreboard late in the period with a well placed shot.

The Lancers appeared more than willing to make a game of it scoring three goals on their first five shots of the second period. Paul Wartman, Bernie Bangay and Bernie Gannon were the marksmen for the winners giving them a 4-3 lead going into the third period.

Jeff Flemming tied the game up midway through the final period for the Bulls who several times threatened to move out in front but thanks to some strong goaltending by Greg Ogden of Loyalist the visitors were unable to make a shot count.

Gannon's second goal of the game came while the Loyalist team was shorthanded and proved to be the winner. Gannon stole the puck from a Brockville defender and walked in all alone on Jeff Brownell who got a piece of the puck but not enough.

With less than a minute remaining and the Lancers still shorthanded Derek Swap broke in on the Brockville netminder and a shot to the top corner finished the scoring and the season for both clubs.

Rae Robinson had a pair of goals for the losers with Rodger Pankhurst picking up the other in the first period.

Each team was handed a fighting major and Loyalist's Steve Cowan was evicted in the first period for being the third man into a fight.

Nicks Produce With 2 for 3

Nicholson Catholic College junior and senior basketball teams each hit for a point total of 78 as they whipped Napanee and District Secondary School (NDSS) squads Friday in Bay of Quinte High School Basketball League play. But the Nicholson midget team was not as forunate.

The Senior Nicks, held to a 12-12 tie in the first quarter, moved into high gear after that and it was 78-45 a the final whistle. Jeff Boyle's 23 points paved the way. Dale Wilson threw in 18; Bruce Collins had 12 and Dave Holland, 10.

Tops for NDSS was Larry Thompson with 16 points. Junior call-up John Paquette hooped 11.

In the junior contest, Nicks held a wide margin in each quarter while piling up the points in their 78-40 romp. Martin Seemungal found the mark for 16 pints; Steve Dolan had 15, and Paul McAlpine, 14. Dan Hunt's 11 points led the losers.

Napanee's midget club had things pretty much its own way while chalking up a 73-57 win.

CAREER IN DOUBT

MIAMI (AP) — Circle Home, one of North America's top three-year-olds, may be at the end of his career after breaking down while winning a feature race at Hialeah Park. The colt pulled the suspensories in his left hind leg Thursday. Trainer Woody Stephens said the horse will be out at least six weeks and "may not make it back to the races at all."

Vancouver Loses Old Landmark

VANCOUVER (CP) — The never-ending struggle to tear down the old and replace it with something bigger and more profitable has struck another Vancouver landmark.

The Capitol Theatre, a familiar edifice on Granville Street's Theatre Row since March 12, 1921, is being transformed into a new structure which will include two escalators and an elevator for patrons in wheelchairs. Six theatres will be ranged on three levels to accommodate 3,000 patrons.

Doug Gow, vice-president of western operations for Famous Players, said plans for the project are not yet complete but the company hopes to preserve as much as possible of the original main concourse.

Only the main auditorium of the old Capitol is being demolished.

Seats were being torn out of the disused balcony even before the last show ran its course. The theatre that opened with The Love Special closed with The Spectre of Edgar Allen Poe.

Then a 4,500-pound breaking ball and 12 wreckers began performing their act.

It was no ordinary wrecking job—the crew was dealing with a piece of art.

"There is no wood in that ceiling and roof," said Jack Olar, one of the partners in the wrecking company. "It's all wire, mesh, steel and plaster—that's quite a feat to have the ceiling all suspended from wire."

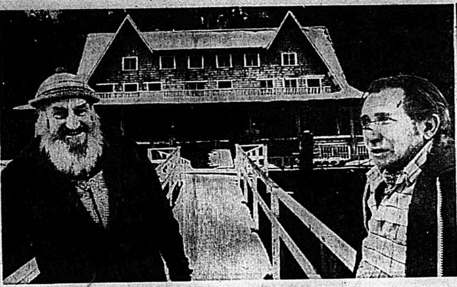
The theatre, he said, was built like a bridge, with support pillars forming the anchor. The outside walls were not bearing-walls.

Remains of the theatre will rest in many places when the demolition crew has finished its job. The Centennial Museum will get plaster decoration from the tops of two pillars. Facing bricks, carpeting, ornamental iron work, stairway rails, light fixtures and steel trusses will be sold.

And sometime next fall it will only be a memory as thousands file into the new structure to eat their popcorn and let the show continue.

Double-Cheque

BRISTOL, England (CP) — Avon County Council workers have staged a temporary strike to underline their displeasure with a sometimes over-generous computer. Some caretakers have received weekly cheques of more than £3,000 ($6,900) — but others were under-paid and some got no pay at all. A council spokesman put it down to "teething troubles" and said things would be straightened out soon.



Inn Being Restored

Ken Warren, (left) a retired farmer and Tony Casono, a former bulldozer operator and contractor, stand in front of the Swiss-style, 40-room resort at Indian Arm near Vancouver, which they are restoring. Built in 1909, by a German financier, the Wigwan Inn fell into dispute in 1962 when it was discovered it was being used as a casino for illegal gambling. (CP Photo)

Victoria Next to Heaven As Retirement Haven

VICTORIA (CP) — "There were two attractive places. One was heaven and one was Victoria."

Archie Lashmar, 72, who chose Victoria, is one of many retired RCMP officers living here who have spent most of their working years travelling about the country.

"Besides, Victoria's a comfortable place for an old blister like me," he said.

Jim Campbell, chairman of the Capital Regional District, agrees that the Victoria area may be the closest thing to heaven the world has to offer.

"Sociologically and climatically, the southwest corner of British Columbia is the ideal place in the world," said Mr. Campbell.

There is no need to encourage people to retire here because it is easy and natural, he said, adding that retired people bring the area no great advantages or disadvantages.

He said there has been a recent slowdown in the influx of retired people to the area because the provincial government has been hiring many young people, putting considerable strain on the city's housing.

But the Greater Victoria area and the nearby Gulf Islands "maintain a relatively slower pace," he said, and "there's not as much energetic type social activity."

The old story that Victoria is a city where 65-year-old Prairie farmers go to live with their parents isn't far wrong.

A capital regional planning board study says 41 per cent of the retired newcomers came from Manitoba and points west but only eight per cent are from farms or small towns.

The city has 38,000 people over the age of 65—17.5 per cent of Victoria's population. For all Canada, reitrement-age people form eight per cent of the population.

Many retired Canadians who don't settle in Victoria at least make it to the West Coast where the Canadian census shows Vancouver has the second highest percentage of people over 65 at 10.1 per cent.

Coastal communities may hold some special attraction for the retired—St. John's, Nfld., has Canada's third-highest retirement-age population, with 9.9 per cent.

Halifax however, is only a notch higher than Calgary, which at 6.2 per cent has the nation's lowest proportion of retired population.

Of nine major Canadian cities examined London, Ont., and Saint John, N.B., tied with 8.7 per cent; Regina was a tenth of a percentage point behind both Hamilton, Ont., and Toronto with 8.2; Montreal's 6.9 was a tenth of a point behind Ottawa; and Kingston, Ont., and Quebec City were even with 6.5 per cent.

Railroaders Speak Language of Their Own

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — "Hey, pinhead, get the baby-lifter and snake and ask the rawhider to rabbit the kettle."

That's probably gobbledegook to you. And it's gobbledegook to any railroad newcomer who steps into the yard without doing homework on the lingo veterans use.

Some might take it more personally than others. For instance, an aspiring locomotive engineer had better get used to being called "hog head," said a spokesman for Burlington Northern, Inc.

The earthy railroad business has acquired a language of its own. Old-timers could chant hundreds of word-symbols in railroad jargon.

Some of them have passed from the scene with the evolution of the "Iron Horse" — a term, incidentally, that the railroad men leave to the romanticists when talking about locomotives.

Here's a sample of what the yardmen might spout:

Air Monkey: Air brake repairperson.

Battleship: Locomotive, particularly a large one.

Cornfield meet: Head-on crash of two trains on the main track.

Dog Catchers: Crew relieving another

Deadhead: Employee riding on company pass on company business.

Gandy dancer: Track laborer.

Goat: Yard engine.

Highball artist: Engineer noted for fast runs.

Lightning slinger: Telegraph operator.

Lizard scorcher: Cook.

Master maniac: Master mechanic

Seashore: Sand.

Smart alec or swell head: Conductor.

The caboose is kicked around more often than any other type of equipment when railroad men talk their own language.

It's variously referred to as: Bouncer, bed house, chariot, clown wagon, crib, crummy, hack, hay wagon, hearse, palace, parlor, saloon, shanty.

Oh, yes, you're still waiting for a translation of the jargon in the first paragraph. Well, it means: "Hey, new brakeman, get the passenger brakeman and switchman and ask the conductor to derail the locomotive."

Cute Puppies

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — There's more than one way to skin a cat, judging by this advertisement that appeared in a St. John's paper recently: "Cute little puppies for sale; mother is a poodle, father a playboy."

Old Vancouver Area Inn Being Restored

VANCOUVER (CP) — A retired bulldozer operator and his watchman-handyman are rebuilding by hand a 40-room mansion at the end of Indian Arm, about 15 miles northeast of here.

Tony Casano of North Vancouver paid a reported $150,000 for Wigwam Inn, a Swiss-style resort built in 1909 by a German count, and its 155 acres and 6,000 feet of waterfront.

"If that's what they say I paid for it, that's OK with me," Mr. Casano said. "I just want to do a job on the place. It will probably take me three years to do it, but I want to restore the inn to the lovely place it used to be."

He said he plans to hire staff to operate it as a lodge for summer visitors, "but that's a long time in the future."

His helper is Ken Warren, a retired farmer who lives on the property with Buster, his dog.

"Looters and vandals had stripped everything: even the two-by-six beams holding up the roof," Mr. Casano said. "There must be a lot of summer cottages in this area that were built with wood from Wigwam Inn."

The men have hooked up a generator to provide power and they cut their own wood with a portable sawmill.

Mr. Casano returns to his home each evening, but Mr. Warren lives on the property, writing poetry in his spare time.

An enormous fireplace still stands in the great entrance hall and kitchen floor tiles are intact. The original coal stove still occupies the whole of one 10-foot wall.

On each of the two upper floors new balconies have been built. Mr. Casano plans to turn one huge room on the third floor, stretching across half the front of the building, into a honeymoon suite.

Visitors at the inn have included John D. Rockefeller and Jacob Astor. But in 1962 the RCMP raided the building and arrested 15 persons for illegal gambling. The inn passed into receivership and looters moved in the next year.

For the next five years the inn was a ruin, with a crumbling roof, broken floors and doorless and windowless walls.

It came to life briefly in 1970 when a Hollywood film crew choose it as the setting for a movie called The Grove, starring Robert Culp.

The film was never released and the inn sank back into oblivion until Mr. Casano came along two years later.

Never Argue With Computer

OTTAWA (CP) — Never argue with a computer. Just give it what it wants.

Consumer Affairs Bulletin No. 9 reports that a farmer received a computer statement showing an unpaid balance of $000 Noting that he owed nothing, he threw the statement away.

Identical statements came in for the next three months, followed by a registered letter saying his account would be turned over to a collection agency if no payment was received.

The farmer mailed off a cheque for $000. A few days later, the computer wrote to thank him for full payment.

WE SALUTE THE BOY SCOUTS and GIRL GUIDES

Scouting's 65th Anniversary

SCOUT GUIDE WEEK

This week, celebrating the birthdays of both Lord and Lady Baden-Powell, the founders of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide organization, is known as Scout-Guide Week. The scouts are proud of their record and justifiably so. Since its founding, the organization has helped Canadian boys become men, through its program of building character and providing wholesome activities for growing youngsters. We salute an outstanding group of people.

Principles . . .

To Scouting, principles are "fundamental truths or sources of action-based tenets."

- Belief in God and the positive application of one's religious beliefs in everyday life.
- Closely related and arising from this belief is respect for one's fellow man. The recognition that all are born free and equal in dignity and rights, no matter what their country, class, color or creed. That for life to be full, man must give of himself to those around him to help and be helped. That the peace of the world lies in developing better understanding between people.
- Development and care for one's self to the best of one's ability.

Through developing his potential, a person is better able to enjoy life and bring happiness to others.

These principles form the basis for the code of behaviour of Scouts throughout the world. From the above evolved the following:

"Scouting is founded on the priciples that man must to the best of his ability . . .

—love and serve God.

—respect and act in accordance with the human dignity and rights of individuals.

—recognize the obligation on himself to develop and maintain his potential."

These principles are the basis for specific codes of behaviours (promises) for each program.

SCOUTING SERVES CANADA

— through four programs designed to help prepare young Canadians to take part in the present and future of their country. Since its beginnings in the early years of this century, Scouting has served and influenced millions of Canadians. Today in every province, as well as the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and the Arctic, over 300,000 Canadian boys and adults are actively involved in the programs of the Boy Scouts of Canada. Scouting came to Canada shortly after its introduction in England in 1907. The Scout program, founded by Rober S. S. Baden-Powell and based on his book, Scouting for Boys, was an immediate success and growth in Canada, as well as in every part of the world, was rapid. Younger boys, anxious to get into Scouts, brought about the Wolf Cub program in 1916, and in 1917 the Rover Scout program for young men was initiated. A fourth program, Venturing was introduced in 1966 for young men between Boy Scout and Rover Scout age. These programs are kept up-to-date and continue to serve the needs of Canadian boys by constant review and updating.

THE AIM OF SCOUTING

The aim of Scouting is a statement of the purpose of the organization — it is Scouting's reason for being.

"The aim of Boy Scouts of Canada is to help boys, youth and young men develop as resourceful and responsible members of the community by providing opportunities and guidance for their mental, physical, social and spiritual development."

This statement expresses Scouting's concern for the whole person. It does not include methods — these are covered separately in the objectives and operating policies of each program.

OPERATING POLICIES . . .

There are a number of distinctive characteristics which are common to the operation of all sections of Boy Scouts of Canada — these are stated as operating policies:

- Membership is voluntary and open to all boys, youths and young men, who will endeavour to live by the promise and law of their section.
- Membership involves participation in small groups, who with adult help and guidance, operate so as to achieve maximum self-management and shared responsibility.
- Each program section has stated objectives suited to the contemporary needs of the age group served.
- The program content of each section is to be adapted to meet the specific needs and interests of any paricular group.
- Boy Scouts of Canada work co-operatively with other organizations in serving the community.
- Programs are made available to boys through the operation of program sections which may be sponsored by institutions or may be operated by groups of citizens, or, alternatively, in the Venturer and Rover sections may be operated by the youth members and adult leaders.

Natural Gas Becomes Hot Market Commodity

CALGARY (CP) — Natural gas—once "worth only a little more than air," as J. K. Jamieson, Canadian-born chairman of Exxon Corp. put it—now is one of the hottest market commodities and political weapons in Canada.

The wellhead price paid to Alberta producers was as low as 14 cents per thousand cubic feet as recently as two years ago. Now petroleum industry sources say 90 cents will be the average price in 1975.

The British Columbia government, through its B.C. Petroleum Corp. (BCPC), is already selling natural gas at $1—after buying it from producers at wellhead prices averaging 33 cents.

Ottawa increased the price of gas exported to the United States to $1 from 60 cents, effective Jan. 1.

Despite these developments, industry sources maintain that natural gas has a long way to go before reaching its "true commodity value."

The Canadian Petroleum Association (CPA) says that the true commodity value of natural gas—based on equivalent thermal power of crude oil at current world prices—is in the region of $1.50 per thousand cubic feet.

The CPA, in a submission to the federal government earlier this year, said Canada faces a natural gas shortage before the end of the decade.

Gas from Canada's frontier areas, including the Mackenzie Delta, Arctic islands and East Coast offshore, can be developed only at world-level prices, say companies operating in these areas.

The Alberta Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB) says coal gasification to produce synthetic gas from coal will become economically viable in the mid-1980s, when it competes with the frontier gas.

The industry says Canada has no physical shortage of natural gas or any other energy resources. The problem is one of politics and economics.

Scotty Cameron, general manager of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, says the best thing government can do to ensure Canada's continuing energy self-sufficiency is to provide industry with profit incentives.

The ERCB says Alberta's own needs of natural gas and other energy resources are growing, mainly because of the Lougheed government's commitment to establish a world-scale petrochemical industry in the province.

Premier Lougheed says instead of exporting a natural resource in its raw form, Alberta should keep as much of it as possible and export finished products to create jobs and retain revenues.

This strategy is reflected in an ERCB report which estimates Alberta's own energy requirements for the next 30 years at the equivalent of 86 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

This almost doubles the previous forecast, prepared only a year ago, which set total requirements for a 30-year period at 44 trillion cubic feet.

Of significance is the increase in the portion marked for industrial use. In the new forecast, 50 trillion cubic feet is for industrial use, compared with 14 trillion cubic feet in the previous forecast.

Board chairman George Govier says the increased estimate of Alberta's needs does not change the total supply-and-demand situation in Canada—only that demands previously forecast to come from outside the province now are treated as Alberta's requirements.

To illustrate this point, instead of exporting natural gas to Ontario for use as feedstock by the petrochemical industry there which would ship finished product back to Alberta, the Lougheed government wants it the other way round.

Mr. Lougheed said Alberta has less than 10 years to set up an industrial base that will be here to stay after its energy resources are gone. Ontario now has 52 per cent of Canada's manufacturing activity, compared with four per cent in Alberta.

Ontario has taken legal steps to challenge Alberta's moves. A test case was the Consolidated Natural Gas Co. (CNG) hearing before the ERCB in 1973.

Ontario Hydro and the Ontario attorney-general's department said the board which was re-examining a CNG permit to export 125 billion cubic feet of gas to Ontario, had no jurisdiction to do so.

CNG had earlier obtained approval from the board to export the gas to the U.S., but the National Energy Board (NEB) refused to issue an international export permit.

Ontario lawyers said the federal government has exclusive jurisdiction to regulate interprovincial trade and commerce and Alberta acted unconstitutionally in holding the hearing.

In the CNG case, the ERCB allowed the gas to go to Ontario on the basis that it was surplus to Alberta requirements but the constitutional issue remained unresolved.

The Alberta government wants to break the monopoly of TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. (TCPL) of Toronto, which buys most of the Alberta gas and resells it to utility companies in Central Canada.

Toward this end, Pan-Alberta Gas Ltd., owned 50 per cent by the Alberta Energy Co. and 50 per cent by Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. (AGTL), was created.

Pan-Alberta achieved its first major breakthrough in early 1974 when it reached a deal directly with Gaz Metropolitain Inc. of Montreal, bypassing TCPL, to deliver 4.3 trillion cubic feet of Alberta gas to Quebec between 1974 and 2000, a move not well-received in Ontario.

Quebec, though a net energy - importing province like Ontario, views the matter in a different light.

Guy Saint-Pierre, minister of trade and commerce, says while the producing provinces should display "decency" in not overcharging fellow-provinces, Quebec supports Alberta's desire to gain greater control over its natural resources.

John Ballem, counsel for the CPA, said the gas battle among Alberta, Ontario and Ottawa will intensify.

BIRTHS

MEEKS — Phil and Sue are pleased to announce the arrival of their daughter Amy Leigh on Sunday, February 16th, 1975. Weight 7 lbs. 13½ ozs. at Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Vaughn and Dr. O'Boyle, Kelly and the OBS staff.

IN MEMORIAM

DAINARD — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Alva Dainard who passed away Feb. 22, 1970.

It seems so strange that those we need,
And those we love the best,
Are just the ones God called away,
And took them home to rest.
But every time we think of Dad,
We seem to hear God say,
Have faith and trust my promise,
You'll meet again some day.

—Sadly missed by his loving wife Eva and son and daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

WILSON — In loving memory of my dear wife Norma Margaret Wilson.

No morning dawns, no night returns,
But that I think of you.
Those left behind are very good,
But none replaces you.
Many a silent tear is shed.
When I am all alone.
The one I loved so very much,
The one I called my own.

—Allan H. Wilson.

CARDS OF THANKS

To Dr. Fisher, nurses, orderlies and staff of the Belleville General Hospital I would like to express my sincere thanks for excellent care given me while a patient there. Also to my friends, neighbors and relatives for visits, cards, gifts and phone calls. Your kind thoughts were very much appreciated.
Ron Deshane.

The family of the late William Francis Dunlay wish to express their sincere appreciation to their kind neighbors, friends and relatives for their expressions of sympathy. Mass cards, floral tributes and many acts of kindness, in the recent loss of a dear husband and father. A special thank you to Rev. Ken Stitt for his comforting messages. Also thanks to Dr. Hui, Dr. Loudon and the hospital staff on the seventh level for their kind care during his brief illness and to the O'Brien - Steele Funeral Home for their thoughtfulness and kindness.

The Ghost in The Bishop's House

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT
Copyright 1975, Toronto Sun Syndicate

Those unbidden guests called ghosts may turn up anywhere, it seems. Even in a bishop's house.

England's present Lord Bishop of Southwark, Dr. Mervyn Stockwood, is an Anglican prelate who believes in communication with the dead. He has been outspoken in his support of spirit mediums.

So far as I know, the bishop's official residence, which is in St. George's Rd., London, is not presently haunted. But 60 years ago it apparently was.

The date was December 3, 1908. An Anglican priest, Rev. Thomas Colson, was living in the episcopal house, a large, rambling Victorian structure. He and the bishop were alone in the place except for several servants.

The two men dined together in the evening and then the bishop retired and Father Colson went to his own room on the third floor.

About 6:30 the next morning — he was sure of the time because he had just looked at the clock — Colson got up and proceeded to the bathroom on the second floor. As he descended the stairs, he saw an elderly man standing at the foot of them.

A stranger to Father Colson, the man wore a black cassock like a cleric's. He looked at Colson in an inquiring way, his head on one side, then suddenly vanished.

Colson thought he must have stepped into a hallway but a search failed to show any trace of the stranger.

At breakfast, Father Colson asked the bishop if anyone else had stayed overnight in the house and was told no.

The bishop then mentioned that a Father Farnham of Bromley, Kent, had died suddenly that morning at 6:30. Since Colson didn't know the deceased the news made little impact on him.

However, six weeks later, Father Colson was appointed to replace the dead priest at Bromley.

One day, shortly after his arrival, he was in the house of a parishioner when his eye was caught by a large, framed photo of an elderly clergyman. The man in the picture was, without doubt, the person Colson had seen in the bishop's house.

"Those portrait is this?" he asked.

"Why don't you know?" was the reply. "That was dear Father Farnham."

Sweating Function To Cut Down Heat

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you give me any information concerning profuse perspiration? I perspire heavily while working, exercising, etc. The condition is worse around my face, especially my forehead—C.F.C.

The skin is an organ of the body whose main function is to protect the complex biological system inside. Part of its protective function is to keep the body's temperature within the relatively narrow margin of heat beyond which death occurs.

Inside, a "chemical furnace" is continually oxidizing materials such as fats and carbohydrates, usually at a temperature of about 98.6 degrees at the skin surface. When activity increases, so does the temperature, and the skin functions as a dissipator of the excess heat through perspiration.

The process is involuntary, with sweat glands imbedded in the outer layer of skin responding to neurological messages.

In some people, these glands seem to be more sensitive than others, with, resulting overproduction and embarrassments. These people often are nervous types, even shy, those who blush easily. Not much can be done to help them. The problem often disappears with maturity and a gain in self-confidence.

Severe localized sweating, particularly in the armpit area, can sometimes be treated surgically, either by a sympathectomy (cutting of nerve trunks to the glands) or excision of the glands by removal of patches of skin where they are located.

Neurosurgeons and plastic surgeons perform such operations.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am only 14-years-old and I have something wrong with my legs. I have to wear pants most of the time because of the awful colors.

They turn purple and red. They generally are very cold below the knees. My legs usually hurt most when it's cold.

My mother has to exercise them for me for a couple of minutes.

Could you tell me what's the matter with me?—Cindy

The mottling (coloring) occurs when the legs are exposed to cold, and this is sually due to spasm of small capillaries (blood vessels) near the surface of the skin. This happens often in young persons and is not serious.

Want a fancy name you can use on your friends when they ask you about it? It's called cutis marmorata.

Play it cool and keep your legs warm.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been advised to try ice packs on the anus daily to reduce swelling from hemorrhoids. What is your advice? I am constipated and have to take a physic every other day.—A.R.

Cold will reduce any swelling to some extent, but it would be an unnecessary discomfort for you. The reduction and relief would be only temporary. Why not do it in comfort, by sitting in a tub of hot water (a sitz bath)? This is just as effective.

It might be time to begin thinking about having the hemorrhoids removed surgically to get rid of the problem entirely.

You did not mention what you use as a physic. Whatever that is, you would be better off getting more permanent relief. Why not try more bulk in your diet or one of the stool softeners?

Fell Into Bucket

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A 13-month-old boy was drowned after he apparently fell into a bucket of water and cleaning fluid, police said. David Parker's parents yanked him from the 16-inch deep bucket filled with water, detergent and bleach, but the infant was dead on arrival at hospital.

Many Minors

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Officials say 85 per cent of United States citizens arrested here on drug offences are under the age of 18. They say only five to 10 per cent of Panamanians arrested for the same offences are minors. An estimated 40,000 U.S. citizens live in the American-controlled Canal Zone which has open borders with Panama.

Showbiz Shorts

SAN JUAN (AP) — Pablo Casal's widow, Martita, and pianist Eugene Istomin have renewed their marriage vows in a Roman Catholic ceremony here. They were wed in a civil service Saturday in New York.

The Sunday evening ceremony was attended by about 200 relatives and friends, including two former governors of Puerto Rico, Luis Munoz Marin and Luis Ferre.

The Istomins met 20 years ago when the young pianist was studying music under Casals, the world-famous cellist who died 14 months ago.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first news came to Jean Renoir from the Fench consulate in New York: "Congratulations on your special award from the Motion Picture Academy."

The illustrious 80-year-old film maker still hasn't received official notice from the aacdemy, but he is enjoying warm messages from friends all over the world.

He will be honored at the 47th awards April 8 with a special Oscar, being cited as "A film maker who has worked with grace, responsibility and enviable competence through silent film, sound film, feature, documentary and television."

Renoir said he is especially pleased because the Oscar signifies "my absorption by the American cinema." He is already the acknowledged master of the French cinema.

His fame rests largely on the films made in the 1920s and 1930s—The Grand Illusion, Rules of the Game, Nana, Madame Bovary, and The Human Beast.

His U.S. films of the 1940s include Swamp Water, This Land is Mine, The Southerner and The Woman on the Beach.

Opening lead — 10 ♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

It has been said, accidents with a hundred honors have killed more bridge players than accidents with autos.

We have not seen the latest statistics but we would be the last ones to dispute the claim.

South had a hundred honors in two suits. If he had forgotten all about them and raised his partner to three notrump, North would have romped home with the rubber.

However, South wanted that extra 100 points and bid four spades. West's 10 of clubs held the first trick. He continued the suit and South ruffed. Three leads drew the trumps, whereupon South led a low diamond. West hopped up with the queen and led a third club. South had to ruff with his last trump. He cashed the good hearts, but had to give East the last two tricks.

South could have had both his honors and the game if he had used a little care. When he got around to leading diamonds he should have led the king, since East was marked with the ace for his opening bid. East could not duck. That would give South his 10 trick. On the other hand, if East took the trick he would have had the Hobson's choice between leading a diamond or a heart, or laying down the ace of clubs and setting up dummy's king.

A — Pass. You are ready for any lead your partner makes and will probably set this contract at least two tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding one notrump your partner has bid two diamonds over West's one heart. What do you do now?

CP News Roundup

Toronto Controls Downtown

TORONTO (CP) — City council has approved a new bylaw to control downtown growth and replace a controversial measure restricting new building heights to 45 feet.

It will give council essentially the same powers it sought under the 45-foot bylaw in the downtown core. The previous bylaw was invalidated by the Ontario Municipal Board Dec. 9.

The new bylaw, approved Thursday, will allow the city to impose height limits in certain areas, limit the size and use of buildings in other areas, control parking facilities and vehicle-access standards, and require that 25 per cent of housing units built downtown contain two or more bedrooms, with the exception of senior-citizen and low-income housing.

Deer Could Starve

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — A ministry of natural resources spokesman says 10,000 white-tailed deer face starvation in deer yards 45 miles southwest of here because heavy snows have trapped them in cover areas away from suitable browse.

Mild weather and rain is needed to melt the snow and free the deer, the spokesman added.

Student Aid Up

TORONTO (CP) — Applications for the Ontario Student Assistance Program (OSAP) have increased 12.7 per cent this year, James Auld, minister of colleges and universities, has announced.

He said in a news release Friday that by the end of January, 90,662 students had applied for financial aid for the 1974-75 academic year, compared with 80,388 for the previous year.

Asbestos Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's building industry is using asbestos which constitutes a danger to the health of workers and the general public, Dr. Morton Shulman said Friday.

Dr. Shulman told a news conference that asbestos, which in anything but small amounts can cause cancer, was being used in joint cement, which in turn is used in the province's dry wall industry.

Asbestos particles in the air after sanding would be breathed in by workers and area residents where construction was taking place, Dr. Shulman, NDP member of the legislature for Toronto High Park said.

Ban on Blue?

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Friday that his department is considering requests to ban the use of blue asbestos.

Mr. Ouellet told Martin Scarborough East) in the Commons that the Hazardous Products Act already has been amended to ban the use of blue asbestos fibres in the manufacture of clothing. However, it still is used in the manufacture of products such as heating pipes.

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — John Pfaff, 20, of nearby Blenheim was sentenced Friday to 12 months definite and six months indeterminate after being convicted of criminal negligence in the deaths last Oct. 31 of three schoolchildren.

The children, members of the same family, were killed when struck by a car driven by Pfaff as they waited for a school bus in front of their home on Highway 40 eight miles south of here.

U.S. Car Prices Cut to Boost Sales

NEW YORK (AP) — More bad news than cars rolled out of Detroit this week. The largest United States auto-makers announced Friday cut prices to get sales moving again.

General Motors Corp., betting that lower prices will appeal more to an economy-minded public than equipment like radial tires, said it will cut prices up to $300 on some smaller cars stripped of some standard equipment when its rebate program ends Feb. 28.

The price cut followed a week of deepening problems for the U.S. auto industry.

Chrysler Corp. reported that a $73.5-million, fourth-quarter loss sent its 1974 annual earnings $52 million into the red—the worst fourth quarter and full year in the company's history.

In a scramble to regain profitability, the company omitted its quarterly dividend and told stockholders more cuts in production and staff and a first-quarter loss are certain.

Ford Motor Co. reported a $51.7-million fourth-quarter loss before a huge tax credit increased earnings to $22.1 million, still 61 per cent below 1973's depressed levels.

Henry Ford, Ford's chairman, told Congress the industry's rebate program did not reduce inventories "as much as we would have liked."

The remaining glut of unsold cars choked production even further. GM said it will close three plants this week, laying off more than 7,000 workers. Chrysler will keep two of its plants closed, and Ford [illegible] will shut down eight assembly lines and four manufacturing facilities, effecting 67,000 of its 177,000 workers.

More bank prime rate cuts during the week brightened the interest picture. Chemical Bank of New York lowered its minimum borrowing fee for big business to 8.5 per cent, a new industry low, and other big banks including Bank of America and First National City Bank followed.

California's major savings and loan associations cut their mortgage rates to nine per cent from 9.25 per cent and 9.5 per cent. It was among the first of the long-term interest rates to begin the decline begun several weeks ago in short-term interest rates such as the prime rate.

'Ehrlichman Denied Bid to Aid Indians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Instead of going to jail for his Watergate conviction, former presidential assistant John Ehrlichman wanted to fight for the rights of impoverished New Mexico Indians.

U.S. District Judge John Sirica turned him down Friday and sentenced him to 2½ to eight years in prison.

Given the same sentence in the Watergate cover-up were H. R. Haldeman and John Mitchell, also former top-level aides of former president Richard Nixon. A fourth former aide, Robert Mardian, received a prison term of 10 months to three years.

Appeals to higher courts, expected to take about two years, are planned by all four men. They remain free pending final rulings.

Before the sentencing, a lawyer proposed that the judge put Ehrlichman to work for eight Indian pueblos with 6,000 people.

"He is one of the few specialists in this country in land-use law," said lawyer Ira Lowe. And, he added, that is precisely the help the Indians need.

As Nixon's top domestic adviser, Ehrlichman worked on Indian affairs. He was influential in winning increased land and money benefits in the Alaska native claims settlement and worked on behalf of the Taos Blue Lake pueblo in New Mexico.

Barbara Kilberg, a former White House aide under Ehrlichman, said in an interview the executive branch had decided the Alaska natives should get no more than three million acres and about $500 million.

She said with Ehrlichman's help, the natives got from the government 40 million acres of land, $2 billion and a percentage royalty on mineral discoveries.

Ehrlichman also was instrumental in helping the Taos Blue Lake pueblo regain 40,000 acres of land which had deep religious significance to their tribe, she said.

Airport On Schedule

MONTREAL (CP) — The new Mirabel international airport being built 35 miles north of Montreal will be completed "almost on schedule" by this April and will be ready for international flights by October, 1975.

Ship Said Unsalvagable

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The Great Lakes ore carrier Roy A. Jodrey, which struck a shoal and sank Nov. 21 in the St. Lawrence River, 22 miles west of here, has been classed as "unsalvagable", a spokesman for the owners, Algoma Central Railway marine division, said Friday.

John Smith said by telephone from Sault, Ste. Marie, Ont., that although several salvage companies have investigated refloating the ship and recovering her 22,000-ton cargo of iron ore pellets, no one considers it feasible.

The 641-foot-long Jodrey is valued at $9.5 million, the ore at more than $400,000.

The vessel sank in a 1,000 foot-wide channel that skirts the southern end of Wellesley Island, New York.

Submerged in 125 to 165 feet of water, she lies on the bottom, 150 feet from shore. Because of the depth and swift currents of the channel, it would cost at least $10 million to recover and repair the ship, Mr. Smith estimated.

The cost of building a new vessel with similar dimensions would only be slightly more, he added.

All 49 crew members escaped the accident without injury.

Reds' Siege Tight

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Khmer Rouge forces tightened their siege of this Cambodian capital with attacks on government positions along the blockaded Mekong River and more rocket attacks on the airfield, military sources said.

The sources said insurgents attacked a string of government enclaves along the Mekong 25 to 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The government force at Peam Raing Lieu, 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, was reported under heavy attack and was in "critical" position, the sources reported.

Brawling Scots Sent Home

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Attorney-General Allan Sullivan said Sunday a work-camp fracas, which led to 27 British tradesmen returning home, appears to have been caused by boredom, personality conflicts and too much alcohol.

Mr. Sullivan said an RCMP investigation into a Friday morning brawl involving Scottish and Canadian workers has produced nothing to form the basis of criminal charges.

Meanwhile Sunday, a union official said Cape Breton workers were being unjustly blamed for the incident and Labor Minister Walter Fitzgerald again called on the unions "to live up to their responsibility for it and discipline anyone involved."

The fracas broke out among workers from the rehabilitation project at the heavy-water plant here.

They were living in bunkhouses in a camp in the bush about two miles from the heavy-water plant. Site officials said project workers began wrecking the bunkhouses of the British workers and fights soon broke out.

Mr. Fitzgerald, who has said he would press an investigation into the matter, said he "wasn't blaming anyone and it is about time the unions lived up to their responsibility."

Before taking his next step, Mr. Fitzgerald said he would wait for Mr. Sullivan's report.

Ed McNeil, president of the Cape Breton Building Trades Council, said the fights involved workers from other parts of Canada as few Cape Bretoners live in the camp.

The British workers, 21 Scots and six Englishmen, arrived back in Britain Sunday after asking to be sent home.

They were recruited by Atlantic Insulation Ltd. after the union was unable to provide needed insulators from within the country within a 48-hour period specified in their collective agreement.

Syria Outlines Terms For Peace with Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The president of Syria says his government will sign a peace treaty if Israel gives up all the territory it captured in the 1967 war and agrees to a Palestinian state made up of the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

It was his strongest statement yet on the possibility of an agreement with Israel.

"This is not propaganda," President Hafez Assad told Newsweek magazine. "We mean it—seriously and explicitly."

Israel, however, has repeatedly rejected those two demands.

The Egyptian magazine Rose al Youssef reports that U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger told Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko he expected to get an agreement next month for another Israeli troop withdrawal in both the Sinai Desert and the Golan Heights front with Syria.

The report says Kissinger and Gromyko agreed to call the Geneva peace conference back into session in April if the withdrawal agreement is reached.

The Israeli foreign ministry said it had not been informed of any such Soviet-United States agreement, and reporters with Kissinger on his recent visit to the Middle East received no indications of Israeli willingness to give up any more Golan Heights territory.

Red Plot Seen to Stir Row About Finances of Queen

LONDON (AP) — A member of Parliament charged today that Communist agents in high places may be trying to undermine Queen Elizabeth's position by stirring up a political row over her finances.

Conservative lawmaker Andrew Bowden was commenting on the leak to the Communist party newspaper of a confidential government document.

The newspaper Morning Star says the document outlines a plan by the last Conservative government to exempt the Queen from proposed regulations requiring disclosure of the names of persons owning more than five per cent of the stock in a corporation.

Bowden demanded a full-scale inquiry into possible Communist infiltration of Whitehall, hub of government operations.

"The Royal Family is a top target for Communists," he said, "and this leak from the department of trade to a Communist newspaper could be part of an extreme left-wing campaign to undermine the sovereign.

"The Communists and a large group of Labor MPs are fundamentally hostile to the institution of the monarchy because they know it is a major symbol of continuity and tradition in British life."

Officials sources did not dispute the authenticity of the document.

The proposal for stock disclosures died when the Conservatives were ousted in the February, 1974, general election. But the publication of the proposal was the first reliable indication that the Queen apparently has sizable stock holdings in one or more companies.

When a government leaves office, its private papers normally are sealed and kept in government vaults. Officials said the Labor government is trying to find out who gave photostats of the documents to The Morning Star.

Anti-monarchists were certain to use the disclosures Wednesday when the Commons debates a government motion to increase the Queen's expense allowance $1 million to a total of $3.36 million a year, mostly to pay the wages of the royal establishment.

Parliamentary sources say the motion stands no chance of defeat as it is supported by nearly all the Conservatives as well as the government.

Blue-collar Strikes Spread

Truce Is Arranged To Deliver Cheques

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strike action by the general labor and trades (GLT) group of the Public Service Alliance (PSAC) was to be stepped up today, John Hart, southern Alberta representative for the alliance, said in an interview Sunday.

He also said walkouts will continue at the main post office and the mail-processing plant in Calgary, at Banff National Park and at the government grain elevators at Lethbridge, Alta., and Calgary.

The PSAC has been holding selective strikes across Canada, disrupting air travel, postal service and grain shipments.

Mediator Tom O'Connor said Friday, after two days of talks ended in Ottawa, that he saw no possibility of a settlement between the federal government and 18,600 blue-collar workers represented by the PSAC.

A union spokesman said the workers, who include postal maintenance men, airport runway cleaners and grain weighers and samplers, are seeking wage parity with workers in similar jobs in the private sector.

Postal service in Toronto, which handles half the country's mail, has been hardest hit by the strike but the PSAC has agreed to a 36-hour truce to allow delivery of 1.5 million government welfare and pension cheques.

William Doherty, strike co-ordinator and union vice-president, said the PSAC "will do all it can" to ensure that federal and provincial social assistance cheques are sorted and distributed "so that none of the recipients suffers any hardship."

The alliance has agreed to remove its picket lines at Toronto's post office from 12:01 a.m. Tuesday until noon Wednesday so mail truck drivers and letter carriers can deliver the cheques on schedule.

During the weekend, thousands of jammed letter boxes were cleared and the mail put into storage after 12 truck drivers resumed mail pickups. Postal officials said the drivers will be recalled today when workers begin sorting the cheques.

Postal services remained normal in Winnipeg and were relatively undisturbed by maintenance worker strikes in Vancouver and Regina.

A spokesman for the Canadian wheat board said more than 14,000 boxcars of export grain are sitting idle in Winnipeg because of the strike. About 25 grain weighers and samplers were on strike in that city.

He said grain shipments at Thunder Bay, Ont., and the West Coast terminals have reached an impasse with at least 28 ships waiting to take on grain in Vancouver harbor.

Grain handlers at government elevators in Edmonton also were on strike.

In British Columbia, workers returned to the job Saturday in the Rogers Pass area which had been closed by snow.

There were reports that no serious inconvenience was caused by maintenance crew pickets at Victoria airport, but airport officials said service might be affected later.

Passengers were taking taxis to the air terminal because drivers for coach lines refused to cross the picket line.

Airport runways in most centres were being cleared of snow and ice after strikes earlier in the week.

The airport at Windsor, Ont., was reopened Sunday after being closed for three days due to fog and picketing. Firefighters had refused to cross picket lines.

Postal workers in Montreal were able to maintain near-normal operations although 75 maintenance workers remained off the job.

In Nova Scotia, John Enman, regional representative of the alliance, said his area was waiting for directions from the national office before picketing would resume.

Meanwhile, Mr. Doherty said mediation talks broke down because government negotiators would not budge from a position that would give the GLT workers total payroll raises of 25.7-per-cent over two years.

A conciliation report prepared by a union nominee had asked for a 20.98-per-cent wage increase in the first year and 12 per cent in the second. The demand is a minimum to which workers expect more to be added.

The current hourly average wage for the blue-collar workers is $4.42.

Mr. Doherty said the strikes may continue for a long time, but added the union would not reveal its strike plans.

St. Pierre-Miquelon General Strike Ended

ST. PIERRE (CP) — Workers in the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon off Newfoundland's south coast returned to their jobs today, ending a two-day general strike.

The 10 unions representing most of the territory's work force agreed to end the strike after learning the contents of French government proposals which appear to contain the financial and political potential to cancel unrest which had led to a recent spate of trouble on the islands.

The general strike, the second this month, was called Friday after it was learned that Paris was not going to comply with repeated demands for the recall of Gov. Jean Cluchard.

However, Senator Albert Pen chairman of the local governing body, the general council, told a public meeting the governor will be "muzzled" and instructed to attend to his own business.

Senator Pen also said the French government would work with the general council to give it the power to oversee administration of the territories' affairs, further cutting into the power of the governor.

Paris would also provide $600,000 for a cost-of-living subsidy for all non-civil service workers and government technical ministries would pay half the cost of economic developments.

The proposals were drawn up in Paris last week at meetings of Olivier Stirn, minister of overseas territories, Senator Pen, who is chairman of the general council, and three council members.

They were presented Sunday to labor officials and later to a public meeting, attended by more than 1,000 of the 6,000 residents.

Senator Pen said at the meeting he was "not coming, as they say in Paris, to make you accept the proposals but to advise you of them and you people will decide."

He also repeated Paris's earlier promise to withdraw 65 special policemen called in by Gov. Cluchard early this month to maintain peace.

The move led to a petition for withdrawal of the police and recall of the governor, and to two general strikes. The governor's office was occupied during a civil servants strike in January.

Six Killed by Tornadoes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least six persons were killed and thousands of homes destroyed in the United States as a series of weekend tornadoes swept through the South and Oklahoma.

Authorities said one person died at Tuscaloosa, Ala., where a tornado struck Sunday. At least 50 persons were injured and hundreds more left homeless, officials said.

Two other twisters touched down in Mississippi, causing extensive property damage in some areas. Heavy winds caused damage to several homes in Mt. Juliett, Tenn., and Burlington, N.C.

Symbol of Spring

The first sign of spring may be a robin for some Prince Edward residents, but for South Marysburg farmer Clare Rorabeck this newborn lamb is the official guarantee of blue skies to come.

Today It's Mainly the Meat Keeps Shepherd in Business

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — From the pages of Mother Goose, "Baa, baa, black sheep" may boast of "three bags full" — but this impressive quota has become meaningless for today's farmer.

Clare Rorabeck, a South Marysburg township sheep farmer, says sheep's wool no longer sells for a good price.

For this reason, and, because of the work involved in sheep raising, a number of Prince Edward farmers are dropping out of the business. Also, coyotes in the county have killed significant numbers of sheep, cutting into profits.

"It's a tedious job," says Mr. Rorabeck.

He noted wool commonly sells for .18 to .25 cents a pound. Wool prices did rise sharply in 1974 when Japan agreed to buy the wool yield here. A price of .77 cents a pound then was recorded. Mr. Rorabeck observes that with today's labor prices of $3 and $4 an hour it is scarcely worthwhile for the farmer to have his sheep sheared.

The sheep farmer must be prepared to staff a maternity ward in his herd, beginning in early January. Mr. Rorabeck's first lambs of 1975 debuted on New Year's Eve and have continued to arrive steadily ever since.

For the past two months he has visited the barn nightly from midnight to the wee hours as his ewes lamb.

The Rorabeck farm has a flock of 71 sheep, 45 of them this year's lambs. Breeds in the flock include North Country Cheviot, Suffolk and Montodale.

This year only four sets of twins were born, an unusual occurence since twinning is common in sheep.

Mr. Rorabeck has four "bottle babies", three of them lambs whose mothers cannot give enough milk for their required nourishment. The other was orphaned.

Regular bottle feedings are necessary to this wooly quartet and add to the chores at lambing time.

The best of the lambs born this year probably will go for slaughter by Easter time says Mr. Rorabeck.

A sheep farmer for many years, Mr. Rorabeck cautions against making pets of baby lambs.

"You can't make pets of sheep or they are all over you," he says.

Despite the admonition, the orphaned lamb being bottle-fed receives extra attention from the farmer.

In one incident, a 22-year-old man was killed by a store attendant armed with a rifle during a holdup at an east-end grocery store Saturday.

Police said an armed man entered the store and robbed it of an undetermined amount of cash. He was shot dead by an armed employee as he attempted to leave.

In a second incident, an unidentified man was killed Saturday night following a running gun battle and chase with police in the city's west end.

Meanwhile, a 20-year-old woman was declared dead on arrival at hospital Saturday after a shooting incident in the west-end St. Henri district.

The city's scouting movement was in the forefront Sunday as Belleville district council held Rededication Day.

Beavers, cubs and scouts gathered at the Legion Hall with their leaders and guests for the afternoon event which included a written message from Lady Baden-Powell to the District Commission.

Bette Fort, co-ordinator of the Beaver Service team in Belleville, showed what is involved in the newest venture in scouting, the beavers, started here only two years ago. A beaver skit showing the ceremonies was part of the program.

Finishing up the day's activities was a campfire, singsong led by Neil Sine and Bob Shaw taking the group through some lively songs.

Earlier in the day, a special service for the scouting movement was held at Christ Church.

The youth was injured police said just minutes after a previous accident involving the collision of a car and a pick-up truck, in which he was a passenger.

County Now Studying Dead Stock Payments

Local governments in Hastings County are being canvassed on the number of compensation claims from farmers who lost livestock to predators in 1974.

The project is a sequel of implied dissatisfaction from county council's ARDA and Tourism committee with new provincial compensation legislation.

The committee told county council recently it has been discussing at "some lengths" the implication of Bill 143 involving both provincial and local governments in predator compensation.

Municipalities pay for losses caused by wild-running dogs. They also make the initial payments for kills by other predators, under Bill 143 and later are refunded by the Provincial government.

"Municipalities are finding that in some cases they are not being reimbursed at all, and when they are, . . . it is after a lengthy period of time," claimed committee chairman Reeve S. J. Carr, of Monteagle.

A meeting of provincial resources cabinet ministers in Belleville last week also saw the same issue raised.

The council committee recommended that a pasture demonstration project in HHuntingdon Township be enlarged to step up information and increase methods to improve pasture farming.

Known as the Pancake Hill Project, the scheme aimed at improving pasturing, has been operated for the last six years by agriculturists in the Hastings Farm Service Club.

Mail Delivery Stopped Until Sidewalks In Recent car-pedestrian accidents on Sidney St. between Baptist Church and Cascade Blvd. has forced the post office to temporarily suspend mail delivery to homes there.

Postmaster Roy Wainwright, said today the suspension, due to hazardous walking conditions, was effective Feb. 24 and will be lifted when the city has installed a sidewalk there.

Mr. Wainwright explained the action resulted from protests by the letter carriers' union following an accident involving two children and "close calls" to one carrier.

"Those two children who got hit up there the other day brought it to a head," he commented.

Mr. Wainwright related prior to that incident, the mail carrier for the area was brushed by a truck one day and almost had his rain cape torn off. On another occasion, he had to leap into the ditch to avoid being hit.

He pointed out last fall the city dug a ditch along the road but could not build the sidewalk until after the winter period. Thre is not even a shoulder on the side of the road to walk on, he added.

In a letter to mail customers, the post office notes the city plans a sidewalk for early spring and mail delivery will resume once work is completed.

A group mail box has been placed in the Parkdale Baptist Church parking lot for the affected residents who will each have a compartment bearing their own house number.

Customers are required to provide their own padlocks for their compartments, says the letter. If they do not wish this service, they may pick up their mail through the general delivery wicket at the main post office by completing a change of address card.

Mr. Wainwright waid he has received only a couple of complaints about the temporary change.

Province Contributes $24,700 for Planning

Hastings County may have been the only Ontario county to receive extra generosity from the provincial government for the local government's planning endeavors.

The province agreed in 1970 to pay 40 per cent of the bill for drafting the county's official plan — now up for senior government approval — and the restricting bylaws needed by member municipalities.

The planning program — and provincial aid — was to last three years, county administrator Carl Bateman told county councillors recently.

The project was completed within the deadline — but the planning consultants still were validly entitled to more remuneration a year later.

Mr. Bateman said he felt this justified extra provincial funds — and went to work with Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, on the issue.

As a result he told council, the provincial has made a $24,700 unconditional grant available.

"I believe we're the only county in the province which has received such generous assistance for its planning involvement," he said.

Harrington Still Critical

The condition of three men injured in an explosion at the Constellation Carpet plant Friday morning remains unchanged.

The nursing office at Hotel Dieu Hospital at Kingston said today Lorenzo Harrington, 50, of RR5, Madoc, remains in critical condition with burns to 75-80 percent of his body.

Archie Chapman, 54, of RR5, Madoc, is in fair condition in the hospital's burn unit with burns to 50 per cent of his body while Alan Merpaw, 24, of Cornwall is in satisfactory condition with burns to 15 per cent of his body.

Jean Guy Massia, 25, of Cornwall died Friday afternoon as a result of burns received to 95 percent of his body in the explosion in the electrical room of the carpet plant, in the city's east end.

A Belleville man, Richard Foran, 21, of Burton St., and Arnold Bell, 46 of Ajax, were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital Friday.

Cars Collide

TWEED — Seven cars were the victims of circumstance Saturday evening when snow blowing off the Tweed-Hungerford arena crushed roofs, hoods and trunks.

An insurance adjustor at the scene estimated the damage at about $1,500. There were no injuries.

Cottage Hit Driver Charged

A Madoc man has been charged with failing to report an accident after hitting a cottage Saturday with a car he later abandoned.

A police spokesman said Donald Armstrong, 22, driver of a car and two other passengers were turning off Moira Lake to get back onto the roadway when the cottage was struck, Feb. 22, at 3 a.m.

Other occupants in the car were John Armstrong, 25, of Belleville and Ralph Bailey of RR3, Madoc.

No estimates of damage were available.

Ban on Turtle Sales Described as 'Stupid'

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Belleville pet shop operators agree that an immediate ban placed by the federal department of agriculture on the importation of turtles for pets is "stupid".

"That's stupid," Carol Sherwood, co-owner of Tropical Gardens Pet Shop on Front St., said. "What they're afraid of is a disease called salmonella. But you can catch that from most pets, even from drinking water."

Health Minister Marc Lalonde said recently in Ottawa "Turtles can be a serious health hazard".

"They frequently carry bacteria that can be easily spread to humans, especially children, when the turtles are handled."

"It's just a panic," said Melba Cailes, manager of Fish and Critters in the east-end plaza. "I've handled turtles thousands of times with no problem. As long as you keep the water clean, you're all right.

"A couple of years back they destroyed thousands of turtles, then changed their minds," Mrs. Sherwood said, and Mrs. Cailes added a ban had been placed on canaries at one time but was lifted when it was discovered they were not dangerous disease carriers.

The new regulations will require import licences for turtles which will be issued only for special ases involving research projects or zoos, the government press release stated.

The agriculture department, which sets regulations for animal imports, has no practical testing procedures for turtles, the statement said.

Most turtles sold in Canada are imported from the United States.

Neither city pet shop operator was concerned about the effect the ban might have on their business. Turtles, they said, are regular sellers but not major items in their businesses.

Salmonella is a disease that produces symptoms similar to food poisoning.

It's not exactly campfire weather but that doesn't mean you can't sit inside where it's nice and warm and still sing camp songs. The 'campfire' in this case was a model electric one but the spirit of the beavers, cubs, scouts and leaders taking part was there nonetheless. It was all part of Rededication Day held at the Legion Hall Sunday.

Farmers Praised for Pure Milk

Five Hastings County dairy farmers were singled out for special mention at the annual meeting of the Hastings County Milk Commitee.

County milk producers were rated over the year for bacteria count, indication of the presence of mastitis and condition of the farm premises.

The top five producers, in alphabetical order, were Elliott Burris, RR1, Madoc; Arthur Hassall, RR2, Stirling; Delbert McComb, RR5, Belleville; Gordon Richardson, RR1, Stirling and Herbert Smith, RR3, Stirling.

In addition, 65 other producers received certificates for meeting high quality requirements. This, the provincial ministry of agriculture and food reports, represents a 50-per-cent increase over the previous year.

N.Z. Connection

When Dave and Maureen Borland — now of Fredericton — left Belleville in 1971 to join the staff of the YMCA in New Plymouth, N.Z., they became the inspiration for twinning of the Y Men's Club in the city "down under" with the one in Belleville.

The club here has fewer than 20 members, but no larger group could have prepared with such enthusiasm and creativity, with the help of members' wives, for the brotherhood and ladies' night which last week brought the two communities into still closer touch.

Posters and flags of New Zealand adorning the walls of the Y's auditorium . . . the presence of a young diplomat from the New Zealand High Commission in Ottawa, Kenneth Graham, and his wife Corrianne . . the presence too of New Plymouth-born Mrs. Alison McCullagh of Belleville . . . an exchange of gifts between Mr. Graham and the local club represented by Cecil Hluser . . . the playing of tape recordings from the New Plymouth club and of Maori music . . . the screening of a film on New Zealand . . . and dinner featuring New Zealand cuisine, all contributed to a notable evening.

Veteran club members present besides Mr. Hluser included president Harry Collins who has retired to Belleville after many years in Quebec, Hugh Watson, an excellent master of ceremonies, and Vernon Weir, the only surviving charter member from the club's inaugural in 1925.

Someone was heard to remark of the youthful second secretary from the High Commission that he had expected someone "about 65 with glasses and grey hair." In any event Mr. Graham proved a representative of quiet dignity with an extensive knowledge of his country's unique identity halfway around the world — a land which despite geographical isolation has become a model of harmonious race relations between white citizens and native Maoris and immigrant Polynesian islanders, has been a pioneer of much of the world's social legislation and was once referred to in Life magazine as a "Lovely Land — Too Far Away."

With Mr. Graham's Indonesia-born Dutch wife, who went to New Zealand with her parents when she was 12, there was a sharing of knowledge of her adopted land. It was Mrs. Graham who filled in some details of New Zealand's health stamps, pointing out that some of the proceeds are devoted to helping underprivileged children.

Rotary's Service

Of even longer duration in the history of service club activity in Belleville is the Rotary Club.

It does not seem possible that five years have elapsed since Rotary celebrated its half-century in this city.

But that's the way it is, and since then Rotary in Belleville has gone from strength to strength, in dedication to community service and in placing of service above self.

It was in 1905 that Paul Harris gathered together a few friends in Chicago and laid the foundations of the great worldwide organization.

This year is the 70th anniversary of Rotary International, which boasts a membership of 708,000 in 15,000 clubs in 150 countries and geographical regions.

The work of Belleville Rotary Club is well known, ranging from the sponsorship of the Science Fair and Hobby Show and the Music Festival to Crippled Children's work (today's meeting is devoted to preparation of fund-raising material for circulation locally) and international student exchanges.

It is work that never stops ,is consistent in its practical concern for human betterment, and reflects the better instincts of mankind amid the changing circumstances of an always uncertain universe.

The service clubs do their job well, and none more so than Rotary whose president here is Bob Graham, of Bell Canada.

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA— They must be leaning on Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras rather, heavily in Cabinet these days.

Ever since his entry into Prime Minister Trudeau's ministerial power circle, out of what must have been personal conviction and principle, he has preserved a careful, almost small "c" conservative image of holding to established values and what some Cabinet "swingers" must consider old-fashioned virtues.

He has supported the work ethic against the erosion of some of his Cabinet colleagues, including the Prime Minister himself, and has reflected an adherence to established standards of conduct.

While others in the ministry have veered leftward, experimenting with socialist policies that sometimes outflank the New Democrats, he has been seen to stand with the "steady-as-you-go," middle-of-the-roaders in the Cabinet such as Finance Minister Turner, Works Minister Drury, Agriculture Minister Whelan and Justice Minister Lang.

In such circumstances, with this background of cautious, conventional performance, some of his recent decisions come as all the more of a surprise.

Take, for instance, the leaking — and such information is not taken off the secret and confidential list without some sort of official 'sanction' — that in his still-delayed Green Paper on immigration, homosexuals, long-banned, may be welcome to enter the country.

The government — and the word has to come from Cabinet — is said by authorities in the Immigration Department to favor removal of restrictions against sexual activity between consenting adults of the same sex.

This was the wording used when the offence of homosexuality was removed from the Criminal Code in the early years of the Trudeau administration.

The Immigration Act at present lists homosexuals, along with prostitutes and procurers, in the prohibited class.

Now, the way the Big Bureaucracy of the feds operates, this could be a "kite" being flown at Cabinet direction to prepare the public for acceptance, or it could have been let fly by Immigration authorities and perhaps even some members of the Cabinet in the hope that taxpayers would shoot it down.

Whatever may have been happening in Cabinet, there has been visual evidence outside the power circle of Mr. Andras being not only under pressure, but harassment.

For among the "protest" groups to picket his Parliament Hill office have been the "Gays of Ottawa."

Their cry from the picket line is that the immigration rule barring homosexuals is "archaic" since the Criminal Code has "legalized" homosexuality.

That Robert Andras could be bending under the pressure must go against what the taxpayers in the last seven years have seen as his strong grain of conventionally accepted behavior.

Odd, too, has been his reversal of his initial position to keep out swarms of Chilean marxists and assorted revolutionaries who fled their country when the Communist government which economically wrecked the nation was purged by the military.

Now, at the request of the United Nations — where the tyranny of the Afro-Asian Third World rules — Canada is to accept 2,000 more fugitive Chileans who fled to other South and Central American republics and demand admittance here.

Some 500 already have been accepted and like the additional 2,000 to come, being "refugees," don't have to qualify under the point system requiring possession of working skills, knowledge of English or French, and at least some education.

The pressured Immigration Minister says that efforts will be made to cull out criminals and terrorists, but adds, that the "political beliefs" of the Chileans won't be scutinized.

This can't be the real Robert Andras, but rather a member of the Cabinet being pressured and pushed around by what has to be the left-leaning majority of the men around Pierre Trudeau.

Get The Picture

Purchasing Power of the Dollar Will be Halved by the Year 1981

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Any hopes for relief from inflation in 1975 are fading fast.

Whatever your views may be on the basic reason for inflation, you are likely to find that it has turned even more unfavorable.

Excessive government spending, for example, is widely held to be the fundamental cause of the erosion of the dollar, because it is growing so rapidly.

This year will be no exception, with federal spending estimates rising to a record $28,242-million. That's 28 per cent higher than the estimates presented to Parliament at this time last year.

The number of jobs in the federal civil service, excluding the armed forces, will rise by five per cent in the fiscal year beginning April 1—or twice the expected rate of growth in employment for the economy as a whole.

(The prime minister's own staff is to be increased by six per cent, to 101 from 95).

The treasury board's latest figure shows that spending by all three levels of government had reached a record 37.6 per cent of gross national product in 1973. With government expenditures rising faster than ever and real economic growth virtually stopped, the current figure would probably be in the order of 40 per cent.

Growth of the money supply, according to one other school of economic thought, is the most basic cause of inflation. When there's too much money around, but not enough goods and services, prices inevitably go up.

If you subscribe to that theory, the outlook is equally bleak. Canada's money supply has been growing rapidly—more than 17 per cent in 1974, and even more rapidly so far this year.

Banks have, of course, been using the extra money to make more loans to all classes of borrowers. For the past three years, outstanding loans have been increasing at between 30 and 25 per cent annually, despite borrowing costs that have been the highest in living memory.

Cutting back on the growth of money supply, however, would lead to unpleasant consequences—such as a temporary increase in unemployment while the economy returns to something approaching equilibrium in supply and demand, and to stable prices.

That's why there is not likely to be much change either in the expansion of money supply nor in the inflation that it feeds.

The labor section is said, by still other people, to set the pattern for inflation, because of big annual wage increases—some automatic, others negotiated—that are independent of labor's productivity.

All indications are that this is going to be another year of record demands by labor. Contracts covering more than two-thirds of Canaada's organized workers will expire this year.

With inflation running at an annual rate of 12 per cent, the goals of union bargainers seem to be three-fold—something to compensation for the inflation that has taken place since the last contract was signed, something to offset the current inflation rate, and something to make up for the inflation that is anticipated between now and expiry of the new contract.

Even if you prefer to put the blame for inflation on other factors—such as the cost of petroleum-based energy or the weakness in exports—everything still points to a continuation of rising prices.

Assuming that the inflation rate is held at its current annual level, consumer prices will double in the next six years—or, conversely, the buying power of your savings, insurance, pension plan and the like will be cut in half by 1981.

Avoiding Accidents in the Home

Royal Bank

The effort involved in making sure of safety, insofar as it can be attained, is a small price to pay. It requires only that we make a careful survey to detect dangerous practices and places and take suitable measures to eliminate or minimize the dangers.

A survey revealed what parts of the home need special attention. It showed the percentage of accidents occurring in certain areas: dining and kitchen quarters 30; living and sleeping quarters 18; porch, yard, etc. 24; stairs 12; bath room 3; cellar 3; hallway 2; garage 1.

Go through your home from top to bottom and list every place and article that is potentially dangerous. Take note of fire hazards, obstacles, electric wires, frayed rugs and torn linoleum, slippery floors, loose scatter rugs, and articles hanging from the ceiling or leaning against walls.

Use your imaginative foresight in this survey. Just because no one has been hurt up to now when he climbed on a rickety stool or crossed a slippery floor is not a good reason for failing to fix these things so that the accident you can imagine happening does not occur. Safety for your family means looking ahead and taking preventive measures.

Once a year inspection and positive action in getting rid of everything that provides a hazard will give you peace of mind.

Falls are among the most common causes of death and injury. Thousands of people are victims of gravity every year. For elderly people falls are often fatal.

Carrying an armful of articles that you cannot see over is a sure way to risk your life. It may be possible to "feel your way" downstairs, but we recall the old song in which the refrain was: "He stepped on a step that wasn't there, and his day's work was done."

Children under five years of age are the victims of falls from windows, porches and stairs. In the age group 5 to 14 years many deaths result from falls in sports and play, from trees and roofs and down steep embankments. In the 15 to 64 age group most falls occur on stairs and steps; many others are from ladders and step stools and boxes. For the over 65 age group, falls on stairs and slippery floors or scatter rugs account for most accidents. Poor lighting contributes to the frequency of falls.

Outside the house the principal dangers are falls from ladders and tripping over branches, hose and toys. There was a bomber pilot who survived an 8,000-foot fall in 1944 without a parachute, and thirty years later fell over a garden hose and broke his leg.

Fires take a big toll of life every year. Statistics show that nearly half of all home fires in Canada are caused by careless smokers. It is 238 years since Benjamin Franklin prepared a paper telling how to avoid starting fires by accident or carelessness, but carelessness is still the prime cause of home fires.

A tour of inspection in your home may give the appearance at a glance of total readiness to deal with a fire: there may be a fire extinguisher on every floor; stairways, halls and doorways may be clear of obstacles; sand and other dry materials may be at hand to deal with electrical fires. But there is much else to consider. Does everyone in the house know the escape routes, how to handle extinguishers effectively, and the telephone number to dial for fire department help?

Approved electrical equipment is safe when installed and properly used. All except the most elementary repairs should be made by professional electricians.

Hospital Youthworkers Missed

JO CARSON
in The Globe and Mail

"Hi," the soft greeting of the Youthworkers at the Toronto General Hospital has been silent since Jan. 31.

They are bitter.

Not for themselves, Mark McGuire said, but because a service is now missing in the hospital and community relationship.

No longer is there a voice at the end of the telephone, 22 hours a day, ready to provide support for some-one in distress.

The Youthworkers was a noble experiment born out of the shock the community felt in 1971 when its young people, suffering from drug abuse, were brought in large numbers to the hospital.

The Addiction Research Foundation and the Ontario Ministry of Health provided funds for a group of youths qualified in counselling to get into the emergency department of the hospital. At least, the Youthworkers could speak the language of the distressed young people.

The experiment worked, in spite of suspicion from some social workers and psychiatric residents, who found it difficult to understand the five young men and women who appeared to operate individually without any direction from a leader.

As the drug crisis abated, the Youthworkers found they had much to offer patients with social problems.

The group provided such services as making a telephone call to make sure that a patient is taking prescribed drugs or has the means to get the prescription filled.

Mr. McGuire said that many people who come to the hospital need a friend. "They are so lonely, they slash their wrists to get some attention."

Jackie Rankine said that women in hospital waiting for an abortion often just need someone to talk to.

The Youthworkers referred to a recent report requested by TGH administration and written by representatives of psychiatry and all mental health disciplines of the hospital, including youthwork and social service.

The report provides data "which show some of the sad deficiencies of our large, modern teaching centres, if not the entire medical scene.

"They demonstrate dramatically how blind the health delivery systems are to psychological-emotional-social functioning; how selective attention is focused on physical signs and symptoms and how the psychological sphere is omitted as incongruent in rendering patient care by those who render care ... the first step toward attempting to solve a problem is to perceive it."

In the way of the Youthworkers program at the TGH is an annual budget of $54,000 which was picked up by the hospital in 1973.

Hospital president J.A. McNab said that abolishing the Youthworkers was "simple arithmetic. There was a necessity to cut 2 per cent from our budget."

West Indian Sportsman Honored

The Christian Science Monitor

Queen Elizabeth's knighting of cricket star Gary Sobers in Barbados is a bright note in a world otherwise largely preoccupied with political crisis and oil.

Mr. Sobers, the popular black West Indian athlete, is only the second person to be publicly knighted by the Queen. The first was Francis Chichester, whose round-the-world voyaging in a small yacht stirred powerful memories among the British of their seagoing past.

The Sobers knighting too has its broader implications. It was coupled with the inclusion of another West Indian black, Dr. David Pitt, in the Prime Minister's honors list. Dr. Pitt, chairman of the Greater London Council, was one of only five to be named life peer on this year's list.

Each of the rural and public schools in the local public school inspectorate will be given a Royal Oak tree to commemorate the signing of the peace, it was decided at the annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society. The trees were bought at the time of the coronation in 1937 but have remained in the nursery since.

Discussing the working out of the new tax of three cents per gallon on gasoline, Premier Ferguson said that the tax would be collected from the first distributor handling the gasoline and eventually, the consumer who used it for purposes other than motor vehicle operation would be able to obtain a rebate by filling out an affidavit provided for. This would relieve from the tax, gasoline used for farm implements, manufacturing and cleaning.

LETTERS

Mailmen, Strikes, and Inflation

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I would like to comment on an article in your newspaper on Feb. 18. In this article it is stated that the letter carriers have rejected a $1.15 an hour wage increase and wish to whaive appointment of a conciliation board so they may strike as soon as possible.

This, to me is very considerate of the union, first of all because they rejected an offer of twice what they should get, and second because they wish to strike as soon as possible in order to put another discomfort on the rest of us Canadians, especially old-age pensioners, the unemployed, the disabled etc., who depend on the mail service (erratic as it is) for their cheques.

Since letter carriers make $4.00 plus per hour for a highly skilled job (you must be able to read, walk and put a letter in its proper recepticle) I think they don't need such a large raise let alone the $2.50 per hour they are asking for.

Perhaps a solution to the problem would be to give them $2.00 an hour more and let them work only three days a week. In this way we could save ourselves some tax dollars and I'm sure householders could live with receiving the mail only every other day and our letter carriers wouldn't have to work so hard except for the small amount of extra mail they would have to carry on the days they work.

Another solution could possibly be to put mail delivery up for tender and I'm sure many people would gladly do it for much less than we now pay for this difficult service.

In any event it looks like the taxpayers, many making much less money than the letter carriers, will end up paying another inflated wage increase to boost the ego of our letter carriers.

Teachers on Alert For Child Beatings

A leaflet headed "Urgent Message" arrived at every school in Hastings county last week.

The leaflet concerns the problem of battered children, and suggests ways teachers and school principals can discover and deal with abuse of children.

As part of a public education program, the Children's Aid Society of Family and Children's Services is distributing the leaflets to be poste in classrooms where students can also read the information.

By knowing what signs to look for, educators can be prepared to assist a child whose parents have abused him or her. The leaflet stresses that by taking action —reporting a child's condition while an injury is still in evidence — a teacher is not jeopardizing the child or himself.

The CAS seldom removes a child from the home where he has been badly treated, more often attempting to find a solution to the problem by working with the entire family. Only if a child is in serious danger is he or she removed and then only with due process of law.

The signs of ill-treatment include continual fatigue, noticeable fear of authority, refusal to participate in gym classes, frequent absences, bruises and burns that appear to be unnaturally caused, or an exceptionally withdrawn and quiet disposition.

The leaflet points out that not all abusive parents are "obviously sadistic". Child battering occurs in homes that are well-to-do, clean, respectable and superficially normal.

The leaflet emphasizes that much of the responsibility for discovery and prevention of child abuse lies with the educators who should be alert to all the signs.

Skiers Active Despite Rain

BATAWA — It wasn't the best weekend for skiing, what with temperatures in the mid to high 40s and large puddles at the base of the Batawa Ski Club's main slope.

Despite the conditions, 48 youngsters persevered. Not everyone managed, however, to last the full 24 hours of the club's first ski-a-thon. In all, 28 finished the event.

By then, the club was an estimated $2,000 richer, and what its president John Cormack said was "a giant step towards building a new trail."

The event was organized to raise money to add another trail to the club's existing two.

Any new trail, club members hope will extend some 1,500 feet down the northeast side of the hill now used by the club.

Overflow Crowd at Frankford Carnival

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — The week-long winter carnival here ended with both a cackle and a bang Saturday.

A cackle, in that one of the closing day's events — the chicken flying contest—proved that chickens can fly, but under noisy protect.

A bang, in that at the closing Queen's Ball, two crowns instead of the usual one were awarded while people were being turned away from the door. Overflow crowds, estimated at 300, filled the village Royal Canadian Legion hall to celebrate the closing of the third annual carnival.

Through a misunderstanding by the judges of the floats in last weekend's parade, an equal number of points were awarded to two of the seen v groups in the carnival.

An almost neck-and-neck competition, friendly but nontheless determined, existed between the Legion and the Lower Trent Fish and Game Club. Both groups received equal points from float judges, and thus, a tie resulted and two queens were named.

Queens of the carnival were Gail Sutton for the Fish and Game Club, and Iona Houlden for the Legion.

Both women also had a hand in the chicken flying contest.

MORE

Over flow Take 2

The "fun-event", as carnival chairman Al Doone called it, was won by the Fish and Game Club's Gail Sutton, no doubt with help from her previous experience with birds.

Mrs. Sutton managed to coax her bird 11-feet 2-inches, a newly established carnival record. The Legion came a poor sixth.

That coaxing took a peculiar form Saturday. Each chicken was placed in a mail-box raised above centre ice at the Frankford arena. A plumber's plunger, fitted into box through a hole in its back, pressed against the feathery end of the chicken.

Competition started simply — the box front was removed and the chicken either soared upward or plunged downward under a brief, stiff thrust from the plunger.

The amount of money raised for the village's proposed sports complex, the goal of carnival organizers, will be known soon, he said.

Payroll clerk at The Intelligencer since she and her husband moved to Belleville last spring, Jeanne LeBel has many interests outside her job to keep her busy. Presently studying photography and pottery at night school classes, she collects recipes that make entertaining easy. This Indonesian shish kebab that takes very little time to prepare, is one of her favorites.

Sate Manis

1½ lb. beef, cut in one-inch cubes
¼ cup soya sauce three tbsp. lemon juice two tbsp. brown sugar
two tbsp. caraway seeds
½ tsp. garlic powder
one tbsp. crushed coriander seeds
dash pepper

Almost any kind of beef — chuck steak, round steak, sirloin, etc. — will be suitable.

After it is cut in chunks, mix all the ingredients in a glass or china bowl, and add the beef cubes to the marinade. Marinate for several hours at room temperature, or overnight in the refrigerator.

String the beef on skewers, alternating it with cherry tomatoes, green pepper chunks, mushrooms and small onions.

Broil in the oven until done to taste. Serve with rice and salad.

Sporty Clothes For Sporty Cars

TORONTO (CP) — there's nothing sloppy about sportswear for this spring and summer, according to New York and Paris designers.

Collections by Clovis Ruffin of New York and Jean Rychter, Ore, Billy Bonnie, Chris Allan, and John Claude of Paris were shown recently in Toronto at the International Championship Auto Show.

Designers are showing pants which have become a way of life in North America, combining them with smock jackets, shell tops, velour sweat shirts and even twin sweater sets.

Skirts are full but not bulky and come in dirndl, flared, gored or wrapped in bias styles and with unpressed or cluster pleats. Any length goes so long as it's below the knee.

Watch for back or front wrap skirts, back or front buttons, hipyoked skirts, wider waistbands with attached sashes or string ties. Culotte and straight skirts are back in style again but now they always have a certain softness.

The floral printed skirt, a smash hit last summer, is longer abd fuller.

Shots are enjoying a comeback — tap shorts, bloomer shorts, Boy Scout shorts, city shorts and play shorts — teamed with matching tops.

In blouses, think soft and romantic. Look for the peasant smock in all cottons, the capelet blouse with a collar that becomes sleeves, sheer float blouses and smock tops.

Shirts are softer in sheer silky fabrics with smocking or gathered bodices. The shirtset, one sheer and the other opaque, is already popular, and T-shirts are barer then ever with low U and wide bateau necklines.

Then there are the twisted baneaus, tubes, string tied tops and variations on the halter.

Jackets with a casual look are in new smock shapes trench, safari or boxy styles.

Colors for spring range from bright red, turquoise, marigold and emerald to pale shades of mauve, pink, chamois, apricot, rose and iced mint.

Ann Landers

Keeping Marriage Intact Not Always Best for Kids

Dear Ann Landers: Your rule-of-thumb advice to people considering divorce is, "Will you be better off with or without him (or her)?" Does this advice hold when children are involved? Or should the question be, "Will the children be better off with or without him (or her)?"

Have you given serious thought to the consequences of divorce on the children? If divorce isn't the biggest "cop-out," what is? Why should the young be taught to run away from, instead of living up to, what may be the greatest emotional challenge of all?

And after the divorce, then what? How should the drop-outs deal with their unresolved problems? Should they look for another "mature" individual with whom to build a life? Is failure easier to deal with than marriage? I'd like some answers.—Eye Of The Cyclone

Dear Eye: No two marriages (or divorces) are the same. A marriage can range from empty, unpleasant, and boring to destructive, brutal and just plain hell-on-earth. No outsider is qualified to judge the true character of someone else's marriage.

While divorce is undeniably anxiety-producing for many children, their lives might be far more difficult if they continued to live in a home with parents who abused each other verbally and physically and hated each other.

While the next letter may be an extreme example, it's a good one. What a strange coincidence that it arrived in the same batch of mail with yours.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing this letter to say a word to married couples who are staying togethher "for the sake of the children." DON'T.

I am one of several victims of this "act of generosity." My parents' marriage was lousy. My father was a sadistic alcoholic who kissed his children in public and beat the living daylights out of them at home. My mother was among those he pushed around, slapped in the face and beat on with his fists.

My brother escaped by dying young. That was my mother's way out, too. She succumbed to the flu. (Had she wanted to live, I'm sure she could have done so.)

My sister and I were kicked out of the house when we were 17. She has suffered since childhood from severe ulcers and now is undergoing psychiatric treatment.

I am in treatment also, and I'm making it back, thank God. It's been a very rough road, complete with memory lapses, not being able to recall one single thing that happened the day before.

Keep telling your readers, Ann, if a marriage is bad, especially when there is physical abuse, END IT for the sake of the children.—Been There But Back Now

Dear Back: Welcome to the life of the living—and thank you for a very moving letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Of course a clergyman should be paid for performing a wedding ceremony. It's extra work and a personal service. Too often the groom (or his dad) asks, "How much do I owe you?" The clergyman usually says, "Oh, nothing," because he is too embarrassed to name a figure.

My uncle, a very good-natured clergyman, handles the problem nicely. He always smiles and says, "Pay me whatever you think she's worth."—Cheers For Unk

Dear Cheers: Make it three.

Doris Clark

Bed-wetting Can Be Cured

Dear Doris: I am sympathetic with "Help Please" who asked about cures for bed-wetting children. I had two bed-wetters in my family, one not missing a night until he was nearly six, and another who wet off and on until he was 10. Both were examined by doctors who found nothing physically wrong. Picking them up faithfully every night did no good.

I answered an ad advertising an electric wakening system. It worked wonders. Within two weeks both were cured for good. The alarm was expensive — around $40 — but it was worth every penny when you think of the wear and tear on sheets, pyjamas, the bother of changing beds, the unpleasantness for the child, etc.

You probably are familiar with now it works: the child sleeps on a triple thickness of flannelette. Between these layers of material are two sheets of light metal screening, both connected to a box with a battery, an alarm and a light. When moisture — even a drop — wets the flannelette, an electrical connection is made between the two screens which sounds the alarm and turns on the light. The child wakes up instantly, often before he has barely begun to wet.

I still have the apparatus and would be willing to sell it for a reasonable cost to "Help Please".

Tried and it Worked.

Dear Tried: Thank you. We have passed your message along to "Help Please".

Another mother mentions another type of electrical gadget, available on a doctor's prescription. I am sending you the name of it and suggest you talk it over with your doctor.

Apparently there is more than one commercial product which works on the same principle, and has achieved a good deal with a good percentage of bed-wetting youngsters.

Dear Doris: Our daughter is six months pregnant. She has completed 6 months of a secretarial course.

She doesn't want to get married; apparently this boy doesn't even know. She is thinking of giving the baby up for adoption. I myself don't believe in this kind of marriage. If she was going with this boy steady and they cared for each other, I think this would be different.

We're thinking of going to talk with the principal of the college our girl is attending and see if she can continue her course for now and finish up after the baby comes.

If it is going to cost us extra for her staying some place for the last month or so, would it be right to ask this boy to pay the expenses? Seems to me when these things happen, the girls have to do all the suffering. After all they are both to blame. I know of some boys who, when they get a girl pregnant, get away free. She still was a juvenile when this happened and the boy wasn't Needing Advice.

Thank your lucky stars you have a girl with judgment enough at 16 to dismiss any thought of marriage to someone she doesn't love, even though there is a baby coming.

Child care agencies in all parts of the country consider that the man (or boy) in this case carries a share of responsibility and is therefore required to help with costs involved in delivery and support of the baby. Just how this works out right where you are you will find out when you consult the counselling agency. I am giving you the address.

There are homes and institutions to help you out during this difficult time.

Teach Hobbies to Teens, Let Elderly Hold Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — A psychologist who predicts that 80 per cent of the population will be unemployed by the year 2,000 says we should allow the elderly to work and teach hobbies to the young.

James Montagnes, director of vocational and recreational services at the Penetanguishene Mental Health Centre, said Thursday that society has got it backwards when it builds workshops for the young and dreams up recreation programs for old people in nursing homes.

Speaking at a conference on nursing home care, Mr. Montagnes said people who are old feel worthless when they can't work and they deteriorate mentally.

But he said young people don't identify as closely with their jobs and said studies have predicted that by the year 2,000 all the work that needs to be done will require only two in 10 of the population.

Mr. Montagnes recommended that nursing homes arrange to let their patients do work they find satisfying and suggested the elderly might teach skills to young people in the community.

Certainty of Birth Control Jeopardized By Sale of Imperfect Devices to Men

TORONTO (CP) — A federal health department official says that at least one brand of prophylactic sold in Canada does not meet government guidelines in the United States, where it is made.

Dr. Ajit Dasgupta, director of the bureau of medical devices in the health protection branch, would not name the brand involved, but said on the CBC program Exchange, that it is not illegal to sell substandard U.S. condoms here.

He said his department will soon recommend standards to the federal government based on studies it has conducted.

Dr. Dasgupta said all condoms sold in Canada are imported and estimated that more than 30 million are bought yearly. Most come from the U.S., with others from Denmark, Germany, Britain and Japan.

He said Canada has no standards for condoms sold to civilians, although the Canadian Armed Forces has specifications for those it buys.

Tribute to Scott and Zelda Compiled by Their Daughter

NEW YORK (AP) — Scottie Fitzgerald Smith has compiled a book about her famous parents, Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald, for self-protection.

"People have often asked me, sometimes almost reproachfully, why I haven't written more about my parents. The answer is very simple: I'd be a big disappointment if I did."

She did the next best thing: published a book based on the Fitzgerald's scrapbooks and photo albums, telling about them in their own words. The Romantic Egoists: A Pictorial Autobiography from the Albums of Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald is the result.

Fitzgerald's first novel, written at Princeton University, was to have been titled The Romantic Egoist but several revisions later it became This Side of Paradise.

"People were always asking to see the albums," Mrs. Smith said. "Edges were wearing, articles becoming torn. I thought the books ought to be preserved somehow, so we've condensed them, concentrating on things that should be especially illuminating."

Ninety per cent of the book's illustrations, including reviews and letters, were taken from the seven scrapbooks and five photograph albums.

Now 53, Mrs. Smith was a student at Vassar when her father died in 1940. She was working in New York when her mother died in a hospital fire in 1948.

Dance programs, baby announcements, paper dolls Zelda made for young Scottie and an eight-page color insert reproducing Zelda's paintings are included along with published stories.

Prof. Matthew J. Bruccoli of University of South Carolina and Joan P. Kerr, former picture editor at Life and American Heritage—and Scottie's classmate at Vassar—helped to compile the book. Much of the material has been published before, but not under one cover.

"By the time I finally grew up enough to think of life as something other than a chain of hot fudge sundaes and Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers movies, Daddy was in Hollywood and our communication, largely epistolary," Scottie writes in her introduction to the book. "I've come to see my parents (through the book) through my own pair of spectacles rather than through the eyes of others and second, I've paid a tribute to them which was long overdue."

An especially interesting part of the book deals with the ledgers Fitzgerald kept for each year of his life to 1937. He recorded memorable events and at the top of each page a comment on whether the year was good or bad. The ledgers also contain a complete list of everything he wrote and what became of it.

Mrs. Smith resembles some early photographs of her mother—square-faced, blonde, attractive. She finds it "interesting and odd" that her mother should be viewed by some feminists as a woman's lib heroine.

"Many people see my father as a male chauvinist and think he tried to keep my mother from using her talent. I don't agree with that theory. I think he tried to help her achieve something on her own—certainly he did with stories and articles she wrote.

"He wanted her to go to art school because her talent for painting was evident. He didn't get upset about her dabbling in ballet until she hurt herself. He only opposed publication of Save Me the Waltz (Mrs. Fitzgerald's autobiographical novel) because she was writing about the same period, the same things, he was writing about then.

"I do not look upon that as competition between a man and a woman, a husband and wife, but as competition between two professionals."

She remembered Fitzgerald's letters to her at Vassar: "He wanted me to achieve in college, despite my frivolous tendencies." He urged her not to drink, cautioned her about boy-friends, sent her reading lists.

Mrs. Smiths' next project is writing a family history "just for the children."

"Kids are going to lose contact with where they came from, the pattern of families, things every person needs to know. I consider it fascinating that my great-grandfather went to Minnesota to work in the wholesale grocery business when he was nine years old. Life always was tough."

Mrs. Smith has three children, two daughters and a son, and is proud of her new grandchildren, identical twin boys. She lives with her husband in Washington but commutes regularly to Montgomery, Ala., to be near her mother's sister, now 85.

"My first job out of Vassar was working as a trainee at Time," she recalled. "All the male reporters were off to war and eventually I went to work at the New Yorker. I think I was the original person who, when I was hired, was walking down the hall when Harold Ross looked around to his secretary and said, 'I'd hire anybody!'"

Mrs. Smith moved to Washington in 1950 to work for the Democratic Digest, a publication of the Democratic National Committee.

"My first love is writing for newspapers," she said. She worked for the Northern Virginia Sun, New York Times and Washington Post, and once wrote a book about women in the Washington press corps titled Don't Quote Me.

"I don't want to ride on Daddy's hard work," she said. "I want to be my own person and do my own thing."

Legal Status Becomes Problem After Sex Change

OTTAWA (CP) — Lee Davies says he is just an "it" as far as society is concerned.

He is a slender, 30-year-old Ottawa native; not too tall, who likes wearing blue jeans, goes to hockey games and rolls his own cigarettes.

But the wispy-bearded young man has an unusual problem. The Ontario government refuses to record his sexual status as male on his birth certificate.

He made headlines recently when Albert Roy, Liberal member for Ottawa East, raised the birth-certificate question in the Ontario legislature.

In a series of operations at the Ottawa Civic and Grace hospitals between 1970 and last spring, Mr. Davies underwent the first female-to-male sex change in Canada.

It was expected that a birth-certificate change would allow him to marry but that change has not been forthcoming. In a recent interview he said that the basic issue is his legal status.

He asked why Canadian provinces do not follow the example of Sweden, Denmark, Great Britain and some American states and allow trans-sexuals the right to have their birth certificates altered to the appropriate sex.

In the sex-change process Mr. Davies faced other setbacks. He could not claim the $1,800 cost of his sex-change operations under the Ontario medical insurance plan.

Only in British Columbia and Quebec are sex changes covered under provincial medical insurance plans.

Another problem was that for several years doctors were reluctant to undertake such operations.

From birth until the first operation, Mr. Davies was known as Lee Ann Davies. But between the ages of 7 and 11, Lee Ann began to sense something was wrong.

"I was more sure that there was something different about me."

She began to feel attracted to girls and women and favored rough-and-tumble boys' sports over girlish activities.

"I was never feminine in any way," Mr. Davies said. "I was always dressing in male attire. I couldn't keep a dress on."

Lee Ann was not far into her teens before her parents and everyone else she knew were convinced she was a lesbian.

She had trouble at school.

"The principal told me that if I couldn't dress as a female, don't come back to school." At age 14 she was expelled.

After the expulsion she drifted, at first staying home to hide from public ridicule.

She was sure she was male but her body belied the instincts. "No matter how much I tried to explain people just couldn't understand."

Even attempts to get medical help failed at first. Some doctors laughed; others recommended psychiatric help for sexual orientation.

About 1962, she turned to heavy use of drugs. The drug habit was expensive but it blotted out reality. Unemployed, she turned to prostitution.

During the four-or five-year involvement with prostitution, she gave birth to three children.

Two of the children, a 10-year-old girl and a six-year-old boy, live with Mr. Davies now. An 11-year-old son lives with his grandmother.

That period of misery ended when in 1965 Lee Ann, through a family physician, found doctors willing to perform sex-change surgery.

The first operation in 1979 was a hysterectomy, an operation to remove the uterus. In a 1972 mastectomy both breasts were removed.

Finally, in May 1974, surgeons performed a colopectomy, an operation to remove the mucuous membranes and close the vagina.

Ever since then and for the rest of his life Mr. Davies will have to receive twice-weekly injections of testosterone, the male hormone.

Reacting to the injections, he has sprouted a modest crop of hair on his face and body. Initially he had a recurrence of adolescent acne.

For friends and acquaintances, there was no need to adjust suddenly to his new physical state. He had looked and acted enough like a man before the transformation to be accepted as one even by those who didn't know he was a trans-sexual.

Apparently the children had no trouble adjusting either.

"Two years ago I came home and I just told them they were going to have a dad instead of a mom," he said. "They went outside and shouted to their friends that they were going to have a father."

Publicizing his story hasn't caused any problems for his children at school, said Mr. Davies.

Although he is the first person to have a female-to-male sex change in Canada, there are others living in Ottawa who have had the same operation in the United States or Europe.

"The public should be enlightened," he said, "because trans-sexuals are a set of people who are going to emerge and stand up for their rights."

They are basically no different from persons born with other genetic defects, Mr. Davies contended. But people who applaud doctors straightening a curved spine or fixing a club foot may shudder in disgust when surgeons try to redress the cruel genetic joke played on those born with the wrong sexual organs.

"People think I have to prove I'm a man," said Mr. Davies. "I don't have to prove a damn thing."

He doesn't see himself as a crusader for the legal rights of trans-sexuals.

"I just feel I have the guts to fight for what I want," he said.

He doesn't regret the medical and legal hassles now.

"It's beautiful," he said, breaking into a wide grin. "I couldn't feel more satisfaction."

LIVERPOOL (CP) — A large book-shop chain has sent an urgent notice to all managers that a new Superman book must be displayed in the adults' section, not in the children's department. A mother here bought the book for her son and later discovered it was full of stories about sexual exploits.

Ice Damage Said Easy to Prevent

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Cottage owners can ward off much of the damage caused by ice each spring by installing a ramp-like structure along the shore, says a scientist at the Canada Centre for Inland Waters.

Gee Tsang, who studied the problem for two years, said that by spending "a couple of thousand dollars" to build the structure on the shore or slightly into the water, the problem might be alleviated.

He said the ice would ride up on the device, break into chunks and, in the process, use up some of the energy behind the ice movement.

Mr. Tsang said strong winds and water currents, commonly thought to be the cause of ice pileups, are not at fault. The key is the gap between the ice cover and the shore, he said. The pileups occur when the wind direction shifts quickly from offshore to onshore when temperatures are above freezing.

Mr. Tsang, who set up a temporary observation and meteorological station on Lake Simcoe near Barrie, Ont., said the pileups may occur in winds of less than five miles an hour and in 30 minutes can create an ice pile seven feet high.

Mr. Tsang, whose field of study is cold environment hydraulics, said that during a 71-mile-an-hour wind on Lake Simcoe last year, the ice only buckled slightly, creating no pileups.

Mr. Tsang said piling begins about the end of February and the worst situation usually appears during the last part of March.

The scientist said cottage owners may be in for more trouble from ice pileups this spring than last winter. An above-average snowfall is predicted for the remainder of the winter and with it more storms and shifting winds—a major cause of problem.

Bill Will Permit Prices Rollback

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's forthcoming prices bill will include a clause permitting the government to roll back prices in certain circumstances, says Consumer Affairs Minister André Ouellet.

But it has not been decided whether the power will be delegated to a commission or retained by the government, Mr. Ouellet said in an interview taped for the CTV program, Question Period.

A similar clause was included in a bill presented to the last Parliament by Mr. Ouellet's predecessor, Herb Gray, but was not passed. Mr. Ouellet did not indicate when the next prices justification bill will be presented.

He said the bill will make sure that the government has the power to monitor the profits of companies and to ensure that there is no abuse.

But he said the bill is not the key instrument in the fight against inflation, only part of a total plan.

Stanfield Still Wooing Voters of Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday his party will be "better understood and accepted" by Quebecers by the time he leaves active politics.

Addressing about 1,000 party members at a $120-a-plate fund-raising dinner, Mr. Stanfield said the party is "still [illegible]mined to earn the confidence of Quebecers.

Mr. Stanfield, who has said he will not contest the party's leadership at its next convention, said Quebecers will play a more significant role in the party if his goal "to set up a grassroots organization in the province regardless of the difficulty involved" can be achieved.

Lawyer Would Oust Kingston Coroner

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer Paul Copeland said Saturday that he will attempt to have Dr. W. S. Patterson, a Kingston, Ont., coroner, removed from an inquest into the death last August of convicted murderer Edward Nalon, 40, in Millhaven penitentiary.

Speaking at a conference on prisoners' rights at the University of Toronto, Mr. Copeland said he sought official standing last year at the inquest. Nalon apparently committed suicide in the prison's solitary-confinement section.

Mr. Copeland said he wanted to represent six of Nalon's fellow prisoners who were in the same section of the maximum-security institution, 23 miles west of Kingston.

Mr. Copeland said Dr. Patterson turned down the request but a divisional court later overruled the coroner. However, Dr. Patterson said he could satisfy the court by calling three prisoners.

Mr. Copeland said Saturday that "one of them (the three prisoners) is not even familiar with the matter."

"I am going back to Division Court to quash the (coroner's) decision and to ask to have him prohibited from continuing the inquest," he said.

Mr. Copeland said that out of 300 prisoners, about 75 are in solitary confinement.

Four Saved From Cave

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (Reuter) — Four amateur cave explorers were found alive in neck-high flood waters Sunday, hours after the bodies of three others were found in another water-filled cave two miles away.

Rescuers found the four high school teachers about a half-mile from the mouth of Wayne Cave in this hilly southern Indiana area, about 75 miles southeast of Indianapolis. The rescue team and teachers took three hours to reach the mouth of the cave.

The four had stood clinging together in the darkness for about 24 hours after they had become trapped in the cave.

Rescued were Paul Holman, 37, Robert Bondurant, 32, Randall Masterson, 28, all of Robinson, Ill.; and Gene Strain, 40, of Olney, Ill.

Rainwater surged into the two caves following a heavy downpour Saturday after the teachers and three University of Indiana students entered the caves.

Television's Developer Disappointed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — One of the fathers of television is disillusioned with his offspring. He says the best part about it is the on-off switch.

Dr. Vladimir Zworykin's name is not a household word, but he is credited with being the first to recognize that an electronic system, rather than a mechanical one, should be used, and it was under his direction that the system was perfected at the laboratories of Radio Corp. of America.

"Television is in its infancy," he said in a weekend interview. "I don't mean technologically, I mean socially.

"Television could be of terrific value for human purposes. It could help bring world peace. But it is not used that way. There is too much violence, too much crime."

Zworykin, now 85, was a 17-year-old student in Leningrad, Russia, when he began to work with a professor named Boris van Rosing on an "electronic eye"—a primitive television picture tube. The invention was patented in 1907 by van Rosing.

Long-term Radiation Hazard Found

TORONTO (CP) — More than 75 persons responded by Sunday to a government search for persons who may have been exposed to excessive radiation while working in a downtown building during the last 30 years.

Meanwhile, provincial and federal radiation experts are looking for other city buildings where present or past businesses may have left radiation dangers.

The three-foot square "hot spot" on the third floor of the downtown building at 103 Church St. was sealed off with lead bricks shortly after the radiation was discovered Friday.

Radium apparently was spilled there when a company which painted luminous dials for aircraft worked in a third-floor office between 1943 and 1947.

HOUSEWIVES AND MOTHERS SHOULD BE HEARD.

WHY NOT?

Any woman who is a housewife and a mother has what is possibly the most demanding career in the world. Think about it.

It's exhausting and rewarding. It's satisfying and frustrating, stimulating and boring. It's lonely, it's frantic, it's physical and mental.

Think about all the specialized jobs we perform every day of our lives. Jobs which, outside the home, command a lot of respect. Nurse, teacher, psychologist, chef, accountant, interior designer, chauffeur, electrician and plumber. We are all these and more.

In addition to being homemakers, we are often partners to our husbands working on the family farm, at the fish dock, in the store or service station. And, in many instances, we work at a second full-time career outside the home.

To most of the five million women in Canada who choose homemaking as a career, it's a rich and rewarding one.

Right now the great push to equality leaves many of us wondering where we fit into today's society.

The answer is – front and centre.

Sure there is a move towards greater individual freedom. A movement to free both women and men from stereotyped roles. Freedom of choice and opportunity. Freedom to pursue lifestyles of equality.

This is how it should be.

And the most equal person in the world should be the homemaker.

The whole social structure of the home and community revolves around us. We are the pivot of society.

The next time someone says "only a housewife" – challenge that remark.

We are much more – our vote can help change the laws; our purchases as consumers can affect the economy; our voice on school boards can improve our children's education; our concern for the community can change for the better the quality of all our lives.

This is the year for housewives to take their rightful place in society.

Tops in Volleyball

Mohawk OCAA Champ

Loyalist College was the scene on Saturday for the battle of the champions in Ontario Colleges Athletics Association Women's Volleyball.

The three first place finalist from each of the division; from the east, Algonquin of Ottawa, the west, Mohawk of Hamilton and Rouyn-Noranda of Quebec, the North-South division.

Convener of the event Rob Stinson proved equally adept at the prediction end of thing as he did at managing the day long tournament.

Of the three colleges entered Stinson picked the strong Mohawk squad as favorites followed by Algonquin and finally Rouyn. The predictions were correct as the Mohawk Mountaineers led the standings with three wins and one loss with Algonquin next with two wins and two losses and finaly Rouyn three losses and one win.

Mountaineers coach Joyce Parker felt her team might have been "jinxed" by the advance predictions but after losing out in the finals of last year's meet the team showed they weren't going to let a thing like supersitsion get in their way.

With the victory, Mohawk broke a two year monopoly of the trophy by the Quebec entry and marked the first time in the school's history that they will have their name engraved on the prize.

The winners finished the season with a 31 and 1 win-loss record 15 points ahead of the next closest college, Conestoga of Kitchener.

Tomen's College Volleyball Take

Coach Parker explained the reasons for last year's loss "we could get to 12 points without any problem but after than we just ran out of steam."

Parker felt that in this style of play "you can't afford to lose even one match.", the strategy paid off as the winners took their first three matches in a row clinching the championship.

In their first series of games Mohawk played what turned out to be the toughest set against runner-up Algonquin. The Cats won the opening game 15-12 but the Mountaineers regained their composure in the second game with a 15-4 victory setting the stage for the third and deciding game.

The game went right down to the wire with the serve changing hands numerous times before Mohawk edged Algonquin 15-12.

The winning coach was very pleased with "the calibre of ball played here today."

In the other games, Algonquin picked up both of their wins at the expense of Rouyn 15-3 and 15-5 in the first match and 15-9, 11-15 and 15-8 in the second series. Both losses were at the hands of Mohawk the second being a 15-9, 15-8 decision.

Rouyn's only victory was a little late over the winners by scores of 15-4 and 15-8, after losing the first set to the Mountaineers 15-5 and 15-10.

The awards were presented in the formal atmoshpere of the colleges Club 213.

Fourth Tourney Title

BCI Follows Form Chart

The Belleville Collegiate junior basketball team classed as "the team to beat" in the Quinte Junior Saints Annual Invitational basketball tournament on Saturday didn't disappoint anyone except maybe the opposition.

The BCI squad chalked up four consecutive victories including the championship game over the host Quinte Saints by a 56-45 score.

The Red and Whites have, with the tournament championship on the weekend, four tournament titles to their credit and one consolaton title and remain undefeated in the Eastern division standings of the Bay of Quinte Secondary Boy's Basketball League.

Mike Kirby led the winners with a 15.2 points a game average including an outstanding effort in the final game against Quinte as he netted 27 points almost half of his teams toall.

Next in line in the scoring end of things was Mitch Hannah, another consistent performer for BCI who came up with a 12.2 points a game average.

Undefeated in the West division standings and expected to be, the Red and Whites' main competition were the Saints, who went without a loss up until the final game.

Top scorers in the Quinte effort were Brian Hamilton and Al Rutherford who compiled average points totals for the day of 12.7 and 12 points respectively.

In their first match BCI faced Stayner High School of Orillia who they handily defeated 49-38, next the eventual winners went up against Oshawa Central who gave them some anxious moments coming within two points in a 30-28 battle.

In the semi final hookup, Moira supplied the opposition but were edged out by BCI, by a 36-33 margin.

In the Saints first three games the hosts edged out Moira 45-41 in the opening game of the tournament. Next Frontenac went down easily 51-25 and the Stayner Club was the victim of the Quinte attack in the semi-final contest 45-41, setting the stage for the championship game.

In the final game the Saints led at the end of the half by a 25-24 lead but were unable to contain Kirby in the last half as he broke for 15 points to sew up the title.

Scores in the other games were: Nicholson 47, Frontenac 30, Peterborough Collegiate 30, Oshawa Central 20, Nicholson 45, Moira 34 and in the game between Stayner and Peterborough Collegiate the Orillia based club slipped by 60-61.

Madawaska Cup Victory For Whitby's Brian Burden

BANCROFT—The sixth annual running of the Bancroft Madawaska Cup snowmobile races proved to be a success for spectators and drivers alike despite the mild weather conditions and the rapidly deteriorating track.

The covetted Madawaska Cup with its $250 prize money from Melcher's distillery was won by Brian Burden of Whitby.

Burden, who was riding a mercury snow twister, managed to rack up 71 points in his quest for the prize.

Burden, along with all the other successful race winners, also picked up cash for placing in the events.

A resident of Niagara Falls, Bob Hogg, rode his Yamaha machines to second place and went home with the Bancroft IGA trophy and another $175 in prize money.

Hogg had 41 points for the second place spot and was followed closely by Blair McCann of Dwight, Ont. who won the third place Vance motors trophy with 34 points.

The Madawaska Cup races are sanctioned by the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation as "B" event and are run by the Bancroft Cardiff Kinsmen Club.

Representing the O.S.R.F. in Bancroft this week-end was Bill Vermillyea of Belleville. According to Mr. Vermillyea, the Bancroft event is the best "B" sanctioned race in Ontario.

"All the top "A" sanctioned drivers were here," he said "So we were seeing some of the best snowmobile racing possible."

"The track could have been better, if the weather hadn't been so mild but the local organizers had 3 and 4 inches of ice on it so it was alright," he said.

The weather in the Bancroft area was so mild that the races were held up during the Saturday running so that the track could be scraped of slush.

Only one major mishap occurred during the races when, on Saturday, driver Bob Woods didn't make the second corner of the track.

Woods, who was spilled from his machine was taken to Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, checked over and released.

He entered again in some of the Sunday events.

One new race was entered into this year's program at the Madawaksa Cup.

Trenton Gets By Kingston

TRENTON (Special) — Scoring a convincing 8-4 win over Kingston Township, the Roger Drake-coached Trenton Birt's Handy Stand team advanced to second round Ontario Minor Hockey Association Juvenile AA playoff action, here Sunday night.

Birt's took the series with Township 4-1 after dropping the first game in the series.

The Trenton team will now meet Whitby-Brooklin in a series expected to open in Whitby this week.

Midgets Nipped

The Belleville Shell Juveniles and the Belleville Major Midgets hooked up on the weekend for an exhibition match with the Juveniles edging the competition by a 5-4 margin.

The winners got goals from, Ross McCleod, Martin Thisite, Wayne Clapp, Ross Laurwrenson and Ken Just.

Robin Chase led the losing effort for the Midgets with a pair of goals with singles going to Tom Belch and Clint Riendeau.

Bantams Romp, Peewees Shaded

SYRACUSE (Special) — Belleville McInroy—Maines Minor Bantams and Belleville Rollins Major Peewees split their respective two game exhibition series against teams from the Midstate Youth Hockey Association here, on the weekend.

The McInroy—Maines minor bantams had it all over their Syracuse counterparts as they outshot them 120-20 and outscored them 22-7 in the two games.

Saturday, the bantams trounced Syacuse 12-4 and Sunday they beat them 10-3.

Steve Murphy was the big gun in the first game. He scored three times while Mark Crawford and Jeff Simpson scored twice each. Shawn Mulroney, Steve Mofina, Clarence Broekema and Greg Sprout and Darrel Coltman added one each.

Sunday, the Belleville bantams got three goals from Broekema, two from Steve Casey and one each from Coltman, Billy Rowe, Tim Soule, Mofina and Mulroney.

The Rollins Peewees had a harder time of things as they were edged 3-2 on Saturday and 2-0 on Sunday.

The peewee games were rather serene compared to the bantam contests. There were 40 minor penalties handed out in the bantam games, 21 of which went to Belleville.

In the peewee games, there were only 18 infractions called, but 13 of those went to Rollins.

Charlie Doran and Rob Soule were the only Belleville peewee marksmen of the weekend.

Dixie Lee Bows Out

Belleville Dixie Lee Minor Peewees dropped a 5-3 decision to Kingston Thursday and bowed out of their best-of-five Ontario Minor Hockey Association playoff series 3-0.

Rich Manderville scored twice and Steve Molaski once for the locals.

Friday, Dixie Lee upended Wellington 5-3 in exhibition action and in a return match Saturday, the local minor peewees downed Wellington 6-2.

Friday, Steve Thompson, Bryson Lamble, Neil McKeown, Stu Emerson and Molaski scored once each.

Glen McQuaid replied with all three for Wellington.

Saturday, McKeown picked up a hat trick and drew a pair of assists and Thompson, Brian Cronkwright and Molaski got a goal each.

For Wellington, Mark Nelson and Don MacDonald got a goal apiece.

Canada Winter Games Champion

Quebec Hangs on to Edge Out B.C. and Ontario

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Ontario has come back to the pack after virtually owning the first two editions of the Canada Winter Games.

Quebec is the new champion, but by the slenderest of margins—three points over second-place British Columbia and four over dethroned Ontario.

The Quebec contingent ended the third Winter Games Saturday with 219 points, only 2½ more than in Saskatoon in 1971 when it finished third, but enough to win in a competition that was more evenly matched than ever before.

Ontario, which won the inaugural Winter Games in Quebec City in 1967 by 18 points over B.C. and took the 1971 renewal by almost the same margin over the same province, dropped 38 points to finish with 215.

British Columbia finished second for the third straight time with 216 points, a drop of 19 from Saskatoon, and Alberta was fourth for the third time with 197.

Cashing in on the benefits of a strong program designed to bring opportunities for athletic excellence to all parts of the province, Quebec took top spot in seven of the 22 men's and women's sports.

That was an abrupt reversal of the Saskatoon result that saw Ontario win in 10 divisions and Quebec in three.

Points at the Winter Games, in which more than 2,000 athletes from the 10 provinces and two territories participated for 11 days, are awarded on the basis of 12 for a first-place finish in a sport, 11 for second, 10 for third and so on down to one for 12th.

Even though athletes from a province win the most golds in a sport, it doesn't necessarily mean the team will pick up top points. For example, Alberta won three of the 11 boxing golds but B.C., with two, had a strong enough performance from other team members to finish on top.

"Most of the other teams have come up significantly since 1971," said Bob Secord, director of the Ontario sports and recreation bureau.

Ontario has long depended on a sophisticated sports program run by individual groups but it now seems likely to pattern itself after Quebec, which is spending $25 million this year to provide money and coaching for athletics throughout the province.

"It appears that there may be the need for more government participation if levels of excellence are to be raised significantly," said Secord, adding that he expects this to come from the new ministry of culture and recreation.

Ontario has also been in the habit of holding its own winter games a few weeks before the national competition to pick its team. That probably won't happen again.

"We have concluded we must pick our teams 11 months before so they can get more intensive training as a group, although there will always be room for the kid who later comes out of the woodwork."

And he ended with a warning: "It has now been shown that Ontario can be had. Next time we'll be out to show that Quebec can be had."

Nova Scotia, which won its first two gold medals ever in Winter Games activity, took home the Centennial Cup as the team that most increased its points in percentage terms. It had 107 in 1971 and came up to 146 this time, the result of a regional athletic development program that is more modest than Quebec's.

Its gold-medal winners were Graham Eldridge of Windsor, who topped the middle-heavyweight class in weightlifting Friday, and Chris Clarke of Halifax, who won a unanimous decision over Benny Fry of Regina in the 125-pound featherweight boxing final Saturday.

Prince Edward Island missed a chance for its first-ever gold as Mike Jenkins of Winsloe dropped a unanimous decision to Frank Pruden of Edmonton in the 119-pound bantam boxing. It was only P.E.I.'s second silver in the three Winter Games.

Quebec's team victories at the Games were in badminton, men's basketball, fencing, men's and women's gymnastics, judo and men's skiing. It was second in women's basketball and third in men's curling, hockey, synchronized swimming, table tennis and weightlifting.

B.C. ended Manitoba's domination of volleyball, winning both men's and women's golds, and also won team titles in women's basketball, boxing and wrestling.

Individual star of the Games, which attracted 126,700 spectators, was Jean Choquette, a gymnast from Montreal who led his province to the team title with four gold medals. He won the vaulting, pommel horse, horizontal bar and the men's all-round.

The final day of the Games produced the most excitement for Alberta which played host in 15 centres, the first time the competition has been staged on a regional basis.

Leth[illegible]ve Sons, carrying the province's hockey banner, defeated an all-star team from Nova Scotia 6-3 to win the gold medal. Quebec's Pointe-aux-Trembles Jets edged Ontario's Oakville Blades 3-2 in double overtime to win the bronze and rob Ontario of a chance to tie B.C. in the overall points standings.

The skating Nadeau family of Montreal put the finishing touch on the figure skating as Nicole and Pierre won the gold in the A dance competition and Danielle paired with Andre to win the bronze.

Brenda Keay and Bob Haeghington of Toronto took the silver.

Another Nadeau, Louis, was unable to compete because he had skated in singles at the Canadian championship in Quebec City. Athletes on national or international teams or who took part in the national figure skating are barred from the Winter Games.

All 11 boxing finals were also staged Saturday, B.C. winning two golds, a silver and five bronzes. Alberta won three golds and two silvers to finish second and Nova Scotia won a gold, two silvers and two bronzes to finish third.

Morgan Williams, 19-year-old lightweight from Weyburn, Sask., won one of the boxing titles, gaining a split decision over David Jamrozik of Sudbury, Ont.

Asked whether he can beat his brother, Dave (Tiger) Williams, a noted fistfighter with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, he said: "Not yet, but it won't be long."

Lead Stands Up For FitzSimons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I thought if I shot 65 I would win," said Jack Nicklaus. "I didn't know how this young boy would react."

Nicklaus shot his 65, but he didn't win.

That's because the reaction of the young boy, Pat FitzSimons, was a string of 14 consecutive pars—a hard—won string put together in the face of growing pressure—that secured his first professional triumph in Sunday's final round of the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

FitzSimons was staked to a six-shot lead by his course-record 64 in Saturday's third round and clinched it with a steady one-under-par 70 over the last 18 holes of the 7,022-yard Riviera Country Club course.

He won by four strokes with a 275 total. The big lead starting the final round was the difference.

"With a six-stroke lead, you want to concede yourself the victory, but you can't do that," the 24-year-old FitzSimons said. "It's like looking at a three-foot putt for six hours. If you make it, people say, 'Well, that's what he's supposed to do.' If you miss it, they say, 'How in the world could he blow something like that?'

"Blowing a six-shot lead could be a devastating thing."

Tom Kite, who birdied three of four holes on the back nine for a 68, finished second at 279.

Nicklaus, who started play 10 strokes back in the mild, sunny weather of the final round, made up the lost ground but finished five behind at 280.

Tom Weiskopf and Hale Irwin were next at 282, Irwin with a closing 67, Weiskopf with a 68. Tom Watson, Bi[illegible] Dent and Jerry McGee were at 283.

Casper shot a last round 69, McGee and Dent 70, Watson 71.

Johnny Miller never got in the chase. He had a triple-bogey seven on his second hole and finished with a 74-287.

Ben Ke[illegible]n of Toronto shot a 79 for a 303 total worth $229.

FitzSimons won a combined total of less than $27,000 in his first two seasons on the tour and last year had to drop out of action for a couple of months when his money ran out.

He collected $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 in this tournament.

DEFEATS COLLEGE

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — University of Toronto defeated Royal Military College 4-2 Saturday to capture the Ontario Universities Athletic Association team badminton championship. Lane Bishop and Tom Muir posted singles wins and teamed to add a doubles victory for Toronto. Jim Ooi and Bob Hinchcliff picked up a doubles win for Toronto's fourth point.

Proell Wraps Up Ski Title

NAEBA, Japan (AP) — Annemarie Proell of Austria won the women's giant slalogm Sunday and ensured her fifth consecutive World Cup skiing championship.

Miss Proell was timed in one minute, 27.57 seconds for the single-run race, defeating Monika Kaserer of Austria, who was clocked in 1:28.29.

The Austrian ace earned 25 points for the victory, giving her 268 in the World Cup standings and putting her out of reach of her nearest challengers in the season's six remaining World Cup races.

Christina Tinot of Italy was third in 1:28.45 and Michelle Jacot of France was fourth in 1:28.60. Betsy Clifford of Old Chelsea, Que., finished 22nd in 1:30.17.

Earlier, another Austrian, Hans Hinterseer, swooped down the soft, bumpy Naeba course and won a narrow victory over Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden in the men's slalom race.

In the battle for the World Cup over-all title, three-time champion Gustavo Thoeni of Italy, who held a 138 to 190 lead cevr Franz Klammer before the race, finished fifth in 1:27.53, increasing his point total to 206 with six races left in the 24-race season.

Reds Slip by Indians Twice to Pad Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A pair of one-goal weekend wins over Springfield Indians enabled Providence Reds to strengthen their hold on first place in the Northern Division of the American Hockey League.

A 5-4 win Sunday and a 6-5 decision Saturday enabled the Reds to open a 10-point lead over Nova Scotia Voyageurs, who downed New Haven Nighthawks 5-1 in a Sunday game.

Hershey Bears tied Syracuse Eagles 3-3 and Virginia Red Wings topped Rochester Americans 3-1 in other Sunday games. Hershey blanked Virginia 4-0 in another Saturday game.

The Reds won their Sunday game despite the loss of standout defenceman Joe Zanussi, who was recalled by New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Doug Horbul deflected John Wright's pass past Springfield goalie Steve Rexe at 2:13 of sudden death overtime to give the Reds their Sunday victory.

Wright, Pierre Laganier: John Bednarski and Bob Mac Millan scored other goals for the Reds, who extended their unbeaten streak to seven games.

Phil Hoene had two goals and Mark Heaslip and Lorne Stamler one each for Providence.

A second-period goal by New Haven's Richard Nantais cost Nova Scotia goalie Ed Walsh a shutout before a Halifax crowd of 3,177. Walsh had 40 saves.

Jim Cahoon, Gary Geldart, John Van Boxmeer, Mike [illegible] and Peter Sullivan had a goal each for the Voyageurs.

Things Look Up for Leeds

LONDON (AP) — Leeds United, the defending English League soccer champion, has finally shrugged off a long string of injuries and now looks like a possible contender to retain the title.

Leeds had a meager six points from the first 11 games of the season and appeared likely candidates for relegation.

A crippling phase of serious injuries to key players, including captain Billy Bremner, defenders Norman Hunter and Terry Cooper and forwards Mick Jones and Eddie Gray, left Leeds without its most experienced stars.

But under new manager Jimmy Armfield, the club began to pull itself back together and Saturday, with a 1-0 win over Middlesbrough, pulled to within four points of First Division leaders Stoke and Burnley who each have 37.

"It has not been easy," said Armfield. "No other club in the league had the injury list we have had to contend with.

"But we have taken 27 points from our last 19 games after that disastrous start and that must be as good as any record in the First Division."

Leeds is also through to the quarter-finals of the FA Cup and the European Cup where they meet Anderlecht of Belgium in the quarter-finals.

"It would be foolish to make any rash predictions," said Armfield. "What I can say is that after losing almost a full international team with serious injury for much of the season, we are now nearer having a full strength squad than at any time."

Leeds defeated Middlesbrough on striker Allan Clarke's goal in the 32nd minute.

Burnley moved up to tie Stoke on points by defeating Sheffield United 2-1. Peter Noble and Leighton James scores for Burnley and Alan Woodward headed in a goal for Sheffield in the last minute.

Record Third Straight Win

Wings Surge Too Late?

JIM RUTHERFORD

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings today are riding a three-game winning streak and much of the credit is going to goalie Jim Rutherford and centre Marcel Dionne.

The Wings, who have little hope of ever catching Pittsburgh Penguins for the third playoff spot in the National Hockey League's Norris Division, started their current streak with a 4-3 win over Philadelphia Flyers last Wednesday and then extended it Saturday by the same score against Atlanta Flames.

Sunday, the Wings earned their third win by a 3-1 count against the Penguins with Dionne scoring his 34th goal of the season and Rutherford, a former Penguins player, providing excellent goaltending against a 37-shot Pittsburgh attack.

In other NHL games Sunday, New York Rangers beat Philadelphia 2-1, Buffalo Sabres defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1, St. Louis Blues whipped Washington Capitals 7-2, Kansas City Scouts defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-2, Chicago Black Hawks blanked Atlanta Flames 4-0 and Los Angeles Kings tied 2-2 against California Seals.

Saturday, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 3-2, Minnesota upset Vancouver Canucks 4-1, Toronto beat the Rangers 5-2, New York Islanders upset Montreal Canadiens 7-6, Chicago whipped Washington 10-3 and Los Angeles shut out Boston 6-0.

The Wings' victory at Pittsburgh was their first on the road since they defeated Boston Dec. 5. And it was the first loss at home for Pittsburgh since the Nov. 27 defeat by Montreal.

"We just weren't sharp and even seemed to be listless for part of the second period," said Penguin coach Marc Boileau. He was ruefully impressed with Rutherford's goaltending, saying Rutherford "always seems to play well against us."

Dionne, who led the Wings with two goals in Saturday's win against Atlanta, scored an unassisted short-handed goal on a breakaway at 13:26 of the second period. Chuck Arnason tied the score for Pittsburgh three minutes later, but Dionne came back in the third period to set up Walt McKechnie for the winning score.

Buffalo, the Adams Division leader with 88 points, was also the over-all league leader today with Montreal, tops in the Norris Division, second with 86 points.

Rick Martin scored his 37th and 38th goals of the season to lead the Buffalo attack.

At New York, Bill Fairbairn pounced on a bouncing puck to score the winning goal midway in the final period.

After a long shot by Walt Tkaczuk, the puck bounced off the backboards and over the net, striking Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent and falling at his feet. Parent couldn't find the loose puck before Fairbairn put it in the net.

The Flyers lost centre Bill Clement in the game. He suffered stretched knee ligaments in his left knee and will miss at least one game.

At Chicago, goalie Tony Esposito stopped all 29 Atlanta shots but couldn't claim the shutout for himself. He had to retire for equipment repairs for 66 seconds in the second period and Michel Dumas guarded the nets in his place although Dumas did not make any saves.

Robin Burns scored twice to lead Kansas City in its 14th season victory. The Scouts outshot Minnesota 33-26.

Larry Sacharuk scored a goal and helped set up three others to lead St. Louis in handing the Capitals their 51st loss in 62 games.

Rookie Charlie Simmer scored at 7:11 of the third period, his second goal in as many games, to pull California into the tie with Los Angeles.

Hawks Have Petes' Number

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One home-ice jinx continued while another was broken in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action Sunday.

St. Catharines Black Hawks extended their home-ice mastery over Peterborough, defeating the Petes 8-2. Peterborough has not won a regular-league game in St. Catharines since 1968.

Sudbury Wolves handed Toronto Marlboros their first home-ice defeat this season in a 4-3 upset.

At St. Catharines, Petes coach Roger Neilson said: "There's something about the St. Catharines rink which either brings the worst out in us or the best in the Hawks."

A crowd of 1,142 spectators watched St. Catharines take period leads of 3-0 and 4-0 and outshoot the visitors 36-24.

Bill Hamilton, Rick Adduono and Dave Salvian each scored twice for the Hawks, with Greg Craig and Bob Manno getting the others.

Mark Perras and Mike Fryia replied for Peterborough, which slipped to third spot, three points behind Hamilton Fincups.

St. Catharines remains in sixth spot, one point back of Sudbury Wolves.

At Toronto, Rod Schutt scored three goals and Richie Hansen added two others to lead Sudbury to the win before 6,300 spectators.

Sudbury's other goals went to Alex McKendry, Dave Farrish, Ron Duguay and Geoff Green.

Mike Kaszycki scored twice for league-leading Toronto with Ed Saffrey getting the other.

Sudbury outshot the Marlboros 43-34 and handed Toronto its 10 loss of the season.

In other games Sunday, Oshawa Generals downed Kingston Canadians 4-2, London Knights defeated Kitchener Rangers 5-3 and Hamilton Fincups and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds played to a 4-4 tie.

In the only game Saturday, Hamilton blanked Sudbury 5-0.

Play resumes Tuesday with St. Catharines travelling to play Ottawa '67s, Oshawa visits Peterborough, Sault Ste. Marie meets Sudbury, Hamilton entertains Kitchener and Toronto is in Kingston.

Generals 4 Canadians 2

Paul Gardner's two goals—his second into an empty net—paced seventh-place Oshawa to its 34th win this season.

Playing before a home crowd of 1,185 spectators, the Generals took a 3-2 lead into a scoreless second period.

Glenn Kirkham and Greg Malone scored the other goals for Oshawa, outshot 37-33.

Mike Crombeen and Ken Linseman replied for the ninth-place Canadians.

Knights 5 Rangers 3

London, trailing 2-0 early, rallied to tie the score with two power-play goals by Tom Rowe within 89 seconds late in the first period.

Dennis Maruk and Brad Marsh scored in the second for London to give London a 4-2 lead. Terry Martin added the other in the third period.

Joe Fortunato scored twice for last-place Kitchener, with Dan Djakalovic adding a goal.

The Knights outshot the home team 36-27.

Fincups 4 Greyhounds 4

Archie King's deflection with less than three minutes in the game stretched Hamilton's unbeaten string to nine games. Greg Hickey, Mike Keating and Greg Clause got Hamilton's other goals.

Mike Kordy, with two, Paul Woods replied for the Sault.

Playing on Sault ice, the Greyhounds led 2-1 after the first period but the teams were tied 2-2 going into the final 20 minutes.

Hamilton's goalltender Greg Redquest blocked 28 shots, while Dave Legree handled 40 shoots in the Greyhound net.

Fincups 5 Tolves 0

Goaltender Gred Redquest blocked 32 shots to earn his first shutout of the season. Second-place Fincups scored four goals in the second period after a scoreless first period.

Hamilton goals went to Kam Brothers, Ted Long, Dale McCourt, Greg Hickey and Ron Roscoe.

Team captain George Ranier scored twice for Dundas with Fred Carter and Don Myers getting the other goals.

Fifty-six teams were entered in the four-division event with division setups determined by the hockey experience of each club.

Oshawa Drops a Pair

HAMILTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — The Oshawa, Ont., Tonys softball team ended its New Zealand tour on a controversial note Saturday.

The Canadians were beaten 7-2 and 2-1 by New Zealand in a double-header.

But noisy scenes followed New Zealand's second win when Phil Davies came home for the decisive winning run. Umpire Ray Lefford ruled that Davies had beaten the throw to catcher Bob Soloman, but the touring team disputed the decision.

Soloman threatened the umpire, pushing him back several yards before other players stepped in. The catcher then threw the ball some distance, while the crowd loudly booed him.

Early Lead Stands Up

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richard Petty took an early lead and breezed to a six-lap victory Sunday in the rain-delayed Richmond 500 Grand National stock car race.

The Dodge driver, who started on the pole position after setting a record of 93.340 miles an hour in Friday's qualifying trials, led 440 of the 500 laps.

It was Petty's 165th career triumph.

Petty averaged 74.913 m.p.h. on the .542-mile track with the race slowed down by seven caution flags for 92 laps. The race was an hour late starting because the track had to be dried off after a morning rain, and 40 laps were run early under the caution flag.

Second was Lennie Pond in a Chevrolet, followed by Benny Parsons in a Chevrolet, Dick Brooks in a Ford and Elmo Langley in a Ford.

Nordiques Break Hex But Winnipeg Can't

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Quebec Nordiques broke a jinx Sunday night while New England Whalers continued their hex over Winnipeg Jets in World Hockey Association play.

The Nordiques won their first game in four outings against San Diego Mariners with a 6-4 home-ice win while the Whalers ran their record against the Jets this season to 3-0 with a 2-1 overtime victory in Winnipeg.

In other action, Houston Aeros bombed Toronto Toros 5-1, Edmonton Oilers edged Minnesota Fighting Saints 6-4, Chicago Cougars nipped Vancouver Blazers 2-1 and Indianapolis Racers blanked Cleveland Crusaders 6-0.

Saturday night, Cleveland edged Toronto 4-3, Phoenix Roadrunners defeated Baltimore Blades 3-1 and Vancouver downed Houston 4-2.

Renald Leclerc's goal at 15:22 of the second period snapped a 3-3 tie and the Nordiques went on to record their 37th win of the year and open an eight-point bulge atop the Canadian Division.

"Leclerc has never skated like he did tonight this season," said Nordiques coach Jean-Guy Gendron. "He was good out there.

"I am happy we could win against a well-balanced team like that one."

Wayne Rivers scored three goals for the Mariners to run his total to 42 for the year but it was not enough.

"We were really flat in the first period," noted coach Harry Howell. "We were flat and they were flying. When the Nordiques are flying, you have to hit them. We didn't do it."

At Winnipeg, Tom Webster's goal at 5:21 of the sudden-death overtime gave the Whalers their win and sent Winnipeg to its sixth loss in seven overtime games this year.

All three New England wins over the Jets have been in Winnipeg. They meet three times in Hartford, Conn., next month.

"A sweep is something for us," noted Whalers' coach Ron Ryan. "We've been horrendous on the road, winning one and losing two, it seems."

"We shouldn't have needed overtime," snapped Jets coach Rudy Pilous. "We played much better territorially, but just made one mistake too many.

"We didn't work hard enough, particularly on the power play. When they score, only seconds after a power play begins, we can't be working hard enough."

Don Blackburn sent the game into overtime when he scored his seventh goal of the season at 7:48 of the third period 12 seconds after Thommie Bergman of Winnipeg was sent off for high sticking, giving New England their only manpower advantage in the game.

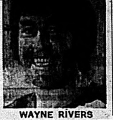
Anders Hedberg opened the scoring in the second period with his 34th goal of the season on a Jets power play.

Goaltender Wayne Rutledge made his first start in eight games for the Aeros at Houston, facing only 28 shots.

"Toronto looked tired. Of course, they played Saturday night and then had to travel. Their problem is they like to play offence, but not defence."

Andre Hinse scored two goals to lead the Aeros, who had 54 shots on goaltenders Norm Gratton and Les Binkley.

"If it wasn't for our goaltenders, we might have been beaten by 10 goals," said Toros coach Bob Leduc. "We've got a lot of injuries right now, but we're also not playing very well."



WAYNE RIVERS

Barry Long's two goals led Edmonton to its win over Minnesota, enabling the Oilers to regain third place in the Canadian Division. Edmonton leads Vancouver by a point and has a game in hand.

Rookie Gary MacGregor scored his 32nd goal of the year at 5:46 of the third period to snap a 1-1 and give the Cougars their third straight win.

Goaltender Andy Brown blocked 35 shots to record a shutout and Murray Heatley scored twice as Indianapolis blanked Cleveland.

Tonight, the Nordiques are home again to play the Mariners.

CAIRO (AP) — Tewfik Hakim sat in a carpeted, steel and glass nest in the headquarters of the newspaper Al Ahram and wagged an angry old finger at what he called the "new Egypt."

"We have acquired the habit of not thinking, not criticizing," fumed the 76-year-old novelist and playwright whom many regard as the Arab world's greatert living writer. "Students at the university have never heard of the word 'thinking'. It's never used."

Hakim blamed the authoritorian rule of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser and said Nasser left Egypt with a "very dangerous mentatlity"

Hakim's sixth-floor office in Al Ahram is in an eagle's nest of senior Egyptian intellectuals, including the novelist Neguib Mahfouz, short-story writer Youssef Idriss, journalist-novelist Ihsan Abdel Koddous, and a half-dozen more.

But Kakim scoffs at the label "the Tower of the Wise Old Men" given the suite by many Egyptians. "We are not wise," said Hakim. "We like to chatter a lot, that's all."

More often than not the talk is serious. Recently it has concerned the controversy surrounding Hakim's latest book—a 75-page attack on the Nasser regime.

Leftists and Nasserites, including deposed Al Ahram editor Hassanein Heykal, angrily attacked it, charging among other things, that he should have spoken while Nasser lived.

Booksellers report that the book, called The Return of Consciousness, has been confiscated by government censors.

Hakim's supporters say he published dozens of openly critical plays during the Nasser regime but that few people read them and that those who did were against the regime anyway.

"I was tolerated. They said, 'Well, he is like that.' They knew I had no ambitions, no bad intentions and that I was a friend, not an enemy of the regime. My tragedy is that I loved Nasser as a man."

Hakim was a true pioneer in modern Arabic literature. His first novel was said to be only the fourth ever written in Arabic and his prolific output of plays inspried two and possibly three generations of playwrights.

But more important, his writings were fiercely nationalistic and filled with calls for sweeping social reform, even revolution.

"They were all my readers when they were students," Hakim said of Nasser, President Anwar Sadat and the other young officers who overthrew King Farouk in 1952. "Nasser had a simple understanding of my mission."

Hakim's latest scuffle with the regime is not his first. In 1973 he helped write and then signed a protest to Sadat over the government's crackdown on student protesters. The letter led to a full-scale purge of journalists and intellectuals and a temporary ban against Hakim's writings.

Sadat soon backtracked and pictures of Sadat and Hakim, warmly shaking hands were published in the press.

Hakim is unrepentant. Unlike most of the current crop of Nasser critics, he will not say Sadat's widely acclaimed liberalization steps have vastly improved Egyptian life.

Hakim has avoided disgrace, partly because of the affection Nasser felt for his writings, partly because of his eminence as a literary pioneer, and partly, it seems, because the extraordinary figure cut by the novelist-playwright is too well known for the government to quietly put him away.

The beret he wears dates back to his student days in Paris and weathered the great Tarboush, (fez) Controversy of the 1930s when some Egyptian nationalists charged people like Hakim with threatening Egyptian life with Western ways—and hats.

His knobby cane is replaced every 10 years with a new one. His tight-fistedness is legend, although he quickly denies he is a miser and just as quickly admits it.

His suits are spacious. The suspendered trousers swallow half his necktie and his double - breasted suitcoats extend to his knees.

As Hakim talked to a visitor he summoned a string of his neighbors, including philosopher Zaki Neguib Mahmoud and Koddous, and gently browbeat them to sit, not only to help with his English, but also to enlarge his audience.

"We are his satellites," grinned Zaki Neguib.

Universal Alphabet Designed

NEW MARKET, Md. (AP) — Thirty-six years and 5,000 hours later, Dr. John V. Atanasoff says he is still working on his lifetime dream: A universal alphabet.

Atanasoff, 71, has developed an alphabetic system which resembles braille, the raised dots read by the blind. He said his system can be used to transcribe English on Russian just as easily as Japanese or French.

Atanasoff said his new alphabet drastically reduces the time necessary to learn to read and write and would at least double reading speed.

Atanasoff is not secretive about his system which is based on phonetic spelling and uses 35 symbols for transcribing English. The system has been designed to be scanned by electronic readers and requires only one-third the amount of space of the standard alphabet.

But Atanasoff and his wife Alice said that perfecting the system may take decades with no guarantee that it might ever be adopted by anyone.

Indeed, the retired theoretical physicist said: "I think my chances are damn poor, don't you?" Nevertheless, he continues to work on the project so that someone may be able to pick up where he leaves off.

The inventor has not assigned verbal sounds to match all the alphabetic symbols he has developed.

"I'm doing it on a very cautious basis because I'd like to have an alphabet that could be used for any language," he said.

Dead-letter Staff Finds Work Grows

TORONTO (CP) — Ivan Langdon and his staff of 20 are paid to open other people's mail.

They man the undeliverable mail department at the post office, an operation that is growing as poorly addressed mail increases.

Mr. Langdon, the dead-letter supervisor, said letters must be opened for clues as to where they come from when the writers neglect to put return addresses on envelopes.

That's when the work becomes interesting—not because of what is said to lovers or enemies, but because of strange enclosures.

Just about everything that fits into an envelope has turned up: a bullet, liquid hashish, ear rings, obsene literature, even hamster food.

Mr. Langdon, who has spent 37 of his 60 years with the post office, keeps the bullet, a .303, in the drawer of his antique wooden desk.

"As for the liquid hashish, it was found at the time of letter-bombs and the Israeli-Arab conflict and I thought it might have been some sort of explosive," he said.

"Some unidentified capsules turned out to be hamster food."

Lillian Matthews blushed when asked to talk about what she doesn't like to see and sees often:

"Well, let's just say it's all that obsene stuff. But it's not as bad now because the government cracked down on those people who used to send it out from Quebec and places in the United States."

During the year ending March, 1974, the Toronto office was able to mark 1,147,831 letters "return to sender."

Mr. Langdon estimated they represented about 80 per cent of all the letters that came into his office. He and his staff don't handle parcels.

The staff has had to be increased because of an increase in the amount of mail that has been coming in the last few months.

Ade Boriss, Mr. Langdon's assistant, said 626 of the 79,002 letters processed in a recent month had money inside them.

"It's usually a $5 or $10 bill from granny or an uncle, but it has been as little as one cent and as much as $3,000," she said.

"The $3,000 was all in $20 bills. Three people put in claims but we finally got the money back to the right sender."

Letters with money inside are given priority treatment. If the sender or receiver cannot be found, the money is deposited in the federal treasury.

Mr. Langdon said about $1,000 is found in the mails during an average month.

The couple met a year ago at a private party in Hollywood, where they will live following a honeymoon here.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mickey Rooney's fourth wife has sued for $14,350 in back alimony.

Elaine Mahnken Rooney has filed suit alleging that Rooney stopped paying her $500 monthly alimony in 1969.

Under terms of their 1961 divorce, he was to continue payments for 10 years. The suit asks seven per cent interest a year on the alimony.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Singer Andy Williams 47, was divorced by his French wife a week ago, court records revealed Friday.

Claudine Longet, 34, a former Folies Bergere dancer, filed for divorce Jan. 27 on grounds of irreconcilable differences. The divorce was granted Feb. 7.

The couple were married in Los Angeles in 1961, but had been separated for the last four years.

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge forbade the use Friday of Walt Disney's M-I-C-K-E-Y M-O-U-S-E march in a pornographic movie entitled The Life and Times of the Happy Hooker.

Judge Kevin Duffy upheld Walt Disney Productions' contention that use of the tune would be a copyright violation and rejected a defense claim that a "parody" was permissible.

Duffy also warned both sides they could face contempt action if they used his ruling to publicize the movie or the Mickey Mouse Club television program.

Biochemistry Of Man Wrong

LONDON (AP) — "The problem with 20th-century man is that he's still got Stone Age biochemistry," a leading British heart specialist said Sunday.

Dr. Malcolm Carruthers said modern man's heart is more suited to hunting the sabre-toothed tiger than coping with the bulls and bears of the stock market.

When he is angry, frightened or frustrated, special fats are poured into his bloodstream to provide energy to chase his prey or fight off that tiger, the doctor said.

Instead, he just sits at his desk and fumes. The fats go unburned, accumulate, and block blood vessels—a major cause of heart attacks, Dr. Carruthers said.

Injured at Work

BARI, Italy (AP) — A nine-year-old boy lost three fingers of his right hand in a kneading machine he operated in a bakery where he had been working illegally since he was eight, police said Sunday.

How the Colonel and his boys cook chicken finger lickin' good.

Some say the secret is in the seasoning, some say it's the special way of cooking. Some even go as far to say it is the magic of the Colonel himself.

But one thing is for certain, Kentucky Fried Chicken is, by all accounts, the tastiest chicken in all the land.

How is this so? Well, forgetting the secret recipe for a moment, let's look into the cooking.

First, there's pure vegetable oil. Then, in goes the chicken (already specially prepared in the Colonel's secret recipe of eleven different herbs and spices).

Clamp goes the lid of the cooker. The heat is at just the right temperature. And at exactly the right minute, not a fraction of a second earlier or later, out comes the Colonel's Kentucky Fried Chicken sealed full of flavour.

It's succulent and as tender as can be. One bite will tell you that what we say is true.

And you'll get lots of bites, because the Colonel believes in serving a hearty meal for your money.

And another thing, you never get stale or warmed over chicken. Kentucky Fried Chicken is cooked to be ready when you are.

The Colonel insists on it.

And so do all the Colonel's boys. You see, they've all been to the "Colonel's School of Chicken Knowledge" to learn the Colonel's special ways.

That's why, when you take home Kentucky Fried Chicken from any one of the 450 stores across Canada, you'll agree... it's finger lickin' good!

Colonel Sanders and his boys make it finger lickin' good.
Kentucky Fried Chicken.

To Your Good Health

Are Many Reasons For Dizzy Spells

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been getting dizzy spells, nausea with vomiting for from six to 10 hours at a time. This occurs when I get up in the morning. Once I was rushed to a hospital and had every conceivable test. Everything came back negative. One doctor said I have positional vertigo.

Is there any solution to my problem? I am a diabetic with congestive heart failure. I am 73 and am an active person.—Mrs. R. R.

A few thoughts come to mind. You have diabetes, heart trouble and you are 73 years old. Positional vertigo can be associated with any of these factors, and, with all three combined, it becomes an even greater possibility.

Another term for it is orthostatic hypotension. When you stand, your blood pressure remains low and does not adjust to the upright position as it normally should. If you have heart disease, the dizziness could be directly related to faulty circulation.

Your diabetes may be an even greater factor if there is some nerve complication. Also, if you are taking a long-acting insulin (such as protamine zinc) for the diabetes you may be having a low blood sugar problem in the morning.

You could try reducing the dosage, or perhaps have a light snack at bedtime as part of the treatment. You should ask your physician about this.

If you must live with your problem, there are some things you can do in a practical way to alleviate the unpleasant symptoms.

Try tensing your arm and leg muscles before rising. Flex your arms and legs, then sit up slowly and allow your feet to dangle over the edge of the bed for a few minutes as you sit there. Raise your arms, scratch your head, then get up slowly.

These gestures should perk up your blood pressure sufficiently so that when you stand it will be adjusted to the upright position.

Another thought: the vomiting suggests a disturbance in the balance mechanism of the inner ear such as that found in Meniere's disease. Congestion in the ear can occur during sleeping hours.

Finally, if you are on a diuretic for the congestive heart failure, this could cause a low potassium level, and since potassium is important in muscular activity this would be still another factor involved.

Jim: "One test of a really great player is that he is willing to trust his own judgment at the risk of looking silly, if the judgment turns out to be wrong."

Oswald: "Ira Rubin of New York is one player who is certainly willing to do this. Here is one of his hands to illustrate. He won the diamond lead and started after spades. East discarded the four of clubs on the second spade and Ira huddled for some time."

Jim: "Ira's huddles are likely to be productive. I assume he decided that East's club discard indicated five clubs."

Oswald: "He certainly did. Then he proceeded to play the whole hand on that assumption."

Jim: "He must have started by running all his trumps, and discarding a heart and two diamonds from dummy."

Oswald: "This produced a six-card ending with East hanging on to four clubs and two hearts. Now Ira cashed his last diamond and East had to chuck a heart to keep his four clubs. Ira cashed dummy's ace of hearts, led a club to his king and another club to dummy's seven to end play East."

Satellite Surveys Assist Ecologists

HALIFAX (CP) — Remote sensing has the capability of becoming "absolutely invaluable," in ecological and resource concerns, says Dr. L. W. Morley, chairman of the Canadian Remote Sensing Society (CRSS).

Remote sensing is not a science-fiction fad but a technological process of gathering and analysing information on the earth's surface from airplanes and satellites.

Dr. Morley, in Halifax for a CRSS meeting, said experiments and demonstrations with remote sensors have convinced scientists that development of this concept will "pay off for man" in about 10 years.

The sensors are a combination of scientific scanning and charting techniques, from radar to infra-red cameras, and can be used either by airplanes a few thousand feet above the earth's surface or by satellites orbiting the planet.

The information is fed into computers and analysed instantly, giving optimum information to scientists.

"The concept has some tremendous implications in agriculture, forestry, fisheries, number of subjects," Dr. Morley said.

"For example, information on the sea state, icebergs, water temperature and even current can be relayed to mariners and fishermen so they can track schools of fish over such a large area as the Grand Banks or possibly the North Atlantic."

Art Said Illegally Exported

ROME (AP) — Aurelio Schiavo, 69, has been charged with grand larceny and illegally exporting what art experts believe to be the original carving of the head of Christ from Michelangelo's Pieta Rondanini, police said Sunday.

The carving was apparently tossed away by the artist and used for centuries to prop up a wall of a house near Piazza Santa Maria in Trastevere in Rome. It was recovered early last year during restoration of the building, which is owned by Schiavo, police said.

In May, 1974, the fine arts superintendency asked Schiavo to hand over the marble head. But Schiavo said he couldn't find it and said it was stolen from his house by intruders. Police said a Rome judge issued the arrest warrant after investigating rumors that Schiavo deposited the carving in the safe of a Swiss bank.

Urge Nationalization

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Blaming the energy crisis on efforts by the giant oil companies to "fatten the profits," the AFL-CIO says Congress should take steps toward nationalizing the industry.

The AFL-CIO executive council, which ends its winter meeting here today, has called for legislation that would transfer into government hands the authority for importing oil. The proposal would require the oil companies to sell their marketing operations and holdings in other energy sources, such as coal and natural gas.

Price Cuts Likely

DETROIT (AP) — Car rebate offers expire this week and Ford Motor Co. is expected to match General Motors' decision to lower the price tag on some compact models by eliminating some standard equipment.

The $100 to $600 rebates, which went into effect in early January, lowered new car inventories, but not nearly enough to force the car companies to increase production and call back workers.

Sun Blamed

OSLO (AP) — A railway official says the low winter sun may have caused the train collision that killed 27 persons, including a member of the Norwegian parliament and an musician from the United States.

Twenty-six persons were injured 15 of them seriously.

"One factor we cannot exclude in our investigation is the low southern sun shining directly against the signal lights," said the official. That would "cause problems in observing the lights."

On Hunger Strike

DUBLIN (AP) — Ten more prisoners have started a hunger strike at the Curragh military camp southwest of Dublin, relatives reported today.

Parliamentary TV May Be Inaugurated

OTTAWA (CP) — Television watchers might get an unprecedented glimpse this week of a parliamentary committee at work.

The Senate legal affairs committee meets Tuesday to sort out final logistics of televising its proceedings. The meeting follows last week's landmark Senate decision to allow television and radio broadcasts of the committee's cannabis hearings.

The bill under consideration would lighten the penalties for simple possession of marijuana and hashish. Some senators said they were afraid radio and television would play up sensational aspects of the hearings.

"The mood of the media is not always to be trusted," said Senator Margaret Norrie (L—Nova Scotia), who opposed the motion to let cameras and tape recorders into the meetings.

"If they were to pick up the things that we treasure and love, and try to promote those, then that would be fine," she told the Senate. "But they can also pick up things that are not to our credit and that is what I worry about."

Approval of the motion marked the first time that broadcast of any day-to-day parliamentary procedures has been authorized. Cameramen film the start of committee meetings, but had to stop as soon as official proceedings began.

In the Commons this week, debate of the mammoth omnibus income tax bill continues. Clause-by-clause consideration of the bill today enters its 17th day.

Gerald Baldwin, Progressive Conservative House leader, said Friday that Commons consideration of the bill might be finished by mid-week "if we get some answers from Finance Minister John Turner."

Mine Cleanup Order Essential Says Lewis

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, says the provincial government had no alternative but to order a clean-up of the Johns-Manville company's open-pit mine near Timmins, Ont.

He told 300 members of the United Auto Workers Saturday that Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, is in a vulnerable position and must not let the company intimidate the government.

The company voluntarily closed down the mine Thursday and said it could not meet provincial asbestos-dust standards. About 200 employees were laid off. Health officials have said that asbestos, ingested in anything but small amounts, can cause cancer.

"Premier (William) Davis has the full opportunity to see that no workers' lives are jeopardized and I think he feels under the gun on the health and safety issues of the workplace," said Mr. Lewis.

May Shun Asbestos

TORONTO (CP) — A section of the Ontario construction industry has warned it will refuse to work with materials containing asbestos unless it receives better protection from the potentially dangerous fibres.

Gerry Gallagher, president of Local 183, Laborers' International Union of North America, said Saturday that unless steps are taken to ensure the men's safety, they will refuse to handle such materials.

He called for an urgent meeting with Ontario Premier William Davis, manufacturers, contractors, and safety officials in an effort to resolve the situation.

Health officials have said asbestos fibres, in anything but small amounts, can cause cancer.

Union concern arose Friday after Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democrat member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, said asbestos is contained in the cement used by the province's dry wall industry.

Douglas Makes Prediction

Prices of Gasoline, Oil May Rise 8 to 10 Cents

OTTAWA (CP)—Gasoline and heating oil prices will rise eight to 10 cents a gallon across the country by the end of June, T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-the Islands) forecast Monday night.

He predicted in the Commons that a $2 increase—to $8.50 a barrel—in the price of domestic crude oil will be approved when Prime Minister Trudeau and the premiers meet April 9-10.

This would boost retail prices about seven cents a gallon, he said later in an interview. An additional one-cent to three-cents increase would result from the government-approved end last week of voluntary price restraints on oil companies.

"That's eight cents to 10 cents over-all," Mr. Douglas said.

Voluntary price restraints, announced in September, 1973, were lifted Friday, freeing companies to increase prices to match rising production costs. Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday that the increases will be monitored closely.

Domestic crude oil, now fixed at $6.50 a barrel, is used in all markets west of the Ottawa Valley. Imported oil supplies most markets in and east of the valley.

Mr. Douglas said price increases likely will apply in both markets because an increase in the domestic crude price would reduce the money Ottawa collects from the federal export tax on crude sold to the United States. The tax is used to subsidize oil prices in eastern Canada, keeping them roughly in line with retail rates in the rest of the country.

Exported oil is sold at the going international rate of about $12 a barrel. The export tax is charged at a rate equal to the difference between the world price and the fixed domestic price. The gap between the two, and in turn th export tax rate, would narrow with any domestic price increase.

Blue-collar Strike Enters Ninth Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Revolving strikes by federal blue-collar workers entered their ninth day today following agreement Monday to allow delivery of government welfare and pension cheques and an announcement that the government intends to take action against workers who strike illegally.

Meanwhile, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said in the Commons that departments already have begun to collect information for charges against workers who walk off their jobs illegally. About 3,600 PSAC members, designated essential to public safety and security, are forbidden to strike and are subject to $100 fines.

Among workers designated essential are some airport runway cleaners and workers who take care of animals at federal agricultural stations.

Toronto Could Get No Mail For Two Months

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto could be without mail service for the next two months, Lou Murphy, president of the Toronto local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Monday.

Mr. Murphy's men, along with 3,500 members of Local 1, Canadian Union of Letter Carriers, were laid off last Wednesday when mail truck drivers honored picket lines set up by postal maintenance men.

"I really believe they (the government) think they can give us a black eye by prolonging the strike by the Public Service Alliance workers," he said in an interview.

Turner to Tour Mideast To Discuss Oil Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner will be touring Middle East countries in the last two weeks of April to meet leaders of major oil-producing countries, a spokesman for his office said Monday.

Mr. Turner will make the trip as chairman of an International Monetary Fund (IMF) policy committee but the spokesman said he also will be discussing issues involving Canada and the Arab countries. He is to leave April 16 Investment of oil wealth in Canada may be discussed along with other trade and aid issues.

Mr. Turner is chairman of the IMF committee established to set up a permanent council of political leaders within the IMF. The international agency, which has more than 100 countries as members, deals with such issues as the rules for currency trading.

One pressing current issue before the IMF is to get co-operation in redistributing profits of oil-producing countries without upsetting other national economies.

Await Announcement On Future of NORAD

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is expected to indicate this week how long it will extend the life of the North American Air Defence Agreement (NORAD) with the United States.

Defence Minister James Richardson is expected to give the indication in a scheduled appearance before the Commons defence and external affairs committee.

NORAD, the agreement under which the United States and Canada share North American defence against the manned bomber, is due for renewal May 1.

Prime Minister Trudeau gave strong indication in a Washington news conference in December that Canada will renew the agreement but he gave no hint of the length of time.

It is reported that the U.S. wants at least a five-year renewal and would be unhappy with a repeat of the two-year renewal now expiring.

NORAD is a highly flexible agreement from which either country can easily withdraw.

It calls for a joint North American air defence headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., and little else. Neither country is committed to specific numbers of aircraft or other equipment.

These levels are worked out by officials and amended from time to time.

Oil Lands Seek Way To Maintain 'Take'

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The 13-country oil cartel met today to discuss proposals designed to minimize the loss of revenue due to the declining value of the dollar and the reduced demand for oil. But Iran's delegate said he will oppose a price increase.

"We have already decided to freeze the prices until the end of September, and we are not going back on that promise," said Iranian Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar.

Since the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) are paid for their oil in dollars, Kuwait proposed that they increase their prices in proportion to the decline in the value of the dollar in the five strongest European currencies and the Japanese yen.

Algeria and Iraq proposed scrapping the dollar for oil payments and using a stronger but as yet unspecified single currency.

Greece Foils Plan for Coup

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government is reported interrogating at least 30 officers to find out how much of the armed forces was involved in an attempt to overthrow Premier Constantine Caramanlis and return former military dictators to power.

The government announced Monday it has suppressed an attempt to restore the military junta that collapsed seven months ago. Military sources said the conspirators arrested included the commander of the main tank division in Athens, a brigadier-general, two colonels and a number of majors and captains.

"His temperature rose somewhat and his blood pressure dropped," said the spokesman for the 79-year-old Conservative MP. However, his ailment was not considered serious.

Hastings Will Train Driving Instructors

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Hastings County Board of Education trustees voted Monday to both increase the pay rates of driver training instructors and to provide a summer course to train these instructors.

Instructors' pay will increase to $12 from $10 in class and to $8 from $5 in cars. The proposed training course will be held locally, in either July or August or both with provision for participation by nearby counties.

The board acted on recommendations of a task force established Nov. 25, which conducted a survey of area secondary schools and held a meeting with provincial government representatives.

"If we are teaching subjects which are pertinent when they (students) leave school . . . this is one area which we should be getting more into," commented Don Williams, task force chairman.

Trustee Williams said he hoped the minister would decide to make driver education courses mandatory and have them allowed as credit courses, in view of alarming accident figures involving drivers in the 16 to 25 age group.

Mr. Williams reported the basic answer from the eight-school survey was "a lack of qualified teachers" in driver education.

Total results showed 487 students took the course in 1973-74 and 506 are taking it this school year. It is estimated 851 students will want to enter the course in 1975-76.

However, in all the schools, there are but 15 active driver education teachers "in class" and 19 "in car". It is also estimated 400 students per year are turned down due to lack of qualified instructors.

Vice-chairman Miriam Graham suggested the board approach Loyalist College in an students will want to enter the effort to alleviate the problem, perhaps collaborating with the college on student driver courses.

Smuggling Is Often Problem On Belleville's Waterfront

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Smuggling is one of the problems in the domain of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. While in Belleville smuggling is not as widespread as in the border communities, it is still carried on.

Corporal Ron Hartlen, NCO in charge of the Belleville detachment on Haig Rd., said that summer tourists coming here by water account for a lot of the smuggling.

The commanding officer of 'O' Division of the RCMP Assistant Commissioner, E. R. Lysyk says that changing times, with more people travelling, has brought about a new aporoach to the encorcement of such federal laws as the Customs Act.

The volume of traffic in and out of Canada and the need to keep this traffic flowing with little interruption, hampnew approach to the enforcers Custom officials in trying to control smuggling at the border points Customs officers can only check a small percentage of the cars, trucks, boats, aircraft and people entering Canada daily.

A developing trend noted by the RCMP is the smuggling of jewellry, caused in part by the instability of the dollar, a continuing rise in the price of gold, and the constant value of precious metals and jewellry.

Taxes imposed on jewellry imported into Canada include Customs duties, excise tax and federal sales tax. A ring bought for $200 in Europe would be taxed $84.

Upon detection, the smuggler loses the jewellry. Often the vehicle used to transport the contraband is seized and if there is enough evidence, charges are laid and the offender brought to court. While a fine is levied for a first offence, a second offence brings a minimum penalty of one year's imprisonment.

In the Great Lakes area, Assistant Commissioner Lysyk said, a brisk trade is carried on in the importation of marine accessories such as depth finders, radios, sails, etc. The RCMP warns boat owners who travel to the U.S. and who equip their pleasure craft with these items not to fail to declare the items when they return to Canada.

The manufacture, possession and sale of illicit spirits are other offences within the jurisdiction of the RCMP.

Cambodia's Reds Intensify Attacks

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodia's Communist-led Khmer Rouge rebels intensified their rocket attack on Phnom Penh today as United States diplomats reported a U.S. airlift had delivered more than 1,000 tons of ammunition in 24 hours, a record.

"We are going even higher," said one official.

Meanwhile, the U.S. embassy in Saigon announced that the airlift will be expanded Thursday to fly 545 tons of rice and 62,500 gallons of gasoline and other petroleum products from the South Vietnamese capital to besieged Phnom Penh.

Three commercial DC-8 aircraft will begin carrying rice and some fuel today or Wednesday, increasing to five aircraft and six or seven flights a day for no longer than a 30-day period, Assistant State Secretary Philip Habib said.

The airlift coincides with warnings by Hebib that the Lon Nol government cannot survive more than a month or two without additional U.S. military aid.

The Khmer Rouge fired 22 107-millimetre rockets into Phnom Penh and its airport between 2 a.m. and noon. They wounded four persons, damaged several shops and set a DC-3 owned by a Cambodian airline afire. None of the airlift planes were hit

The Khmer Rouge also kept up heavy shelling at the Neak Luong naval base, the major position still held by the government on the Mekong River southeast of Phnom Penh.

Cambodian military sources reported that despite the insurgents' guns along both sides of the river, fresh government troops were landed on a strategic island across from Neak Luong, and more government forces were put ashore five miles to the south to reinforce a threatened position.

REAL ESTATE:

DO YOU REALLY OWN LAND?

Ed. McKinney
J. E. McKinney
Realty Ltd.

Do you really own the land you live on? Yes, but not unconditionally. There's no question that you, your family, and heirs have strong historic right to your own land. You can build on it, dig in it, keep others away from it, sell it, give it away, or borrow on it.

But your rights do not override certain public rights. A utility company may buy rights-of-way for power lines. The telephone company may have the right to a five-foot easement for poles along your backlot line. Similar easements are purchased or granted for local electric power lines, underground sewer piping, natural gas lines, and water supply piping.

You should know about all easements, rights and claims made on your land while you are living on it. This is the reason for a title search prior to purchase. When it's completed, you'll know if your title to the property is, or is not, free and clear of all "encumbrances" and if not, what they are.

Trenton Residents Asked:

Should Dundas Street Bridge be Replaced?

The half-century swing bridge on Dundas St., Trenton's main artery, has fallen into a state of disrepair that engineers estimate will cost $.5-million to rectify.

Replacement costs for the structure are higher — estimated at some $1.5-million.

Downtown shoppers selected at random in Trenton were asked whether the rusty structure should be replaced by a bridge similar to the MacDonald bridge. Their replies:

SHARON RICHARDSON

Trentonian Sharon Richardson says the old bridge does tie up traffic in summer, and a bridge, other than a swing bridge would help solve the problem immensely."

However, she says, in the winter, the MacDonald bridge is funnelling traffic off and the old structure then is "doing the job."

GREER BLACK

Carrying Place resident Greer Black says a new bridge, wider and similar to the MacDonald bridge, would end traffic bottlenecks.

"It might be quite a while before you see it," he says, in acknowledging that its both "a good idea" and inevitable to replace it.

CLYDE MASON

Part owner of Quinte Transport Lt., Clyde Mason, paused to clean his glasses before replying the bridge should be replaced before "it gradually deteriorates to the point when it will have to be replaced."

"I don't believe its a hazard at the moment however, "he says, "in the sense that its going to fall down."

THERESA CLINE

Theresa Cline, of Brighton, who is both a motorist and a boat enthusiast, says that for the size of this area, "this one replaced by one similar to the MacDonald bridge would be adequate."

She gets caught both ways by the swing section in that she must not only wait for the bridge to close when she plies the roadways, but must wait for it to open when she plies the waterways.

"It's a drawback to have to wait," she says.

GARRET FERGUSON

Trenton needs three bridges, including a new Dundas St. bridge, says life-long town resident Garret Ferguson.

He suggests a new structure vault across the Trent River between the Trenton Community Gardens and Cresswell Ave. That way, "traffic would be missing the centre of town altogether."

The existing bridge is almost impassable during the time (4 to 5.30 p.m.) when CFB Trenton personnel are on their way home, be says.

PENNY GORDON

Penny Gordon, who has been in the Quinte area for four years and frequently travels to Trenton, says the bridge is not only an eyesore, but dangerous, in that it is too narrow, and the grading on the swing portion becomes slippery in winter.

Not only do the approaches act as a bottle-neck for traffic, but the bridge itself, "gets conjested even when it is not open", a situation, she says that should not occur on the main street of Trenton, "which also needs re-doing."

A Cup O' Tea, Mum?

Freckled-faced brothers Phillip, 9, (left) and Jimmy Smith, 8, prepared for the onslaught of tea drinkers this weekend in the Trenton district council tea, cake and craft sale at Canterbury Hall. The ninth Trenton Wolf Cubs and their fellows raised $478 during the day-long event. The dollars go to the fund for sending nine scouts to Norway for the World Jamboree this summer.

Price Wants More Council Business Done in Public

TRENTON — Caucus sessions are getting bigger than regular council meetings that are publically aired, councillor Ron Price said here Monday as he flipped through the pages of a caucus session agenda.

His objections came after council recently revamped its meeting procedures. At present, council meets every second Monday in committee of the whole and then regular council. Both meetings, back to back by the clock, are broadcast.

The policy marks a departure from the previous policy of allowing only regular sessions to be broadcast Committee meetings were not aired, but the press was present.

Mr. Price said he will wait for another couple meetings to see the results of his objections.

Council met in caucus after Monday's regular session to discuss, said Mayor Robert Patrick, three items dealing with salaries and union business.

Items on agendas for caucus, said the mayor, are included as based on the judgement of deputy clerk Arden Royce.

Adding to discussion, clerk-administrator Aubrey Sharp said some members of the public have indicated that they would prefer to meet with council in closed session if the need arose.

Four Businessmen Join County Board

PICTON — Four Prince Edward County businessmen have been appointed to serve as non-elected members of county council's economic development committee for 1975.

Named to the committee were Bruce Price, vice-president of operations at the Picton plant of Lake Ontario Cement Ltd., Harvey J. McFarland Jr. of H.J. McFarland Construction, J.W. Stewart of Proctor-Lewyt Division of SCM (Canada) Ltd. and Joseph Karaz of the Campbell Soup Company Ltd. plant near Wellington.

The men will serve with county councillor Robert Boyce, chairman of the committee, Gordon Babbitt, George Foster, Keith MacDonald and Jack Wells.

Heart Flag Stolen

PICTON — Vandals here have stolen the penant emblem of the Heart Fund from atop the flag pole at Picton Public Library.

Police have no clues as to the flag's whereabouts.

Yacht Club Entered, Again

PICTON — Police reported Monday the third break-in at Prince Edward Yacht Club in the past three weeks.

Picton police chief Charles Fletcher said eight part-bottles of liquor were stolen when the thief or thieves entered the club house after smashing a window.

Last week the club house was entered and part-bottles of liquor and some meat taken.

The week before, approximately $400 in cash was stolen.

The most recent break-in, reported Monday, is believed to have occurred Sunday night.

Stolen Car Recovered

PICTON — Town police this week are investigating the theft of a car owned by Vernon Wheeler of Picton.

Stolen from Bowery St. between 10 p.m. Sunday and 2:30 a.m. Monday, the vehicle was recovered by the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police Monday on a Hallowell Township road.

Picton police chief Charles Fletcher said the 1965 Pontiac apparently had struck a telephone pole and damage toalling about $500 was reported to the front end of the car.

Poor Turnout of Donors May Mean Clinic Move

MARMORA — Disappointment with results obtained from the Tri-town blood donor clinics has led the Marmora Branch of the Red Cross Society to a decision to request that the next blood donor clinic be held in Marmora.

A review of the number of units collected at the clinics held at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc, was contained in the report of Bernice Smith, blood donor committee chairman at the annual meeting of the Marmora branch.

At the two clinics last year 121 and 101 units were collected. Mrs. Smith reported that Red Cross headquarters does not feel it is worthwhile to set up a clinic for less than 100 units.

The main reason for the small turnout of donors seemed to be the failure of the planning committee of the donor clinics to follow through on publicity in each of the three centres of Tweed, Madoc and Marmora.

There was a strong feeling among members that Marmora could do better on its own. It was decided that Mrs. Smith should write to Red Cross headquarters, in Toronto, requesting that the next clinic, scheduled for May, be held here.

In the event headquarters has decided to again use Madoc, they will be requested to consider Marmora for a fall clinic.

"We will all have to work very hard to put it over but I'm sure we can do it," President Edith Wisti commented.

Crossing Guards Get $2 - a - week Increase

TRENTON — Town council approved a $2-a-week raise for Trenton's 16 school crossing guards in order to bring them up to the minimum needed to qualify for Unemployment Insurance Commission benefits in the summer months.

Council's action here Monday came after the guards filed a petition asking for a $5-a-week raise from their present level of $35. The guards also wanted Christmas and Easter holidays paid, but the request was denied.

The pay hike comes into effect March 3.

During discussion, Mayor Robert Patrick suggested council keep in mind that the guards received a 16 per cent ($5 on top of the former wage of $30-a-week) increase as late as September, 1974.

He said compliance with the request for another $5 would mean the guards would receive a 33.3 per cent increase.

He warned that such a large raise to one group of town employees would be thrown in the town's face when it negotiates with other town employees.

Festival Given $100

TRENTON -- The Rotary Club music festival, now under way in Belleville and Trenton, will receive a $100 donation from town council, it was decided here Monday.

The donation is the first under council's now "first come, first served" policy of spending $1,000 it recently set aside for donations to various groups.

Curator Sought

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has been informed the county museum committee is seeking a new curator.

The job has been advertised in Quinte area papers and if no satisfactory replies are received the position will be publicized in a Torolnto paper.

Curator for the Prince Edward County museum in 1974 was Rose Marie Metcalfe of RR2, Milford.

Mounting Vandalism Concerns Wannamaker

TRENTON — Over the last month, vandals in Trenton seem to be "destroying everything in sight" and something should be done about it, says town councillor Robert Wannamaker.

Councillor Wannamaker made his complain known Monday and said he feels "justice is not being done."

The police, he said, "are sticking their necks out to bring vandals in and they're getting off."

As a solution to the problem, he suggested council officially petition the provincial government to change some of its laws.

"Maybe it we jar them a little, we'll get some action out of the "Big Blue Machine," he suggested in referring to the provincial Conservative Party of Premler William Davis.

He claimed vandals had taken a $4,000—$5,000 toll in parking meters over the past month, not only at the town hall, but throughout Trenton.

In answer to Mr. Wannamaker's complaints, Mayor Robert Patrick suggested the councillor prepare a brief to submit to Queen's Park.

Double Jeopardy

This open bird feeder, built by a Picton man, daily recorded a large number of bluejays, grossbeaks and sparrows until recently. This month at least three cats in the neighborhood have discovered the feeder as an ideal lookout complete with roof for protection in stormy weather. Yesterday birds who considered stopping in for a free meal were plainly in double jeopardy.

Stinger Charged with Theft

PICTON — Town police today reported a Picton man has been charged on two counts of theft and a charge of possession of marijuana.

Constable George Wright, the investigating officer, said Bruce Stinger, 19, of Picton, has been charged with theft of a tape deck, tapes and a tool chest taken on separate occasions from two cars.

He has also been charged with possession of marijuana.

Items taken from the cars last week were recovered Friday during a police investigatin.

THE SOURCE AND THE SOLUTION

"I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me . . . . I form the light and create darkness; I make peace, and create evil . . . I have made the earth, and created man upon it: I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded . . . Declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure" (Isa. 45:5,7,12; 46:10).

The Scriptures were "written for our admonition upon whom the ends of the world are come" (Ist Cor. 10:11), the day in which we now live. They reveal that when man defied God's laws they reaped corruption, trouble and sorrow. When they obeyed they reaped righteousness, peace and joy. This has been particularly true concerning the people God choose especially for Himself - the ten tribes of Ephraim-Israel (the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic nations) and the two tribes of Judah (Amos 3:1, 2; Deut. 7:6).

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God: having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof" (2nd Tim. 3:1-5).

We are living today under these very conditions. Why? Not having learned anything from the experiences of our forefathers we today are making the same mistake they made and we are, as a consequence, receiving the same chastisement. And what mistake was that? "Hear ye this, O house of Jacob (the twelve tribes), which are called by the name of Israel (the ten tribes), and are come forth out of the waters of Judah (the two tribes), which swear by the name of the Lord and make mention of the God of Israel, BUT NOT IN TRUTH, NOR IN RIGHTEOUSNESS" (Isa. 48:1). "For the house of Israel and the house of Judah have dealth very treacherously against me, saith the Lord" (Jer. 5:11). As with our forefathers so with us, we claim to worship God but we make our own laws and reject His. We say, "The Lord seeth us not; the Lord hath forsaken the earth" (Ezek. 8:12).

But "Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6-7). And God takes full responsibility for inflicting upon us the result of our disobedience. "I also will choose their delusions, and will bring their fears upon them; because when I called, none did answer; when I spake they did not hear: but they did evil before mine eyes, and chose that in which I delighted not" (Isa. 66:4).

"Hear, O earth: behold I will bring evil upon this people, even the fruit of their thoughts, because they have not hearkened unto my words, nor to my law, but rejected it" (Jer. 6:19).

"To whom shall I speak, and give warning, that they may hear? behold, their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot hearken: behold, the word of the Lord is unto them a reproach; they have no delight in it . . . for from the least of them even unto the greatest of them every one is given to covetousness; and from the prophet even unto the priest every one dealeth falsely" (Jer. 6:10, 13).

"I smote you with blasting and with mildew and with hail in all the labours of your hands; yet ye turneth not to me, saith the Lord" (Haggai 2:17).

And there is much more to come: "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no nor ever shall be. And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved; but for the elect's sake (the twelve tribes of Ephraim-Israel and Judah) those days shall be shortened" (Matt. 24: 21.22).

When are we going to wake up, turn to God, acknowledge that all of our troubles - political, financial and social - are coming from Him because of our violation of His laws, search His word of truth, the Bible, to learn His laws, both for the nation and for the individual, and be governed by them!

When we do - "Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it" (Malachi 3:10).

Little Miracle

Tony Ilan is a 4½-year-old Smith Falls youngster and he recently became only the third child in Canada to have a nuclear pacemaker to help him cope with a congenital heart condition.

Such developments in heart medicine are made possible through the contributions of citizens and they are in the public eye during this Heart Month.

The Ilan boy has been under treatment at Kingston General and it was there that he received the pacemaker — the hospital's first.

Just how important are the public's co-operation and their donations to heart medicine may be appreciated from a remark by Mrs. Heather Moore of Kingston. In Belleville last week. Mrs. Moore, the Heart Fund's coordinator for eastern Ontario, said of the Ilan boy's operation: "It is one of those little miracles that happen from time to time."

And so it is. It will enable him to lead a normal life with the exception of heavy contact sports and tumbling in gymnastics.

Passing Scene

Observing the last days of the sturdy building block next door to this office brought the inevitable sense of regret and nostalgia.

Amid the rust and rubble scattered across the old site soon to give birth anew, images arose of the city's not too distant past. Other perhaps stranger reflections passed through the dark shadows of the toppling masonry, visions heightened by the lights of the street. A surviving — but not for long — gable hung eerily in the night air like some Roman ruin. Hints too of The Alamo.

And remembering also the mini-garden which for the space of a summer or two added a touch of greenery and floral enhancement to the open area alongside.

It is all gone now, but its passing, as of human life, nevertheless will leave its mark in the halls of memory.

A Harsh System

Columnist John Harbron's reminder of the true nature of Soviet society — the labor camps, the secret police, the absence of civil liberties, the refusal even to permit a young actress to travel to the United States to see her ailing father — is timely in a world that often seems inordinately in awe or admiration of socialism Soviet-style.

A recent issue of Northern Neighbors, a Canadian left-wing journal published in Gravenhurst, extolled the virtues of socialism, and how in its view it was gaining ground around the world.

Like the publications of the Soviet Embassy, Northern Neighbors presents the Communist world and its authoritarian system through rose-tinted spectacles. Much else that we know to be harsh and an invasion of personal liberty, not to mention the consumer shortages and general aura of backwardness, is never mentioned.

Democracy as we know it has many imperfections too, but it is never without the essential element of individual freedom that is missing in the Communist world.

Sounds Familiar

Speaking of old papers and the reading of them. It's an exercise that often confirms the old adage about there being no new thing under the sun.

Only a few weeks have elapsed since a strike of construction workers halted progress on the Olympic site in Montreal.

Did it sound familiar? Yes, in the general pattern of work stoppages in Canada.

But how many remember events on the labor scene in Quebec in 1969?

Canadian Press reported in May of that year Labor Minister Bellemare was burned in effigy by demonstrators. They were protesting the provincial government's attitude in a construction workers' strike which had paralysed most projects in the Quebec City area since May 12.

Agitation . . . confrontation: it has been a familiar theme in Canada in recent years. Part of the democratic process no doubt, but with overtones also of deliberate planning by the labor movement. Labor is within its rights in seeking a better deal although in Quebec, as in other parts of the country, it has not always been in the best interests of the economy or of Canadians at large.

Toward Greater Equality

Husbands May Invest Retirement Savings for Wives

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The unisex movement has gradually been creeping into the field of tax and welfare policy.

Discrimination against men in some instances and women in others—as well as against single people of both sexes in still others—is giving way to equal treatment.

The new trend is in part a recognition of the egalitarian temper of the times, and in part an acceptance of the long-established U.S. practice of treating husband and wife as equal partners for taxation purposes.

Canadian law was changed in recent years to recognize the concept of the marital unit for purposes of death duties, gift taxes and the income tax on capital gains—all to the decided benefit of married couples.

Now, for the first time, the same concept is being applied to investment in the popular registered retirement savings plans (RRSP) and to the proceeds of those plans upon retirement.

Investment in an RRSP, if made not later than March 1, 1975, may be deducted from 1974 taxable income.

This year's change is that RRSP investment is no longer confined to those who earn income.

To take a typical case, a taxpaying husband now may invest in an RRSP on behalf of his wife, even though she may have no taxable earned income.

The husband's contribution would still be subject to the same limit—20 per cent of earned income but no more than $4,000 for those not in a pension group, or $2,500 (less other pension contributions) for participants in a pension plan.

But the wage-earning spouse may apply the deduction against his taxable income, even though the future annuity or other proceeds of the RRSP are destined for the other spouse.

The advantage in such an arrangement is that the income tax repayable when the RRSP is ultimately "deregistered" (that is, after the husband retires) would be less if the proceeds were paid to a wife receiving only Old Age Security benefits than if they went to the husband who might be receiving much higher income in the form of corporate and government pensions as well as OAS benefits.

(Obviously, the appeal of such a tax-saving arrangement is diminished in the case of a marriage that is in danger of breaking up.)

Taking effect with the 1975 tax year is a new tax exemption applying to as much as $1,000 of pension income per year (but not applying to Canada Pension Plan benefits.)

When this new exemption is combined with all other abatements and deductions that are available to taxpayers age 65 or more, it would enable an income-splitting couple to increase the tax exemption on their income by 55 per cent more than in the case of a couple not taking advantage of these provisions.

That advantage could rise to as much as 68 per cent if each spouse were to receive $1,000 annually in tax-exempt income from interest or dividends.

If the government continues its policy of "indexing"—that is, increasing various exemptions in proportion to the rise in the consumer price index—then there could be a further significant increase in the amount of retirement income that would be tax-exempt.

Solicitor-General

George Kerr's Resignation

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — The resignation of George Kerr as solicitor-general at first glance could look like a mistake.

One of the reasons Mr. Kerr gave was that because of allegations made against him there was a cloud over the government (as well as himself and his important office.)

A resignation would seem to only add to this cloud, in view of the fact that sections of the public can be expected on a cursory glance to accept the resignation as some evidence of guilt.

However on second view it is apparent that not only was this the only choice open to Mr. Kerr but that it also was a wise move politically.

He will be called as a witness at a criminal trial in which these allegations against him can figure.

His evidence would be widely reported and it would appear as unwholesome for the man who is the top man in law enforcement in the province to seem to be defending himself while still carrying on that office.

There really wasn't any choice as a public official.

But beyond this, politically the resignation almost certainly will serve Mr. Kerr better than remaining in office.

First of all it gave him an opportunity to offer what amounted to a full rebuttal in advance of any court appearance. It enabled him to get his statement in first thus, in effect, putting his accusers on the defensive, rather than being on it himself, and taking much of the sting out of any adverse public reaction.

Then he was given the full endorsement of Premier Davis in that the premier gave public assurance that he would be taking the former Solicitor-General back in the cabinet once he had been cleared.

Further it gave him the opportunity to say that he would be staying in politics; giving a further public indication he was completely innocent.

One can't prejudge the court proceedings concerned.

But irrelevant of the circumstances in this case it incidentally shows how easy it could be to ruin a man in public life.

Just make any type of accusations against him and his career could be finished. For as we all know once accusations are made the public tendency is to suspect guilt even if a man is completely cleared.

Amtrak Trains Picking up Business in U.S.

Baltimore Sun

There can be no doubt that rail passenger service represents the best potential way of hauling large numbers of people between urban areas less than 300 miles or so distant from one another. Likewise rail passenger service, if it is comfortable and convenient, can attract passengers for much longer trips where speed is not a prime need. So it is a tragedy of massive proportions that Americans after World War 11 allowed rail passenger service to decline almost to the point of disappearance, hastening the decline by providing huge subsidies for less efficient and more environmentally damaging transportation systems such as highways and expressways.

The energy and environmental crises have required that Americans rethink these earlier blunders, and although the nation has by no means accomplished the turnaround that would be desirable, there is good evidence now that a passenger train revival is virtually inevitable. Officials of Amtrak, the federal rail passenger service, are a different breed from the earlier private railroad officials who allowed, even encouraged, the decline of passenger service; Amtraks's enthusiasm for expanded passenger service cannot be doubted.

This enthusiasm is matched by a growing optimism, which seems to be warranted by the immense improvements that have already come, or are coming in the future, to the Amtrak system. Among these improvements is a program, now well along, for refurbishing old passenger cars; new rules under which railroad companies are penalized for delaying Amtrak trains or for not properly cleaning and maintaining these trains when they have a contract to do so; and a great deal of modern, efficient new equipment such as the French turbotrains now being used in the Midwest. Coming soon will be more of the turbotrains, 292 high-performance coaches to be used on the shorter-haul interurban trips and 250 double-decker long distance coaches, these to include showers for passengers, the dream of transcontinental train passengers in past years.

There seems no doubt that Amtrak's aggressive efforts to improve passenger service have paid off. Ridership in 1974 was up 21 percent over the previous year. Although this figure is skewed a bit by heavy use during last winter's gasoline shortages, none the less there is a clear trend toward increased passenger loadings;

GO Trains and Washroom Needs

Oshawa Times

News that our GO trains are finally going to provide facilities for passengers who have to will come as a great relief to commuters in Durham. And that will put them well ahead of the downtown shopper in Oshawa.

Restaurants, theatres and hotels have washrooms, of course, but those facilities are for their customers, not casual visitors. And the mother with four squalling children in tow is understandably reluctant about leading her brood through a hotel lobby or into a crowded restaurant when nature calls, as it has a damnable habit of doing—among children in particular—at just the wrong time.

One reason Oshawa hasn't any public washrooms downtown is, of course, the apprehension of many a councillor at the thought of such facilities becoming a haunt of drunks and degenerates. An unwatched public facility certainly would pose such a hazard.

But washrooms with an attendant, both to keep them clean and to keep an eye on the place, would be something else again .. and a boon to visitors to our city, as well as to city dwellers.

The city in recent months has begun working closely with downtown merchants as regards development plans for the downtown core. One wonders if there isn't room for some co-operation in this particular area, too. Suppose, for instance, the city undertook to build the facilities—which needn't be elaborate—and approached the downtown merchants to pony up enough to pay the salary of an attendant?

One thing's sure: any alderman who raised the proposal would be guaranteeing himself the Oshawa mother's vote next time around.

The Issue of Abortion

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Spurred on by some recent provocative statements by certain authority figures, the pro and anti- abortionists are once again engaged in acrimonious debate.

It is notable that many of the pro-abortionists rest their case against the anti-abortionists on the grounds that to refuse the right to abortion on demand is anti-democratic. But it is also noticeable that all pro-abortionists undemocratically wish to foist the abortion task upon a profession which is dedicated to the preservation of life, not to its destruction, that is to say, the medical profession.

It is possible that a break in the impasse could be made if the provincial governments authorized two new professions, that of certified abortionist and certified abortion nurse, with appropriate training programs set up in the community colleges. Those who had no religious, moral or profssional qualms about abortion could then enter these professions which might be expected to be quite affluent, at least for a time.

Although affluent they might be, there is, however, no guarantee that they would be respectable professions, if history is any criterion. In the days when Canada had capital punishment, an official hangman was appointed. But such are the ways of human nature, this hangman had to be anonymous because no one would wish to associate with him. In fact, the last official hangman before capital punishment ended, did not even tell his wife what he did and when she accidently found out about it, she left him. Perhaps this is why the pro-abortionists wish to wrap the mantle of the respectable medical professions around the activity of abortions.

Provided however that the task of abortion is performed by certified abortion specialists, as suggested, unrestricted removal of abortion from the criminal code might in the long run have beneficial effects for our society. Over a period of three or four decades, the pro-abortionists would have no children to learn their attitudes. The anti-abortionists would of course continue to have children whom they would train to abhor abortion. Eventually then there would be few if any pro-abortionists as the present generation died out with no progeny to propagate their views and so, ergo, the problem would be solved. All that is needed is a little time and a willingness on the part of the anti-abortionists to let the pro-abortionists do their thing in the ways suggested.

Safety Councils Would Benefit Communities

Royal Bank

Canada could become a safer country in which to live if every community had a local safety council. This is, in the words of the Ontario Department of Transport, "a group of citizens determined to make their community a safer place to live in by fighting the scourge of preventable accidents." The members are representatives of all groups interested in the welfare of the community. The council finds out where effort is needed, and then takes action to promote it. It covers all types of safety promotion — home, street, water, fire and recreation. Safety Leagues in the provinces make available booklets on fire prevention, home safety, traffic safety, and safety in industry. St. John Ambulance has prepared a series of training films featuring simulated case histories. Workmen's Compensation Boards from the provinces contributed to the cost. These films, though designed for in-plant training of employees, have shown outstanding usefulness in promoting safety measures in the employees' homes.

C.J. Laurin, who has given distinguished service in the promotion of safety, published in 1974 his 108-page book entitled "Help Yourself." Mr. Laurin pioneered the St. John Ambulance Emergency First Aid course to make practical the teaching of safety-oriented first aid on a very wide scale. Supported by the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario and the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, he set up a major, world-wide, controlled research project to establish the relationship between a widespread knowledge of safety-oriented first aid and a reduction in the frequency and cost of accidents. His book is distributed by the IAPA, 2 Bloor St., E., Toronto.

The Boy Scouts, the Girl Guides, the Wolf Cubs and the Brownies all stress safety through skill. Some schools have study periods devoted to safety. The police and fire departments of municipalities are eager to provide instructors to address groups on safety measures.

Controversy Over Forest Fires

Health for All

Are all forest fires disasters or blessings in disguise? The disagreements — as well as a few forest fires — are raging.

Today people are more concerned than ever about conserving their natural heritage, their dwindling forests and wildlife. But some ecologists also feel that what happens naturally may have benefits, that man should not intervene.

All last summer and fall, a forest fire burned unchecked in Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park. By mid-October, 3500 acres were charred, and the flames were still on the move. The fire was triggered not by a carelessly-tossed cigarette but by a bolt of lightning. That made the difference. The Park Service, in a dramatic turnabout of its fire-fighting Smokey the Bear policy, decided to let the fire burn. The decision caused an uproar.

According to the Park Service, "natural" fires can be helpful to growth, eliminating deadwood and underbrush, and making way for whole new crops of young bushes and trees. Years ago if natural fires had been allowed to sweep through the Sequoia National Park, the redwoods would not face their present menace, says Bruce Kilgore of the Park Service. Natural fires would have burned down the young fir trees that hover under the redwoods. Now a human-caused or natural fire will destroy the redwoods because the tops of the firs touch the redwoods' lowest branches.

Some citizen groups protested the new approach, labelling it the "scorched earth policy". Equally strong objections were made about the billowing black clouds of air pollution.

Information Bureaucracy Doubles in Last 5 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal government is plunging ever deeper into the high-rolling world of public relations, with a bankroll said to exceed $200 million annually backing an information bureacracy of 863 persons at last count.

That represents growth of more than 100 per cent in five years.

The ranks of the functionaries continue to swell—there are 403 vacancies as well—and the hardware assembled for helping spread the message includes fully-equipped TV studios.

It is an entrenched information and propaganda machine of imposing proportions that seeks to buff the federal image to a high gloss by publishing, broadcasting and sometimes suppressing facts and opinions about the government and those who run it.

Critics, including some who work within the machine, have been asking if bigger really means better.

They say only a handful of departments and agencies, such as the agriculture department with its appeal to a specific audience, are doing a justifiable public relations job.

The people in charge say they do not know how much it all costs, though a Senate investigation last spring said $200 million was a good guess.

In addition, they say they have little idea how effectively the machine is improving communications between the people and the government. Some say they doubt things have improved much since 1969 when a study on information reported that Canadians were woefully ignorant of government programs.

Critics say there still is much truth in the 1969 study's complaint that the propaganda machine is riddled with inefficiency and waste.

For example, the critics talk about:

—The spending spree that outfitted 50 departments and agencies with expensive television production equipment, some of it reported on the verge of breakdown after three to five years of use.

—The dispatching of a health department film crew to the 1972 Olympics in Munich without proper credentials. Denied admission to the games, the crew took pictures of the stadium which became part of a 25-minute children's movie called It's Not The Winning.

—The timidity of the Public Service Commission in scrapping plans to publish an index of training films when a count revealed a larger number of English-language films than French.

—The days, even weeks, frequently taken by government information offices to produce a simple press release or speech and the bursts of frantic, eleventh-hour activity on overtime pay when deadlines draw near. At the Indian and northern affairs department, most public pronouncements are screened and approved by at least seven persons.

—The man who quit his full-time information job with the government and was hired back on a part-time contract basis. As an outsider he was paid about the same for two days of work weekly as he had been for five.

The federal information machine functions in almost every one of the 91 departments and agencies and has even spawned a separate organization, Information Canada (Infocan), to make contact with the public.

Its authorized strength has risen to 1,266 from 556 in 1970—some of the growth resulting from a 1973 job reclassification which drew a number of existing civil servants into the information machine.

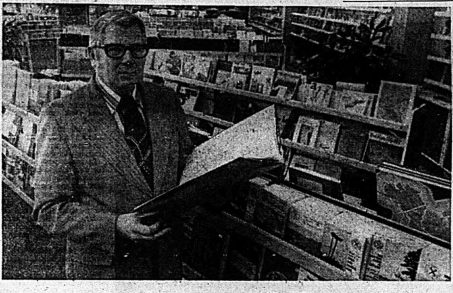
The 863 staff members actually on strength, 113 more than a year ago, are often anointed in Ottawa with the pejorative "government flacks."

The Public Service Commission, the government hiring agency, is trying to recruit 130 information officers to fill some of the vacancies.

These numbers do not include the scores of part-time editors, writers and film-makers who work under freeers who work under freelance contracts.

Relatively high pay continues to lure job-seekers to the government information service from newspapers, broadcasting stations, journalism schools and other government departments.

About 800 organized information officers won a 12.4-per-cent cost-of-living pay increase Jan. 1, putting most of them in the $15,000-to-$21,000-a-year pay range. Another 65 in executive categories stand to win increases this spring in salaries that run as high as $32,500.



Some Government Publications

Information Canada Director-General G.R. D'Avignon leafs through some of the 14,000 government publication titles that the agency sells in its six book stores and through 100 or so retail dealers. By the end of the year Infocan will be selling books through at least 200 privately-owned retail stores across the country. (CP Photo)

Fifty Federal Agencies Join Glossy TV World

OTTAWA (CP) — About 50 federal agencies and departments have joined the glossy world of television in what some officials involved say was a costly and unco-ordinated spending spree.

The federal collection of TV electronic hardware ranges from simple video scanners of the kind used to watch for shoplifters in retail stores to fully equipped TV studios.

Bigger spenders such as the health and trade departments possess elaborate systems that one information officer said "anybody would be proud to own."

Government bureaucrats were sai dto use the equipment with varying degrees of skill and success to produce TV programs for public consumption, as a staff-training tool and even as the trendiest kind of inter-office memo.

Sony of Canada Ltd., subsidiary of the big Japanese electronics firm, finds federal business good enough to have a representative spending virtually all his time looking after sales to the government.

He sells cameras, videotape recorders, studio monitors, switchers and other apparatus of the trade.

Some of those who work with the equipment said much of it is breaking down after being in use three to five years. It must be overhauled or replaced. A Sony official said some departments are getting rid of worn-out black-and-white equipment and retooling for color.

Communications experts at National Film Board (NFB) and at Information Canada (Infocan) said a television craze gripped the federal bureaucracy with the advent a few years ago of simple, compact equipment.

The sudden burst of television popularity roughly parallelled a dramatic growth in the size of the federal information bureaucracy.

Critics said departments rushed into the TV field so precipitously that there was no up-to-date inventory of equipment and no accurate calculation of over-all cost.

A 1973 survey, which the government will not release, estimated that 50 departments and agencies acquired television equipment costing several million dollars.

There is no central control over equipment purchasing and no fixed policy on who should have the equipment and how it should be used.

The 1951 National Film Act requires government departments to channel all film production through the NFB. But the legislation makes no mention of videotape, which wasn't even invented when the bill became law.

"We have no rational tallying-up of what television equipment exists or how well and to what degree it is being used," said Eric Miller, Infocan deputy director.

Mr. Miller guardedly acknowledged there is "a problem." Others said serious blunders have occurred.

For example, the health department was said to have invested at least $80,000 in picture - and sound - recording equipment to outfit a television studio at its headquarters in Tunney's Pasture, a bleak suburb of government buildings here.

The department rented additional equipment and produced a series of six taped television shows on sports, fitness, food inspection and other topics.

Then the romance with television ended.

"We decided to abandon it because the cost was too high," said Pierre Couture, the department's information director.

The studio equipment, said to be among the most elaborate anywhere within the government, now is used—among other things—to film autopsies on farm animals.

Other departments have had similar unhappy experiences and some information officers and staff-training specialists have grown disillusioned with the medium.

"It's being treated as an expensive toy," said one government studio boss. "Everybody wants to see himself on TV."

"We run into constant technical problems that we don't know how to handle—the minister is on his way down to do a taping and we can't figure out why there are lines all over the screen."

Most departments with television equipment said they use it mainly for staff training. One of the biggest users in this area is the Public Service Commission, the federal hiring agency, which has 25 black-and-white cameras and monitors in its language-training school at a capital cost of about $60,000.

Another is manpower and immigration whose information director, Mac Erb, uses "a modest capacity" to make videotapes of speeches and conferences. Mr. Erb wants to expand and said his department is shopping for about $45,000 worth of new color equipment.

The agriculture department has both radio and film studios at the Central Experimental Farm where daily consumer and farmer-oriented radio broadcasts and about 10 films a year are produced.

In addition, the department rents facilities at an Ottawa television station to produce monthly 15-minute videotaped programs in English and French which are sent to 30 television outlets across the country.

The trade department has a full videotape studio which now is used as an "internal communications vehicle," said information director Alan Duckett.

Quebec Man Beats Jail With Sitar

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Jean Toupin's mastery of the sitar came in handy a couple of months ago when he found himself in trouble with the police.

The 47-year-old former chemical engineer from Laval, Que., had been in India eight years when he was pounced on during a visit to Calcutta and accused of being a Maoist agent who had been wanted by West Bengal police for two years.

The officers were unconvinced when Toupin protested that he was a student of Hindu music, spiritualism and magic with no interest in politics.

Then he produced his sitar and played a classical song on the ancient stringed instrument. He also showed the police his collection of Indian music books.

He was released with profuse apologies and a friendly officer introduced him to a number of local musicians.

It was not Toupin's first brush with the law since he started on his travels, which also took him to Japan, Thailand and Singapore.

Singapore police asked him to leave the country when they spotted his long hair and collection of magic books.

Based in the northern city of Banaras, the centre of Hindu spiritualism and occult practices, Toupin tours the country every winter.

Interviewed in Bombay, he said he is working on a book on Hindu magic and another on Indian music.

He said he conducts part-time English classes in Banaras which provides him with enough money to live. But his is a frugal existence—"not more than $50 a month." A friend provides him with a room free of charge.

Toupin said his chief worry is that he is often mistaken for a drug peddler. But he encounters no problems in Banaras, where he is known and respected.

He said he plans to return to Canada next year.

"But it will only be for a short visit. I like India and intend to settle down here."

Toupin said he may marry an Indian woman.

"She is a dancer," he added.

Grant Carman, head of information branch, says his job as a government public relations man is made easier because he talks almost exclusively to a single audience — farmers. Here he glances at some of the 2,000,000 publications that his branch distributes to farmers every year. (CP Photo)

Vaccinated

GABORONE, Botswana (AP) — Botswana plans to vaccinate all children up to age 14 against tuberculosis in 1975, the ministry of health announced. Some 87,000, or 30 per cent, of the African country's children already have been vaccinated, the ministry said.

Accidents

TOKYO (AP) — The average Japanese is more likely to be killed in a traffic accident on his pay day than any other time, police said. They attributed to drinking the higher death rate of 1.9 on pay day against 1.1 on other days.

Doesn't Qualify

DALLAS (AP) — Susan Byrd, 23, wanted to be a policewoman and completed all the requirements. Then she was told a civil service rule prohibits next of kin from working under a department head and had to withdraw her application. She is the daughter of Dallas Police Chief Donald Byrd.

Cemetery For Pets Operated

NIVERVILLE, Man. (CP) — In a society where pets of all descriptions are lavished with love, pampered, fed expensive foods and sometimes bequeathed fortunes, it no longer is acceptable to many to see them cremated in a city incinerator when they die.

Those owners prefer the human touch of burial complete with memorial; a more fitting way of bidding farewell to their dog, cat, guinea pig, monkey, skunk or whatever.

Furred and Feathered Memory Garden was established in this community, south of Winnipeg, to meet that demand and already has become the final resting place for 250 animals. In many cases, plots have been reserved for living pets to ensure them a place in the cemetery.

"I've seen more deep feelings here than I have at many human funerals," said Frances Chambers, who with her husband Henry operates the animal cemetery.

"People come here because they want to be here, not because they have to put in an appearance waiting for the will to be read."

Mrs. Chambers said everyone from welfare recipients to doctors and lawyers have taken advantage of the service.

The pet is picked up, placed in a coffin and made to look as natural as possible. Owners often request that the animal's favorite blanket, toys or bedspread be placed in the coffin.

Memory Garden offers a plot for $45, which includes burial, and coffins range from $25 to $60, depending on the size of the pet.

Mr. Chambers builds the coffins, lines them with foam and bright-colored silk and covers them with beige vinyl.

Many graves have wreaths or artificial flowers draped over plaques. A wishing well is provided for those who want to donate to the Humane Society.

A slightly different service is offered at Faithful Friend Memorials, located three miles north of Winnipeg. In that partially completed development, a boarding kennel, grooming shop and crematorium are provided.

For $40, owners Cam and Nora McKay will pick up a dead dog, cremate it, store the ashes in a plastic urn and either bury the urn or return it to the owner. The same service for a cat costs $30.

Centennial

HULL, Que. (CP) — This western Quebec city across the Ottawa River from the national capital will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its incorporation June 20-July 6. It will also mark the 175th anniversary of the community's founding.

Ready to be stir-fried in a Chinese wok, these vegetables have been cut diagonally with a cleaver.

Some Wonderful Ways with a Wok

Think of it as the original energy saver.

The wok is a clever invention — Chinese, of course — designed to conserve fuel and cook food in as many ways as possible. It won't broil or roast, but it will do everything else. In fact, the word wok means cooking vessel.

To use your wok to best advantage, you must remember one rule: no washing with detergent!

To season your wok — by the way, iron woks are best — wash with hot water and soap and dry carefully. Coat the inside surface with peanut oil and heat over high heat for a minute. Rinse with hot water. Oil and heat again, rinse with hot water and dry over heat. It is now ready to use.

After you've cooked with it, simply rinse with hot water, scour with a nylon pad free of detergent and, dry on top of the stove.

There are four main types of cooking which take place in a wok: steaming, deep frying, stewing and making soup, stir-frying. Most people mean stir-frying when they say wok-cooking.

In this quick cooking technique, two or three tablespoons of oil are heated in the wok until very hot. A clove of garlic is often sizzled in the oil for a few seconds and then removed. Meat, marinated or not, and vegetables are added, in the order of required cooking time. Vegetables are cut to expose the maximum surface to the heat as quickly as possible. As each ingredient is added, it is dropped into oil and stirred up around the sides of the wok, forming a well into which to drop the next ingredient. Stock may be added.

When you're serving up your Chinese-style dinner, plan to serve one principle dish for each person and rice for all. All dishes are shared.

When cooking, remember that two-thirds to three-quarters of any dish should consist of the main ingredient and the remainder of other ingredients.

Have all ingredients cleaned and properly sliced before beginning to cook.

When you're peparing non-Chinese meals, incidentally, stir-fried vegetables would be an unusual side-dish for plain broiled or roasted meat.

Vegetables suitable for stir-frying include broccoli, cauliflower, carrots, asparagus, and turnip, which should be sliced and blanched before using, and onions, beans, green peppers, snow peas, cabbage, potatoes, mushrooms, bean sprouts, lettuce, spinach, tomatoes, cucumber, bamboo and water chestnuts.

Heat oil in the wok and add a pinch of salt. Stir in vegetables requiring most cooking and stir only until color begins to change. Continue to add vegetables and stir. Remove from wok and serve immediately.

Egg Foo Young

six eggs
½ tsp salt
one tsp soy sauce
¾ cup cooked meat
1 ½ cups bean sprouts, chopped
two tbsp oil
one scallion, chopped

Beat eggs and mix in salt and soy sauce. Fold in meat, which may be fish, chicken or beef, and sprouts.

Heat oil in wok and drop three tablespoons of egg mix into wok to form patty. When brown, flip over and brown other side. Remove and keep warm. Repeat.

Pork With Onions

¾ lb. boned pork shoulder or butt, thinly sliced
one tsp sherry
one clove garlic
two tsp soy sauce
one tsp cornstarch
½ tsp sugar
¼ cup water
pepper
two tbsp oil
two medium onions, thinly sliced
½ cup soup stock

Mix together sherry, garlic and one tsp soy sauce. Combine other tsp soy sauce, cornstarch, sugar, water, pepper and stir. Heat oil in wok. Add pork and salt and stir fry until meat is brown. Add wine mixture and stir-fry one minute. Add onions and stir fry one minute. Add stock and bring to boil. Slowly add cornstarch combination, stirring as you pour. Cook until gravy thickens.

Chicken With Almonds

two chicken breasts, boned and diced three tbsps oil
one tsp salt
¼ tsp pepper
two tbsps soy sauce
½ cup diced celery
½ cup peas
¼ cup diced onion
mushrooms as desired one cup hot chicken boullion
one tsp cornstarch
two tbsps water
½ cup blanched almonds, toasted

Heat the oil in a wok and stir fry chicken for three minutes. Add salt, pepper, soy sauce, celery, peas, onion and mushrooms. Cook two minutes, stir in broth. Cover and cook over low heat for five minutes. Mix water and cornstarch and stir into mixture until it thickens. Add almonds and serve.

Beef With Bell Peppers

½ lb. sirloin or flank steak
two tsps soy sauce
one tsp sugar
one tsp sherry
one tbsp corn starch
¼ cup water
three tbsps oil
one tsp sail
two green peppers
one onion, cut in eighths
one tsp water
one green onion, chopped

Cut steak in two inch pieces lengthwise and into ⅛ inch slices across the grain. Marinate in soy sauce, sugar, sherry mix for 20 minutes. Combine cornstarch with water. Heat oil in wok. Add salt and meat and stir fry until meat is just slightly cooked. Remove beef and set aside. Add green peppers, cut in small squares, and onion. Add water and simmer one minute. Return beef and heat. Add cornstarch and stir until thickens. Serve garnished with green onion.

Suyiyaki

This is Japanese, of course, not Chinese, but still utilizes the wok.

one lb. flank steak six large mushrooms
two stalks celery
two cups washed and torn fresh spinach one large onion
small can sliced bamboo
Japanese soy sauce three tbsps sugar
¼ cup sherry
two tbsp peanut oil

Meat should be sliced very thinly.

Make a sauce of oil, sherry, sugar and soy sauce. Sprinkle over meat which has been browned quickly in the wok. Lower heat and cook two minutes. Add remaining ingredients and cook until tender crisp. Serve at once.

Hot Pork with Chicken and Vegetables

one broiling chicken — approximately two lbs.
one lb. pork
three tbsps. oil
three-quarters cup chopped onion
two garlic cloves, minced three tomatoes, cut into eighths
one tsp. salt
½ tsp. dried ground chili pepper two tbsps. ground sesame seeds
two tbsps. soy sauce
three-quarters beef broth
one cup cooked greenpeas

Bone the chicken and dice the meat. Cut the pork into one-inch cubes. Heat the oil in a wok and brown the chicken and pork. Remove to platter.

Stir-fry the onion and garlic in the oil remaining in the wok, until brown. Add tomatoes and cook over low heat three minutes. Return the chicken and pork. Add the salt, chili pepper, sesame seeds, broth and soy sauce.

Cover and cook over, low heat 30 minutes. Add the peas and cook for another five minutes or until meat and chicken are tender.

Broccoli with Braised Pork

1½ lbs. pork, cut into one-inch cubes.
three tbsps. vegtable oil
one clove garlic, minced one tsp. minced ginger root or ½ tsp. ground ginger
two tsps. soy sauce
one tbsp. rice wine or sherry
one tsp. sugar
¼ cup water
one lb. fresh broccoli, washed and drained, with fibrous outer layer peeled, and all cut into two-inch chunks, OR frozen broccoli, thawed and chopped

Heat two tbsps. oil in wok and add pork. Stir — fry on all sides until brown. Stir in garlic, ginger, soy sauce, wine, sugar and water.

Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer over low heat for 30 minutes. Heat remaining oil in a saucepan and cook the broccoli over a high heat for four minutes.

Arrange on a serving dish and cover with the pork and sauce.

Oriental Fish Cakes

½ lb. raw shrimp, shelled and deveined one lb. pike or flounder fillet
one cup blanched almonds two slices bacon
one tsp. salt
one tbsp. soy sauce
one tbsp. cornstarch
three-quarters cup oil

Chop together the shrimp, fish, almonds and bacon. Blend in salt, soy sauce, cornstarch and one tbsp. oil. Shape the mixture into flat patties, using two tbsp. mixture for each. Heat the remaining oil in the wok and fry the patties until brown in both sides. Serve with vegetable and rice.

Stir-fried Calf Liver three-quarters lb. calf liver, cut and sliced into small strips

two tbsps. soy sauce
two tsps. rice wine or sherry one tsp. oyster sauce several drops sesame oil
three tbsps. oil
½ tsp. salt
three stalks of green onion, the white parts only, cut into two-inch slivers

Combine soy sauce, wine, oyster sauce and sesame oil. In the wok, heat oil and add salt and green onions. Stir-fry a few seconds, then add liver and stir-fry quickly until liver is lightly browned. Add soy sauce mixture and baste liver until mixture comes to a simmer. When the liver is done to your liking, remove and serve on a platter with rice.

Other Ways to Cook with a Wok

Besides the widely-known stir-frying, woks are useful for steaming and deep frying.

To steam food in a wok you need steaming baskets or at least a metal pie plate pierced with an ice pick or some other sharp instrument. (For a temporary steamer, try foil pie plates).

The purpose of steaming is to cook food quickly in hot moist air. It allows you to cook with oil or broth. You can stack several steamers in a wok to cook a variety of dishes.

Fill the wok with two to three cups of water and place the pierced pie plate on something like a washed tuna can with label and both ends removed.

Steamed Beef Balls

one lb. ground beef
one minced onion
one tbsp soy sauce
one tbsp cornstarch
one tsp sherry
½ tsp sugar
¼ tsp oil

Blend all ingredients. Roll into balls one inch in diameter and arrange on pie plate in wok.

Steam 15 minutes.

The thin metal of the wok allows heat to be conducted rapidly and food is quickly cooked by the deep fry method. Oil should be heated to 375 degrees. Add small amounts of food at a time to prevent cooling the oil. Food is cooked for a few minutes, then removed.

It is drained and cooled and then refried for maximum crispness.

The most famous Japanese deep fried food is:

Tempura

shrimp string beans mushrooms
eggplant parsley turnip carrots

Any ingredients suitable to the season are used to produce this famous dish. At this time of year, thin turnip and carrot sticks, bits of imported cauliflower and broccoli and parsley are useful. Frozen, thawed shrimp can be used if you wish to add a protein food.

Make a batter of 1¾ cups flour, one stiffly beaten egg white and and one-third cups very cold water.

Heat oil to 375 degrees. Dip ingredients in batter and place in hot oil, a few pieces at a time. Serve with hot rice. Japanese soy sauce and grated white radish are traditional accompaniments.

Tips on Ingredients

Some notes on ingredients for stir-frying.

To cut meat as thinly as possible, try placing in the freezer for about half an hour before slicing.

You can sprout your own beans: Put ¼ cup mung (Soy) beans in the bottom of a quart jar. Add water to cover generously and soak overnight. Drain and rinse well. Cover with some very porous fabric like cheesecloth. Place in a dark cool place. A couple of times a day, water and drain. In about two to three days, you'll have bean sprouts. If you're picky, rub them to remove hulls and allow to stand in cold water. Hulls will float to the top.

If you're really getting into Chinese food, plan now to grow edible pod peas or snow peas in your garden. They grow easily and well in this climate in early spring: in fact, they'll be the first vegetables out. Pick them very very tiny and you won't have to "string" them. If you let them get beyond two inches, you will.

Peanut oil is often prescribed in recipes but other experts will argue the point: at any rate, the hotter it can get without smoking, the better, so don't try to use margarine or butter or ordinary vegetable oil.

What's Your Pleasure?

The Intelligencer's weekly food features reflect a couple of things: what's in season, what's economical, what's new in family cuisine and, often, the interests of the women's staff that particular week.

This week's food feature is a reflection of something else: reader interest. An inquiry from a reader about wok cooking, resulted in this article.

It might be fun for us — and you — if you'd let us know what kinds of cooking and recipes interest you. We'll do the research and come up with recipes if we can.

If you have cooking questions, let us know. If it doesn't result in a food feature, at least we might be able to help you by phone.

Poinsettia Absloved

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The poinsettia may cause skin irritation to people with an allergy but it is not poisonous, says C. J. Fox, an entomologist with the Nova Scotia department of agriculture. He said the plant has been fed to rats by researchers and the animals suffer no ill effects.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

MICHAEL

Michael is shy and diffident with strangers.

But basically this 8-year-old is a happy child and quite friendly and relaxed with people he knows. He's not very talkative, especially about his feelings, but he will chat cheerfully about small things like building a snowman or having a ride in a snowmobile.

Michael is Anglo-Saxon in descent, a rather elfin-looking lad with lovely curly reddish hair, green eyes and fair skin plentifully adorned with freckles. He is in good health except for allergies controlled by medication.

Active Michael likes to play outdoors and loves camping. With the encouragement of his foster family he has recently taken up Yoga which he is enjoying.

Michael, a slow learner is enrolled in a junior special class. He likes school and Sunday School and at home he loves to listen to stories.

Michael should have a family who will enjoy helping a lovable youngster learn about living and relations with people and who will not expect academic achievement.

This laddie needs lots of love so it will be best if his adopting family has older teenage children to join the mother and father in taking a special interest in him.

To inquire about adopting Michael, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2.

Ann Landers

Crystal-clear View of Life Delusion of Dope, Says Ann

Dear Ann Landers: I know how you feel about dope, so I'm sure you'll never print this letter but I'm going to write it anyway.

I enjoy dope. So do many thousands of other people who read your column. I'd like to tell you our side of the story.

When I'm high I feel great. I see life crystal-clear. I mean I can see life as it really is. I first started into dope because all my friends were doing it. I know I can stop whenever I want to. But why should I? Just because it's against the law? Hell no. The only way dope can ruin your life is if you become addicted to it. But that will never happen to me so I'm not worried.

Why do you knock dope when you don't even know what a high is? I suggest that you try it or button your lip.—Sailing In The Air

Dear Sailing: First, about my lip. I didn't write to you, Bub, you wrote to me.

Second: Your accusation that I don't know what a high is because I've never tried dope is incorrect. I can get high on exhilarating conversation, beautiful music, or a responsive audience.

Your notion that dope helps you see life as it really is—"crystal-clear"—is the most revealing part of your letter. It proves that dope actually distorts your vision. That "high" you are so in love with is a snare and a delusion. Life, my dear, is far from crystal-clear. Life is convoluted, unpredictable, mercurial and filled with conflict. Anyone who says life is "crystal-clear" is zonked out of his ever-lovin' mind.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an executive secretary, age 34, and married for the second time—to Tim, age 40. He was a bachelor until six months ago and was considered the town catch. I felt very lucky to get him.

Problem: I received a sizable salary increase yesterday. Tim's response: "Which one of the vice-presidents are you sleeping with?"

At first I thought he was kidding, but soon I discovered he was dead serious. Tim insists that in times like these a woman just doesn't get a raise unless she is "putting out." How can I convince him he's wrong? The best signature I can think of for this letter is—Flabbergasted

Dear Flab: If you have to "convince him," he's not worth it. Obviously, one of the most important elements in marriage is lacking in yours. It's trust.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's some advice in payment for some help you gave me last year. Last night at 1:00 a.m. I was driving home from a girl friend's house. (I am 19, female and single.) Three young guys in a souped-up Chevy pulled alongside my car at a stop light. They made some obscene remarks. I ignored them and continued on my way.

Soon it became apparent that they were following me. I tried to shake them but couldn't. I made turns without signals and darted down several side streets. They followed me.

Finally I headed for an all-night gas station. I got out of the car and called the police to convoy me home. That did it. The young punks bugged off fast. Pass the word to your readers, Ann. It's a trick worth knowing.—Brainstorm

Dear Brain: Good thinking. Thanks for sharing an excellent tip.

Marriage Partners Draw Up Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Like businessmen drawing up a partnership, many Ontario couples are drawing up a marriage contract to supplement the traditional wedding ceremony.

The agreement, which may cover finances, property ownership, household responsibilities and terms of separation in case of divorce, is drawn up by a lawyer in contract form after the prospective bride and groom have decided on its terms.

While marriage contracts are not new in Quebec, where all marriages since 1970 are protected by the Civil Code provision for "equal acquests," there is no allowance under Ontario law for the housewife's contribution of time, housework and love.

Rosemary Billings and John Baglow are one Ottawa couple who set up such a contract.

"The laws in Ontario discriminate against women and I feel the agreement set many things right," she said.

"We are trying to document the social and legal aspects of marriage and not the private and personal side of love."

Although property and separation agreements are generally believed to have legal validity, clauses in the contract dealing with delegation of household duties, upbringing of children and political independence are considered unlikely to stand up in court.

The Ontario Law Reform Commission is basing a model contract for property settlement on the code in Quebec. Under the code, all property owned before a marriage is reclaimed by the original owner in the event of separation and property acquired during the marriage is divided equally.

Ms. Billings said pre-marriage counselling courses should include the drawing up of a contract agreement.

"It would reduce the number of marriages and the number of divorces."

Ultra - Liberal or Conservative — Kids Choose Their Kind of School

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — High school pupils here can choose between two different teaching methods: ultra-liberal or traditional.

Some call teachers by their first names, make up their own weekly work schedules and carry out individualized study projects.

Not far away, pupils sit in rows at lectures, address their teachers as Mr. or Mrs. and follow a formal curriculum.

"If our society remains diverse, if there's a premium placed on diversity, then people won't accept a single way of educating," said Dr. Brandt G. Crocker, assistant district superintendent.

Tests at the end of the program's first year indicate that students' over-all academic growth rate and knowledge levels matched the national norm. A study by an outside consultant concluded that both students and teachers developed a better attitude toward school.

"We've experienced normal growth in all areas," said Richard F. Haugh, project co-ordinator. "But they're liking it a lot better, not only our kids but our teachers."

However, Haugh said the program has not shown that making school more enjoyable makes pupils learn more, because the academic growth rate has not outstripped the national norm.

Officials are not releasing comparative test results for the different approaches because parents "are not qualified to look at the data," Haugh said. Parental misunderstanding might result in a rush to one approach and destruction of the program.

The Education by Choice project began in September 1973, with a $670,000 federal grant that runs out in June. Officials said they plan to keep the project going.

The 1,500 pupils at the city's new school development for 11th and 12th graders attend one of seven different "subschools" operating as part of the program.

Certain students are steered to either a work-study or special education school. But the majority are allowed to choose among the remaining five subschools, with parental approval required.

Traditional classroom methods are used in one general education school and one vocational school. A fine arts and another general education school use highly liberal teaching techniques. Still another school combines both traditional and liberal teaching approaches, attracting more students than any other.

"People have different ideas and they work better in different structures," one 17-year-old student said. "Everybody's got their own thing, and it's the same thing with schools."

Horse-training Her Goal

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Few people are able to work each day at something they really enjoy and where they choose rather than where they must.

Cindy Matheson, is one of them. She rides and trains horses and her ambition is to make a living at it.

At 19, Cindy can already look back on 11 years of riding experience.

"My grandfather had horses and I guess that's where it all started,'' said the equestrian. "I love doing every equestrian. "I love doing every part of it. My folks thought my interest would peter out when my grandfather died, but it was only the beginning."

Early experience was followed by a job at a stable in East Royalty, where she began by leading trail rides.

Although she had trained and worked with horses earlier, Cindy began formal riding training only three years ago and last September she was accepted for the three-month equestrian course offered by the Nova Scotia Agriculture College at Truro, N.S.

She graduated with a Grade B certificate—a distinction granted only two others before her. Students can be graded at A, B or C levels but no student at the college has ever won an A.

The course makes it possible for her to receive an assistant instructor's certificate but she could not become a registered instructor.

To get that you have to go to England for a British Horsemaster's Instructor rating—something you just can't do in Canada ,she said.

Cindy plans to take the top course "some day" but it costs a lot of money and takes time.

The course was not all riding, although there was eight hours a day with the horses. There was always grooming to be done and, probably the most unpleasant task, "mucking out," the equestrian's terminology for cleaning up the stables.

Man Hired as Attendant In Women's Bathhouse

BOSTON (AP) — The city has been told it must hire a man as an attendant for a women's bathhouse at a public swimming pool.

The Civil Service Commission and the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination told the city it cannot restrict the job to women and must hire the first qualified applicant, even if that means hiring a man.

And it did. Anthony Forgione, parks and recreation commissioner, said everyone expected the man to decline the job when he was interviewed, but he said he wanted it. He would not identify the man.

Forgione said he will try to get the state commission to change its ruling Monday.

"I must take the position that I cannot put a male attendant in a female bathhouse, regardless of the law on discrimination."

Wives and Mothers Deserve More Status

That experience of parenthood has given (the mother) a unique experience in learning. No other occupation in the world offers us a similar opportunity for observation, involvement and shared growth. What's more, she has undoubtedly learned more as a wife and mother than she realizes.

Unfortunately, our society assigns a low status to the occupation of housewife, but that low status is a false estimation of the capabilities and resourcefulness that any housewife must bring to her role if she is to be successful at it.

Management skills, competency, diligence, patience and innovation are part and parcel of the homemaking role.

—from Shifting Gears, by Nena and George O'Neill.

Dear Doris: Regarding the Ceylonese and the WASP, the mother of the bride fell for the bombardment of the words like racist, prejudiced, tolerant, melting pot, etc. There has been practically no opposition to this onslaught. Now the best thing she can do is encourage her daughter to also fall for the newer one "child-free marriage".

Your telling the woman that she is the one with the sympathy and recognition that all men are brothers is way out. If they were brothers there would be no need for sympathy. Also, it is like encouraging a jack-fish and a salmon to mate, or a rose and a snap-dragon. It just ain't done, and hate has nothing to do with it..

Mrs. M.C.

Dear Mrs. M.C.: I'm afraid I'm a bit — shall we say clueless? — when it comes to comparing two human beings, albeit of different races, to a jack-fish and a salmon. We have seen some pretty successful marriages between races.

True, there are still plenty of people who think it "just ain't done". But when two young people fall in love, they forget about racial prejudices — that just ain't done when they are drawn to each other. Difficulties, sure; but "love laughs at locksmiths" — and love (not hate, natch) has a great deal to do with it.

Dear Doris: I have a chance to be hired for a job in a day nursery school in about a month. I have had experience with childen but I will be taking care of eight two-year-old children plus my own son (who is also two). This is new to me.

I am writing to you to see if you can help me plan some programs or projects to amuse these kids. Their attention span is very short, if they are anything like my own. I don't know what I'll do to amuse them. My job will be part-time, mornings only; the school provides all the toys and equipment but I will, have to plan the amusement.

Day Nursery.

Dear Day Nursery: I'm sending you leaflets we have for amusing groups of small children, containing games and little contests. The reference books mentioned in the leaflets will help you too — and so will your library.

There are training courses in "Early Childhood Education" at a number of our community colleges.

(There is helpful Canadian literature which may shed light on your problem. Write to Doris about it, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.)

This year instead of paying more tax, have the government pay you.

CURSES!
TAXMAN
TAX REFUND

Every year it seems you pay more tax. Your salary goes up a little and the government eats away a little more.

Guaranty Trust has a way to reverse that situation and have the government pay you for a change. It's called a Guaranteed RSP (Registered Retirement Savings Plan). And you can use it to make the government pay you up to a $2244 tax refund, depending on your tax bracket and what pension plans you have.

It works like this. Every year the government lets you deduct 20% of what you make (up to a maximum of $4000) from your taxable income and put it into an RSP. So instead of leaving your money sitting in a savings account, you can leave your money sitting in a Guaranteed RSP. You still have all your money, just like you would if it was in your savings account. And as long as you leave the money in your RSP, you don't pay any tax on it.

Plus the government pays you an extra bonus in the form of a big tax refund cheque.

Even if you don't have any ready cash, you can put whatever qualified stocks and bonds or trust and deposit certificates you have into a Special RSP, to get a big tax refund. You can probably even borrow the money to get into an RSP from Guaranty Trust. And wind up earning a good deal more than the after-tax cost of your loan.

Most important, when you finally stop working or need money for something really important, you'll have the money put away. It's all fully explained in a comprehensive, yet delightfully simple new book that's free from Guaranty Trust.

There's one catch though. After March 1, the government won't let you into an RSP that will do any good on your 1974 income tax return.

So drop into your local Guaranty Trust branch or send in the coupon and we'll get an RSP book off to you right away.

It could be the difference between thinking about what you're going to give the government, or looking forward to what the government is going to give you.

Why Canadians should start saving energy in 1975

NATURE has made us a gift of waterfalls, coal, natural gas, petroleum and uranium. But we're spendthrifts with our resources. We gobble them up. In all the world, only the United States uses more energy per person.

The Prime Minister is calling for a new conservation ethic across Canada. More self-discipline. Many share his view.

"Conservation is now an important part of Canada's overall energy policy."

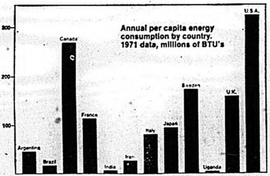
"While we Canadians have enjoyed an exceptionally high standard of living, we have not been as careful in the use of energy resources as have many other countries. However, I do not think that we are alone in needing to absorb the hard lessons of prudence in the management of these resources. Threats to the global environment, and the dramatic increase in monetary costs of energy, are inducing a sobering recognition of the need for improved management of the world's energy resources.

"Conservation is now an important part of Canada's overall energy policy. I wish to make clear that this will be a permanent policy—not a contingency plan enacted in a crisis. We are developing a five-phase program to cope with these times of high-cost resources, to involve all Canadians in a program of energy conservation and to provide a stable energy future and high quality of life for all Canadians. I believe this program will be welcomed.

"I believe the Canadian public is in a mood to consider realistic options for the efficient use of energy.

"People are looking for guidance on how they can be less wasteful in the use of depleting resources, and are willing to accept minor changes in lifestyles now, rather than suffer a waning standard of living in the future."

Hon. Donald S. Macdonald
Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources

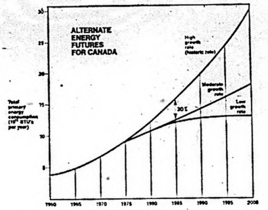


Only the United States has a bigger energy appetite than Canada. The people of Sweden, France, United Kingdom and Japan all use less energy per person than we do.

How much energy should we save?

If we continue to consume at our present rate, we'll need twice as much in 12 years. That means our energy-producing capacity must also double in 12 years.

Economists calculate that to keep up with our appetite, capital costs will soar to over $100 billion over the next 10 years. Money for new generators, dams, powerlines, uranium and coal mines, gas wells, oil wells and pipelines. It amounts to an investment of about $20,000 for every family in Canada.



At our present rate of growth in consumption we'll need twice as much energy in 12 years, about four times as much by the year 2000. A cut-back of 20% in expected demand by 1985 is surely a realistic goal. Beyond 1985 even greater savings are possible.

There are dozens of thoughtless ways in which we waste energy—in our homes, industries, government and commercial buildings, and in transportation.

The savings can be achieved simply. Turn off the television set when your show is over. Walk to the corner store. Take public transit to work.

Keep your furnace clean. Insulate your home. Weatherstrip doors and windows. You can save from $50 to $100 right there—plus the energy.

If you are a leader of industry, an engineer, a housing developer, or an architectural planner, look into building designs which have lower requirements for heating and cooling. By introducing conservation measures in existing plants, industrial processes and offices you can also cut operating costs. Remember when you save energy, you save money.

"We are not asked to suffer, but we are asked to be reasonable."

"All of the resources we now take from the earth come at an enormous price. This price is in effect a distress signal, a warning that thoughtless exploitation can in the end lead only to tragedy. To continue our present rate of energy consumption would be to deplete in short order the heritage of countless centuries, to squander mankind's only legacy on this small and finite planet.

"What we face now is not deprivation, but the challenge of sharing. We need not do without, but we must be good stewards of what we have. To ensure nature's continued bounty, we are not asked to suffer, but we are asked to be reasonable."

Rt. Hon. Pierre Trudeau
Prime Minister

"Should we waste as much as we do?"

"As a result of the extraordinary progress made over the last several decades in developing food and energy, we came to regard them as relatively cheap and abundant. That has all changed in the space of a few short years. We have become painfully aware that our capacity to produce both these essentials is not unlimited. The growing scarcity of these resources compels us to husband them wisely.

"On a world scale, it is not just an economic problem. It is a moral issue, because for many people and for many countries it is survival which is at stake. Many countries haven't enough energy to meet the basic needs of their people. Millions of people haven't enough to eat. For Canadians this is not a question of economics; it is a matter of conscience.

"Should we live as high as we do?

"Should we waste as much as we do?

"Don't we have a duty to conserve energy?...I believe these are matters for the conscience and private conduct of 23 million Canadians."

Hon. John Turner
Minister of Finance

A conservation plan for the '70s

The Canadian Government has already taken steps to put its own house in order. As part of an overall program the Department of National Defence recommended lowering building temperatures to 68 degrees during the day and 65 degrees at night. In a year they saved 5 million gallons of fuel oil worth over $1 million.

A new computer program is "tuning" Government buildings for energy efficiency. And research has been stepped up on several fronts.

The Government is meeting with Provincial Governments to enlist their support and with industries, fuel producers and suppliers to explore ways of increasing energy efficiency in manufacturing and heating.

A program of energy conservation standards, guidelines, taxes and other measures is being designed and implemented to attack the causes of energy waste in our society.

Energy conservation will also play an important role in future transportation, urban and industrial policies.

For the Canadian public, the Government will be releasing a series of helpful, informative messages and information pamphlets. They will tell, in easy detail, how each of us can cut down on our use of energy—and save from $25 to $200 a year in the bargain.

By making modest energy savings now, we can improve our environment and way of life far into the future.

Deseronto Hijack Victim Recounts Six Hours in Car Trunk

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

DESERONTO — A local man is safe at home this week after an incident Friday in Quebec in which the truck he was hauling a load of sugar was 'hijacked'.

John D. Brant, of RR1, Deseronto, said in an interview Monday he had left Montreal at about 11 a.m. Thursday, destined for Belleville after picking up a load of sugar in a rented truck. He drives a truck for a pharmaceutical plant in Belleville where he has been employed for the last 24 years.

About a half hour into the trip, travelling on Quebec's Highway 20, which runs into 401, he said a car pulled alongside his truck and motioned to him that something seemed to be wrong in the rear of his truck.

"I then pulled over, got out and walked to the back to check the rear door. When I went to pullaway someone pulled a toque over my head and put handcuffs on me. They told me not to move and I wouldn't get hurt.

"One had a gun and said if I moved I'd be killed.

"They then threw me into the car and put me in the back seat. They then went down some sideroad and put me into the trunk."

Mr. Brant said the six hours he spent in the trunk were cold ones.

"I was frozen. My coat was still in my truck and I had my sleeves rolled up.

"There had to be at least three men because I heard two talking in the front seat of the car and another drove my truck away. I could hear it pulling away as I was taken away," said Mr. Brant.

"They spoke to me in broken English and to each other in French. We drove to Montreal and at about 5:45 p.m. we stopped on a deserted street near the downtown area. They opened the trunk and told me I could go.

"Then they pulled off the toque and handcuffs and drove away.

"I called the police, then my wife who was upset, and then my boss.

Mr. Brant said the whole experience seemed like a dream.

"When they put me in that trunk I'd thought I'd never see anyone again. I never prayed so hard as I did in that trunk. And all the time I was only eight or 10 miles from the Ontario border.

"The only thing now is that you can lose a lot of trust over something like this. I'll never stop again I'll keep going," said Mr. Brant.

Police are still looking for the missing truck and its contents.

Trenton Councillors Balk At $1 Million Budget

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A tentative $1-million-plus capital works budget for 1975 will likely be cut substantially by town council before it receives final approval, expected within the month.

When presented here Monday, council balked at the $1,006,100 total and called for additional study before further discussion.

Councillor Robert Wannamaker voiced the first objections, saying "Probably, there's a lot of this we can cut down. We're in hard times . . .". Following further objections from other councillors, council agreed to hold a special meeting to discuss the capital works program for this year.

As presented by town treasurer Brian Fagan, the budget forecast shows a 6.9-mill increase in 1976, when the first payment for the town-assumed 1975 debenture debt comes due.

The mill increase, said Mr. Fagan, is needed to retire debt charges, or "the amount or principle and interest due each year on the debentures that we sell to finance capital works projects".

He emphasized that the 6.9 mill increase will come into effect only if council approves the entire $1-million-plus captial program.

The mill increase would represent 30-percent increase over 1975, when the rate increased 48.45 per cent from 1974. Between the two years, 1974 to 1976, the mill rate increase due to requirements to pay town debts will have risen almost 100 per cent.

Whatever the eventual increase is for 1976, it may not be reflected severely in the average total 150 mills a Trenton homeowner pays. Cuts in other areas of the current budget — representing yearly costs such as wages and maintenance — may match any rise in the capital budget, said Mr. Fagan.

The proposed capital works budget — representing costly expenditures for permanent structures is about 20 per cent of the town's entire budget. In late spring, the complete budget will be approved.

As proposed Monday, the $1-million-plus is made up from the following expenditures:

— $87,000 that has already received town approval for the Trenton green belt project on the Trent River's western bank.

— $12,500 for equipment and refurbishing a patient room at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

— $74,000 for a new baseball diamond ($50,000), work at Bain Memorial Park ($20,000), and lights for Trenton Community Gardens ($4,000).

— and the major expense $823,500 for the public works department for curb asphalt, storm and sanitary sewers, and Local Improvement Program construction. Part of the department funds are suggested for Front-Water St. reconstruction and relocation of the CPR tracks on Sidney St.

The above breakdown does not include finance charges the town would bear.

Tearing Down Building Earns Southern Trip

Tearing down the old McNeill's Fabric Centre paid big dividends for seven Belleville men this week. Each was given a week off and a round trip ticket to Miami Beach, Fla. for completing the job a week early.

Ray Finkle, owner of United Rigging and employer of the demolition crew, said Monday, "I've got a lot of respect for my men." The men may take the trip at their convenience.

"They earned this trip," he said.

Apparently the chance of a trip down south began when "sidewalk superintendents," the pedestrian equivalent of a back seat driver — kept advising Mr. Finkle that he'd never have the building down by the end of the month.

"So we thought we'd put on a little demonstration," said Mr. Finkle. "When the building came down, I bought the tickets."

While the men enjoy southern sun and fun, Mr. Finkle and a small handful of men began gutting the Tip Top building which recently housed Guaranty Trust Co. Ltd.

Mr. Finkle says the entire project will be complete by April 15.

Big Week Preparations

Day-long sessions Saturday at the Hastings County Education Centre prepared Education Week hosts for the upcoming event. Organized by the Ontario Home and School Association, area students, trustees, administrators and Home and School executives spent the day getting organized for Education Week, April 20 - 27. Pat March, left, chairman of the board of directors of the Hastings County Home and School Council, directs a seminar on publicity with, from the left, Mrs. Marilyn Hopkins, Trenton and Harry J. Clarke students Karen Claney, Linda Shaw, Jill Durnford, Cheryl Carscadden and Rhian Sansom.

Board Approves Higher Limit

No longer will Hastings County Board of Education trustees have to wade through a mound of cheques awaiting their approval before payment.

The board decided Monday to cut down on the number of cheques to be perused by raising the minimum of reportable cheques to $300 from $200.

Ken Wormald, superintendent of business, explained this will reduce the number of reportable cheques by 20 per cent, also reducing to 93-per cent from 94.5 per cent the amount of each total dollar reported.

In other business, the board approved two debenture bylaws of $64,000 for public school purposes and $500,000 for secondary school purposes.

Dodds: No Pool Fight Under Way

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Agricultural Society is not the villain responsible for problems faced by the Prince Edward Swimming Pool Committee in obtaining a pool site says fairboard director Philip Dodds.

Mr. Dodds says he is concerned with several recent press reports referring to "a fight" and "a power struggle" between the fairboard and the county.

He observed after the chairman of the swimming pool committee, Ed Rae, met with members of the agricultural society a committee was named to investigate feasibility of a pool at th efairgrounds.

At the annual meeting of the fairboard it was decided, unanimously, that the fair grounds would not be a suitable site.

The fairboard's decision was forwarded to county council.

"The fairboard had no bias and no prejudice against the pool. They investigated to see if the fairgrounds would be suitable site and decided it would not," he noted.

Mr. Dodds added press reports have stated the fairboard rejected the proposal because members felt "snubbed" by the pool committee's reference to the fairgrounds as a tentative pool site early in the game.

He said this is untrue and emphasized the fairboard had no reason to be "miffed".

"We never felt snubbed at all. There is no fight and no power struggle."

"This is just a plain presentation of the facts that must be considered," he said referring to reasons why the pool would be better located away from the fairgrounds.

He observed the pool committee should be prepared to offer a location for the pool and complete details on financial responsibilities as well as forwarding plans for raising funds.

No Noah's Ark

Rain and early runoff has created rising water problems around the Quinte district — giving this boat-building project a hint of the biblical. But it's no latter-day Noah's Ark, being hurriedly finished for the onset of all-consuming floods. The craft has been a spare-time goal in recent years for Elmwood Drive resident Joe Thibedeau. When completed it will be a 45-foot concrete ketch — a two-master sailing vessel.

Lower Interest Rates Expected To Produce Local Building Boom

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville will experience its busiest house-building spring in years, says Cecil Brown, manager of Victoria and Grey Trust Co. branch here.

Interest rates, which climbed in excess of 12 per cent by late fall stymied speculative building in the Belleville area. In this type of construction, the house-builder buys a mortgage at the current rate which covers his construction costs and profit and then "speculates" to sell the house.

During times of high mortgage interest rates, the consumer is leary and prefers to wait for a drop which could leave a builder stuck with the mortgage.

By January, rates began falling and this month have been recorded at 10¾ per cent.

With this drop, lenders began providing "speculation" mortgages this week for the first time in 11 months.

"In the last week we've loaned about a quarter of a million dollars in spec money ... and this is likely to climb to a million dollars in no time," said Mr. Brown.

"There's no doubt it will be a busy spring for building," said Mr. Brown.

"Most builders rely on this "spec money" ... particularly the small builder," he said.

Bob Marcotte, president of the Quinte Home Builders Association said Monday, "spec money is very important."

"There will be a building boom this spring ... we're going to be very, very busy," he said. "The supply of spec money is the best news builders have heard in a long time."

Mr. Marcotte said it will be difficult for area builders to catch up to last year when more than 100 new homes were constructed in the city.

"It'll take some doing to catch up for the lost time in the fall when there was nothing at all happening," he said.

Mr. Brown said a "substantial" increase in re-sold homes is also expected because of the drop in interest rates.

Consumers have backed off buying a house since late last summer as interest rates climbed "pushing mortgage payments out of their reach," said Mr. Brown.

"The magic was breaking the 11 per cent barrier and that's when the pace quickened," he said. "There will be a substantial increase now that we're beneath 11 per cent."

Mr. Brown said it is a "fair assumption that mortgage interest rates will drop no lower than 10.5 per cent."

TRENTON — Council expressed no opposition Monday to a suggestion by Trenton's newest industry, Stearns and Foster Canada Ltd., that the street the plant abuts be named Foster Stearns Rd.

The road will branch from Douglas Rd. in the town's northeast industrial park.

In a letter to council, company vice-president Ken Davoe said, "Since we will be more or less the only people on this road, I think this would be a nice gesture on behalf of the town of Trenton and I am sure that our chairman would be extremely pleased ...".

A bylaw to establish the name is expected before council in two weeks.

Trim Habs' Lead to Four

Stubborn L.A. Kings Refuse to Give Up

MONTREAL (CP) —Los Angeles Kings, enjoying their most successful season since joining the National Hockey League in 1967, continue their dogged pursuit of Montreal Canadiens.

This despite the fact the Canadiens have lost only one of their last 13 games, a 7-6 loss to New York Islanders here last Saturday.

The Montreal team today finds itself losing ground to the Kings atop the Norris Division where in the last week the Canadiens have seen their division lead shrink from seven points to four. The Canadiens have 86 points while the Kings have 82 with one game in hand.

The success of Los Angeles this yar has benn due to a balanced offensive attack combined with superb goaltending.

Five other NHL clubs have scored more goals than the Kings and while there is no Los Angeles player listed among the league's top 24 scorers, seven of the Kings have 20 goals or more.

Mike Murphy leads the club with 25 goals and his 55 points tie him for the team lead with veteran right winger Bob Nevin who has 22 goals.

Butch Goring and Dan Maloney each have 22 goals. Whitey Widing and Tom Williams both have 21 goals, while Bob Berry has 20—including seven game-winners.

Despite the seeming lack of contenders for the individual scoring title, the Kings are making a shambles of their own record book.

Their 6-0 win over Boston Bruins Saturday was their 33rd victory of the season, one more than their previous high of 32 last year.

The 82 points amassed by the Kings so far this season gives them four more than they ever had before. They are tied with the Canadiens for most road victories in the league—17. With 20 games remaining, they are only 30 goals shy of equalling the team record, 239 in 1970-71.

The goaltending chapter of the Kings record book also is being rewritten this season, thanks to Rogatien Vachon and Gary Edwards.

This pair has been largely responsible for the club's current seven-game unbeaten streak. During that time they have given up only 10 goals while overtaking Philadelphia Flyers in the Vezina Trophy race.

Vachon and Edwards have allowed 128 goals, nine fewer than the Flyers, in 60 games for a league-leading 2.13 combined goals-against average. Vachon owns the best individual mark in the league—1.98. His five shutouts, plus three by Edwards, add up to two more than the previous club record of six in 1973-74.

Last week was another meager stretch for two scoring leaders—centre Phil Esposito and defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins. Esposito leads with 107 points, although he has picked up only one goal and an assist in his last six games. He leads the league in goals with 53.

Orr is three points behind Esposito with 104 points, including a league-leading 69 assists. Orr picked up two points last wek, both goals.

Guy Lafleur, Montreal's sidelined right winger, remains in third place with 96 points, six more than team-mate Pete Mahovlich.

Denis Potvin

Potvin Took Tip From Bobby Orr

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Denis Potvin has been compared to Bobby Orr for so long, it seems only natural that Orr should get credit for some of Potvin's success.

The comparisons started seven years ago when Potvin, a native of Hull, Que., began playing junior hockey in Canada at the age of 14.

"The only other guy who ever played junior hockey at 14 was Orr, so people immediately started touting me as another Bobby Orr," the 21-year-old Potvin said Monday as New York Islanders took a day off from their quest for a National Hockey League playoff berth.

Potvin was the first player picked in the NHL 1973 amateur draft. And one of the people he ran into after that was Boston Bruin Bobby Orr.

"Bobby told me: 'I've never seen you play, but if what I hear is true, all you have to do is go out there and have confidence in yourself. You're always going to make mistakes, so you might as well be confident and limit your mistakes.'

"That really stuck in my mind so I guess you'd have to say Bobby's responsible for some of my success."

Last year, Potvin scored 17 goals and 54 points and winning rookie of the year honors. This year he's among the top point-makers on defence with 18 goals and 42 assists.

"It's always a great compliment to be compared to Orr and I hope it never stops. But the only thing I disagree with is that I hope to be recognized as an individual, that Denis Potvin's play is not the same as Bobby Orr's.

"My strong point is passing the puck, his is his skating ability and I'm lacking there. I don't try to beat my man but Bobby's so fast he can go around a guy in his own zone. I probably play a little more conservetive game and in my zone I always try to move the puck."

Junior A Leaders

Dennis Maruk, whose exceptional play has provided London Knights with a bright spot in an otherwise drab season, gained 11 points last week to jump into third spot in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series scoring.

Maruk now has 56 goals and 66 assists for 122 points in 54 games. The Knights are in 10th place in the 11-team series.

The performance still leaves the London forward 14 points behind Ottawa's Tim Young, who leads individual scoring statistics with 47 goals and a series-high 89 assists for 136 points in 60 games.

Bruce Boudreau of Toronto Marlboros is second with 54 goals and 75 assists for 129 points in 56 games.

Peter Lee of Ottawa 67s has 60 goals in 60 games—more goals than any other player in the league.

Paul Woods of Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds picked up 12 points last week to vault into fifth spot from ninth place.

Bill Cheropita of St. Catharines Black Hawks is the top goaltender with a 3.67 goals-against average.

Ed Westfall

It's Up and Down In the Pro Ranks

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — If you want to know about good news and bad news, ask Ed Westfall of New York Islanders.

That's been the story of the 34-year-old right winger's National Hockey League career—bad times and good in 11 seasons with Boston Bruins and more of the same since coming to the Islanders in the expansion draft that marked their birth three years ago.

"I had just spent four or five of the most glorious seasons any athlete can spend in his sport," Westfall recalls about his last years in Boston, which included two Stanley Cup championships.

It was a far cry from the early 1960s, when the lowly Bruins battled New York Rangers each year for what was laughingly called "the East Coast championship"—alias fifth and sixth places in the six-team NHL and an early vacation.

Their first year, the Islanders finished eighth in the East Division with a 12-60-6 record and were out-scored 347-170. They were eighth again last season but the record improved to 19-41-18 and the scoring differential was trimmed to 247-182 as coach Al Arbour stressed defensive hockey.

Now, things are looking up as the third-place Islanders battle their 1972-73 expansion colleagues, Atlanta Flames, for the third and last playoff spot in the Patrick Division.

And that's a far cry from the first-year growing pains.

"It's hard to go back and say how bad we really were," says Westfall, the Islanders' captain and one of only three players who have been with the club since the very beginning. "We set a lot of negative records. It was unreal. We were just trying to fill sweaters, to get enough guys on the ice.

"We practised at a rink that was so far out on Long Island it was like a two-day trip. Practice was a day-long job. You felt like packing a lunch because you'd leave home at 8 a.m. and sometimes you wouldn't get back until 8 p.m. Looking back now, it had its interesting moments and a lot of it was funny . . . but it wasn't funny then.

Now, Westfall and the Islanders worry more about a playoff spot. Things have progressed to the point where a three-game losing streak was cause for management to bar reporters from the dressing room after Friday night's loss to Vancouver. Two years ago, the club suffered through much longer losing streaks without such fits of temper.

The Islanders will play host to St. Louis tonight in one of four league games after all 18 teams had a rest Monday night.

In other games, Chicago travels to Washington, Pittsburgh is at Boston, and Minnesota plays host to Toronto.

Planning To 'Save' The Games

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says the International Olympic Committee (IOC) is drafting contingency plans to "save" the 1976 Games should Montreal prove unable to hold them.

The newspaper quotes IOC sources as saying that alternate plans include spreading the Games across Canada, asking Los Angeles, a defeated bidder, to stage an emergency Olympics, or returning the Games to Mexico City where they were held in 1968.

"If at some time several months from now it becomes obvious Montreal cannot finish the (Olympics) stadium in time for the Games, then some action will have to be taken," the newspaper quotes IOC president Lord Killanin saying during the weekend in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Nordiques, Mariners Headed for a Feud

QUEBEC (CP) — A few sparks flew in Monday's World Hockey Association game, but, judging by one remark after the game, flames could break out the next time Quebec Nordiques and San Diego Mariners meet.

"They're going to need a special plane to bring back the injured Nordiques from San Diego," said Mariner Jamie Bateman after Quebec beat San Diego 5-3 in a match that saw Bateman tangle with Quebec's Allan Globensky.

Bateman was looking ahead to the game a week from today when the Nordiques visit San Diego.

Globensky, a former policeman for Montreal Juniors of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, had been called up from the Nordiques' farm team in Maine. He made his first WHA appearance of the season in the third period and had only been on the ice 30 seconds when he ran into Bateman.

Both were sent off with major penalties for fighting.

But the scrap came after the Nordiques had already clinched the victory with four goals early in the third period for a 5-0 lead.

After the fight, the Mariners rallied but their comeback fell short.

Chris Bordeleau opened the scoring in the first period. After a scoreless second period, the Nordiques went on a rampage with Marc Tradif, Jeannot Gilbert, Rejean Houle and Real Cloutier scoring in the first six minutes and 28 seconds of the third period.

Quebec goalie Richard Brodeur held San Diego at bay until 10:03 of the third period when Wayne Rivers scored his 43rd goal of the season. Harry Howell added his third and Kevin Morrison his 15th.

The victory increased Quebec's Canadian Division lead to 10 points over the second-place Toronto Toros.

Nordiques coach Jean Guy Gendron called it a "very, very good game by the whole club."

"It's another in the bag, and if we take Thursday's game against Vancouver, we'll be very well set for the playoffs."

Napier Centre Of Storm

TORONTO (CP) — Mark Napier, an 18-year-old who claims he hasn't signed anything, today is the centre of a new storm over the signing of under-age junior hockey players by professional teams.

The storm blew up Monday when John F. Bassett, president of the World Hockey Association's Toronto Toros, announced that he has signed Napier to a three-year contract to start playing for the Toros next season.

Napier, who has scored 54 goals and 57 assists this season for Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, said he has been negotiating with the Toros but denied he has signed anything.

Regardless of whether he has signed yet or not, Bassett's statement that he had signed stirred up immediate reaction from a number of hockey officials, much of it directly opposed to Bassett's position.

Bassett's action goes against a recent tentative agreement between pro and amateur hockey that the pros would cease signing amateurs who are under 20 years old and also contravenes the established practice of choosing players through a draft before signing them.

After prompting from Health Minister Marc Lalonde, the federal minister responsible for sport, the WHA and National Hockey League last week gave the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) assurances it would stop drafting under-age juniors.

CAHA executive director Gordon Juckes said in Ottawa on Monday that he had received verbal assurances on this matter from both leagues.

NHL president Clarence Campbell reacted to Bassett's move by calling it "a very serious, and, I think, damaging development."

8-point Week Gave Andre Tie

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Andre Lacroix of San Diego Mariners picked up eight points last week to pull into a tie with Winnipeg's Bobby Hull for the World Hockey Association scoring championship.

Statistics released by the league office Monday show Lacroix with 97 points on 28 goals and a league-leading 69 assists. Hull, after his first league scoring title, has 52 goals and 45 assists.

Serge Bernier of Quebec Nordiques, who was tied with Lacroix with 89 points last week, picked up only one assist to fall seven points behind the leaders.

Larry Lund of Houston Aeros is in fourth spot with 81 points, followed by Ulf Nilsson of Winnipeg with 79. Wayne Rivers of San Diego is in fifth spot with 71 points, and 46-year-old Gordie Howe of the Aeros has 69 points on 26 goals and 43 assists to hold down sixth spot.

Howe has a one-point edge over Mike Walton of Minnesota Fighting Saints, who has 36 goals and 32 assists. Marc Tardif of Quebec follows with 67 points.

Ron Grahame of Houston continues to hold top spot in the league's goaltending race with a 2.93 goals against average. Grahame has allowed 97 goals in 1,987 minutes ply and has three shutouts.

Gary Kurt of Phoenix has a 2.94 average, allowing 116 goals in 2,365 minutes of play.

Tennis Match Troubles

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations for a proposed challenge tennis match between Jimmy Connors and Australian John Newcombe have broken down, Bill Riordon, Connors's manager, said Monday.

"I've been meeting all morning with Sidney Gathridge of Caesars Palace of Las Vegas," Riordan said. "We haven't even agreed on point one. As of this moment the situation looks bleak."

Reports out of Los Angeles over the weekend said a Connors-Newcombe match had been set for Caesars Palace April 26 with $260,000 in prize money.

"I don't know where that report came from," Riordon said.

Connors defeated Laver in their celebrated $100,000 winner-take-all match last month in Las Vegas.

Saskatchewan Remains Unbeaten

Alberta Gets Share of Second Spot

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Ivy Lord couldn't really have cared less when she started out earlier this year in the provincial playoffs leading to the New Brunswick ladies' curling championship.

The 1974 Canadian seniors women's champion and runner-up in the same event this year, entered only as a lark "because we were the host club."

Along with third Dorothy Garey, second Claire Olsen and lead Helen Cook, the foursome from the Thistle Curling Club in Saint John is old enough to be the mothers of most of the girls competing here.

"We were having a real good game up to the eighth end," Ivy said Monday night after her rink absorbed a 14-6 drubbing from the Alberta entry of Sharon Grigg of Medicine Hat. "Then they put a fiver on me. Everybody missed, including myself.

"I put them in for two, I believe. But that's curling. You can't do anything about it, can you?"

Alberta continued to pour it on in the ninth with three more before Mrs. Lord decided she had enough.

The win left Alberta, along with Joan Mogk of Souris, Man., Quebec's Lee Tobin of Montreal and Phyllis MacDonold's Nova Scotia entry from Halifax in a tie for second place with 2-1 records after three draws, trailing the unbeaten Saskatchewan foursome skipped by Marj Mitchell of Regina.

P.E.I. WINLESS

Marion Radcliffe of Kelowna, B.C., Gail Hiscock of St. John's, Nfld., New Brunswick and Ontario's Bea Cole of London are at 1-2 with Diane Blanchard and her Prince Edward Island girls from Charlottetown trailing, winless in three starts.

In other Monday night action, Saskatchewan recovered from a four-ender by B.C. to run off seven points in three ends for a 12-6 win, Quebec cashed in with a three in each of the eighth and ninth ends for a 12-4 victory over Newfoundland, Nova Scotia edged P.E.I. 8-7 and Manitoba turned back Ontario by stealing four in the 10th, 9-7.

In the afternoon draw, the scores were: New Brunswick 8 P.E.I. 6, B.C. 9 Manitoba 3, Nova Scotia 7 Ontario 6, Saskatchewan 9 Newfoundland 6, and Quebec 7 Alberta 5.

Saskatchewan, going after its seventh consecutive championship, takes on P.E.I. in today's 2 p.m. EST draw while Ontario meets Quebec, Nova Scotia faces Newfoundland, B.C. goes against New Brunswick and Alberta plays Manitoba.

At 8 p.m., it's New Brunswick vs. Newfoundland, Ontario vs. Saskatchewan, Manitoba vs. P.E.I., B.C. vs. Quebec and Nova Scotia vs. Alberta.

"We had entered the lassies (provincial playoffs) before we went up to Campbellton (N.B.) to compete in the seniors," Mrs. Lord said after her Monday night thrashing. "We never dreamt we'd win it. But we won it. And why, I don't know. I'll never know."

Ivy was adamant that there were far better rinks entered in the New Brunswick championship that would have put on a better showing than her girls.

"But we curled well, had some good breaks, you know," she added by way of explanation of how her elderly four reached the national finals.

"We lost a few, but we pulled the right ones out."

He's $3.5 Million Loser But Hemmeter a Believer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are increasing signs that the World Football League will attempt to play a second season although it will probably be on a smaller scale with fewer teams and fewer name players.

The league has given itself another month to find at least eight groups of owners willing to lose millions while they fight for the credibility and recognition that was so totally destroyed in the WFL's first season, when it lost more than $20 million.

If there is a second season—a possibility remote a few months ago—it will be a tribute to the energies and organizing abilities of Chris Hemmeter, a Hawaiian land developer whose WFL team lost about $3.5 million last fall.

That may have made Hemmeter's club the biggest one-year losing proposition in the history of sport, and now he's back for more as league president. But he claims it will be different this time.

For one thing, Hemmeter, operating under a reorganization plan he devised, is requiring all teams to place in escrow an amount variously reported at between $650,000 and $1.5 million.

This is designed to guarantee operating expenses and avoid the series of financial collapses so prominent last season.

Sources say Shreveport, La. Portland, Ore.; Birmingham, Ala.; Anaheim, Calif.; Chicago; Philadelphia and Honolulu are likely sites for WFL franchises. Others which have some possibility of being around are Tulsa, Okla.; Memphis, Tenn., and New York City.

Some of the current manoeuvring involves placing the franchise which owns the rights to former Miami Dolphins' Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield.

The league is losing some of the name National Football League players it signed, such as Ken Stabler and Ted Hendricks, and it may lose some of its own best players, such as rookies Booker Brown and James McAlister of Southern California.

Thus it is critical for the WFL to get the most exposure for the three ex-Dolphins, and that may be done by placing that franchise in New York. But the city has no suitable place for that team to play so it may locate at Yale Bowl in New Haven, Conn.

The major problem for the WFL in addition to finding owners willing to put up money is how to settle its staggering debts. In many cases these debts are not being settled, sources said.

For instance, if ownership changes hands some creditors may simply have to write off their outstanding bills as losses, which leaves the league still seeking a solution as to what it is going to do about back pay for its players.

One highly-placed source with a WFL team in the South said three or four teams are trying to settle back salaries by paying 20 cents on the dollar. Another team, which owes nearly $1 million in back salaries, was reported trying to settle for 50 cents on the dollar.

If the players will accept that—for many it's that or nothing—then the WFL may be on the road to recovery.

That won't be known for another month. In that time, the league, which means Hemmeter, will continue trying to round up investors.

But even if there is a second season, it is clear that the WFL is a long way from making it. It will take a solid performance to overcome the memories of last year, and even that won't guarantee that money can be made in today's economic climate.

McGinnis a One-man Gang

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Call George McGinnis a percentage player. Monday night, for instance, he was 34 per cent of Indiana's scoring and 29 per cent of its rebounding in the Pacers' 120-108 American Basketball Association triumph over San Diego Conquistadors.

McGinnis amassed 41 points and collected 21 of Indiana's season-high 72 rebounds in the rout which had San Diego coach Beryl Shipley marvelling at the performance by the 6-foot-8 forward.

"He's a super player and he played a super game," Shipley said of McGinnis, who also was credited with a career-best 13 assists.

Lost in the glitter of McGinnis' effort were 34 points by San Diego's Caldwell Jones and 23 more by Travis Grant.

Elsewhere in the ABA, Utah Stars beat New York Nets 117-113 and Kentucky Colonels defeated Memphis Sounds 109-87.

There were no games scheduled in the National Basketball Association.

Canadiens Explode

Montreal Junior Canadiens broke a 4-4 deadlock with five unanswered goals in the third period and defeated Laval Nationals 9-4 in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League action Monday night.

In the only other game played, Hull Festivals and Quebec Remparts fought to a 2-2 deadlock.

Denis Daigle, Pierre Mondou and Normand Dupont with two each, and Jean Luc Phaneuf, Marc Andre Duhamel and Mike McDougall scored for Montreal.

The Nationals got single goals from Jean Trottier, Yvon Vautour, Michel Dalbello and Phillippe Bellemare.

Claude Huard's unassisted goal at 18:14 of the second period gave the Remparts their tie with the Festivals.

Jim Montgomery and Bill Young scored early in the first period for Hull before Gaetan Boucher cut the margin to 2-1.

Hull outshot Quebec 26-24 before 3,376 spectators.

League action resumes tonight with Sherbrooke at Chicoutimi.

There will be one important switch in the operation of the Belleville Minor Softball Association this sseasn, according to Don Smith who was returned Sunday for his third term as president of the grouping.

This time around, midget-age players in the bantam division will be allowed to pitch any four consecutive innings in any game. Last year, midget-age players were not allowed to pitch.

"This should serve as an incentive for the midget players who take part in the league this year," observed Smith.

Other officers elected at a Sunday meeting are east hill vice-president Pete Hunt; west hill vice-president Garry Millar; statistician Mrs. Terry Collman; secretary Mrs. Carol Guest, and equipment manager, Doug Guest.

Smith reports that three Ontario Amateur Softball Association minor tournament dates have been set for Belleville. The squirt event is written in for July 12; peewee, July 19, and bantam July 26.

Tentative dates for minor softball registration have been set for April 11-12.

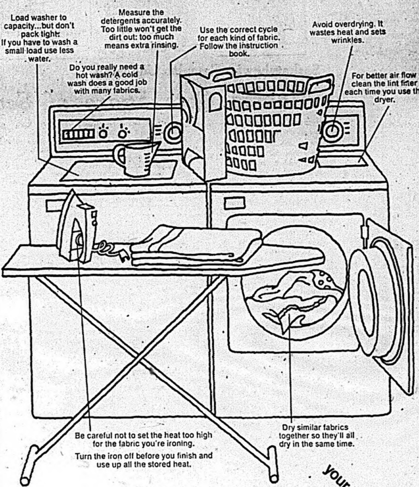
How to save energy when you do the laundry.



Load washer to capacity...but don't pack tight.
If you have to wash a small load use less water.
Measure the detergents accurately. Too little won't get the dirt out: too much means extra rinsing.
Do you really need a hot wash? A cold wash does a good job with many fabrics.
Use the correct cycle for each kind of fabric. Follow the instruction book.
Avoid overdrying. It wastes heat and sets wrinkles.
For better air flow clean the lint filter each time you use the dryer.
Be careful not to set the heat too high for the fabric you're ironing.
Turn the iron off before you finish and use up all the stored heat.
Dry similar fabrics together so they'll all dry in the same time.

Some of these tips will help you get a better wash;
they'll all help you save energy, in little ways that count.
If we each save a little, we'll all save a lot.

Goegan Dead at 48

Stricken at Arena

FIORI GOEGAN

Fiori Goegan, 48, former Belleville McFarland Senior A hockey player, died late last night at Belleville General Hospital.

A member of the Stanley Structures team in the Gas House Hockey League, Goegan was in the club's lineup during a win over Constellation Carpets, at Memorial Arena last night.

According to a team spokesman only about 10 minutes remained in the game when Goegan complained he did not feel well.

He remained on the players' bench until the game was completed. He collapsed later in the dressing room.

Teammates administered mouth to mouth resuscitation until an ambulance arrived to take the stricken player to hospital.

Lee May Trade Important - Gomez

By PRESTON GOMEZ
MANAGER, HOUSTON ASTROS

Manager, Houston Astros

I really feel that our ball club is better in many respects. We added some speed, traded for some highly touted youngster and helped ourselves defensively over the winter.

I think the Lee May trade was important to our ball club because we got Enos Cabell who can play both the infield and outfield and Rob Andrews who many say will be one of the best second basemen to ever play this game some day.

Houston needs a winner and I think we have the right combination to give them one this season.

Last season we got off to a bad start and the Dodgers never did slack off. They had a tremendous season and it's time the Astros had a great season. You have to win a lot of ball games to win the Western Division because I feel it's the strongest division in baseball.

Not only do you have to worry about the Dodgers, but also the Reds, Braves and Giants.

But I have felt all along that our club was as close to winning it as any club. Any team that has Cesar Cedeno, Doug Rader, Bob Watson, Larry Dierker, Greg Gross, Roger Metzger and Tom Griffin has to have a good club and a contending club.

During the off-season we also picked up Jose Cruz from the Cardinals, an outfielder with good speed who could help us, and Ken Baswell from the Mets, an infielder who gives us some lefthanded pinch-hitting and good defence at second base. I know those two guys can play and I think they can help us.

'I'm just glad to be back in 1975 because I don't feel we were able to accomplish what we wanted in 1974 and I know we can this year.

You've got to go tough in this division to win, but we are capable of it.

Just thinking about the talent on this club excites me and if we can get it altogether, there is no limit as to how far we can go.

We've got a fine coaching staff in Roger Craig, who will be my pitching coach again, Hub Kittle and Bob Lillis.

We are all anxious about the 1975 season. We know our goals and we plan to pursue them to the fullest.

Quinte Secondary School speedswimmer, Ted Reid, thrusts forward, but his efforts are to no avail as he finished second in this qualifying heat. The 17-year-old swimmer was testing his skills in the 50-yard boys' open butterfly at Sir James Whitney pool, Monday. The competition took place during Quinte and Sir James Whitney's annual speedswimming meet.

Speedswimming Splash

A few months ago the return of diving to the local sports scene was noted. A club had gotten a healthy start at the YMCA. Diving however, isn't the only facet of acquatic sports that is growing in popularity locally. Speedswimming has taken on a new look in the Bay of Quinte area.

Along with established swim clubs — Kiwanis, the YMCA and the Dolphin Club from Trenton — speedswimming has worked its way into a spot on the list of local secondary school competitive sports.

Saturday, the first Boys Central Ontario Speedswimming Championship for Secondary School was held at Sir James Whitney (OSD).

"I think it's because of the growth of facilities," said Sir James Whitney's swimming coach, Chris Kerr, "more and more new schools are being built with swimming pools right in the plans."

Speedswimming has already made its mark on some parts of Canada. For example: in British Columbia it is the premier sport. In the United States too, it rates high on the popularity list.

The Central Ontario meet was the only one of its kind every held in the area. Albert College, Sir James Whitney, Quinte Secondary, Moira Secondary, Bayside, Trenton, Cloyne and Oshawa were all represented.

"I consider the meet a success," said Kerr, "we really didn't know what to expect because it was the first one every held and we put things together rather quickly but everything went well."

To qualify for Ontario Federation of Secondary School Athletics Championships in Windsor this weekend, swimmers didn't have to finish first in their class. They had only to finish their race within a designated qualifying time. Even meeting the qualifying time isn't necessary. A swimmer may enter the OFSSA championships as long as he or she is representing a school. However, if the swimmer doesn't meet the qualifying time limit put on his race by the Ontario Federation at the Ontario meet he is advised not to test his skills at the provincial competition.

Oshawa's Dunbaron Secondary School recorded most of the best times at the Central Ontario meet. Trenton had the second best record and Quinto and Sir James Whitney broke about even for third place.

Monday night, Sir James Whitney also hosted another meet. A speedswimming competition against Quinte Secondary.

Quinte's 30 swimmers drastically outnumbered the 15-man team of Sir James Whitney, and therefore the Quinte team outscored the host team by a wide margin. Steve London, Denise Weber, Steve Garrow and Francis Millett, all of Quinte, were the top swimmers of the meet.

That isn't where competition for local secondary school swim teams ends. Wednesday, Sir James Whitney is holding the girls' section of the Central Ontario Secondary School Athletics Association Speedswimming Championships and both Quinte and Sir James Whitney have plans to travel to more out-of-town meets.

Not all R.R.S.P.'s are alike.

Consider the Toronto Dominion Retirement Savings Deposit.

The TD RSD is a bank deposit. That's the big difference. Its attractive interest rate is adjusted twice yearly to match that of the TD five-year Certificate of Deposit. And you never have to worry about fluctuations in the market value of stocks and bonds as you would with some other R.R.S.P.'s. Finally, there's no interest penalty for deregistering your TD RSD at any time.

As with all R.R.S.P.'s, eligible annual contributions are deductible from your current taxable income – up to $4,000 in some cases. So depending on your circumstances, the 1974 income tax you defer can be substantial.

For example, if you're an Ontario resident earning $15,000 per year, have a spouse without an earned income, two children under 16, and no company pension plan, you're allowed to contribute $3,000 to a TD RSD. A $3,000 reduction in your taxable income will result in a current year tax deferral of $1,024!

That same person contributing 5% of their earned income to a company pension plan can contribute up to $1,750 and make a 1974 tax savings of $600.

Your TD Manager is the person to ask about a TD Retirement Savings Deposit. You'll get all the facts, and you'll be pleased to know that you can start for as little as $250 with contributions of $100 or more whenever you wish. But hurry, March 1st, 1975 is the deadline for the 1974 tax year.

Datsun 710. More standard features than Nova, Maverick and Valiant combined.

If you've been thinking of buying a compact car, you probably have Nova, Maverick and Valiant on your list of possibilities. But if you're shopping for the best value for your money, you should add one more car to your list: a Datsun 710.

Because when you check out standard features, you'll find the Datsun 710 is way out ahead of the other three.

Nova, Maverick and Valiant all have standard six cylinder engines. Datsun 710 only has a four cylinder engine, but it's an Overhead Camshaft engine, which uses 43% fewer moving parts, so there are fewer things to go wrong. Score 3 for them (1 each) and 1 for us.

Now, score 1 for the Datsun's economic 4-speed transmission. (They all come with 3-speed transmissions.)

Maverick, Nova and Datsun have front disc brakes. Score 2 more for them and 1 for us. Then another for Datsun because ours are power assisted.

The Datsun 710 is lighter and more compact than they are, and still comes with a much larger battery and alternator than any of them. Score 2 more for us.

Datsun 710 comes with carpeting. Nova and Valiant don't, Maverick does. Score 1 for us, and 1 for them.

The Datsun comes with whitewalls and wheelcovers. Score 2 more for us.

It also comes with anti-lift wipers, separately fused dual headlights, tinted glass, electric clock, electric defogger and lighter. Score 6 for us.

The 710 comes with bucket seats. 1 more for us. The bucket seats recline to 12 different positions, so give us yet another.

If you've been keeping score, that makes 17 for Datsun 710, and 6 for the Maverick, Nova and Valiant combined.

Of course, we haven't listed all of their standard features. But then, we haven't listed all of ours either. (The Datsun 710 has another 60 or so we could list.)

All we've tried to point out is that before you buy any kind of car, to be absolutely fair to yourself and your money, you should check out a Datsun before you decide.

Precious Metal Firms Profit from Inflation

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — With inflation eating away the value of paper currency, investors are turning toward the precious metals like gold and silver in hopes of good returns

Brothers Ken and David Seed of Vancouver are keeping their doors open to such investors and are reaping substantial benefits themselves as a result of the rising interest in the things that glitter. They are also competing with each other.

Their father, Harry Seed, is chairman of the board of United Research and Development Consolidated Ltd., of which Delta Smelting and Refining Co. Ltd. and United Metal Industries Ltd. are subsidiaries.

Dave is president of United Research and Ken once worked there.

A year or so ago, Ken organized Western Mint Inc. which now is housed in this town near Vancouver under the same roof as his competing relatives, but in a different office.

"Sure, I've gone into competition with my own family," said Ken, "and for a time we didn't talk much but we're all back together again."

Western Mint is growing rapidly, sometimes doubling its business from month to month, and hopes to expand to several major Western Canadian centres.

Ken Seed's firm is Western Canada's representative for the sale of 100-ounce silver and gold bars processed by Johnson Matthey and Mallory Ltd. a wholly-owned subsidiary of Johnson Matthey and Co. Ltd. of London founded in 1812.

It also produces souvenir medallions from silver industrial plate rolled in Toronto, usually in one-ounce oblongs, stamped and numbered for registration, at 99. -per-cent purity.

Ken is bullish about the gold and silver market and urged people to buy for long-term benefit, although those who gamble in short-term profits might get nipped.

Ken advised people buying gold to pick up the metal rather than a certificate.

"If things go really sour you just might have trouble getting a delivery of the metal covered by certificates."

United Research buys and sells gold, silver, platinum and palladium, a rare metal used in electronic and electrical manufacturing.

About 70 per cent of the silver and gold handled by the firm is reprocessed metal—anything from a set of silver cutlery to gold caps for teeth, currently worth from $5 to $20 each.

In addition to the reprocessed metals and the gold and silver bars it purchases in Eastern Canada, United picks up placer gold from the Yukon and British Columbia.

Dave Seed, who visited the Yukon early last September, said as a result his firm has been receiving more than $100,000 in gold each month.

He said gold production in the Yukon now approaches 50,000 ounces each year.

"There is plenty of gold up there. I talked with couples who had cupboards full of jars filled with gold, each worth about $6,000. They sell two or three whenever they need money."

But in the long run, Dave Seed said speculators and investors can do better with silver than gold because the many more uses for silver will eventually restore its value.

Newfoundland Plants Idle Due Strike of Fishermen

GRAND BANK, Nfld. (CPe — Seven of Newfoundland's biggest fish processing plants are idle because dragger and trawler crews are on strike, demanding a guaranted annual income.

The seasonally-operated plants have been out of production since last November with both the workers and the fishermen who supply the plants with raw material in summer months receiving unemployment cheques.

Unemployment in the fishery and processing plants is serious during any winter season but the deep-sea fisherman's strike is making the early part of 1975 the worst on record.

The only bright spot in the province since Christmas is a small section of the southwest coast between Port aux Basques and Burgeo.

In this area, a small number of fishermen still carry on the winter fishery as their fathers and grandfathers did. While some have bowed to the use of more modern boats, such as longliners, others still face the winter sea in open dories.

The dories sometimes have a small gasoline engine to propel them to the fishing grounds but the fishermen still toss baited hooks into the water on a single line and haul it manually.

In this area, cod fishing is at its best during the winter months.

At one time hundreds of schooners took part in the winter fishery in the area but since the passing of the great Grand Banks schooners there has been only a small band of inshore fishermen carrying on in the traditional way.

In this area, the only trawlers to sail to the fishing grounds since the Christmas holidays are bringing in bumper catches of cod, perch and other species, and earnings are running as high as $1,000 a man on each seven-day trip.

The handful of trawlers, carrying 60 to 70 men, was able to resume the post-Christmas fishery because the men have no union, and the companies guaranteed them at least $350 a trip.

Other trawlermen on the province's south coast are members of the Newfoundland Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers Union and have refused to sail for the fishing grounds unless they are guaranteed an annual wage of $13,000 a man.

The companies involved have offered a guarantee of $8,000, plus a share of fish catches which they say would bring a fisherman's annual earnings to $12,000 based on 24 trips and an average catch of 150,000 pounds a trip.

The union has turned down the companies' offer.

About 800 trawlermen are involved in the strike but some 3,000 plant workers are affected because there is no raw material to process. The plant workers are eligible for unemployment insurance benefits.

But the trawler crews are denied such benefits and even provincial welfare, although the government says no one will be allowed to suffer want for food or clothing or other basic essentials of life.

The trawlermen's only income is a small weekly cheque from the union's strike fund.

The strikers number only 10 per cent of the province's fishermen but they are the most important wage-earners on the south coast and especially on the Burin Peninsula where four large processing plants devour their catches on a year-round basis. The plants depend almost entirely on the deep-sea catches.

Frozen groundfish production in the province last year was down more than 25 per cent of the 1973 total or 130.8 million pounds, due in part to a three-month strike by the trawlermen that was settled temporarily by the appointment of a conciliation commission.

The men took their boats to sea after the commission was appointed and were elated later in the fall when the commission suggested an end to the age-old system of paying them by how much they catch.

The commission suggested the annual wage of $13,000 that the union adopted as its position when it refused to send the boats back to sea after the Christmas vacation.

The catch last year was also reduced by heavy Arctic ice that prevented inshore fishermen along northern coasts from fishing until as late as July.

Heavy fishing by foreign interests was also blamed for the shortage of cod and other species.

Biologist Studying B. C. Kelp

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kelp and its role in British Columbia's future will be examined by a Vancouver marine biologist who calls the marine plant one of the most versatile substances known to man.

Dr. Ronald E. Foreman of University of B.C. botany department has received a $20,000 grant from the federal and provincial governments to undertake a comprehensive study of the plant.

"We want to be able to predict how much wet tonnage one bed of kelp will yield per acre, the best means of harvesting it and what we can expect from regrowth after harvesting," he said.

The extent of the province's kelp beds is not yet known but they may be the world's largest, and a potential rival to the multi-million-dollar business in harvesting the plant in California and Japan.

The research will concentrate on beds off the northern end of Vancouver Island and Malcolm Island in Queen Charlotte Strait

Dr. Foreman said that at one point on the coastline the kelp beds stretch continuously for 25 miles at a width of 1,000 feet, "and they are just a small bed."

Why is kelp so important and valuable?

Dried, it is a wonder weed. Kelp alginates are odorless, colorless, gelling agents that put fixative in hair sprays and keep the suds afloat in a glass of beer

Rich in iodine, kelp chips may be eaten like dried cereal. The alginates also provide the rich foam in shaving creams and shampoo and are used in face creams, pill coatings, plastics for dental impressions, toothpaste, salad dressings and fertilizers.

Under ideal conditions, the snaky-tendrilled seaweed grows as much as a foot a day.

Dr. Foreman said there are two main varieties of floating kelp—the macrocystis with its floats and blades and the nereocystis with its long whiplike tentacular appendages.

Macrocystis is preferred because it is a perennial, growing year after year like grass. It needs a highly saline habitat to thrive and thus is not found in areas receiving a large fresh-water input from coastal rivers.

Home for Canadian Films To Be Found in Ottawa Basement

OTTAWA (CP) — In the basement of a large old building on Wellington Street Sam Kula and his 16-member staff are making a home for old feature films, newsreels and documentary films made by Canadians or filmed in this country.

For three years the Public Archives of Canada have been developing national film archives under Mr. Kula's direction.

"The idea is to make every film available to the public, but they must be serious students of films—interested in studying directorial skills or composition, for example—not just people coming in to indulge a hobby or high-school students working on a project," Mr. Kula said.

Movies have been with Canadians since 1896, when the Holland Brothers began their tours with film shows and fairs throughout the country and the United States.

Canadian Film Institute (CFI) records show that 67 feature films were made in Canada between 1896 and 1939. However, there was little interest in saving them. Most of the early movies—including the first Canadian feature, Madeleine de Vercheres, made about 1912, and film footage about the First and Second World Wars—were lost.

The immediate concern of the archives is to find originals or copies of films made since 1896.

Preserving early films takes money and care. Old nitrate film is highly flammable and needs controlled storage.

Copying old black-and-white nitrate film onto newer acetate safety film costs 50 cents a foot. Rewinding, boxing and storing is also expensive.

The earliest collection of Canadian film was made by the National Film Board, which came into being in 1939.

In 1967 the film board had a fire in its Montreal warehouse that destroyed many old films. This hastened the organization of the national film archives and the search for copies of films lost in the fire extended under its direction across Canada, the United States and abroad.

Now many have been recovered, reprinted and stored.

The project has worked in co-operation with the CFI, which had started its own Canadian film archives a number of years before.

One aim of the national film archives is to consolidate and co-ordinate the federal government's interest in motion pictures and television, Mr. Kula said.

"This involves the resources of the National Film Board, the CBC and other government departments and agencies, as well as films produced with the participation of the Canadian Film Development Corp. and the Canada Council."

He said he hopes to include videotapes of television programs, representative films of program series, industrial films, movies made in Canada by foreign film-makers and anything else that has to do with the film industry and Canadians.

The film archives have outgrown their Wellington Street premises and will soon move to larger temporary quarters. A permanent home may be found eventually in the projected new National Archives.

Western Indian Paintings Inspire Contemporary Ballet

OTTAWA (CP) — The majestic paintings of West Coast forests and Indian settlements by Emily Carr are the inspiration for a new contemporary ballet being conceived by song writer Ann Mortifee and choreographer Anna Wyman to mark International Women's Year.

Miss Wyman is founder and director of the Anna Wyman Dance Theatre of Vancouver, which appeared at the National Arts Centre Friday and Saturday while on its first coast-to-coast tour.

The new ballet was commissioned by the Vancouver Art Gallery with a $25,000 grant from the federal government's special fund to support International Women's Year. It will have 10 performances in the gallery in July and then go into the dance company's repertoire.

Miss Wyman, who came to Canada in 1967 from England and Austria, her birthplace, formed the nine-member dance theatre three years ago. It has won enthusiastic audiences on tours throughout B.C.

The current tour goes on to Toronto, Montreal and Halifax from here.

When Miss Wyman returns to Vancouver, work will begin in earnest on the Emily Carr ballet.

"This is something different for me," she said. "I haven't given any thought to the choreography yet, but am trying just to get the feel of Emily Carr's work.

"We won't try to tell the story of her life, but just simply deal with the form and feeling of the paintings and the environment in which she worked. To me, the paintings feel very majestic, very big, very sweeping."

Emily Carr, who died in 1945, was born in Vancouver and studied art in San Francisco, England and France. She struggled for many years to achieve a style she was comfortable with, and it was not until she was well into her 50s that her painting matured.

During periods of ill health which prevented her painting, she wrote autobiographic and sometimes satiric comments on human relationships.

Miss Mortifee is best known for the music and lyrics she wrote for the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's version of The Ecstasy of Rita Joe.

Miss Wyman said that when the dance company left Vancouver, Miss Mortifee wasn't ready to discuss the music for the new work in any concrete way.

Casals' Widow Preserves Memory Of World-renowned Cellist

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Early each morning, Marta Casals steps out onto the small, open-air terrace of her 10-room, Spanish-style home.

In her hand, she holds a cup of freshly-brewed Puerto Rican coffee. And for a few idle minutes, the 38-year-old widow of cellist Pablo Casals gazes at the city below her.

The perpetuation of Casals' memory, the young widow said, is the central theme of her life today.

From her mountainside home, Mrs. Casals pointed to the red-roofed tower on the University of Puerto Rico campus. A few hundred yards from the tower is the university's 3,000-seat theatre, home of the Casals Summer Festival, launched in 1957, the year the Casals were married.

Puerto Rico's capitol where Casals lay in state after his death on Oct. 22, 1973, at the age of 97, is visible from the terrace. And on clear days, she can see the small church near the beach where she and her husband worshipped. He is buried in the churchyard, just steps from the sea.

Since her husband's death, Mrs. Casals has lived alone except for a personal secretary. A large, fierce boxer dog stood guard just behind the chain-link fence surrounding the graceful white house.

The black mourning dress, worn for a year, was gone. This day, Mrs. Casals wore a sleeveless, aqua-colored dress and a single strand of white beads. Her black hair was pulled back neatly from her soft, round face. She is strikingly beautiful.

Standing in the music room of her home, filled with mementoes of the Casals career, she talked about her husband, whom she married when she was 22 and he was 82.

"For me, Casals was everything," she said softly. "Not only did I have a love for him as a man, I also had admiration and respect for him.

"He was an exceptional human being, a very warm person and the greatest cellist who ever lived."

Asked if the 60-year age difference affected their relationship, she said: "No, not at all. We never experienced any difficulty as a result of our age difference. He was ageless."

About her life today:

"I serve the ideals of Pablo Casals," she said. "His ideal was to have musicians serve music, and not to have music serve musicians."

An excellent cellist in her own right, Mrs. Casals could build a name for herself and a small fortune on the concert circuit She was Casals' star pupil after the pair met in October, 1954, in the south of France.

"I will perhaps return to the cello some day. I could teach. I have received so much instruction from the maestro. The result could be important for future cellists."

She has turned down offers to write about her life with Casals. "That would take time and a lot of peace and quiet."

Pianist Rudolf Serkin, an intimate friend of Casals, offered her a full professorship at the Curtis School of Music in Philadelphia. She said she probably would teach only three or four weeks each year at Curtis.

Wednesday, February 26

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could make a big mistake where your work is concerned if you permit your attention to wander. Concentrate on the task at hand.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) Your optimism is apt to overrule your common sense and better judgment. You'll attempt something risky that's best left untried.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) Major decisions that will have an effect upon the family's lifestyle should not be made impulsively now. Proceed cautiously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It will be easier for you to say "yes" than "no" today. You're going to make some commitments without considering future consequences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be realistic about what you spend. It would be a mistake to rely upon what you think will be coming in to cover present financial moves.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.) You know innately what your course of action should be. Rather than approach it directly, you'll conjure up excuses to put things off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is not a time to lean too heavily upon intuitive feelings. View situations as they are, not as you hope they'll be.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you have financial dealings with friends today be sure all terms are spelled out. Vagueness could later cause complications, Dec. 21) You're likely to as-

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Don't jump to conclusions based upon hearsay and partial information. If you do you'll find yourself in over your head.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a warning for you again today to tread cautiously in business and other matters that involve the property of others.

PPISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar. 20) Make no sudden moves where legalties are concerned without being backed up by expert counsel. Be careful what you sign today.

Nicotinic Acid Is Not Nicotine

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain the relationship between nicotine in cigarettes, which is said to constrict blood vessels and cause poor circulation, and nicotinic acid, which is prescribed to avert migraine headaches.

I thought migraines were caused by dilation of blood vessels in the head. I am confused.—S. L.

Nicotine and nicotinic acid are similar in their molecular structure, but their properties are quite different.

Nicotine is a poisonous alkaloid found in tobacco. Nicotinic acid is a vitamin of the B-complex family, and it is essential to the body.

Nicotinic acid has been used in the treatment of pellagra, a disease that was once common in areas where diets consisted largely of corn meal, a food deficient in the vitamin. It was reported that about 7,000 Americans died of pellagra in 1930 alone, most of them in the South.

There were fears that when nicotinic acid was named there would be some confusion, that people would get the notion tobacco nicotine was some kind of vitamin, to. To avoid this, the name was quickly changed to "niacin," by which it is commonly known today. However, the confusion remains because of the use of the old name by some scentists.

You are confused on another matter. Niacin does dilate blood vessels, but it is not used in treatment of migraine, in which there is first a constriction followed by a dilation of blood vessels in the head.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please give your opinion of by-pass surgery to take off weight? Is there a danger to health after such surgery? Can it ever be undone?

Would you advise it for a 43-year-old mother of five children who is in good health except she is so overweight? She has tried several diets but they don't seem to work. She can't control her eating.—H. L.

By-pass surgery involves a closing off of a section of the small intestine. The idea is to reduce digestive capacity, permit less food absorption, and thus fewer calories, the eby reducing weight. The theory is physiologcally sound, and the surgery has often produced desired results.

Would I recommend it? No, except in the most dramatic cases of obesity and when all other methods have been tried or where continued obesity represents an immediate threat to the life of the patient. In general, prevention is always desired over treatment in overweight persons.

Your letter leaves out an important fact. Just how overweight are you? You would be a candidate for this surgery only if your physician sees there is no other way to get weight off you. Most doctors are aware of the difficulties encountered after such surgery, and so do not recommend it lightly.

Liver, heart, and blood problems have been known to occur as a result of it.

The procedure is reversible since the section by-passed remains as a closed-off loop that can be reconnected later.

If you are not grossly overweight, some self-control and a sensible diet would be better for you than surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a little trouble with seepage of urine during sleeping hours. I had prostate surgery about 15 years ago. I have no difficulty during the day.

I drink quite a bit of water. Please comment.—C. C. G.

If it has not already occurred to you to do so, you should cut down your liquid intake after 4 p.m.

Some seepage is not uncommon after prostate surgery. Your doctor can prescribe a drug to alleviate this, although its effectiveness is not at all predictable.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a serious stroke a year ago. Now he quite often has problems with his eyes, both going blind The sight flashes off for from a few seconds to a half hour. You once mentioned nerves behind the eye causing this.

Will you explain?—Mrs. A.

I believe you are referring to defects in the carotid arteries of the neck, which I have commented on over the years. These supply the brain, and a partial obstruction of this blood flow can cause sight disturbance.

Such an obstruction can be verified through a carotid arteriogram. If one is found it can be removed or bypassed surgically.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The first defensive signal a beginner learns is to play an unnecessarily high card to ask partner to lead the suit in which the signal is made. Usually the high discard shows strength, but sometimes when defending against a trump contract it shows ability to ruff the suit.

Later on, he learns all sorts of suit preference and count signals that are likely to confuse him, unless he bears in mind that these only apply when it is clear that the high card isn't strength showing.

Now take a look at the East hand. Your partner who has cver called with one heart opens the king against five clubs. What card should you play?

The answer is that you should play the eight and ask partner to continue. He would continue in any event, but when you follow your eight spot play with the deuce he will lead a third heart. Dummy will have to ruff and you will score your king of trumps later.

Could this false come-on hurt you? Yes. It is possible, but highly improbable in view of South's bidding. Your only real chance to beat this contract is for your partner to have exactly what he does.

Buffalo Policemen Charged

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Niagara region police have laid charges against two Buffalo, N.Y., policeman who chased a truck across the Peace Bridge Feb. 8, while Buffalo police have issued a warrant for the driver, James Powless of Fort Erie, Ont..

In both cases, the accused persons would have to cross the border before the charges would become effective.

Niagara Deputy Police Chief James Gayder said Monday an information has been sworn, charging patrolmen William T. Young and Warren G. Derner of the Buffalo police department with assault causing bodily harm.

Buffalo Capt. James B. Cunningham said Monday a felony warrant has been taken out against Mr. Powless, charging him with reckless endangerment of life for allegedly smashing into the side of the police car which tried to stop his vehicle in Buffalo.

Capt. Cunningham said he knows nothing about any charge against the two policemen who allegedly were involved in a scuffle with Mr. Powless at the Canadian end of the Peace Bridge linking Fort Erie and Buffalo.

Niagara Police Chief Albert Shennan said the Buffalo patrolmen are scheduled to appear in provincial court in Ridgeway, Ont., on March 21 for a preliminary hearing.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Henry Ford II, chief executive officer of the Ford Motor Co., was arrested for investigation of drunk driving during the weekend, police authorities said Monday.

Kill Is Large

FORT CAMPBELL (AP) — More than 1.5 million blackbirds are believed to have been destroyed by a United States Army spray program near this western Kentucky base last week, an army spokesman said Monday.

Consumerism Crests

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A top corporate executive said Monday that industry has been able to check the wave of consumer complaints of the last decade by listening and acting.

Minor Factor

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Oil executive James Kerr said Monday that Canadians should not be misled into believing they have some form of control over the energy situation in the United States.

"Our natural gas exports represent only four per cent of the United States' present natural gas requirements," the chairman of TransCanada Pipelines told the Canadian Club.

Check Radiation

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario health officials said Monday they are checking radiation levels at 13 more locations where companies were known to use radium in painting luminous dials during the Second World War.

The health ministry announced Friday it had sealed off the third floor of a building in downtown Toronto where radiation levels were found up to 800 times in excess of safety limits. Abnormal levels were found at another Toronto building during the weekend.

Quits Cabinet

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — William Marshall said Monday he quit the Newfoundland cabinet in a dispute with Premier Frank Moores over an agreement by the government to pay $900,000 annually for rental of a building.

Mr. Marshall, Progressive Conservative House leader and minister without portfolio since the Moores administration first took office in January, 1972, said the cabinet had decided to enter into an agreement with businessman Craig Dobbin for rental of the building without calling public tenders.

OTTAWA (CP) — A provincial government proposal to establish a special fund to protect credit union savings has brought an unfavorable response from eastern Ontario credit unions.

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. M. V. O'Shaughnessy, assistant director of a Kingston public health laboratory, said Monday that an influenza outbreak has caused hundreds of cases of flu here recently. Deny Claim Patients Won't Get Pacemakers

TORONTO (CP) — James A. McNab, president of Toronto General Hospital, said Monday that a statement by a Toronto heart surgeon that as many as 100 heart patients needing pacemakers may have to be turned away from the hospital's pacemaker clinic in 1976 was premature.

"No one has ever suggested that necessary pacemaker insertions will be refused at Toronto General Hospital because of lack of funds," Mr. McNab said in a news release.

On Sunday, Dr. Bernard S. Goldman told the hospital's Pacemaker Club that provincial budget cuts may result in as many as 100 patients being turned away because the ministry of health may impose a limit on pacemaker implants at the clinic.

Two of Slain At Montreal Were Fugitives

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Monday the two men killed in separate shooting incidents in the city during the weekend were escaped convicts.

Daniel Avery, 28, sought since 1972 when he escaped from the Norfolk Massachusettes Penitentiary, was killed during a gun battle and chase in the city's west end Saturday.

Police said the shooting began when a man left a parked car on a downtown street before two officers could make a routine check. The man fired at police, took over a taxi, then fired again when a patrol car intercepted the taxi. He was shot to death in an alley.

Gilles Morin, 19, who escaped from a rehabilitation centre in Lake Echo in the Eastern Townships, was shot to death Saturday by a store attendant during an armed robbery at an east-end grocery store.

Police said the man was fleeing the store with an undetermined amount of cash when he was shot.

Charges Said False

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro said in the Commons Monday that any allegations connecting him with the alleged harbor fraud in Hamilton are totally false.

He rose to give his position after Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) asked Prime Minister Trudeau whether he had discussed the alleged scandal with his ministers. He also wanted to know whether any MPs had been called to testify in the case.

The National Press Club Ball will go ahead as planned Fiday beneath the chandeliers of the Chateau Laurier Hotel ballroom despite criticism that the event has helped to taint Ottawa's working journalists as freeloaders.

Transportation Accord Reached

CALGARY (CP) — An agreement in principle, described as "a major breakthrough" in Western Canada's fight against certain discriminatory transportation policies, has been reached between the federal and provincial governments.

It did not solve all the problems, said Saskatchewan Attorney-General Roy Romanow.

The accord was announced Monday in a communique by Transport Minister Jean Marchand and the provincial ministers responsible for transportation — Transport Minister Robert Strachan of British Columbia, Alberta Industry Minister Fred Peacock, Mr. Romanow and Manitoba Industry Minister Leonard Evans.

The communique, released at the end of a two-day meeting, said agreement was specifically reached on five principles:

—Small communities to be included in the same rate groups as the nearest large cities, saving them money;

—The federal Canadian transport commission to reject future railway applications for across-the-board rate increases, and any future railway applications for rate increases must be justified by full cost disclosure;

—A change in the formula of maximum-rate restrictions with the intention of easing the burden on certain shippers;

—Elimination of long - haul short-haul anomalies so that "intermediate rates will not exceed long-haul rates . . . except where particular competitive circumstances justify a special rate to a long-haul destination;" and —Elimination of anomalies between the freight rates on raw and finished products.

U. S. Arms Sales Annoying to India

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States resumption of arms sales on a cash-and-carry basis to Pakistan has brought a new strain in U.S. relations with India.

In announcing the end of the decade-old embargo on weapons sales to both Pakistan and India, the state department said Monday it sees no reason why the U.S. should not continue to enjoy good relations with both countries.

But India's ambassador, T.N. Kaul, did not see the future of U.S.-Indian relations in optimistic terms.

"It is regrettable that the U.S. government should have felt it necessary to change its policy of an arms embargo which had helped relax tension and the process of normalization," he said in a statement. "It is all the more regrettable because of the adverse effect it will have on Indo-American relations. India attaches importance to its friendship with the U.S.A but friendship is a two-way street."

State department spokesman Robert Anderson said the U.S. has no interest in resuming its role as a major arms supplier to the region or in stimulating an arms race.

Police Discrimination Charged by Minorities

TORONTO (CP) — A member of the Canadian-Jamaican Association says that the federal government, through immigration and manpower agencies, and the police discriminate against minorities.

Bromley Armstrong said blacks have complained that federal immigration officers have torn up in front of them documents which might make the difference between remaining in Canada or being deported.

He said police lay excessively heavy charges against black and Asian drivers involved in traffic accidents, giving insurance companies an excuse to raise premiums for black and Asian drivers "sky high."

Still of Good Cheer After a Century

Dave Trumble is in typical good spirits as he jokes with nurse Maria Pollard at Queen's Self-Care Unit Tuesday — and her cheery response is also a common one with the staff caring for the convalescent patient. There's a good reason. Mr. Trumble, of Northbrook, is registered as born in 1867, but his energy and good humor belie his age by years and years.

Protest to Parliament

Public Service Workers Parade

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal labor and trades employees massed on Parliament Hill today to protest a failure of contract talks and what union representatives call inflexibility by the treasury board.

More than 2,000 workers from Ottawa and Kingston who are on strike took part. Almost all the 2,500 labor and trades workers in the Ottawa area and 500 mint employees are on strike today.

Union spokesmen said they would continue the protest throughout the day and expected working members of the public service to join the protest during noon hour.

The employees circled the grounds in front of the Centre Block, chanting and carrying placards.

Members of the labor and trades group have been striking in various centres for 10 days. The strike has disrupted mail service, grain shipments and some air travel.

The only employees in the group in Ottawa who were not striking today were airport runway cleaners who have been designated as essential and, forbidden to strike, a union spokesman said. The protestors were joined by four busloads of employees from Kingston.

Gordon Kritsch, chief negotiator for the 18,600-member group, said the treasury board was trying to break the strike by the labor and trades employees because government negotiators want to set a pattern in bargaining for other militant groups of employees.

The treasury board now is negotiating with heating and power employees, about 16,000 letter carriers and 20,000 inside postal workers.

"They want to set an example with the GLTs," Mr. Kritsch said. "We're bearing the brunt right now."

Meanwhile, blue-collar workers represented by the PSAC resumed picket lines outside Toronto post office entrances today, ending a 36-hour truce initiated to sort and deliver government social assistance cheques.

Reports from across the country indicated that the 18,600-member union was stepping up strike action today in an effort to get federal government representatives back to the bargaining table.

Dief Reported Much Better

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker was reported by his office to be feeling "much better" today, his fourth day in Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Mr. Diefenbaker, 79, entered hospital Saturday after returning from his Prince Albert riding with a fever. The fever continued, on and off, until yesterday, and Monday night doctors had reported a drop in his blood pressure.

The illness has not been diagnosed, although doctors have said it might be a form of flu.

He was said to have had a restful night and today his temperature was normal.

Vessel Flees

Ship Is Silent Amid Ice Floes

QUEBEC (CP) — The saga of the cargo vessel Answer continued to unfold Tuesday amid speculation that the ship was somewhere near Anticosti Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 500 miles northeast of Quebec City.

A spokesman for the marine traffic control centre in Sept-Iles said the 1,800-ton vessel was in an area of ice floes and refusing to acknowledge radio signals from shore.

An official of the New Brunswick transport department said there was little chance she would get much further because of the ice but there was no indication early today that she had stopped.

Port officials said the ship, under command of her former owner, Captain Brian Erb, left Quebec City illegally Sunday without a navigation permit and customs clearance.

Jacques Bouchard, Mr. Erb's lawyer, said in an interview the vessel, with a crew of 10 men and eight women, was headed for the Bahamas via Boston.

He said Mr. Erb, who operated a salvage operation in the St. Lawrence River, was armed and would resist arrest.

But RCMP officials said they plan no action against the fleeing ship because the case comes under Quebec Provincial Police jurisdiction.

The Answer, formerly the Atlantean, was seized by federal authorities a year ago after her crew tried to refloat a vessel near Ile d'Orleans in the St. Lawrence and refused to abandon the stranded ship during the salvage operation.

Mr. Erb later lost a court battle against a refrigeration company which sought payment for repairs to his ship. The vessel then was put up for sale at a debtor's auction.

Self-Care Unit Patient

Dave Trumble, 107, Eagerly Awaits Hospital Release

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Dave Trumble is signed in at 107.

He's under convalescent hospital care, but waiting to go home.

And when he does set forth for Northbrook, there seems little doubt he'll stride out in the same way he's gone through life — determinedly, energetically, impishly.

Down at the Queen's Self-Care Unit — Belleville General Hospital's annex for patients not needing active treatment — they've never had a patient like Dave Trumble.

It's not only his age — as old as Canada.

It's — well, it's Dave Trumble.

He's asactive and articulate as his fresh blue-eyed looks — those of a man at least 25 years younger.

His medical records give his date of birth as Dec. 16, 1867.

"Medically, he's in superlative condition for a man of his age," says a doctor.

He's as active and articulate patient. He keeps everybody entertained," marvels Marj Helmsley, unit nurse.

Says Dave himself — recuperating from minor face surgery: "I'm feeling just as fine as a frog's hair."

Here's how he recounts his life story.

— Born in Haliburton, one of a lumberman's 13 children, he was scouting the family's food at the age of eight in the bush in central Hastings County.

— He prospected, lumbered and mined around Gilmour and Gunter in the 1880s.

— In the early 1900s he sought for ore around Cobalt — and found it for his company, he says — when the first prospectors moved into the Northern Ontario wilds.

— He went overseas in World War I and was discharged after being wounded.

— Back in Canada, he went logging again in the Gunter area, quitting in 1944 when he broke his back. By then he was past 70.

— Then, he decided to take up crop farming. He moved to the Northbrook area, but finally found his back problem made handling farm machinery irritating. So he quit. By then, he says he was 90.

— At 102, he quit smoking, chewing tobacco and drinking alcohol, and has "felt 100 per cent better for it".

— His family has counted 19 children — including three sets of twins, he says.

Now he lives in a house at Northbrook where he grows his own garden and walks as much as he "can stand".

"I was always going, and going — and going," he says.

He tells a story from those days hunting as an eight-year-old.

In the snowbound Gilmour-area bush he once lost his bearings. Then, followed human footprints until he found they were his own.

In the freezing nightfall he found a leaf-covered hole, he says.

He crawled inside and slept in warmth through the night.

When he awoke next day he found himself atop three bears, deep in hibernating slumber.

His energy also extends to his opinions. He can be strongly outspoken on national topics.

But, with all the changes, "Canada is alright. She's a good place."

There's just one problem: "Politicians won't agree. They're fighting for power all the time."

Old Burial Ground Destroyed in Pit

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP) — An amateur archeologist says a 3,000-year-old Indian burial ground, a rare find in southern Ontario, has apparently been destroyed accidentally in a gravel pit near here.

Stanley Wortner of Bothwell, Ont., said he visited the pit four days after two graves were discovered by foreman Claudio Gaiarin when he turned up a red-colored human skull with his front-end loader Feb. 14.

Mr. Gaiarin said the two graves, about four and 10 feet deep, contained red-colored human bones, beads and bone objects that looked like tools.

Mr. Wortner said the red oxide coloring dates the graves to about 1,500 to 1,000 BC. He said Indians of this period were nomadic traders and that the iron oxide was obtained in lower Michigan.

Food Costs Said Third Above Need

OTTAWA (CP) — The grocery bills for most families are up to one-third higher than necessary yet many are improperly nourished, the Food Prices Review Board said today.

In a 41-page report on the cost of nutritious eating, the board said a four-person family can buy enough food for a basically sound diet for about $2,000 a year but now is spending about $3,000.

Among the board's findings:

—The average cost of a nutritious diet for a four-person family has risen 52 per cent in the last five years, to $39.98 a week in December, 1974, from $25.42 in October, 1969.

—The cost of a week's supply of nutritious food varies from a high of $41.95 in Vancouver to a low of $37.96 in Ottawa-Hull.

—Although good nutrition is within the reach of the average person a "sizable portion" of the population is not properly nourished.

—Nutrition problems have grown worse because of the rapid rise in food costs.

—About 91 per cent of the population could afford a nutritious diet if shoppers knew how to substitute more expensive foods for cheaper foods with the same nutritional value.

Clendenning Test Case

Judges' Right to Discharge Impaired Drivers at Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Conflicting provincial decisions on whether judges may use their discretion not to convict persons who plead guilty to impaired driving are to be resolved by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Under the Criminal Code, a judge may decide not to convict persons pleading guilty to offences which carry a punishment of 14 years' imprisonment or more, or which do not carry minimum sentences.

Instead of convicting, a judge may order the accused to be discharged. If he wishes, he may impose certain conditions.

Last year, the New Brunswick Court of Appeal ruled that judges must record convictions when guilty pleas are entered in drunken driving cases, but the Ontario Court of Appeal decided otherwise.

The Ontario case, involving Douglas Bradshaw of Kingston, was heard Monday by the Supreme Court of Canada. It reserved its decision.

After Mr. Bradshaw pleaded guilty in May, 1973, to impaired driving, provincial court Judge J. L. Clendenning of Belleville declared "there will be a conviction recorded."

But after hearing submissions dealing with Mr. Bradshaw's need to drive a car for his work, the judge vacated the conviction.

The Supreme Court of Ontario reversed Judge Clendenning's decision but it was later reinstated by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

In arguments before the Supreme Court of Canada, Crown lawyers said that judges do not have the discretion to vacate convictions where the Criminal Code imposes a minimum punishment, arguing that the laws do impose a minimum fine of $50 for a first offence.

Cambodia Said Lost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders in the House of Representatives say they doubt President Ford's request for more Indochina military aid will win approval, despite Ford's warning that Cambodia will fall within weeks without it.

"I don't think we can rally the votes," said a high-ranking House leader who asked not to be named "I think Cambodia will have to go down."

Ford told the House in an unusual letter Tuesday that Cambodia will run out of ammunition in less than a month and, without more aid, "will be forced within weeks, to surrender to the insurgents."

Little Opposition Voiced To Large Authority Budget

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — A $336,350 budget for this year, up more than 50 per cent from 1974, was passed by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority with barely a murmur of opposition here Tuesday.

An average 100-per-cent increase in levies to all 17 member municipalities also got the green light at the authorities annual meeting

Opposition to the jump in budget and levies did not materialize as had been originally expected by the authority. Only one cry for financial moderation was heard as other potential voices were stilled by explanations given municipal councils at three special meetings held earlier this year.

Percy Township reeve Art Wartman said he hopes the authority would underspend in 1975, what he called the "year of the big jump."

His township, he said, is facing a tight money situation in which the provincal government is saying money will not be as readily available as in previous years.

The 93-per-cent jump in the Percy levy, from $1,867 to $3,612, will be difficult to meet, he said. A 75-per-cent increase would have been bearable, he added.

However, it is unlikely the authority will spend less than is budgetted. Any drop from the $336,350 figure, will mean a 20-per-cent drop in supplementary grants it receives from the ministry of natural resources.

The final budget total presented Tuesday was substantially lower than the $500,000 first proposed by the authority in October, 1974. Paring by the province and the authority executive trimmed it to the present sum.

Most municipal levies were also dropped slightly from those proposed at the special meetings, called in an effort to stem the anticipated tide of opposition to budget jumps.

The meetings, said returning authority chairman William Carter, were the "high-light" of the past year.

"They set our sights firmly on the road," he said.

As presented Tuesday, Trenton will pay $15,662, the major member's share of authority expenditures. From that point, and outside special levies, the costs to member municipalities range from a high of $6,052 for Sidney Township to a low of $539 for Huntingdon Township.

In total, Trenton will add about $60,000 to authority coffers, most for land purchases and development of the Trenton greenbelt project.

Behind the 50-per-cent budget increase, are three major factors.

Purchase of equipment and an increase of staff from two in mid-1974 to five today added to administrative costs.

Higher costs were forced upon the authority once it changed its policy to end extensive land purchases and concentrate on the development of existing conservation areas in its watershed.

County Trustees Study Use of Semester System

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — Principal of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Paul Burd, says the semester system represents an answer to today's education needs and predicts it could be implemented in county schools, possibly in September, 1976.

The semester system features longer and fewer classes daily with shorter secondary school terms.

Mr. Burd, this week, told Prince Edward school trustees several Ontario secondary schools are using the new system in addition to schools in western Canada and the United States. Progress reports indicate the concept is successful.

He suggested unless the system is adopted by the schools it may be forced into effect "sooner or later."

The principal outlined the advantages of the program, observing students would attend five 70-minute period instead of nine 40-minute classes. The school day, therefore, is not shortened by the semester system.

Because only five subjects are handled daily, it is possible for the student to achieve greater concentration and a freer approach to learning.

At the end of the first semester the pupil has finished an entire year's work in five subjects.

Mr. Burd suggested the semester system will challenge teachers' abilities as they strive to make longer lectures stimulating.

He predicted all "good" teachers will be capable of working under the new system, while poor ones will find it difficult.

The semester system permits the teacher to become better acquainted with his students.

Since daily classes are cut, almost in half, the teacher who formerly had to know 180 pupils each day for one year, can focus more attention on individual student needs.

In the semester system homework is reduced and bells eliminated.

A potential disadvantage of the system is the fact that absenteeism for one day means loss of double the learning time of the old system.

In Prince Edward, many county teens help on the farm periodically and the semester system could cause them to miss a great deal of work.

Also, failing creates a problem in the semester system. Should a student fail a subject by January it is likely he would be forced to wait until the next fall semester before repeating it unless it were a regularly scheduled repeating semester.

Mr. Burd sayd "the hurry-up" process is present with the semester system. Grade 12 students possibly could graduate after 3.5 years instead of the four now required.

He added it has not been decided if this acceleration is an advantage or a disadvantage.

A special 12-member teacher committee will decide whether the semester system is advisable for Prince Edward County schools.

Their report will be made to department heads who will then forward reports to Mr. Burd and the county board of education.

If the semester system is to be implemented here, a decision would be required by this September to pave the way for implementation of the new program in September, 1976.

Homecoming Weekend Opens with Parade

STIRLING — This coming Friday is the night to dress up in that goofy outfit and join the Stirling torchlight parade. It is just part of the fun during the four-day Homecoming Weekend which is being held here to raise money for a new arena.

Doug Patterson, public relations officer for the Stirling Legion says the Legion and the Rotary Club will co-ordinae the parade.

Mr. Patterson says that a lot will have to be played by ear, but basically what is scheduled is this: All motorized vehicles and floats are to be at the department of highways building on Highway 14 at 8:45 p.m.

Legion marchers will fall in behind the parade as it passes the legion building at about 9:15. Mr. Patterson says he hopes all the people in Stirling will dress up in costumes and join the parade as it moves south through the village.

"Where and when the parade stops depends upon the people," Mr. Patterson says.

Mr. Patterson points out that the Ontario Provincial Police are quite concerned about traffic, and do not want any cars parked on highway 14 north of the railroad tracks, or on any lots off highway 14. He urges all Stirling residents to walk, and for out-of-town people to park in Stirling.

Special parade torches are being issued to selected persons, Mr. Patterson says, and he appeals to the general public to use flashlights in place of flaming torches. The special parade torches will be scattered throughout the procession, he notes.

There will be six to 10 floats in the parade and others could show up, Mr. Patterson says. He adds that there will be six antique cars, plus six to eight fire department vehicles from around Hastings County.

"We want everybody from the surrounding area to come and join in the fun," Mr. Patterson urges. "when the parade is over you can go to one of the many other events taking place."

Final Details Seen To

Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority chairman and staff make a last-minute check of the agenda for the annual meeting at which a $336,350 budget for 1975 was approved Tuesday. In Frankford, secretary-treasurer William Lawson (from left), newly-acclaimed chairman William Carter and resources manager Bryan Boyce confer.

Authority Wants Faster Assembly of Greenbelt

FRANKFORD — Land purchases for Trenton's greenbelt will increase if the natural resources ministry okays a request by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority for virtual "carte blanche" use of $1,125,000.

The dollar figure, as presented to the authority's annual meeting here Tuesday, is based on the appraised value of 19 properties along the west bank of the Trent River in Trenton.

All 19 are needed before Trenton can hope to see the greenbelt project grow into a narrow strip of parkland along the river.

Resources manager Bryan Boyce said Tuesday the authority will seek ministry approval in an effort to more effectively fight the battle with inflation.

Land costs are rising and outstripping budget limits set for property acquisitions, he said.

At present, when a piece of land comes on the market, the authority must request the ministry for approval to buy. Done on this individual basis, it consumes time and costs the authority interest on money it borrows to buy the land.

With a one-time okay for money needed to buy all 19 properties, the authority can act much faster, said Mr. Boyce. It woud speed up land assembly and actual development could begin that much sooner.

Ministry approval is necessary because 50 per cent of the purchase price comes from Queen's Park. The balance is paid by Trenton, since it is the municipality that benefits most from the project.

The only limitation placed on the authority in the use of the money is that it remain within a 10 per cent margin of the appraised price.

As of Dec. 31, 1974, a total of $191,707 has been jointly spent to buy land along the river. Last year, $82,601 was spent.

When the land will become parkland and a cluster of small-scale sport facilities is unknown.

Although Mr Boyce said the rate of development of the estimated $1.5-million greenbelt will be accelerated, he could not predict a completion date.

Student Teachers Train At Picton High School

PICTON — Student teachers from McArthur College in Kingston this month are attending Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in connection with a practical teching program.

Approximately 14 student teachers have been assigned each to several PECI teachers according to the students' subject majors at college.

Co-ordinator of the program between McArthur College and PECI, David Nickerson says the student usually has one major and one or two minor subjects. When he is assigned to a department he is permitted to test his abilities in both major and minor subjects.

After this teaching program was initiated two years ago at McArthur College it was introduced immediately at PECI.

A number of schools did not approve of the new program, preferring to assign one student to one teacher. The college did not enforece the program.

Mr. Nickerson says "We're continuing the intent of the original program. It's still the most beneficial system."

The teaching program assists not only the student-teachers but PECI, too. The college library's facilities are available to PECI and guest speakers for lectures are supplied on request.

Mr. Nickerson says the program also stimulates the individual teachers who are on staff at PECI who are being studied by the student teachers in class.

Labor Unrest

Once again it's the season of strikes and the same disruptive, public-be-damned attitudes prevail that have burdened this country before.

Mail for one thing is not moving normally and the situation is similar to what it was a year ago when the deadline for income-tax returns had to be extended. It could happen again.

As ever the Government is impotent in the face of stoppages which are now becoming so common they could in the long run cause serious economic loss, as well as setting a pattern of social unrest militating also against the country's best interests.

Incredibly, in the midst of all this, Canada Post is running an advertisement which starts out by saying: "We're out to make Canada's postal system number one in the world. And believe it or not, we don't have far to go. . ."

At the bottom, in tiny lettering is the name of good old Bryce Mackasey, the Minister in charge. But neither he nor Treasury Board boss Jean Chretien, who when he took the post had been touted as one who would take a hard line on spending excesses, seems able to do a thing about the situation.

Heidi Vacations

Heidi Biggs of Belleville, Illinois, although sick with terminal cancer, has made it to Hawaii, according to a United Press International report from Honolulu.

Heidi's story first became known before Christmas and it was thought she would not survive the holiday period. A Sudbury businessman visited the youngster and established a fund to help her fulfill her dream of a vacation in the sun, accompanied by her mother. A sum of $2,400 was raised.

UPI says she became very sick and had to be taken to hospital in Honolulu when it appeared her stepfather, Randy Hillman, a factory worker, might not be able to join her through lack of finances. Then he arrived, his trip made possible by The Honolulu Star-Bulletin's good neighbor fund; Heidi's condition improved and she was able to return to her hotel.

Prior to that there had been horseback riding, swimming, shopping, dining out, with Heidi even consenting to interviews in her weak voice.

Who knows how much longer the 14 year-old has on this earth, but her condition has evoked our common humanity and her last days seem brighter than could ever have been imagined.

Deadly Race

"War, happily, has become too dangerous." Former British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan made that observation; he was referring of course to what otherwise has come to be known as the "balance of terror," or state of potential overkill that, theoretically at least, keeps the world from the brink of Armageddon.

For all that, there are refinements of this premise that would suggest one side or the other has an edge in some respects. There has been some talk of late about artillery guided by laser beams and this is in western arsenals. The Soviets on the other hand have late-model MiG jet fighters which are said to be the equal if not better than anything in Western hands. And now there is word that Soviet artillery and anti-aircraft guns are simpler and more reliable than United States counterparts.

Whether such sophistication of armaments would make all that much difference in a major conflict is debatable, since all do their sordid work with deadly consistency — but they might turn the tide one way or another in a conventional war of the kind the Middle East has been witnessing in recent years.

Syria, invidentally, has received half-a-dozen of those Soviet jets in recent weeks, to add to the already considerable fleet of fighters from their Communist suppliers. And Egypt is being equipped with the French Mirage jets which Israel has already used to deadly effect in the Middle East.

'Why the Secrecy?' Asks Dief

Trudeau—security Supplants Trudeau—mania in Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — What, John Diefenbaker was heard to murmur the other day, so frightens Pierre Trudeau?

For the Prime Minister seems obsessed with security.

Did the world so suddenly change for the worse when he took over nearly seven years ago, that compared to Canadian Prime Ministers before him, he almost seems to cower from it?

Or is it ostentation and the fascination for the flashy show of power that compels him to seldom move except behind the protection of a super security screen?

The official residence has become almost a home-fortress, hyper-private, under special RCMP guard at all times.

It was never open house at 24 Sussex Drive.

But the Louis St. Laurents, the first Prime Minister to move in after a $100,000 renovation of the cut-stone mansion of an old-time Ottawa Valley lumber king, did entertain.

And there were visitors, not by stiff formal appointment, their arrival scrutinized by police, but by way of friendly acquaintance.

When Dief moved in, his wife Olive came closer to making it open house.

The welcome was warm.

The old house swarmed with visitors.

Friends from near and far did not hesitate to drop in — a phone call was enough to get an enthusiastic "come on right over!" — and Dief gloried in his legion of friends and well, yes, what else but fans.

The Lester Pearsons were not quite so open, but there were invitations — even to the never always-popular press corps — for drinks and gossip at 24 Sussex Drive and at the Harrington Lake summer place.

Now no more.

A visit to 24 Sussex Drive is almost by summons or royal command.

Now that automobile, the armored, silver-grey Cadillac, $84,000 worth of bullet-proof glass, communications equipment and luxury.

The Number Two limousine Pierre Trudeau has called a "tank" in the prime ministerial transport fleet is priced at only $10,000 less.

Dief had a blue Buick.

Pearson and St. Laurent had ordinary off-the-dealer's-floor models. Nothing pretentious, just family-type cars, even if there was a liveried chauffeur, for formal occasions, at the wheel.

Dief, at one time, drove himself, enjoying it as a relaxation like any other motorist out for a spin.

One of the happier, if wilder experiences with the former Prime Minister was enjoyed by an Ottawa newsman who sat beside him as he "hunted" prairie chicken by scorching along a dusty Saskatchewan gravel trail road, knocking off the birds with his bumper as they scooted from the roadside grass.

It was all a little hair-raising, recalled the newsman, as Dief was doing his "hunting" along a gravel strip skirting the edge of the North Saskatchewan River west of Saskatoon with the water far below the steep bank.

Uncle Louis St. Laurent, Dief and Mike Pearson all used to walk around town, unaccompanied.

One of the sights for tourists to see used to be Uncle Louis strolling home down Wellington Street past the Chateau Laurier, smiling and tipping his hat to anyone who nodded or stammered hello.

Pearson sort of poked around the city like anyone else, and most unlike today's Prime Minister.

Dief daily, morning and evening, walked his dogs.

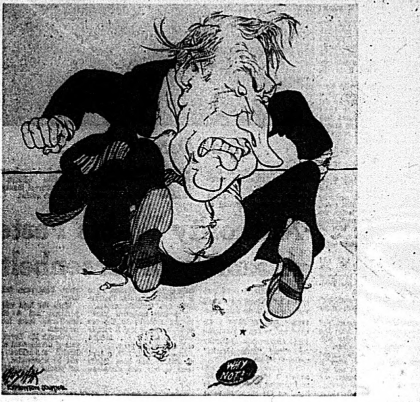
No police. No RCMP ghost cars. Nothing.

When they travelled about the country or abroad, for the sake of formality — and because, perhaps, it was expected — they each took along an RCMP escort, not in plain clothes, but there for all to see and admire in breeches, scarlet tunic and Stetson.

Now Pierre Trudeau's office is guarded at all times by Commons security men — escorts from the RCMP usher him to his armored limo — one police car precedes and two follow the silver-grey Caddy-tank.

There is even that special security and intelligence organization the Prime Minister had set up on Parliament Hill, to do what never precisely has been explained.

You see it all, the special security unit, the constant escort, the armor plating and bullet-proofing, the hyper privacy — and you remember how it used to be — and wonder whether Canada and the world could have gone so suddenly scary and hairy.



Pentagon Paranoia

U.S. Contingency Plan to Take Oil Fields

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Surely the height of Pentagon paranoia has to be the news that the U.S. armed forces have a contingency plan for the invasion of oil-rich Saudi Arabia at the same time that Saudi pilots are being trained in the U.S. to fly and maintain sophisticated American jet fighters.

The existence of a U.S. army strike force which would jump into Saudi Arabia from a little-known military base in Israel called Hatserim was released about 10 days ago, many say as an intended leak by the Pentagon.

It is believed the U.S. top military brass not only want the Saudis to know such a plan exists, but to test it out on a U.S. public, presumably still very angry with this kind of military adventure as a possibility so close to the Vietnam war.

The initial strike force would seize the Dhahran air strip now used by all major commercial jets servicing Saudi Arabia, including that kingdom's U.S.-built Boeing 707s.

This would be followed by back-up aircraft landing equipment from giant C-5A Lockheed transports to hold the airstrip, fan out and capture the oil fields with more troops to be landed from nearby naval units.

It all sounds utterly fantastic, not only in its own right, but because the Saudis have either bought or intend to buy most of the major equipment the Americans would use for such a strike.

C-130 and C-141 jet transports are definitely on the Saudi order book as are the new F-14 jets going into construction and which the Iranians will also buy.

Such a plan boggles the mind in terms of what a joint Arab response could be, or the implications of a Soviet intervention, the kind of fear which never matured but helped to abort the Suez Canal seizure in a similar adventure in late 1956.

Would the Iranians, also amply supplied with not only U.S. weapons but British and French ones as well, come to the aid of the Saudis? And how about support from lesser Arab states like the Kuwaitis and Bahrain, also arming themselves to the hilt, mainly with French Mirage jets?

Perhaps the knowledge of such a Pentagon contingency plan is why the Russians are building up a naval presence in the western Indian Ocean, though it in no way matches American seapower in the region.

In fact, it is the paramountcy of this seapower which could help the Americans sustain such an invasion of Saudi oil wells with off-shore firepower and naval support for troops to be landed.

At this point the chances are such a disastrous invasion would never take place. If the Arabs are intending to "punish" us in our wasteful Western societies by hiking the price of oil, the commodity which keeps the West moving, some of their leaders are saying different things out loud.

The cautionary comments from Arab oil-country leaders, including the Saudis, say that their oil will not last forever in their favored lands and that punishing us by hiking the prices would also mean punishing themselves as the oil began to run dry.

A final irony in this insane scenario is that Saudi King Feisal is fiercely anti-Community to the point he has said his two worst enemies are Zionism and Communism, or Communism and Zionism, take your pick.

Would he need the hated Russians if a U.S. attack on his oil-fields were ever to be mounted? A very grim thought indeed.

Owen Sound Meeting

Davis Grilled by Caucus

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The Owen Sound Sun-Times came up with an intriguing story recently.

The provincial Grey-Bruce Progressive Conservative Association had a gathering in the riding, the newspaper's home territory, and though the gathering apparently was a closed one the newspaper managed to get a reporter into it.

The main figure of the evening was Dr. C. Gus Mitges, federal member for the riding. And according to the reporter Dr. Mitges had some rather shocking truths to relate.

His story was that recently Premier Davis had met with the federal PC caucus at its request.

The meeting was called, according to the doctor, to confront the premier with complaints raised by riding constituents during the July federal election campaign.

One of the complaints, Dr. Mitges said, was that the premier had lost his humility and his contact with the people.

Another was that his government had alienated farmers, councillors and reeves.

What does most to make the story intriguing is that the federal member reportedly said that the premier agreed with a number of complaints and admitted some faults were his own.

This causes one to wonder. Not that the premier realizes that some of the fault in his slipping party is his own. But whether he can do anything about it.

In saying that Mr. Davis had lost his humility the federal members were probably right, and probably striking a most important note in that one of the assessments that can be made behind deterioration of the Davis image has been an apparent loss of humility.

This probably started with the government aircraft trip to ski in Vermont and hasn't been helped by some of the apparently affluent, and arrogant, people who have tended to surround him.

It isn't exactly a true image. Davis may not be the most humble of men but he certainly isn't arrogant and in fact, if anything, has a shyness that perhaps comes across in reverse.

But can he change the public image that has been taken? Can he build back?

That is a key question, and undoubtedly one of his major worries these days.

Airport Before Needed Housing

The Government's Strange Sense of Priorities

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer
Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

It's only money—money extracted from taxpayers all across Canada.

But the way the federal government mismanages millions of dollars of that tax money, it's hard to remember that it's real money.

The federal cabinet on the one hand is cutting $28 million—or 35 per cent—from the funding for senior-citizens and low-income housing and permitting the 1975 capital budget of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to rise this year by only 12.5 per cent—about the current inflation rate.

On the other hand it has just reiterated its determination to plunk down a new international airport on farm land at Pickering, northeast of Toronto.

The cost? Transport Minister Jean Marchand says it will be $204 million, a figure that excludes so many of the associated costs—for access roadways, to take one example—that it is meaningless.

Equally meaningless is Mr. Marchand's suggestion that the government would build a "minimum international airport" of only one runway and one terminal, then stop and reconsider.

The politicians and bureaucrats have been committed to a new full-scale Toronto-area international airport since 1968. The latest cost estimate, published years ago and obviously much too low today, was $1.5-billion—or $103 million higher than the CMHC's current annual budget.

And yet by any realistic yardstick, the need for a Pickering airport is negligible—especially in contrast to the need for housing.

According to CMHC, 105,000 Canadian families are paying much more than they can afford—upwards of half their income—for shelter.

The provinces want to build more housing for the aged and poor but they can't do it without more federal assistance. Ontario has had to cut its 1975 construction plans for this type of housing by 75 per cent.

Yet there is no shortage of federal tax money for a highly dubious airport.

The transport minister believes Toronto should have a second airport because other big cities have two airports. But in cities that can be compared to Toronto—such as Chicago and Washington—one of the two airports is a largely unused white elephant, shunned by airlines and passengers.

Those who now live near Toronto international airport—which was originally in open country—may want a second airport, to relieve them of the noise of air traffic. But the noise problem is on the way to resolving itself since aircraft are going to have to be fitted with engine silencers or else be barred from New York and other major airports.

The case against the international airport at Pickering is plain.

It would require inordinately expensive new road or rail links between the two airports, as well as with the city.

It would force hundreds of thousands of travellers each year to make their way, laden with luggage, from one airport to another to make connections between domestic and international flights.

It would wipe out rich farmland that supplies a substantial part of the Toronto area's food requirements.

And it would put approaching aircraft uncomfortably close to the Pickering nuclear-power generating station.

The long-term growth of passenger traffic may or may not require a second Toronto-area international airport — the government's projections were clearly chosen to support its case rather than to reflect the changes that are taking place in travel habits as fuel costs soar.

But there is no doubt about the pressing need to upgrade the sub-standard housing that hundreds of thousands of Canadians must endure.

Let the transport minister forget the grandiose monument to himself, and defer to the urban affairs minister, who could put those millions of dollars to work in housing.

LETTERS

Communism in the World

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The Intelligencer, in its editorial of Feb. 18, 1975, deplores the public apathy and ignorance toward the workings of Communist strategy and concludes, "subversion., infiltration of this organization and that group. The universities ... anywhere converts can be found, all are involved. That is the Communist strategy."

But that concluding sentence of the editorial betrays the fact that The Intelligencer itself is equally guilty of the ignorance which it deplores. For there is no Communist strategy nor does there need to be.

It is "ideas" that do the work and those ideas arise spontaneously everywhere as a reaction to the creaky workings of our system. Once a mind has reacted with the thought, "there surely must be a better way" then that mind will start seeking that "better way".

In the course of its probing it will find certain key ideas that it may latch on to, for example, that profits, let us say, are the root cause of the problem. It is then only a logical extension of this thought to start considering the possibility of an economic system which does not depend on profits for its central motivation.

Such cliches as 'corporate ripoff", "gasoline war," (a favorite newspaper headline) help the public mind toward the thought that there is something obscene in profits, and thus pave the way for the infiltration of other ideas.

I repeat then that no Communist strategy is necessary; the failures of our own system provide all the impulse for change that is required.

Instead of just deploring, The Intelligencer should be facing the situation head on, accepting that the socialists' ideas not only exist but are even propagated by The Intelligencer and other newspapers. Then start using some of that good editorial space to point out some of the very real advantages of a free enterprise system which go a long, long way to offset some of its admitted very real disadvantages, in other words, "accent the positive!"

KINGSTON ONLOOKER.

Editor's note: So what happens to ideas under Communism? If they find free expression in Western newspapers, this is not the case in Communist society or in its Press or literary world generally. Look what happened to Alexander Solzhenitsyn for one.

"After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen." Matthew 6:9-13.

Don't try to analyze or sermonize on this prayer just gather up all your problems and simply, slowly and reverently repeat it. Let it be a daily part of you. In it you are going to God in the words and in the name of His Son. You are bound to get results.

Buildings in Five Provinces Being Checked for Radiation

OTTAWA (CP) — Buildings in five provinces are being checked by inspectors for possible danger from radiation, an official with the Atomic Energy Control Board said Tuesday night.

A. E. Nolan, chief of the administration division, said the checks involved buildings where radium - luminous compounds were used during the Second World War.

Most of the companies were small manufacturers and jewellers who received small amounts of the compound, he said. Most of the companies now are defunct, he added.

Five or six locations are being checked in each of British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba, about 25 locations in Ontario and about 20 in Quebec, he said.

He declined to list the exact locations of the buildings in question, saying the public would be advised if dangerous radiation levels were found.

Another official said earlier "if we would tell the names of the places, it would cause undue alarm."

The locations of the companies which used the radium compound come from the board's files. Companies which currently use radioactive material are checked regularly, Mr. Nolan said.

The inspections were initiated after radiation levels up to 800 times safety limits were found on the third floor of a Toronto building. The radiation came from a paint spill which occurred while the premises were occupied by a wartime company which painted luminous dials.

About 250 persons who worked in the building have responded to a call from health authorities to contact the government to determine the nature of the medical risk to which they may have been exposed.

Ann Landers

Wife Wants to Keep Lover, Treat Hubby Like a Brother

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a middle-aged man who never thought I'd end up writing to Ann Landers, but I've got a problem I can't talk about with anyone. Please give me some advice.

For about two years now my wife has been making up excuses as to why we can't have sex. She has gone through every ailment from migraine headaches to a disc problem which I never heard of until last March. A few weeks ago I told her a man can't go through life with no sex and she'd better shape up or our marriage was headed for the rocks. Her reply was, "If I were you I'd get something going on the outside and keep it under my hat."

I thought that was a pretty strange thing to say—until last Friday when I came home unusually early from bowling. (Our team was disqualified.) I discovered that she was doing exactly what she suggested I do. Her partner happened to be the guy who lives next door.

My wife doesn't want a divorce. She says she likes me much better than him—as a person, that is—but in bed, he is the greatest. What she wants is for me to support her and we should live like a brother and sister. She says in exchange for "support" she will keep house, cook, clean, do the laundry and go out with me. But the sex is reserved for the neighbor. (By the way, he is not married.)

I think it's a lousy idea. What do you think?—Mr. Chequebook

Dear Mr. C.B.: I think if you buy the brother-sister act you have oatmeal where your brains belong.

Dear Ann: I'd like to comment on that "Owl from Minnesota" who was patting himself on the back for being a "nocturnal." He folded at 4:00 p.m. and had to be at work at five in the morning. His peak efficiency was between midnight and 9 a.m. He said, "Someone has to take care of the world during those odd hours."

Your comment was, "You sound great. Bless you, Dad." Well, Ann, we have such a person in our family. My daughter is married to him. Fortunately, she's a sweet person, and doesn't nag. However, she has dropped subtle hints that she and the children have almost no companionship from husband and father.

He comes home from work in the afternoon, has a drink (which she prepares), reads the paper until dinner, then dozes off in front of the TV. His wife has to wake him up so he can undress and go to bed. At 4:00 a.m. he's up whistling and singing while the family is still asleep

I can't bless him for the kind of life he is making for my daughter and grandchildren. I think his "nocturnalism" is a habit that could be easily changed if he weren't so com-completely selfish.—Concerned Grandmother

Dear Granny: M.Y.O.B., Dear. This isn't your problem. Most people set themselves up for the kind of life they want—whether they realize it or not. So keep your lip zipped and let your daughter manage her own marriage.

CONFIDENTIAL to What Really Happened?: It's hard to tell, but remember that sometimes an "expert" is the person called in at the last minute to take the blame.

Walk Your Way to Health

"Exercise Should Be Fun." This is the name of a dandy little folder turned out by the Ontario Ministry of Health.

We can do bends and streches and discipline ourselves into occupying a certain set time every day with touching the floor and reaching for the ceiling.

But there are things we can do which might be more fun and which would do just as much to help us keep and stay fit. We can get more enjoyment out of life; and we can get this if we are physically strong. Physical activity stimulates the body to burn excess calories, helping to control weight and do a lot of other things too.

Everybody needs his own kind of exercise plan. If, he or she sits all day at a desk, he needs to move around physically in the spare time hours. Plenty of sports are to be enjoyed.

Many doctors suggest walking — for about at least two-and-a-half hours a week. You could take a half-hour walk each day, or a three-quarter-hour walk every other day. Just one two-and-a-half-hour walk each week is not so good.

Incidentally, one doctor doubts whether many walk much more than the regular housewife does in the course of her day's chores. Housewives — get a pedometer, put it in your pocket and see!

Dear Doris: I am looking for copies of the old Royal Readers which were the prescribed texts in the "colonies" of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia until 1897 or 1900. There were six in the series; I would like a copy of Number Two if someone is willing to trade, or sell at a reasonable price. I have extra copies of the Canadian Readers and the New Brunswick Readers (1900-1928) if someone wants to complete a set.

J.E.M.

Dear J.E.M.: I expect those "Royal Readers" could almost be classified as antiques. I'd be interested to get a look at them myself. And if some reader does have copy of Number Two and is willing to exchange it for some of your later readers, you may be sure we will be getting in touch.

How about it, readers?

Confidential to Undecided: Take a good hard look at where you are now and decide whether your present marriage is worth salvaging. The beatings, the philandering, your spouse's bad temper — I question whether any further discussion would get anywhere. And all these conflicts are making their permanent mark on the children!

You say you are carrying on an armed truce for your children's sake. I'm thinking that if what you do is for your children's sake, it ought to involve separation and a cheerful household.

The other man seems all sympathy and devotion right now, yet seems to take a rather weak stand. Perhaps he is trying to leave you free to make up your mind about your present marriage, before pleading his own case.

(Canadian resources exist to help with many of today's problems of daily living. Write to Doris for direction, in care of this newspaper.)

Don't Buy 'Pig in a Poke'

NEW YORK (AP) — When Richard A. Givens shops for toys and games for his two children he insists on seeing what's inside the sealed box—and he advises all consumers to do the same.

By this action, he suggests, the public can guard against such deceptions as finding only a tiny item in a large, fancy package; absence of parts or necessary additional equipment; an assembly job advertised as simple enough for a two-year-old that really requires the knowhow of a graduate engineer; and safety warnings inside that were not specified on the outside.

"I won't buy a pig in a poke and neither should anyone else," declared Givens, who as the Federal Trade Commission's New York regional director is concerned with deceptive packaging. "Both consumer action and legal action are needed to stop questionable practices."

He reported that recent legal action in six cases against toy manufacturers for aleged deceptive practices resulted in three consent agreements and two cease-and-desist orders, with one still in the process of being settled.

"The theory of the complaints has been upheld and we have a firm legal foundation for going forward with enforcement," said Givens.

"I see some improvement but more enforcement action is needed and we need help from the public to find out how much."

Though the store is not obliged to show a sample of a product in a sealed package, he suggested that by refusing to shop at stores that decline to do so the purchaser can exert pressure to change the policy.

One major source of irritation, Givens said, is a gift for a child that is opened on a holiday and can't be used because it needs batteries or glue or paint that have not been specified on the box. "It's important for children not to be disappointed. Their attitude toward the marketplace is formed by whether or not they've been misled."

Negative features of the item, such as necessary warnings and the fact that "it's in 400 pieces and complicated to assemble," should also appear on the package.

The consumer who finds he has been "cheated" should take the purchase back to the store.

"But getting an individual refund is only half the battle. We want the customer to let us know so we can attack the practice at the source."

Though there is no clear-cut line, Givens cites as a rough guideline that if the amount of material in a package fills less than 50 per cent of the space it is indicative of deception.

"For instance, there may be a small window covering an area that's chock full of goodies, but in fact 90 per cent of the items in the box are behind that window and the other three-fourths of the box contains only cardboard."

The argument has been made that people want a gift to look impressive and that manufacturers are catering to consumer taste, Givens said. "That's assuming the giver doesn't care that the recipient will be disappointed, and we don't accept that argument. And it's environmentally harmful to waste packaging for the sake of making an item look big."

Geologist, Farmer, Linguist, She's Still Active at 98

VICTORIA (CP) — On the Sunday after Christmas, Evelyn Cameron read one of the lessons at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here.

She said she would do the reading as long as they gave her a Bible in large print.

"They said they would and that's that," Mrs. Cameron said. She will be 98 this year.

"The best way to keep young while growing old is to keep up your interest in things—live and learn all the time," she said. "I also have a deep belief in God and prayer."

A geologist, nurse, pioneer farmer and linguist, Mrs. Cameron recently contributed a chapter to the book Making History, An Anthology of British Columbia, which was to go on sale early this year.

Mrs. Cameron's personal story makes interesting reading in itself.

Moving from England, she grew up in Sundsvill in northern Sweden where her father had a sawmill.

When she was a teen-ager her family moved again to Eidswold, north of Oslo in Norway.

She wanted to study medicine but her father disapproved and she chose her next interest and became the first woman to study geology at University of Oslo.

After post-graduate studies in London, she opened a chemical laboratory near Oslo, working for her father and an English mining company.

While skiing around the countryside one day lookng for minerals she found emeralds, a find that led to commercial mining of the gems until the First World War.

Mrs. Cameron came to Canada when she was 25, following her father's death. She was looking for options on mineral deposits with one of her brothers in the Cobalt, Ont., area.

When the head of her company died, she embarked on a new career.

In October, 1904, she enrolled in the nursing course at the Winnipeg General Hospital and graduated three years later in the profession she had initially chosen.

The following year she moved to the hospital in Nelson, B.C., where she was in charge of the dispensary and operating room.

An illness contracted on a visit to her family in Norway necessitated surgery at Winnipeg and an extended convalescence in a small hospital at Lashburn, Sask.

She met a McGill graduate engineer who had a ranch 40 miles north of Lloydminster, Sask., and in 1914 they were married.

Donald Cameron took her "to live in the wilds" at a time when Evelyn's culinary abilities were undeveloped.

"I didn't know how to farm. I didn't know how to cook, except jellies and custards like we made in the hospitals. All I knew was how to analyse stones."

But with the help of government pamphlets, she learned all about animals, how to make butter and everything else she needed to know about being a pioneer woman.

All this and a linguist too?

Of course. It is not unusual for one who was raised in Sweden and Norway. She also speaks Danish, English, French and German. It's all part of her experience and the philosophy that says you're never too old to learn.

Cities Depend Upon Rice-carriers In India

BOMBAY (CP) — Margaret Santosham, a 50-year-old widow with six children, is one of thousands of Bombay slum residents for whom India's food shortage provedes a source of income.

Mrs. Santosham and her three older children earn 100 rupees (about $13) a day, a substantial amount for a poor family, by making a number of trips to Karjat, 60 miles away, to bring rice into the city.

The Bombay city government recently relaxed its 10-year ban on bringing rice into the metropolis because of an acute shortage. Individuals are permitted to bring in up to 20 pounds to supplement the meagre rations available to them at government shops.

The result has been a bonanza for unemployed and poor families, who travel by train to paddy markets at Karjat and other outlying towns to augment the city's rice supply.

A senior official of the government-owned railways said no effort is made to collect the fares.

"Bombay would starve without these rice-carriers," he explained. "If they are put out of business, we will all have to turn to the black market."

In Calcutta, India's largest city with a population of nearly eight million, the ban against bringing in rice remains in force and smuggling is prevalent. There have been reports of clashes between the police and rice smugglers.

The federal ministry of railways has complained to Calcutta authorities that the smugglers place a heavy strain on the city's suburban rail system. A spot check showed that one of every six passengers in a crowded coach on one train was a rice smuggler.

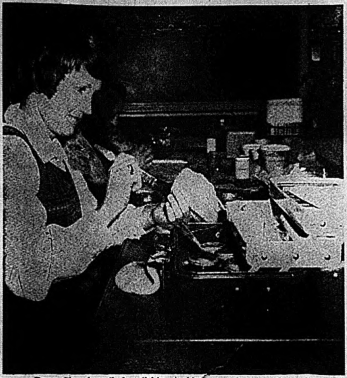
School: A Nice Place to Go at Night

Night school. It's the place where you forget about being a teacher or a Mommy or whatever and express yourself in different ways.

Monday nights at Harmony School near Foxboro many people, women mostly, learn to do all kinds of things. Sewing with knits, weaving and pottery are some of the subjects.

Why do the women go? In the pottery class — not ceramics, instructor Cathy Hallick stresses — they're learning to handbuild weed pots, coffee mugs, beads and pendants and even salt and pepper shakers. Diane Genereaux says she likes to play with Play-Do in the classroom and she likes this even better Virginia White adds she likes making bread at home and this is the same kind of thing.



Dawn Chambers finds a fishing tackle box useful to hold supplies.

Virginia White making a pendant.

Cathy Hallick, right, instructs Diane Genereaux in some of the finer points of glazing.

NEW SHOW

The Corby Public Library will present an exhibit of painting and wallhanging from March 3 through 15 in the upper gallery.

The display will feature paintings by Craig, an Ontario artist working with acrylics in a 'high realism' style, with scenes and still life of the Quinte area as subject matter. The two-person show will co-feature wallhanging by Diana, various wools woven, tied, and crocheted in an unusual manner.

Craig and Diana have spent the last three years presenting their work in over 140 exhibitions and gathering research material in most centers of Southern Ontario.Both artists are members of the Quinte Arts Council and the Belleville Art Association

Paintings by Craig have received awards at the Canadian National Exhibition a Bronze Medal at Torex — '73, an Honorarium from the Borough of North York, and the Bronze Award at the Grimsby Festival in 1974. Of exceptional recognition is the top award for painting at the Huronia Festival of the Arts in 1973,, and the City of Barrie Award in 1974, presented by the Mayor of that city to the artist with the best over-all display in all categories at the Huronia Festival.

The exhibition will open to the public at 6 p.m. on Monday, March 3 and will continue to 6 p.m. Saturday, March 15.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Conservation is not the same as preservation.

This was stressed by Keith Lathem of Chrysler and Lathem, Resource Planners, who are now doing a survey of the Quinte area.

Addressing an open meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women, Belleville and District, Mr. Lathem traced the development of conservation in Ontario from its beginings at a conference in Guelph in 1941. Study of the Ganaraska watershed was a pilot project. Now there are 39 Conservation Authorities in the province, he said.

The Moira River Conservation Authority survey was completed in 1950, and some of its recommendations are still to be implemented. Ice at the mouth of the river can present problems under certain conditions, for example, he said.

Waterfront access is one of the most recent subjects to be considered by conservation authorities. The current Bay of Quinte is the fifth in the province.

The environmental concerns in the Quinte area include commercial fishing water replacement, water quality, sport fishin.g and fish migration. The views of the public will be sought on such subjects as the numbers and types of parks the future of the marshes, and needs for access to the waterfront.

Mr. Lathem was introduced by Ola Jones and thanked by Marian Fisher.

Unemployment Up Again

Unemployment rose to 6.7 per cent in January from six percent in December, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday. The national unemployment rate has gone up in each of the last three months, rising from 5.3 per cent in October. The figures are adjusted to discount for seasonal factors. The actual number of persons estimated to be out of work in January was 817,000 or 8.4 per cent of the 9,683,000 labor force. (CP Newsmap)

European Lands Seek Alternatives to Oil

LONDON (CP) — As Western states begin laying the groundwork for a world conference on oil supplies and prices, European countries already seem firmly embarked on a hurried quest for alternative sources of energy.

In some cases, such as Britain, the main race is towards the development of indigenous oil resources but in nearly every instance there is a concentrated attempt to expand non-petroleum energy forms as well.

The exception appears to be Italy, but even there hesitant steps are being taken to explore the extent of the country's own oil deposits, thought to be non-existent until recent finds were made in the Po Valley region.

There is no clear pattern to energy policies in Western Europe but the motivation of all countries involved is the same—to reduce dependence on imported oil as quickly and with as little economic disturbance as possible.

The outcome seems certain to have profound implications for all other oil-importing countries which have been hit by the dramatic quadrupling of petroleum prices.

In Britain, top priority is being given to North Sea oil development with the aim of becoming self-sufficient soon after 1980. At the same time, a number of new British-designed nuclear power reactors have been given the go-ahead with some components to be supplied from the Candu reactor system in Canada.

In France, where there are no oil reserves and no prospect of finding any, an extensive nuclear power program has been instituted by the government, using American-designed reactors.

West Germany has decided on a mix of energy sourceh, using its own coal reserves, a declining amount of imported oil and more nuclear reactors.

Italy has a nuclear pogram but its implementation is being delayed while the Po Valley oil reserves are examined more closely.

The need for new energy sources is acute in Europe where electricity consumption at peak periods now is dangerously close to capacity. In Italy there have been substantial electrical breakdowns already and most other countries on the Continent believe they will face the same problem within two years unless their energy output from non-oil sources can be built up quickly

Car Dealer's Dream

Mrs. Dorothy Ebright, a Carlsbad, Calif., ranch-owner, is shown with the seven Rolls Royce cars and two Bently cars she bought in London, England, for a total of $103,200 plus and an estimated $12,960 in shipping charges. She was the dream customer for car dealer Henry Nathan, who said: "I've never had a day like it in 42 years in the trade." Mrs. Ebright said she planned to keep several of the cars, but would probably sell the others to friends.

Space Traveller's Brain Misses Gravity Signals

TORONTO (CP) — The brain does not immediately regain its ability to detect gravity signals when a person returns to earth from space, says a Montreal physiologist.

Dr. Geoffrey Melvill Jones, director of aviation medical research at McGill University, proposes the hypothesis to explain why Skylab astronauts who spent 84 days in an orbiting space laboratory had disorientation difficulties.

Dr. Melvill Jones is the only Canadian on a special panel formed by the United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration to assess the results of the Skylab life sciences experiments.

In an interview, Dr. Melvill Jones said when a person comes back from space his brain and motion-sensing system appear to ignore signals from gravity for a short period.

The brain apparently loses the ability to sense gravity signals while in space. Back on earth, it takes two weeks or more to relearn fully the technique of taking these signals into account.

Dr. Melvill Jones said that on earth the brain can anticipate with great accuracy how to make the movement it wants to make. It also guesses how that movement will feel after it has been made.

Gravity influences both these things and the brain is able to take this factor into its calculations, but in space the influence of gravity disappears.

The astronauts experienced difficulty controlling their balance and movements as soon a they got back to earth.

They also were unable to turn corners properly, miscalculated the height of obstructions in their path and found their feet going in unexpected directions.

While in space the astronauts learned to orient themselves and moved around with the aid of visual cues.

Dr. Melvill Jones described as a "strange phenomenon" the astronauts' loss of sense of direction when lights were turned off.

One astronaut reported that when he awoke in the dark he could not tell where to turn on the light. This condition did not improve after 84 days.

Dr. Melvill Jones said that although there are substantial changes in body functions in space, many of these phenomena prove harmless.

Dr. Melvill Jones said none of the measured changes so far seen in missions up to 84 days has proved irreversible after return to earth.

Times Change

ELADOVE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Once the main attraction of a resort used to be the quantity of food offered to guests. Some provided as many as five generous meals a day on a board-and-lodging basis. Times change, however. Tourist settlement Gorjak on the banks of the Danube now offers facilities in which one or two pounds daily may be lost under the supervision of doctors.

Legless Insect

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli scientists have discovered a legless insect in the Sinai Desert. Prof. Uro Gerson, one of the scientists said the bug looked like a black button, is one-third inch long and covered with a hard shell. He said it is hatched with legs but loses them in adult life.

American-style Food Popular in Hong Kong

HONG KONG (Reuter) — More and more Chinese youngsters here are putting down their chopsticks and grabbing a hamburger to save time in the hustle and bustle of this British colony.

The popularity of the American-style fast food has grown so quickly that many local businessmen are plunging into the take-away food trade.

A disgruntled Chinese noodle-shop proprietor in the crowded Causeway Bay district said hamburger and hot-dog shops are getting so prosperous they are affecting his business.

The urban services department approved a total of 60 applications for licences for hamburger and hot-dog businesses in 1974.

"There are 36 additional fast food shop applications which are yet to be approved," a department spokesman said.

"Many restaurant operators are applying to us to endorse their licences so that they too can operate fast-food counters."

The reason behind this is twofold. Young people are becoming westernized in their eating habits and going for cheaper, time-saving meals. Secondly, shops like these mean lower overheads for the owner.

Among those cashing in on the hamburger craze here is the American McDonald's chain of restaurants.

The McDonald's restaurant here is a joint venture of the parent company, a local combine and a Chinese businessman, Daniel Ng.

Ng, an engineer by profession who has spent seven years in the United States, said the group has pooled $1 million to finance the project.

An assistant manager of the new restaurant, Jimmy Chu, said that judging from the number of hamburgers sold on the first day of business, they had proved popular among students and office workers.

A big Cantonese-restaurant owner complained that business is bad because of the economic recession.

"Before, this place used to be packed and people had to be turned away. It's different now. We just cannot compete with the quick-food shops and if we cut prices we'll lose out."

Woman Trains On Tanker

HALIFAX (CP) — Map reading, navigation exercises and deck duties are a normal day's routine for Janice Nichols, 20, a Toronto native taking an officer's training program aboard the Imperial St. Lawrence.

Miss Nichols, the only woman on the oil tanker, says the 45-man crew does not seem to mind having a female on board. She is treated like "another guy."

She is enrolled in a three-year program offered by Georgian Bay College in Owen Sound, Ont., which requires students to spend 18 months at sea and 18 months in the classroom.

After completion of the course, she will be rated as a second mate and will receive a foreign-going ticket which will qualify her to work aboard any Commonwealth ship in the world.

She works eight hours a day, four in the morning on the bridge and four in the afternoon on the deck, under the supervision of the ship's master and deck officer.

Georgian Bay College designs a program for Miss Nichols to follow and the work she does is recorded in a log book and checked by the captain. The log book is used as part of the college's assessment of her ability.

Cecil Ritchie, captain of the St. Lawrence, said Miss Nichols is the first female on any of the Imperial ships and that she is as determined and interested as any of the men enrolled in the program.

One of four trainees on board, she has been at sea for seven months and does not miss land life at all.

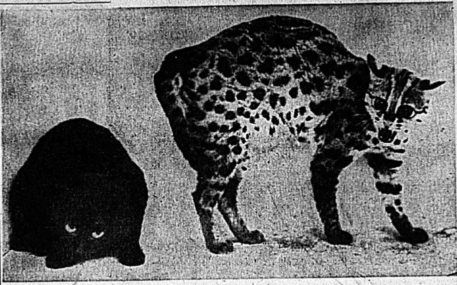
She says travelling to different countries is the best possible way to get an education.

"Before I joined this program I had never been outside of Canada."

Her father came from a family of sailors and that is what probably encouraged her to turn to the sea as a way of life.

She left high school to work as a cook on the Great Lakes ships but quit because of ill-feeling the men displayed towards her.

She applied for the officer-training program.



Strange Cat

Misty, a cross-breed between a domestic cat and a leopard, gets her fur up during a picture session with her mother (left). Misty's owner, T. Harrison Van Ard of San Bernardino, Calif., said he has spent the past 15 years developing a cross breed which would combine the rugged, spotted appearance of a leopard with the gentleness of a housecat.

Alberta Plans Plant Centre

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government is setting up a plant breeding and crop adaptation centre in the Lacombe area in the central part of the province.

Agriculture Minister Dr. Hugh Horner said the centre will provide research and service facilities for plant breeding, variety and cultural management trials for field crops, rapeseed and forage industries.

The minister said the facility will be developed in the next two or three years to accommodate the department's plant-breeding programs and university and federally-funded projects.

"We hope also to encourage the development of private plant-breeding programs by making the facilities available on a service basis."

Britain's Car Sales Set Record

LONDON (CP) — Although economic difficulties cut the world car market by more than 15 per cent last year, Britain's motor exports earned a record £1,871 million ($4,303 billion).

The Society of Motor Manufacturers and Trades (SMMT) said earnings overseas in 1974 were 19 per cent up on the previous year. Against the industry's performance, motor imports into Britain rose only three per cent to £812 million, which means the country's exports exceeded imports by more than 11 billion.

Of last year's British motor exports, cars accounted for £418 million and commercial vehicles topped £250 million for the first time, with the rest being made up of components, parts and accessories (£856 million), and tractors, heavy off-road vehicles, containers and industrial engines (£348 million).

The SMMT said the biggest growth area continues to be the export of components, parts and accessories.

The high rate of British vehicle sales to other countries is continuing this year with several big orders. Leyland has won major contracts to supply buses to Venezuela and trucks to Iran; Ford is providing an initial batch of 100 transit buses for the French police and in the first three weeks of this year orders worth nearly £6 million have been placed for industrial diesel engines built by Rolls-Royce Motors.

Boiling or Simmering Beef...

You can make a hearty, inexpensive soup by "boiling" or simmering large, less tender cuts of beef. By using this moist heat cooking method, cuts of beef such as short ribs, brisket and "meaty neckbones" can be made tender and tasty. For more details, pick up this week's leaflet "Boiling or Simmering Beef" at your local Food City's Consumer Awareness Centre; another in our series of beef preparation tips!

Mrs. Albany will be talking with shoppers Friday, February 28th at Albion Food City, 1620 Albion Road, Rexdale from 1:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Please feel free to come in and ask questions relating to food shopping.

Mrs. Albany is available to speak to groups. Write her at 300 The East Mall, Islington, Ontario M9B 6B8 or call (416) 259-6633.

Belleville Plaza to Be Enclosed

The Belleville Plaza on Dundas St. will be completely enclosed and formed into a shopping mall within 18 months, says Stan Albert of S and A Investments.

The plaza was purchased several months ago by a consortium of five Belleville businessmen. Re-development of the plaza began in December with the first stage of mall expansion expected to be complete by March 15. A mini-mall and medical centre are included in this stage.

Total cost of the project is expected to exceed $1.5 million.

Mr. Albert said the days of shopping plazas are gone and that "enclosed shopping areas are a necessity during Canadian winters".

According to a plaza release, the present 30-store centre will be enlarged to 50 stores and will include a day nursery for shopping mothers.

Mr. Albert said a number of new tenants have been secured for the expanded mall with emphasis on providing a "good mix" for shoppers.

"We are trying to keep a local flavor to the mall rather than securing large chain stores," he said. The mall will be made available for community activities.

County Educators Study Need For Community Reading Centre

An ad hoc committee of county educators led by Moira Secondary School principal Ernie Shipton began investigation of a Belleville Reading Centre Tuesday.

At a meeting of county board teachers, social workers and community leaders, reading ability — or the lack of it — was diagnosed a major problem and underlying cause of under-achievers.

The committee — formed to determine what alternatives are available from the traditional school system — talked at length of the life-long problems of the student who cannot read properly and were unanimous in their concern for a reading program.

One committee member recounted having to read a letter of expulsion to a student because the high school student couldn't read it himself.

"There is definitely a strong interest in the group for the cultivation of reading skills," said Lyle Sutherland, chairman of the meeting and educational assistant with the board.

Mr. Shipton and his committee will begin an inventory of what facilities are available in the community for the formation of such a centre.

So much importance was attached to reading skills, that the next meeting of the committee will be set aside to discuss exclusively Mr. Shipton's findings and what steps can then be taken.

Committee members were interested that something tangible come from the group to illustrate the action-oriented path of the committee.

Realtor Stresses Growing Need For Proper Salesmen Education

The real estate industry has been reaching within to upgrade itself due to the responsibility it feels towards the public.

Jim Richardson, director of education for the Ontario Real Estate Association, told Belleville Kiwanians Tuesday the business recognizes it has a "tremendous responsibility" to bring together "the finest land with the finest people."

Real estate brokers realize "the city is the people," he said. And their concern is "to bring people and houses together," he added.

Mr. Richardson described the extensive programs in existence for real estate personnel.

Persons entering the business "must attend some 500 hours of lectures" plus complete over 500 hours in assignments "usually while making a living," he noted.

There are programs available at the province's 22 community colleges, including Loyalist, and for those who wish to further themselves, the association works with 10 universities including Queen's in Kingston, he said.

In addition, many real estate instructors hold courses for potential homeowners. "They go to school to learn how to buy a house," commented Mr. Richardson.

"The ultimate beneficiaries (of the programs) are the buying and selling public and the community they (brokers) serve," he remarked.

Mr. Richardson said there is a "constant tug of war" between real estate brokers and lawyers who both claim they are better in "writing up a purchase of sale."

A resident of Willowdale, Mr. Richardson is a member of both the Real Estate Institute of Canada and the Canadian Real Estate Association. He also serves on advisory committees of many community colleges.

He was formerly employed with the provincial department of insurance.

Oronhyatekha Impressed King of England

PICTON — The Quinte area is rich is history and folklore much of it involving the role played by the Mohwak Indians who have contributed so much to that history. At the February meeting of the Prince Edward Historical Society the life of native Mohawk of the Tyendinaga Reserve, the man born as Peter Martin but known by his Indian name Oronhyatekha, was told by Melville Hill.

In 1860, Oronhyatekha gave a luncheon address in Toronto attended by the Prince of Wales who later became King Edward VII. The Prince was so impressed by the Indian's oratory and manner that he invited him to visit England.

Oronhyatekha accepted and in 1864 attended Oxford University at the expense of the British government. Upon returning the Mohawk practised medicine at Napanee.

Teachers Agree:

Problem Students Need Alternatives

By COLIN BRUCE

Staff Reporter

A group of Hastings County educators and resource people have recognized there is more than one way to teach a child and since September have been investigating "teaching alternatives."

The ad hoc group met in the board of education offices Tuesday night to discuss for the first time, 10 specific alternatives to the conventional teaching atmosphere.

Lyle Sutherland, an education assistant with the county board of education and chairman of Tuesday's meeting, said the need for alternatives was brought home during special meetings last year where a judge told area educators, too few alternatives exist when a child shows up in his court.

"He's got three alternatives: Foster home, training school or ordering the kid back into a school he hates," said Mr. Sutherland.

Though the group has been meeting since last September, the concepts of teaching alternatives were clarified last week by Boston educator, Dr. Robert Chin, who spoke as a resource person to the group at a special seminar Thursday.

While the methods vary to a wide degree, the underlying theme of proposals is the need to meet a student on terms he can cope with. Details of most of the proposals were not discussed.

One of the concepts — kept confidential until board approval has been received — has been in its formative stages for some six months — developing independently from the group work. The scheme involved taking students with problems out of the classroom environment and using teachers of the same age as the student.

A spokesman for the program said, "we're turning kids off with band-aid programs."

The spokesman for the project said a report will soon be filed with the board of education for its approval.

Resource people from several community services and educational institutions have stated they would be interested in working on the scheme and that it could be implemented as early as next September, the spokesman said.

Chuck Chapman, psychology worker with the Trenton Family and Children's Centre, said "there's a certain number of these students who are so reachable — we just have to reach out."

While the committee scheme is still in its adolescence, work now is beginning to bring into one volume all the input of the committee members.

Mr. Sutherland in a synopsis of the session said, "we're planting seeds that might grow into differant areas. What might be good for one teacher may not be good for another."

It was decided Tuesday that each of the 10 sub-committees would continue working on specific proposals and that a regular meetings the entire committee would brain storm to come up with solutions to problems.

Commenting on the alternatives, Susan Bernstein, a social worker with the mental health clinic, said, "there isn't one alternative that's right for all kids."

Farewell to A Mac

It's almost 20 years ago that those great Belleville McFarland Senior A hockey clubs were being assembled.

The Allan Cup.

The World Championship.

And during that reign, superb hockey entertainment at Memorial Arena.

Some of the talent for those teams came from many parts of the country. Several of the stars of the McFarland squads remained with us . . . made their homes here . . . contributed to the community . . . became valued citizens.

If their names were household words in the 1950s when hockey fever gripped the city and the area, that familiarity slipped only a very slight degree after the glory days were over and the Macs meshed into the swing of things in Belleville.

Many of the "newcomers" have served in so many ways . . . coaching . . . offering worthwhile advice . . . and some continuing to play the game they love.

McFarland defenceman Fiori Goegan remained active in the game, until he died.

His death, Monday, following a Gas House Hockey League game between his Stanley Structures team and Constellation Carpets, shocked the sports community and at the same time, the city as a whole.

Fiori was one of those who came here to play hockey and stayed to become a solid member of the community.

Yes, his name and all the others were household words here, 15 or so years ago.

And it is obvious from the shock his untimely death created in the area, the guy was still very much remembered for past exploits as a McFarland and, more recently, for his efforts on the sports scene, whether with his Stanley Structures team or in other endeavors.

If his passing is felt more in some circles (some of his mates from those McFarland days found it impossible to even think of sleep, Monday night), the members of the Stanley Structures team (formerly Mead-Johnson) have an affinity today in grief.

One of Fiori's final gestures as a hockey player speaks for the man.

"When the opposition scored on his club, Monday, Fiori apologized to his goaltender.

Giving the goalie a slap on the rear with his hockey stick, Goegan said: "Sorry, I guess I didn't cover him (the goal scorer) close enough."

The Intelligencer joins all sports fans in offering condolences to Fiori's family.

Karen Nokes Sparks Flyers to 3-1 Win

TRENTON (Special) — Great goalkeeping by Trenton Flyers' Karen Nokes enabled her team to even its Quinte Ladies' Hockey League playoff series with Belleville Barriages here, Tuesday night. Final score was 3-1.

Karen surrendered only one goal to the Belleville sharpshooters. That one came in the first period off the stick of Sue Morton who combined with Cindy Hannah.

Barriages made that lead stand up until the third period when the home side broke loose for three goals to wrap it up and square the series at 1-1.

Linda Henderson, Marcia Graham and Betty Farmer were the scorers for Flyers who will be in Belleville, Sunday, for the third game in the set.

Sunday's game is scheduled for 12:15 at Dick Ellis Rink.

New Executive Elected

Future Looks Good for BMSA

Belleville Minor Sports Association (BMSA) held its annual general meeting and election of officers Tuesday and began work on what should be one of the better years the association has ever seen.

Floyd Armstrong was voted to the position of president, Don Smith became the new vice-president and Sy Bochnek was elected to the position of secretary.

Tom Neill holds an honorary spot on the executive as the association's past-president and Carolyn Moynes (who is appointed to her position, and not elected) remains as treasurer.

"I think we have a very capable executive here," said Armstrong, "and I know we're in for a good year."

Neill, a long time associate of the organization suggested that this was possibly the best executive ever elected to the BMSA.

Neither Armstrong, nor the newly elected members of his executive, would have been able to take their positions if it hadn't been for an amendment to the BMSA constitution. The amendment reads "A serving officer of the BMSA may be an Executive or Board member of any affiliated sport, but must abstain from voting on any matter affecting those sports with which he is affiliated."

Prior to Tuesday's meeting, the constitution disallowed executive members of any sport to hold a position on the BMSA executive. All three of the new minor sports officials are presidents of affiliated associations.

Armstrong is the president of the Archery Club, Smith is the president of the Belleville Minor Softball Association and Bochnek is the president of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

In all, prior to last night's election of officers, five constitution amendments were proposed and four were carried after nearly two hours of debate.

The new executive will hold its first executive council meeting at the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle St., Tuesday, March 6 at 7 p.m. All executive minor sports representatives are asked to be on hand.

Reid Brings Experience To OFL McDonald's Squad

The Belleville McDonalds added a touch of experience to their cause with the recent acquisition of the services of Harold Reid as coach of the new Ontario Fastball League Club. Dale Duvall, one of the owners of the team, had originally taken the task of coaching, but felt it might be better to let an experienced hand run things. Thus, Duvall gave way to Reid. Duvall will be out to nail down a spot in the McDonalds infield.

Another step was taken to build the strongest team possible with the signing of Ted Waite. Waite will join Bob Ethier on the McDonalds mound.

"We were happy to learn that Harold had decided to accept the coaching duties," said McDonalds general manager, Doug Adams, "he'll be good for the team."

HAROLD REID

"The players will respect him," added Adams. "He's a strong believer in discipline and that's what a team like this needs."

Reid, the deputy-chief of the Belleville Police Department, has been a resident of the city all his life. He is well known in sporting circles and particularly recognized for his astute abilities as a softball coach.

"I was betwixt and between when they first approached me," said Reid. "Something like this takes a lot of time in order to do a good job.

"It took me about a week to decide," he added, "but there's a lot of good material in town and I think the outcome will be worth the time involved."

Reid, heading for his 60th birthday this year, has been playing and coaching softball for nearly 45 years. His most recent accomplishments include four championship teams in the Quinte Fastball League (then known as the Commercial Fastball League) and, while coaching the 1970 Ellis Juniors, the junior championship of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

The last team he coached was the Quinte Hotel entry in the Commercial Fastball League two years ago.

What Reid has to work with so far this year will be quite familiar to him. Signed players to date Paul Goodfellow, Ted Waite, Bob Ethier, and Dale Duvall. Goodfellow, Waite and Duvall all played under Reid on the 1970 junior championship team.

"There's no question about the talent being in the Belleville area," said Reid. "We just have to put it [illegible]

"We'll be a rookie team amongst a number of [illegible] that have been together for many years, either in the Ontario Fastball League or as Senior A teams in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association," he said.

"We may have troubles, but I don't think there'll be many," he added. "In any event, experience is a good teacher."

Sailing Program For 'Landlubbers'

PICTON — Prince Edward Yacht Club will open a sailing program in June, featuring 12 boats and two qualified instructors.

Dr. Ben Bechard of Picton, a director of PEYC, says the aim of the program is to acquaint as many "landlubbers" as possible with the sport of sailing.

The program has been organized after good response during the past two years in the Ontario yacht school's two-week course.

The summer sailing classes will be open for registrations the last week in May to all interested persons able to swim. A small fee will be charged and participants are expected to buy their own lifejackets.

Bi-weekly sailing programs will begin the latter part of June with classes from 9.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. each weekday during the summer.

The instruction provided will offer students an opportunity to develop a standard of proficiency adequate to meet the examinations based on Canadian Yachting Association requirements.

Beginners will take instruction in eight-foot sail prams while more advanced pupils will use a 12-foot chinook.

Each two-week session offers enrollment opportunities for 20 to 30 sailors.

Newcomer Nowak Fits Big, Bad Bruin Image

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hank Nowak didn't take long to fit in with the big, bad Boston Bruins.

Playing in his third game for Boston, he scored one goal and got into two fights Tuesday night while the Bruins were beating Pittsburgh Penguins 6-4 in a National Hockey League game.

"You can't do better than that," said Boston coach Don Cherry, summing up the performance of Nowak, just acquired from Detroit Red Wings.

"He scored the winning goal and had two fights. And he took on a pretty good one in (Bob) Kelly."

In Tuesday's other NHL games, Toronto Maple Leafs clubbed Minnesota North Stars 9-2, New York Islanders shut out St. Louis Blues 3-0 and Chicago Black Hawks whipped Washington Capitals 6-2.

Nowak was playing on a line with NHL scoring leader Phil Esposito.

"I haven't practised with the line yet but I talked to Esposito before the game," he said. "He told me where he'd like me to play and where he plays."

"They've always been the big bad Bruins. I hope I'll be a big bad Bruin."

The Bruins came to life in the third period with goals by Carol Vadnais, Nowak and Andre Savard.

Rookie defenceman Claire Alexander, called up in January from Oklahoma City Blazers of the Central Hockey League, scored three goals to power the Leafs past Minnesota.

Toronto, which outshot the Stars 45-23, got a goal and two two assists each from Errol Thompson, George Ferguson and Lanny McDonald.

The Chicago-Washington game featured a series of third-period fights triggered by a scuffle between Mike Marson of the Capitals and Phil Russell of the Black Hawks.

Marson apparently drew blood from Russell, who has 200 penalty minutes to his credit this season, when a stick caught the Black Hawk in the face.

The other two fights were between Washington's Mike Bloom and Chicago's Darcy Rota, and Capitals' Yvon Labre and Black Hawk Grant Mulvey.

Dale Tallon scored his first two goals of the season for the Hawks.

Goalie Glenn Resch got a rare start for the Islanders and responded by blanking the Blues.

Resch, who last played Feb. 8, praised his defence, then complained about the lack of action at his end of the ice. He faced only 17 shots.

Jude Drouin, Lorne Henning and Ed Westfall backed Resch's sparkling goaltending with second-period goals. Resch recorded his third shutout of the year and beat the Blues for the second time this season.

The victory put the Islanders six points in front of Atlanta Flames for the third-place playoff spot in the Patrick Division.

Tonight's schedule has St. Louis at New York Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers at Atlanta, Vancouver Canucks at Montreal Canadiens, Washington at Pittsburgh, Los Angeles Kings at Detroit, Minnesota at California Golden Seals and Kansas City Scouts at Toronto.

Napier Faces Suspension

TORONTO (CP) — Mark Napier could be suspended from playing junior hockey for the rest of this season if he has signed a professional contract with Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz, commissioner of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series, said Tuesday he will seek legal advice on what to do about the case of the 18-year-old Napier.

He said in a telephone interview from his Walkerton, Ont., home he has been in contact with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) has been assured that it also is seeking legal advice.

Schmalz said he will establish positivley whether Napier is under contract to the Toros before the Marlboros' next game, Friday night in Brantford. If the signing is confirmed, he said it will be up to the CAHA to take action. If the CAHA doesn't act, Schmalz said he will.

John F. Bassett, president of the Toros, announced Monday that Napier had signed a three-year contract to start playing for the WHA team next season.

Napier, who has scored 54 goals and 57 assists this year for the Marlboros, said he had been negotiating with the Toros but had not signed anything.

Last week the WHA and National Hockey League gave the CAHA assurances it would stop drafting under-age juniors. Napier has not gone through a draft.

Napier did not play in a Tuesday night game at Kingston against the Canadiens because of a muscle pull, but Marlboro officials indicated he would be ready to play Friday night.

Bassett questioned the grounds for a suspension, because the contract he says Napier has signed does not come into effect until next season.

HELP SALES

The publicity surrounding Napier's signing would help ticket sales during the playoffs, he said.

"It would be like cutting off your nose to spite your face, but it wouldn't be the first time for these guys."

Napier's agent, Gus Badali, has called a news conference for this afternoon at which time Napier's lawyer, Marv Arnold will explain the terms of an agreement Badali says his client has signed with the Toros.

Bassett was convinced he had Napier tied up.

"I don't know the nomenclature of it but, as far as I'm concerned, we have a binding agreement with Napier for three years," he said.

Schmalz said his league has suffered at the gate because of last spring's signings of players who still had junior eligibility left.

He estimated crowds this year are down about 20 per cent over-all, with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and St. Catharines Black Hawks especially hard-hit by signings.

Seals May Have A Buyer

OAKLAND (AP) — Munson Campbell, the man running California Seals for the National Hockey League, said Tuesday that the possibility San Francisco businessman Mel Swig will buy the club "is the best news that this hockey franchise has had since its inception."

Swig said Tuesday that several new people have joined his group of investors considering making a bid for the NHL's weakest franchise, one that will probably be moved to Denver next year if no buyer is found who is willing to keep the team in the San Francisco Bay area.

The NHL bought the Seals a year ago from its last owner, Charles Finley, and has operated it through this season. Each of the other NHL teams stands to lose roughly $100,000 when the Seals' losses for the season are divided up.

The league paid Finley a reported $6 million for the club, but there are indications it could change hands the next time for less money, especially if a move can be avoided.

Munson said he expected the fate of the Seals' franchise to be settled by early May.

Swig, 57, is the member of a prominent San Francisco family which has extensive real estate holdings. He was president in the mid 1960s of San Francisco Seals of the old Western Hockey League.

PEREZ AGREES

CINCINNATI (AP) — Veteran first-baseman Tony Perez agreed Tuesday to a 1975 contract and will report to spring training at Tampa, Fla., Cincinnati Reds announced.

4-3 Win in Overtime Perks Stapleton Up

PAT STAPLETON

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's been a long season for Chicago Cougar coach Pat Stapleton, but Tuesday night he got a break.

"At least the overtime periods are getting shorter," he said after the Cougars had beaten the Edmonton Oilers 4-3 with a goal from Gary MacGregor 11 seconds into overtime in a World Hockey Association game.

The victory was the fourth in a row for the Cougars, who still remain five points points behind Cleveland Crusaders in their battle for a playoff position in the Eastern Division.

In other WHA games, New England Whalers edged Vancouver Blazers 3-2, Indianapolis Racers defeated Baltimore Clippers 6-4, Toronto Toros beat San Diego Mariners 6-4 and Minnesota Fighting Saints and Winnipeg Jets tied 6-6.

"Mark (Lomenda) gave me a pass," said MacGregor of the winning goal, "and I shot it backhand through (goalie Chris) Worthy's legs.

"He had been out of the net, but I think he was back in position by the time I took the shot."

Nick Fotiu and Don Blackburn scored in the final period to propel New England past the Blazers. Fotiu's goal, only his second of the season, snapped a 1-1 tie, and Blackburn made it 3-1 just two minutes later.

The Whalers are enduring a gruelling schedule that calls for five home games in six nights.

Frank Mahovlich scored two goals to spark Toronto. Mahovlich broke a 2-2 tie in the second period with his 29th goal of the year, and after Pat Hickey had made it 4-2, he added his 30th of the season to put the game out of reach.

The win enabled the Toros to open a nine-point lead over the Oilers in the fight for second place in the Canadian Division. Edmonton still has six games in hand.

Andre Lacroix scored twice for the Mariners.

Minnesota's Terry Ball scored at 14:58 of the third period, with Winnipeg a man short, to lift the Fighting Saints into their tie with the Jets. Anders Hedberg had two goals and three assists for Winnipeg.

Tonight's schedule has Indianapolis at Minnesota, Cleveland at Houston Aeros and Chicago at New England.

Arbitration Can Create Problems

RALPH GARR
Won His Case

ROD CAREW
Disgusted Loser

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's arbitration cases came to a close Tuesday, but their aftertaste lingers on.

There were 15 arbitration cases this year. The record will show that the owners won nine of them.

Oakland's Charles O. Finley, who has sat in the arbitration hot seat more times than any other owner, recognizes the irony of knocking a player in arbitration, then expecting him to put out 100 per cent during the season.

"One of the minuses about arbitration, is that I have to sit there and tell a player, in front of a lot of other people, why he shouldn't get a raise," he said.

Minnesota Twins' Rod Carew, the American League's leading hitter last year, lost in his arbitration battle.

"I'm disgusted," Carew said. "Now I know what kind of organization the Twins are.

"I know what they think of me. They don't consider me a superstar. I'm just a number."

Ralph Garr, the National League's top hitter in 1974, came here for an arbitration battle with Atlanta Braves. After Garr made his pitch, he asked the arbitrator if he could be excused.

"I didn't want to hear myself get cut up," Garr said. "They can cut you down so much that it makes you not want to play.

"I don't see how management can win these things," Garr added. "Win or lose there's gonna be a funny feeling for Ralph Garr towards Atlanta management."

Garr won his case, receiving $114,500 for 1975 instead of the $85,000 the Braves felt he was worth.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, said some of the teams lose dignity by attacking their players.

"They try to make the player look like dirt," Miller said. "All that does is damage morale."

But not all teams take that philosophy into arbitration.

"It's like solving a business problem," said Peter Bavasi, vice-president and general manager of San Diego Padres.

"We don't emphasize the negative. We focus on comparability. Like, we'd say this man is comaparable to 45 other players, so he deserves a salary of this many dollars."

Guelph Leads Welland

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores took a 6-2 lead in their eight-point quarter-final series, defeating Welland Sabres 6-2 in Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League playoff action Tuesday.

Guelph scored four unanswered goals in the third period to break a 2-2 tie.

Defenceman Tom Rieck scored the winning goal and added the final goal in the last minute of play. Other Guelph goals went to Dave Kennedy, Rick Pointon, Wally Hogg and Bill MacDonald.

Brian McDavid and Simon Fraser-Underhill replied for the Sabres, who came from behind twice to tie the game 2-2 in the second period.

The Biltmores outshot the visitors 37-31 before 1,400 spectators.

In other playoff action Windsor Spitfires downed Detroit Junior Wings 8-2 and Niagara Falls Flyers edged Chatham Maroons 5-.

Play resumes Thursday with Detroit in Windsor.

Spitfires 8 Wings 2

Chuck Bosynak scored two goals to pace visiting Windsor to its second 4-0 lead in the eight-point semi-final.

Other Windsor goals went to Scott Miller, Bruce Boyd, Jerry McLean, Yves Plouffe, Gary Armstrong and Hugh Mitchell.

Tom Schlitts and Steve Letogus replied for Detroit, which trailed 3-0 after the first period and 7-1 after the second.

Flyers 5 Maroons 4

Dan McCourt's goal with less than five minutes left in the game lifted Niagara Falls to its first win of the series, which Chatham leads 5-3.

CJHL Goes to Wire

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took Rockland Nationals 50 games to edge Nepean Raiders cut of third place in the Central Junior Hockey League and make it stick.

Their one-point edge was confirmed Tuesday—the last day of the schedule—when the Nationals defeated Brockville Warriors 7-4 while the Raiders were beating Gloucester Rangers 8-3.

That set up the league playoff semi-finals opening Thursday with the Raiders in Pembroke against the first-placed Lumber Kings. The Nationals travel to Smiths Falls Friday to open their best-of-seven series against the second-placed Bears.

The series' rotate between competing cities with the second games in Nepean Saturday and in Rockland Sunday.

It also went right down to the last game for Brian McCullough of Nepean to confirm himself with 51 goals and as many assists for 102 points. Rick Borceleau of last-placed Brockville 50—100 record.

And it wasn't until after the last game that Brian Shields of Pembroke could safely claim the goaltending title with a 4.3 allowed one goal fewer on the season—215—than the Nepean goalie pairing.

Beavers Score 8-6 Win

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—A goal by Michel Brisebois midway through the third period snapped a 6-6 deadlock and Sherbrooke Beavers went on to defeat Chicoutimi Sagueneens 8-6 in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League action Tuesday night.

Peter Marsh led Sherbrooke with three goals. Richard Mulbern, Claude Larose, Alain Belanger and Marc Tessier also scored for the Beavers who widened their west division lead to 10 points over idle Cornwall Royals.

The Sagueneens got two goals each from Marc D'Amico and Jean Paul Leblanc while Sylvain Locas and Yves Perusse netted singles.

Chicoutimi outshot Sherbrooke 36-34 before 2,152 spectators.

League action resumes Thursday.

Walker and Van Lier Cool Out Jazz

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Bulls cooled off the surprising New Orleans Jazz, stopping their six-game winning streak 120-105 in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

"This is a league of consistency, not streaks," said Bill van Breda Kolff, coach of the Jazz, which has a 14-46 record. "So we'll just have to get back together and work hard."

In Tuesday's other NBA games, Kansas City-Omaha Kings topped Milwaukee Bucks 93-90, Washington Bullets whipped Buffalo Braves 111-93, Phoenix Suns trounced Golden State Warriors 111-97, Houston Rockets drubbed Cleveland Cavaliers 114-87, Portland Trail Blazers beat Philadelphia 76ers 99-77 and Seattle SuperSonics edged New York Knicks 102-101.

There were no games played in the American Basketball Association.

Chet Walker's 29 points, Norm Van Lier's 23 and Bob Love's 22 paced Chicago's balanced attack against New Orleans.

Nate Archibald scored 37 points to lead Kansas City-Omaha to its sixth win in a row, the 12 in their last 13 games.

Elvin Hayes scored 31 points and Mike Riordan and Phil Chenier each contributed 20 as Washington improved its record to 45-17, the best in the NBA.

Charlie Scott's 26 points sparked Phoenix' win over Golden State. Rick Barry had 31 points for the Warriors.

Rudy Tomjanovich had 39 points for the Rockets, who inched to within one-half game of second-place Cleveland in the Central Division.

MONTREAL (CP) — Marv Luster, 36, a 14-year veteran linebacker of the Canadian Football League, announced his retirement Tuesday.

"I know I've said I would retire a couple or three times before, but this is it, for sure. I really made up my mind before the start of last season."

A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Because of the wide response to Radio Shack products in Canada our sales have increased 71% over the past year.

Despite rising material and labour costs Radio Shack DID NOT RAISE a single price in "Company" stores since issuing our 1975 catalogue in October. We have now decided NOT TO RAISE A PRICE at least through to June 1975 in these stores.

In addition we will continue our tradition of periodic PRICE REDUCTIONS to make Radio Shack products even more affordable.

By holding the line against increases we help not only our customers but also our suppliers and our employees, actually thousands of people. It is our way of saying to the country as a whole: we can and must fight inflation.

This applies to all 231 company owned and operated stores in Canada.

NEALE SENT BACK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association announced Tuesday night that left winger Robbie Neale has been sent back to Cleveland Crusaders. Neale, a native of Brandon, Man., was acquired by Winnipeg on a temporary basis three weeks ago. Winnipeg coach Rudy Pilous said Neale had not shown that he would fit the style and calibre of player personnel needed in the Jets' attempt to make the playoffs.

FLYERS RECALL BOLAND

Women's Curling Championship

Regina Rink Faces 2 Tough Tests

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Marj Mitchell's Regina rink, defending the Canadian women's curling championship won the last six years by Saskatoon-area clubs, appears headed for a showdown tonight with Alberta.

The Saskatchewan foursome racked up its fifth consecutive win Tuesday night, hanging an 11-6 defeat on Ontario's Bea Cole of London.

But Miss Mitchell, a 26-year-old social worker, isn't about to forecast a sweep for the Prairie rink, especially with games today against the popular host New Brunswick entry skipped by Ivy Lord of Saint John and Sharon Grigg's Medicine Hat club.

Sharon, with four wins in five starts here, has the best chance to throw a wrench into Saskatchewan's domination of the championship that goes back to 1969 when Joyce McKee started the provincial sweep.

In other Tuesday night games, Gail Hiscock of St. John's cracked five in the fourth to lift Newfoundland to a 12-5 win over New Brunswick. Diane Blanchard's Prince Edward Island crew from Charlottetown registered its first win, 9-8, over Joan Mogk of Souris, Man.; Marion Radcliffe's Kelowna, B. C. club took Lee Tobin's Quebec foursome from Montreal 9-4, and Alberta easily handled the Phyllis MacDonald Nova Scotia representatives from Halifax, 10-2.

In the afternoon draw, it was Quebec 8 Ontario 7, Newfoundland 8 Nova Scotia 6, British Columbia 14 New Brunswick 3, Alberta 5 Manitoba 4, and Saskatchewan 8 P.E.I. 5.

Today's afternoon draw has Manitoba going against Nova Scotia, P. E. I. meeting Quebec, New Brunswick against Saskatchewan, Newfoundland playing Alberta and Ontario playing B. C.

The evening draw, in addition to the Alberta-Saskatchewan showdown, has Newfoundland against B. C., Nova Scotia meeting Quebec, Ontario playing. P. E. I. and New Brunswick facing Manitoba.

"We have been consistent," said Miss Mitchell, "but not really curling as well as we can, not as well as we have been the last two or three weeks."

The Saskatchewan skip said there were probably a number of factors contributing to the what she feels has been a spotty performance by her rink.

"I think it's just getting use to arena ice. The ice has been really pretty tricky in a few spots, there's a lot of falls and so on.

"Our team depends a lot on sweeping and quite a few of our misses have been misjudging the sweeping call. We call it a little too quick and it falls back on us. Or we wait just a split second too long and it curls by and only gets half the rock. We usually get them on the nose."

Fincups Unbeaten in 10

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Fincups stretched their unbeaten streak to 10 games Tuesday, dumping Kitchener Rangers 7-2 in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

Hamilton has six wins and four ties to lift it into second place, three points ahead of Peterborough Petes.

The Fincups outshot Kitchener 51-22 and built up period leads of 2-1 and 5-2 before a home crowd of 3,021 spectators.

Ted Long, Joe Contini, Ric Seiling, Glenn Richardson, Dale McCourt, Jack Anderson and Dave Norris scored the Hamilton goals. McCourt, with his 43rd goal, brought his season total to 106 points.

Bob Schnurr and Ken Campbell replied for last-place Kitchener.

In other games Tuesday, Ottawa '67s dumped St. Catharines Black Hawks 9-5, Toronto Marlboros beat Kingston Canadians 4-2, Sudbury Wolves trounced Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 9-2 and Oshawa Generals 4-2.

Play resumes Friday with St. Catharines meeting Toronto in Brantford, Hamilton travelling to play London Knights, Sudbury visiting Ottawa, Kitchener entertaining Sault Ste. Marie and Oshawa in Kingston.

'67s 9 Hawks 5

Tim Young and Peter Lee each scored twice for Ottawa, and Jamie Masters, Jim Roberts, Warren Holmes, Tom McDonelll and Bruce Baker added single goals. The win strengthened Ottawa's hold on fourth place, eight points behind Peterborough and two points ahead of Sudbury.

Gary McAdam scored twice for visiting St. Catharines, with Rick Adduono, Steve Cupolo and Rick Berard getting the others.

Marlboros 4 Canadians 2

League-leading Toronto broke a 2-2 tie after John Smrke's goal in the second period when Kingston was playing two men short, and John Anderson ensured the win with a goal into ang empty Kingston net. Bruce Boudreau and John Tonelli added the other Toronto goals.

Mark Napier, who has been negotiating a professional contract with Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association, did not play because of a muscle pull. Napier could be suspended if he signs a professional contract, OHA commissioner Clarence Schmalz said Tuesday.

Wolves 9 Greyhounds 1

Paul Crowley scored three goals to pace Sudbury to the win at home before 2,592 spectators. Rod Schutt and Richie Hansen each added two goals and Dave Farrish and Alex McKendry got the others.

Gary Gill replied for the Sault, outshot 54-26.

Petes 4 Generals 2

After a scoreless first period, the Petes scored three unanswered goals in the second period. Stan Jonathan, Doug Halward, Gary McMonagle and Brad Pirie scored for the Petes. Greg Malone and Terry Angel replied for the visitors.

The encyclopedia devoted to the things kids like most.

Getting a youngster to pull out an encyclopedia can be like pulling out teeth.

So Funk & Wagnalls now brings you an encyclopedia made up of the kinds of things kids go for: things that creep, roar, hop, soar, hiss and slither. Funk & Wagnalls Wildlife Encyclopedia.

Inside 22 hard-cover volumes is a world of facts on the world of living creatures: birds, fish, insects, animals, reptiles. How they live, and where. What (or who) they eat. Plus more than 2,500 color illustrations.

The Encyclopedia was originally published in the United Kingdom and has been sold here as The International Wildlife Encyclopedia and Encyclopedia of Animal Life. Both sets sold for over $75.00 each.

But because Funk & Wagnalls sells encyclopedias in great quantity, direct through supermarkets, you can buy this encyclopedia for about half that price. And you can buy it a volume at a time.

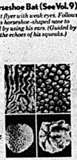
As a special introductory offer, try Volume 1 now for just 49¢ at any of our supermarkets. Then, each week when you shop, pick up a volume or two for just $1.99 each and complete the set.

Start your set today. Help your youngster to enjoy learning, by learning about something he enjoys.

Wattlebird (See Vol. 21)
Has bell-like call and wings of a bird, but prefers to travel by foot. Hunts forest floors for meals, bounding left and right like a ping-pong ball.

Tree Frog (See Vol. 20)
Swings from branch to branch like a trapeze artist. Suction-cup toes keep him from falling off. His voice is more clank than croak.

Horseshoe Bat (See Vol. 9)
Night flyer with weak eyes. Follows his horseshoe-shaped nose to food by using his ears. (Guided by the echoes of his squeaks.)



Coral (See Vol. 5)
Tiny marine carnivores with mouths, stomachs and tentacles. By multiplying, they form spectacular reefs, sometimes a thousand miles long.

Koala (See Vol. 10)
Loudest voice in Australia, healthiest odor. (He eats eucalyptus leaves, smells like cough drops.) Also known as bangaroo, koolewong and... Teddy Bear.

Fossa (See Vol. 7)
Looks like a wildcat, smells like a skunk. Only two feet long, but has been known to attack oxen.

CP News Roundup

Mackasey Defends Young

NEW YORK (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey of Canada proclaimed his faith Tuesday in the young people of today because "they care more about people than things."

In an address to the Canadian Club, he noted that 50 per cent of today's labor force is under 30, a generation schooled in skepticism and reconditioned to change. Their attitudes differed from those of the generation before them.

"People say the young reject authority and the work ethic. Authority, yes. The work ethic, no. Some reject consumption goals, careers based on corporate values, jobs that are one bit of trivia piled on another, jobs that are filthy, hot, soul-destroying and unsafe. It's not the concept of work the young are rejecting. It's the workplace."

Fund Is Low

DETROIT (AP) — The special unemployment fund that bolsters jobless benefits for laid-off salaried workers at Chrysler Corp. will be depleted in mid-March, the United Auto Workers says.

Son Succeeds

CHICAGO (AP) — Wallace Muhammad, the son of the late Elijah Muhammad, will be "the official leader and administrator" of the Nation of Islam, a spokesman for the religious sect said.

Abass Rassoul, the national secretary of the Black Muslims, made the announcement Tuesday night after the death of Elijah Muhammad.

Skyjacker to Die

BEIRUT (AP) — A court in North Yemen is reported to have handed down the first death sentence against a skyjacker. He hijacked a North Yemeni plane.

The Iraqi news agency says the state security court in San'a, the capital of North Yemen, gave the death sentence to Ali Ben Ali al Awadi, a Yemeni who hijacked a DC-3 jet last Sunday.

Exports Banned

KAMPALA (CP-Reuters) — President Idi Amin has banned exports of Ugandan copper because he says no one, including a Canadian company, has been paying for it, it was announced Tuesday.

Amin said he recently learned that although Uganda sold thousands of tons of copper every year, "we have in fact not been receiving any money for exported copper."

Port Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Public hearings into the environmental impact of a proposed deep-water Great Lakes port and quarry in the Manitoulin district have been scheduled for next month in Sudbury, Allan Grossman, resources development secretary, said Tuesday.

Mr. Grossman said in a news release that he expects the two weeks of hearings to begin the week of March 10.

Want Fewer Hunters

OTTAWA (CP) — Non-resident moose hunters will have to pay higher licence fees to hunt in Ontario this year, Leo Bernier, Ontario's Natural Resources minister, says.

The higher fees will be charged in an effort to reduce the number of non-resident hunters in the province, he said. The new fee structure was not detailed, in his speech.

Option to Buy

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has an option to purchase a planned extension of an oil pipeline to Montreal if it is required to subsidize operation of the line, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

Accused Woman Charged With Threatening Call

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Judge G. G. Marshman Tuesday ordered Gail Linda Guest to sign a one-year peace bond stipulating that she would not harass Linda Torek, in whose home Donald Wayne Cline and Miss Guest were arrested Jan. 23.

At a hearing called to investigate an alleged threatening telephone call to Mrs. Torek Marshman rejected Miss Guest's denial that she made the call.

Mrs. Torek testified she was frightened by the call accusing her of being responsible for Cline's arrest.

"She said a lot of good friends were mad at me and if I wasn't careful I was going to get my head blown off," Mrs. Torek told the court.

"I was afraid something would happen to me, me and my children. I'm still very fearful."

Miss Guest is charged with Cline and four other men with conspiring to rob a bank branch in Thamesford, east of London, Jan. 21.

Cline is also charged with robbing a Thamesford supermarket with four others Jan. 21, kidnapping four children after the robbery in their farm home between London and Thamesford, robbing two policemen of their guns and attempting to murder them, and extorting $10,000, a police car and safe passage from provincial authorities in exchange for the children.

Appeal Dismissed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada rejected an appeal Tuesday by Golden Products Canada Ltd, against a conviction for operating a pyramid-style sales operation to market houshold detergents in Alberta

The dismissal upholds Criminal Code provisions outlawing schemes by which individuals pay an amount to a company for the privilege of recruiting new members into a sales plan, then reap a large cash reward from their subsequent contributions.

Re-open Plant

ASBESTOS, Que. (CP) — Canadian Johns-Manville announced Tuesday it would reopen a company plant at Timmins, Ont., today for work other than the actual milling and production of asbestos fibres.

A company spokesman said all 200 workers at the Reeves Mine operation near Timmins would be back at work by Friday, and workers normally employed in the mill would be "gainfully employed in other areas."

Pot Harmful

OTTAWA (CP) — A Toronto psychiatrist presented a brief outlining health dangers of marijuana and hashish and took a broad swipe at the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) before a Senate committee Tuesday.

Andrew I. Malcolm told the committee, holding hearings on a bill to lighten penalties for possession of the cannabis drugs, that evidence of their harmful effects is rapidly mounting.

Derailed Train Reported Looted

THUNDER BAY (CP) — The Times-News says a CNR freight train was looted of flour, fruit and clothing believed to be worth nearly $1 million after it went off the tracks 150 miles east of here two weeks ago.

In a copyright story, the newspaper says numerous bags of mail and parcel post are also missing, and postmasters in two Northern Ontario centres have reported empty mail bags found miles from the derailed train.

The newspaper says the goods were carried off over a nine-day period with the estimated participation of about 1,000 persons. No cause has been determined for the derailment which occurred early Feb. 9 and The Times-News says the CNR is investigating reports of looting.

The eastbound train left the tracks 17 miles east of Long.. turning over 24 cars containing dressed beef, dry goods, mail, fruit, two automobiles, horses and hogs.

The newspaper quotes CNR special agent George Root as saying that after word spread of the drailment, as many as 200 persons a day were making their way through the bush to raid the cars.

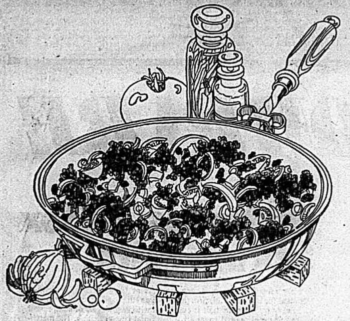
Meal makers. Money savers.



Joan Fielden tells how:

Joan Fielden,
Dominion Home Economist Consultant
Dave Robbins, Meat Manager

Did you know you can get high quality protein from less expensive cuts of beef like blade steaks, chuck, braising ribs or ground beef; the same nutritional values as found in the prime cuts like steaks and roasts?
And there are so many ways to prepare these money-saving cuts of beef. Take ground meats, for example. They give tho artistic and creative cook an opportunity to shine with something new everytime. Tender, economical, flavourful, ground meats can be baked, braised, broiled, barbecued, pan-fried or stewed. And they mix perfectly with countless combinations of foods, herbs and spices. They're the versatile friend of all homemakers and gourmets. This week's recipe uses two pounds of hamburger to make a delicious economical meal that serves eight people.
I think you'll enjoy it.

Budget Company Dinner

(Serves 8)

2 pounds hamburger
2 large onions, thinly sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
6 tomatoes, peeled, chopped
2 cooking apples, peeled, chopped
½ cup raisins (soaked in warm water, drained)
½ cup stuffed green olives, quartered
1 cup dry red or white wine or 1 cup beef bouillon
salt and pepper to taste
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon cloves
2 green peppers, cut into strips
¾ cup slivered almonds, sautéed in butter or margarine.

1. Sauté beef in large frying pan until brown. Drain off excess fat.
2. Add onion and garlic, and cook only until softened.
3. Add tomatoes, apples, raisins, olives, wine and seasonings.
4. Simmer for 20 minutes.
5. Add green pepper during last 5 minutes of cooking.
6. Serve over hot rice, sprinkle with almonds.

The following chart will serve as a quick reference guide to the various ways to cook ground beef and other beef cuts.

MY GUIDE TO THE MANY WAYS OF COOKING BEEF

BROILING	Preheat broiler. Slash fat at edge at 1 inch intervals being careful not to cut into meat. This prevents meat from curling as it cooks. Place meat on rack in broiling pan. Broil until nicely browned. Turn over and broil other side. Turn only once and use tongs. If you must use a fork insert it into the fat and not the meat.
PAN-FRYING	Pan-fry meat in natural fat. Place small amount of fat in pan and heat to almost smoking. Brown meat quickly and then reduce heat and cook, uncovered, until meat is done.
BRAISING	Coat meat in seasoned flour, if desired. Brown slowly on all sides in hot fat. Season with salt and pepper, herbs or spices. Add a very small amount of liquid to prevent sticking. Cover tightly. Turn heat to low to simmer on range top or place in 325°F. oven.
STEWING	Cut meat in uniform pieces, usually 1 to 2 inch cubes. Coat with seasoned flour and brown slowly in hot fat. Add herbs and spices. Add approximately 1 cup of liquid (water, bouillon, tomato juice or mixture.) Let liquid bubble until meat is tender. Vegetables may be added during last 40 minutes of cooking. Thicken liquid to make gravy if desired.

Canadians Spend $14 Million Each Year As Jamaican Tourists

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP) — Imagine a Saskatchewan farm boy or an Eskimo youth from Tuktoyaktuk suddenly being whisked to Toronto to work as a waiter at the Royal York's elegant Imperial Room.

The adjustment is far greater for the black waiters who serve alien food to the apparently rich white strangers who flock to the tourist hotels of Jamaica, some 38,000 a year from Canada alone.

The Jamaican waiter may be fresh from a farm in the jungle interior of the 146-mile-long, 51-mile-wide island, accomplished at shaving himself with a razor-sharp sugarcane machete but unaccustomed to setting cutlery on a white linen tablecloth.

He may have to memorize your dinner order because, like 40 per cent of Jamaica's two million people, he cannot read or write. He may not understand your order clearly because he speaks a soft, lilting dialect of his own.

Above all, he may subconsciously resent having to serve you.

These are some of the social adjustments faced by the 25,000 Jamaicans involved in the country's relatively new tourist industry.

Canadian vacationers spend $14 million a year in this emerging Caribbean country and the Jamaican Tourist Board has embarked on an energetic campaign to offset some of the bad publicity the island has been receiving.

Much of it arose from an incident two years ago which received wide press coverage. T. C. Douglas, the scrappy former leader of the New Democratic Party, put up his dukes to rout two knife-wielding bandits who were attempting to snatch his wife's purse on a lonely beach.

Douglas himself says the encounter was blown out of all proportion and he has continued to spend winter vacations at the same Jamaican hotel resort. But it prompted a whispering campaign among Canadian travellers and travel agents that Jamaica was a hotbed of crime.

The difficulty is largely due to cultural misunderstanding.

Some Canadians tend to regard the basically shy Jamaicans as aloof, sullen and racially touchy.

For their part, Jamaican blacks are painfully aware that their African ancestors were slaves for almost 300 years. Many equate tourism with the colonialism of their former British masters, who ruled the island until it achieved its Commonwealth independence 12 years ago.

The campaign to reconcile these differences is bearing fruit.

Every taxi on the island is plastered with signs reading "Tourism is everybody's business" and "Smile, it makes you better-looking."

Hotel employees attend union seminars in which they are taught the dignity of their profession and have adopted the slogan: "Good service doesn't mean servitude."

A survey conducted by University of the West Indies reported that 95 per cent of the citizens interviewed feel the tourist industry is vitally beneficial to them. At least 25 per cent said they had changed their attitude since the government introduced community politeness and etiquette teach-ins during what was called Tourist Month.

Jamaica's Canadian connections go all the way up to Michael Manley, the 48-year-old prime minister, who served as a pilot officer in the RCAF.

Because of the island's 25-per-cent unemployed rate and low per-capita income, more than 9,000 Jamaicans have emigrated to Canada annually for the last two years.

But Daniel Powell, Jamaican trade commissioner in Toronto, said 1,200 a year return to assume top jobs in Jamaica.

The expatriates have returned with new perspectives.

Manley's press secretary, Claude Robinson, is a 32-year-old son of a Jamaican carpenter, who came back after studying journalism for four years at Carleton University in Ottawa.

"My first morning in Canada I looked out the window and for the first time I saw two white men shovelling dirt on a truck," Robinson recalled. "That really hit me. I became aware that blacks aren't the only ones who have to do menial jobs."

Glen Young, 30-year-old son of a Kingston bartender, earned $55 a week before he went to Toronto in 1965 to take a three-year course in hotel management at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute. Now he is executive manager of the Turtle Beach Towers Hotel in Ocho Rios.

Young hires his staff from the government-operated Jamaica Hotel Training School. The 90 students who take the free six-month courses there are trained by Tony Hall, another Ryerson graduate, or Gloucester Brown, a hotelier scholarship winner who studied in Germany.

Brown, a tall, handsome Jamaican of 32 with an Afro hairdo, says that finger-snapping boors who shout "Boy!" are the most humiliating guests that his trainees must learn to cope with.

He has taught his students to handle insensitive whites of this kind with a courtly form of one-upmanship.

"Sir, we don't have any boys here," the waiters respond with a smile. "Just civilized men—proud to give you service in a most civilzed country."

Pilfer Coal

NEW YORK (AP) — Pirates are at work in Kentucky, says Coal Age magazine.

The freebooters invade old, abandoned mines to pilfer a few tons of coal a day, worth up to $90.

Since Kentucky requires all coal operators to have a licence, the pirates run the risk of state prosecution as well as civil suits for damages.

'Worthless' Stocks Start Business

TORONTO (CP) — It has taken 11 years to paper Micheline Masse's wall but a lot of persons have profited from the delay.

Miss Masse decided to paper the wall with old stock certificates since she was interested in stocks and bonds and her husband was a stockbroker.

So friends dug what they thought were useless, but pretty, certificates out of closets and drawers, turning them over to her.

One was worth $2,000, another $5,000 and there were enough winners to start a small family business and turn back $500,000 to customers. The useless papers went on the wall.

The Stock Market Information Service in Montreal is the only company of its kind in the world. For $20, it will establish the exact value of any stocks and bonds issued since 1850. If it is unable to locate the company, which happens rarely, the fee is returned.

One Toronto woman turned out to be a stockholder in the original Panama canal company which put all its assets into a fund and drew a lottery each year. The woman had a bond from her grandfather who won $1,000 in the lottery in 1948.

Miss Masse wants people to send her more certificates.

One United States engineer recently collected $36,000 for 2,000 shares of what he thought was useless uranium stock.

And, if the certificate turns out worthless, Miss Masse can always find space on her wall.

Beaver Has Bad Reputation For Country's National Symbol

OTTAWA (CP) — The beaver, the industrious animal that rivals the maple leaf as a Canadian symbol, is becoming a problem in the national capital region and even a subject of controversy.

In the last few years beaver have become so numerous along the Ottawa River that competition for food and territory is forcing them off preserves and into the city. In some districts they destroy trees and flood streets, highways and railway tracks.

The National Capital Commission (NCC), a federal agency, also has problems with beavers. They plug culverts and flood roads in park and greenbelt territory under its jurisdiction.

Conservative Sean O'Sullivan, the 23-year-old MP for Hamilton Wentworth, has introduced a private member's bill in the Commons to make the beaver the official national animal. He also promised to investigate allegations that the NCC is using painful leg-traps to catch beavers when they become a nuisance.

The NCC denies this. Howard Morris, Gatineau Park senior warden, said leg-traps were banned two years ago. The commission now uses only traps that take the beaver alive.

"We certainly have a place in the park for our beaver," he said.

Forty years ago the beaver was near extinction. The work of James S. C. Watt, a Scot from Oban who came here in the service of the Hudson's Bay Company, is credited with a major part in saving the animal in Central Canada.

Unrestricted [illegible] years had so reduced the beaver population that in the winter of 1934-35 only 44,600 of them were taken.

In 1930 Watt was serving at Rupert House, Que., near the southern end of James Bay. An Indian told him of two beaver lodges he had found.

Watt bought the lodges from the Indian and left the beaver to breed. He continued the effort, saving 25 lodges and persuading the Indians to do the same. He illustrated to them by means of charts and ordinary matchsticks how quickly beaver would multiply if left alone.

He persuaded the Quebec government to create a beaver preserve in 7,200 square miles of the Rupert House area. In 1940 there were only 4,000 beaver in the preserve. Four years later that number had more than tripled.

Quebec set out more preserves in areas east of James Bay. The Ontario government did the same on the west side of the bay.

Today controlled and licensed trapping can yield a trapper up to $6,000 in three months.

Last winter 1,000 beaver were trapped in Ontario within a 25-mile radius of Parliament Hill.

Bananas Studied

Technician tests banana skins at the Tropic Products Institute in London, England. The institute has been subjecting banana skins to intensive scrutiny to see whether they can be put to profitable use. (CP Photo)

Scientists Seek Use For Skins of Bananas

LONDON (CP) — Apart from its ageless role as a source of low comedy, the banana skin offers no discernible benefits to humanity.

Once the banana has fulfilled its function of providing sugar, starch, minor proteins and banana oil, the skin is discarded—tidily in an appropriate receptable or prodigally in the path of unwary passers-by.

But a research project by a group of British chemists is hastening the day when man slips on his last banana skin.

At the Tropical Products Institute (TPI) and Chelsea College of Science and Technology, the group has been subjecting the skins to intensive scrutiny to see whether they can be put to profitable use.

The first TPI project was investigation of the possibility that banana skins might yield steroids, drugs of increasing importance in modern medicine for which the major present sources are wild yams and sisal juice.

The scientists found steroids, but only methylated steroids for which there is no present demand.

Their interest switched to the waxy quality of the skin and they explored the wax content and composition and the changes occurring in its as the banana ripens.

Armed with these findings and data on the quantity of wax in different banana types, the TPI now is looking into the physical properties of some of these waxes with a view to possible commerical applications.

Many hydrocarbon waxes are obtained from oil and an alternative source would be welcome in an era of energy crisis, particularly in the developing countries where most bananas are grown.

These countries might be able to set up small industries to make furniture polish or shoe polish, saving precious foreign exchange, from what would otherwise be a waste byproduct.

The extraction process itself would require petroleum, but nearly all of it would be recoverable by recycling. The prospect is of a comprehensive banana industry producing fresh bananas, dried bananas, banana flour, banana chips and commercial waxes.

Finally the residue would be used as fertilizer and there would be absolutely nothing unsalable left of the fruit.

Library Corner

GLORY AND THE LIGHTNING — Taylor Caldwell.

A historical novel about Aspasia, wife of Pericles. Born into a society in which female children are despised, Aspasia grows up a beautiful maiden with a brilliant mind. She meets Pericles, the most powerful and just man in Greece, and together they triumph to become the centre of Greece's Golden Age.

CATNAPPED! — The further adventures of Undercover Cat. — The Gordons.

The further adventures of D.C. Randall, hero of the Walt Disney film "That Darn Cat". Patti Randall and Zeke Kelso, F.B.I. agent, are planning to marry, but a month before the wedding, D.C., the Randall's beloved black cat, is kidnapped. The kidnapers, a young criminal named Bogie and his "Auntie" who took him in and raised him for a career in crime, terrorize the entire Randall family, until they agree to turn $300,000 in stolen bonds into cash for the kidnappers. A light-hearted suspense story for animal lovers, especially cat lovers.

I AM THINKING OF KELDA — Evelyn Wells.

This is a novel of three generations of a Western American family. There is Kelda, the immigrant pioneer, her son Joey, the handsome drifter who becomes a successful Hollywood stunt man, and his daughter Bertine, the observer who loves them both and is shaped by their lives. Set in the late nineteenth-century Kansas and early twentieth century California, against a colorful background of farm life as well as the movie industry, it is a deeply moving saga.

MONSIEUR, or, THE PRINCE OF DARKNESS — Lawrence Durrell.

The characters in Mr. Durrell's new novel are varied and fascinating. They inhabit a dilapidated chateau near Avignon. In their attempt to shut out the modern world, they are deeply influenced by the gnostic cults still alive today in the Middle East. The action moves from France to Venice and to Egypt, where a suicide club with world-wide affiliations has its centre in the oasis of Macabru.

COLLISION — Spencer Dunmore.

If you are planning a trip by air in the near future, don't read this book. It is thrilling, and terrifying reading: about people and planes, passenges and air crews, and all heading for disaster. The tension is devastating.

WATERSHIP DOWN — Richard Adams.

The characters in this book are animals — wild rabbits — and what delightful characters they turn out to be. The setting is the rolling hills and dales of the English Berkshires and the rabbits are a maverick band of rebels who desert their city-state when a visionary among them prophesies imminent destruction. A tale of fantasy and fun.

Limousines Out

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — The fleet of limousines used by top government officials is being stored in garages as the Arab oil embargo against South Africa begins to pinch the country's gasoline supplies. Lourens Muller, minister of transport, says ministers in future will use lighter cars.

LONDON (AP) — Frank Sinatra will be in London for two concerts at the Royal Albert Hall in late May, impressario Harold Davison said Tuesday.

It will be Sinatra's first paid appearance in London in 21 years.

The London concerts will be part of a European tour of 10 concerts by the singer.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Film star and producer Warren Beatty will be named Man of the Year by the Hasty Pudding Theatricals of Harvard University, club officials said Tuesday.

It will be the second such award in the family. Beatty's sister, actress Shirley MacLaine, was Hasty Pudding's woman of the Year in 1963.

Beatty is to be honored Thursday, opening night of the Theatricals' 127-student production Put Up Your Dukes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ballet stars Valery and Galina Panov, whose fight to emigrate from the Soviet Union drew widespread sympathy, say they now long for privacy: "To escape from all the people, to be hidden from civilization."

The group also alleges that Motown miscalculated the amount of royalties due them for a four-year period.

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Veteran film director Jean Renoir, 80-year-old son of French impressionist painter Pierre Auguste Renoir, is to receive a special academy award at this years' Oscar ceremonies April 8.

Thursday, February 27

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Give-and-take is called for today with one whom you're involved with romantically. Hurt feelings stem from inconsiderate actions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone who has been kind to you in the past is in need of a favor. You know you whould help but for some reason you won't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're placing needless strains on a friendship by expecting more than you should. Don't push it to the breaking point.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't make any points at home if you hold up accomplishments of outsiders as superior to your family's achievements.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) There will be a slight delay regarding some news you've been expecting. This could get you down in the dumps. Relax—it will come.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today and tomorrow will be tricky for you financially. Don't go on spending sprees. Try to keep current on old obligations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23) You try to be considerate of those you have direct dealings with. Today, you're likely to put self-interest way out front.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will not show the amount of gratitude the incident calls for when another goes out of her way to be helpful to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be tempted to form an association with one whose reputation leaves a little to be desired. Watch out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In eagerness to satisfy an ambition, you may tread on the toes of one who wouldn't use the same tactics if roles were reversed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Everyone will not be as infatuated with your ideas and plans today as you are. Don't be disappointed with a lukewarm response.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A hotshot salesman will consider you an easy mark today and try to palm something off with a dazzling pitch.

Food Allergy May Cause Problem

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm 12 years old and I have a bed-wetting problem. My parents get me up a half-hour after I go to bed and I'm still soaked. Our doctor said I have to learn bladder control.

I try, but I get a stomach ache when I hold it.—Miss T.

Yours is a serious problem for a young lady of 12 years. But some effort and understanding on your and your parents' part can help conquer it.

I'll just give you some general thoughts in the hope you will find your answer among them. If it is a recent condition—one of only a couple of years—it could be caused by emotional problems, maybe at school or at home. I hope you are not scolded at home for your wetting accidents.

If you rule out such factors, you can then look for physical causes, such as urinary tract infection. These infections can be treated by your doctor. Or you may have an abnormally small bladder capacity, and even this can be helped. The capacity can be increased by holding your urine during the day as long as you can, even to the point where it does cause a bit of a stomach ache. I am not saying it's easy. It requires patience.

Another thing, during the day measure the amount of urine you pass each time. Stop and start the stream. This will improve the tone of the sphincter muscles involved. Try to increase the intervals gradually to three or four hours, and go for a volume of about 10 ounces at a time.

You must also consider the possibility that a food allergy could be responsible for your problem. Common offenders are milk, eggs, fruits (citrus), tomato, corn, wheat products, pork, chicken, chocolate, onions. All are proven offenders in such allergies.

You may eat beef, rice, beets, spinach, sweet potatoes, apricots and peaches. Avoid wheat and milk particularly. Eat pure rye or rice bread, but be sure there is no wheat flour mixed in, which is often the case.

If you show improvement with these restrictions, you can then start to narrow the field down by adding one of the restricted foods to your diet every third day. If you have no trouble, that food can be eaten. If you have a wetting problem still, then omit it entirely.

Other young people have conquered enuresis (the medical term for bedwetting). From your letter, which I did not print in full, you seem to be the type of girl who can do it, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would a woman who experiences frequent depression be advised not to take oral contraceptives?—S. H.

Depression can be a side effect from the pill, and women who have had a history of depression, especially during menstrual periods, should probably avoid it.

For such women, vitamin B-6 preparations can be used to help counteract the depressive effect, however.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that an egg with a double yolk is no good? Someone told my husband you can get cancer from them.—Mrs. A. R.

I hope you haven't been throwing too many of those eggs away. They are not in the least harmful, just one of nature's bonuses, a deviation in the egg formation.

The same is true, incidentally, of eggs that have blood streaks in the yolks. Also, brown-colored eggs, laid by red hens, are quite harmless, although outside of certain areas of the eastern part of the country they do not sell well.

Ireland Healthy

By RONALD CLARKE

MUNCIE, Ind. (Reuter) — Forget the bombs and the outbreaks of shootng. If you want a healthy life, go to Ireland.

That, at least, is the advice of a local health research expert, Dr. Richard Bogg.

Bogg says Ireland is the place to put the color in one's cheeks, to lead a healthy life and to eat the right food.

A research expert at Hall State University, Bogg has spent two years studying common acne. He took 120 photographs of teen-agers in parks in rural areas of Ireland last summer and compared them with photographs of teen-agers in parks in Muncie and Anderson, Ind.

His verdict: Acne is much more prevalent among the youth of central Indiana than in Irish rural areas.

"What is surprising about Irish youth is the uniform high quality of their complexions," Bogg said.

"Their color is fantastic. Those young people are almost all rosy-cheeked.

"It suggests that a healthy life-style contributes to one's general appearance and also is the first defence against acne."

Bogg, who made a wide tour of all parts of Ireland, said: "I can say the Irish are a fasting people whose food habits are not affected by gluttony.

"The Irish eat more bread, potatoes, cabbage soup and fish than we do. Their food is locally-grown for the most part and eaten the day it is bought.

"I doubt if they eat the same quantities of non-nutritional additives that we do. They definitely do not each as much food that has been deep-fried.

"The Irish are outdoors in weather we would consider awful," Bogg continued.

"Perhaps regular exercise in cool, moist air is good, not only for the skin but for the heart and disposition."

Opening lead — 4 ♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Here is another hand we have borrowed from George Coffin.

There is nothing difficult about the hand South has a normal notrump opening bid and North a book raise to three. Give West the king od diamonds and South has an easy nine tricks, but we find his majesty in East's possession. The diamond finesse will lose and South will have to struggle to score his game. In fact, he now won't be able to bring it in, if West opens a spade and the defense does not falter. However, he will have no trouble if West opens a heart.

The old text books on play recommended the fourth best of your longest and strongest suit as the proper blind lead against notrump. The heart suit is West's strongest and a follower of one of those old textbooks would open a heart.

George points out quite properly that the ace of hearts represents a sure entry to the West hand; the queen of spades does not. Hence the best opening lead is the four of spades, not the four of hearts

This time it works. No writer ever sets up a hand to disprove his theory. Far more important is the fact that it will work far more often than it won't.

Panarctic Oils Ltd. of Calgary, the company that drilled the world's first offshore gas well from a floating ice platform off the Hecla natural gas field on Melville Island, has built two ice platforms off Drake Point. The Hecla ice island (right) measured about 400 feet in diameter with thickness of 18 feet in the centre. The ice platform under which the East Drake extension well is to be drilled measures about the same as the Hecla ice platforms. Nearby is a bigger platform, measuring 500 feet in diameter and with a thickness of up to 18 feet in the centre. There is no name yet for the East Drake testing as drilling authority is still pending [illegible] government. (CP Newsmap)

Panarctic Builds Two Ice Platforms

CALGARY (CP) — The company that drilled the world's first offshore gas well from a floating ice platform, Panarctic Oils Ltd. of Calgary, is obviously of the opinion that two are better than one in the Canadian Arctic Islands.

Panarctic has built two ice platforms eight miles east of Drake Point, on Melville Island's Sabine Peninsula 1,700 miles north of Calgary.

One will be used to support drilling equipment to test the offshore extension of the Drake Point field, the first of five major gas fields discovered by Panarctic. The other will be used only if there is an underwater blowout.

Panarctic, owned 45 per cent by the federal government and 55 per cent by a consortium of 30 private companies, now has identified 13 trillion cubic feet of natural gas reserves, mainly from the Drake Point, King Christian, Kristoffer Bay, Thor Island and Hecla fields.

While results of the energy search have been described as encouraging by Panarctic president Charles Hetherington, a threshold reserve of at least 30 trillion cubic feet has to be found before commercial development becomes viable.

Panarctic is a member of the Polar Gas Project studying the possibility of a pipeline or other transportation system to bring the Arctic Islands gas, described by the Geological Survey of Canada as one of the nation's major energy pools for future use, to southern markets.

The concept of offshore drilling from floating ice platforms is not new, said Dr. Hans Kivisild of Calgary, vice-president of Foundation of Canada Engineering Corp. Ltd. (Fenco), engineering consultants to Panarctic for the ice platforms.

But "it took 20 years for the concept to be accepted and 25 years for the concept to be implemented," Dr. Kivisild, a Canadian pioneer in ice engineering, said in an interview.

The first major exposure of ice-platform drilling to industry was the engineering feasibility study called Polarquest, commissioned to Fenco and Kenting Ltd. of Calgary by a group of companies interested in Arctic energy exploration five years ago.

But it was Panarctic—not a member commissioning the Polarquest study—which became the first company in the world to employ the technology, Dr. Kivisild said.

The first ice platform was built eight miles off the west coast of Sabine Peninsula to confirm the offshore extension of the Hecla field. The well under that platform, Hecla N-52, successfully confirmed that the Hecla field extends at least eight miles and perhaps 20 to 30 miles offshore.

The Hecla N-52 ice platform measured about 400 feet in diameter with thickness of 18 feet in the centre thinning gradually to blend into natural sea ice measuring about seven feet at the edges.

The thickening process was achieved by flooding with sea water, which quickly froze into ice, in small increments to improve the elasticity of natural sea ice until sufficient strength was obtained to support the weight of the drilling equipment. Natural sea ice could not support it.

Dr. Kisivild said current data suggests that this technology can be employed for offshore drilling up to a depth of 12,000 feet.

In the case of the Hecla ice platform, provision was made for emergency "kill lines"—to kill a blowout for environmental protection and conservation of energy resources—to be installed nearby.

A different approach is taken in Drake Point offshore. There is no name yet for that well as drilling authority still is pending from the federal government, but instead of one ice platform, two are built for the East Drake testing.

The ice platform under which the East Drake extension well is to be drilled measures about the same as the Hecla ice platform. Nearby is a bigger platform, measuring 500 feet in diameter and with thickness of up to 18 feet at the centre.

Panarctic and Fenco engineers said the two-platform approach will serve to provide experience in bigger platform-building, while also providing blowout protection by using the bigger and idle platform to support the weight of "kill" equipment in case it is needed.

Logic behind the two-platform approach is that since Panarctic now is drilling in familiar grounds, a blowout is unlikely in the first place, and money could be better spent in improving ice platform engineering while at the same time still providing blowout-killing capacity.

Fire Engine Manufacturer Makes One Every Five Years

Cincinnati (AP) — The Ahrens-Fox Fire Engine Co. is still going after 122 years but production has slowed down a bit. The one-man operation turns out a fire truck every five years.

How can you make a living when one man takes half a decade to build one engine?

"Well, it's sort of neck and neck," grinned 64-year-old Richard (Curt) Nepper, the man who owns and operates Ahrens-Fox from a dark Cincinnati warehouse.

Almost lost in the clutter of the dank old building is the future fire engine of the Southern Campbell County, Ky., fire department.

Nepper looked with affection at his latest product.

"It takes a while," he said.

Nepper is hand-building the equipment for the fire truck chassis which he bought in 1969.

"I'm old-fashioned, I guess," he said. "In the old days we all had pride in our work. Nobody had to stand over you with a club."

Nepper, who employs a part-time helper, is the expert who services and repairs the 200 Ahrens-Fox fire trucks still in use. He said the company produced 900 trucks over the years and distributed them world-wide.

Seven are in Rotterdam. The Tokyo fire department has a 1912 model it uses for parades.

The firm began in 1852 under the name of the Latta Fire Engine Co. after its founder, Alexander Latta, invented a workable steam pump. Chris Ahrens, an apprentice, took over in 1868 and changed the name to the Ahrens Fire Engine Co.

Charles Fox, former assistant fire chief of Cincinnati and an expert on hose trajectories, joined Ahrens in 1905 and the firm took its present name.

Ahrens-Fox switched to gas motors in 1911 and was one of the few companies which built everything itself—wheels, motors, hoses and the rest.

Nepper has thousands of items produced by the firm over the years still in stock. While selling many items needed by fire departments such as hose or nozzles, he still has bells, lights, nuts, bolts, valves, pistons by the thousands for nearly every model ever produced.

Missing articles are made at a foundry with original castings or castings made from hand-drawn patterns.

Nepper joined Ahrens-Fox in 1928 and bought the firm in the late 1950s.

Dredging Contract Scandals Simmer

OTTAWA (CP) — Three governments are on the political firing line because of simmering scandals about marine dredging contracts in the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City and the harbor at Hamilton, Ont.

The issue provoked a series of tense exchanges Tuesday for the second day running in the Commons.

Labor Minister John Munro, MP for Hamilton East, came under close opposition questioning. Prime Minister Trudeau tried to cut off questioning and defended Mr. Munro.

In Quebec, Premier Robert Bourassa was quoted protesting about news stories linking a contract bidding scandal with companies partly owned by his wife's family and partly by the province.

In Ontario, where some of the same companies are involved Solicitor-General George [illegible] quit the provincial cabinet [illegible]gations in the [illegible]ilton case.

[illegible] forbids public discussion of some details in the Quebec and Hamilton cases because both are before the courts.

They involve 1971-74 dredging contracts worth millions of dollars, charges of bid rigging and a countersuit by some of the dredging companies.

In the Commons Tuesday, the prime minister said he found the questioning of Mr. Munro "not very dignified." Finance Minister John Turner also objected.

Progressive Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin retorted that his party would not be "suppressed by these attempts to muzzle."

Mr. Munro said he has not been called as a witness in the coming trial of two men in connection with the Hamilton harbor contract.

Premier Bourassa told reporters in Trois-Rivieres, Que., that the Montreal newspaper La Presse appears to be trying to implicate him, through his wife's family, in the St. Lawrence River dredging case. He said he knows nothing about a federal inquiry into the dredging contract.

Three men already have pleaded guilty and have been fined on a variety of charges arising from the Hamilton harbor contract.

Kenneth Elliott, a former Hamilton harbor commissioner, and another man have been committed for trial on charges linked to the same case.

When three of the men pleaded guilty two weeks ago, the Crown alleged price-fixing against three dredging companies, including J. P. Porter, Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. and McNamara Corp. Ltd.

Income Tax Bill Nearing Approval

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's massive income tax bill was expected to move quickly to final parliamentary approval today or Thursday now that the majority Liberal government has cleared the major opposition stumbling block.

Defeat Tuesday night of a Progressive Conservative amendment, which would have delayed implementation of the contentious resource tax provisions, signalled an effective end to debate on the 287-page bill.

Remaining stages of Commons study, Senate approval and royal assent were expected to follow quickly.

Rebates for 1974 income tax returns cannot be mailed until the bill, an amalgam of measures contained in Finance Minister John Turner's Nov. 18 budget, is approved. Thousands of rebate cheques are piled up in the revenue department.

The defeated amendment introduced last Friday by Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain), would have delayed implementation of the federal resource tax until after the federal-provincial energy conference in April. All opposition parties favored the amendment, which was defeated 107 to 77.

The provision would force oil, natural gas and mining companies to pay federal income tax on royalties they are charged by provincial governments.

Opposed bitterly by resource companies and most provincial governments, it has dominated most of the debate.

Mr. Turner said that "the taxation aspects of this budget have been thoroughly discussed with the provinces" and delays in passage of the bill are causing uncertainty in the resource industries. He said he wants "the taxation fabric in place" before April.

The federal-provincial meeting should deal with the "fundamental issue of price . . . and the issue of access to markets and guarantees to markets," he said. "These issues are still open to negotiation."

Council Asked to OK Ontario Minimum Property Standards

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council will be asked Monday to approve "general" minimum property standards regulations, Mayor Robin Jeffrey told The Intelligencer Wednesday.

Mayor Jeffrey said city hall staff received a letter from the provincial government Wednesday outlining "general minimum standards guidelines," that if passed would ensure an immediate grant of $120,000 to Belleville residents. Council will see the letter Monday.

Last fall the province announced sums of money would be available to municipalities with minimum standards bylaws. These funds would be distributed to municipal property bringing properties up to minimum health and safety requirements.

With that in mind, Mayor Jeffrey announced during the fall election that one of her priorities for 1975 would be early adoption of a minimum standards bylaw so as to obtain provincial aid.

The principle of legislating what property standards a homeowner must meet touched off a strong protest a month ago, when a first draft of a maintenance bylaw was pulishbed.

Several city residents and organizations charged the draft bylaw would put too much power in council's hands. Protesters also claime dneighbors would be pitted against each other.

The controversial document has since been sent to a number of civic groups for comment and will later be sent to city planners and finally to public meetings.

In the meantime, Mayor Jeffrey said if the general guidelines proposed by the province are not agreed to by council, "we'll lose all the money."

If left another month, council will have to re-apply for Ontario Home Renewal Program funds under the 1975-1976 budget. "We've been assured there is money for Belleville in this year's budget," said the mayor. "Next year we'll just have to hope."

Mayor Jeffrey could not go into detail concerning the guidelines but said they cover several areas including "sound floors, adequate stairs, drainage for basement areas and electrical wiring that safely meets household needs."

"I don't see any reason why council wouldn't be able to adopt the guidelines," said the mayor. "The guidelines are just very general statements."

Postal Strike Seems Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — Another postal strike will definitely occur if the government offers 20,000 inside post office workers the same wage increase it has proposed for federal labor and trade employees, the leader of the largest postal union said Wednesday.

Joe Davidson, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), told a news conference the government is laying off members of his union illegally in Toronto in an effort to break current strikes by the 18,600-member general labor and trades group (GLTs).

When mail truck drivers, who belong to a third union—the Letter Carriers' Union—refused to cross GLT picket lines last week, the post office laid off 7,000 employees, about 6,000 of them CUPW members.

Although the drivers refused to work, inside workers remained on the job but were laid off when the flow of mail stopped.

Mr. Davidson called the recent offer to the GLT group of employees a scandal. Treasury board has offered 15 per cent in the first year and about 10.5 per cent in the second year of a two-year settlement on top of the present average hourly wage of $4.42.

"If they offer the same to us as to the GLTs, there will definitely be a postal strike," Mr. Davidson said.

Both Time And Digest May Fold

OTTAWA (CP) — Tax legislation to be introduced within a few weeks will make it "extremely difficult" for the Canadian editions of Time magazine and Reader's Digest to continue publishing, Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner said Wednesday.

Both U.S.-owned magazines will face a series of stringent ownership, licencing and content requirements that will almost certainly prove unacceptable to their publishers, Mr. Faulkner said in an interview.

He said the government is determined to press on with legislation to eliminate special tax status for Time and Reader's Digest advertisers despite a "massive lobby" by the publishers to sway public opinion against the move.

The impending legislation will hit hard at publishers' hopes of having Canadian editions of the two magazines qualify as domestic publications whose advertisers can continue claiming tax deductions for advertising costs, Mr. Faulkner said.

He Still Had Another 360 Hours

John Coultas checks watch after waiting 20 minutes in chilly weather for Belleville's motor vehicle licence bureau to open today. He knew last night the deadline — tomorrow — had suddenly been extended two weeks — but, like others decided to come anyway. The March 14 extension cut down on last-minute rush, says city licence issuer George Olsen, although he figures his office could have handled demand by February 28 deadline anyway. The official, who said he first heard about the extension on a news broadcast Tuesday night, by then already had processed about 16,000 of the up to 19,000 licences he issues annually.

Car Licence Deadline Extended to March 14

TORONTO (CP) — The deadline for Ontario drivers to get 1975 car licence stickers has been extended to March 14 from Feb. 28 because of mail service problems caused by strikes by the Public Service Alliance of Canada, a spokesman for the provincial transportation ministry said Wednesday.

About 90 per cent of drivers have renewed car licences, the spokesman said. He said car-leasing companies, which order hundreds of stickers by mail, are among those affected by the strike.

Drivers' licences that expire between Feb. 20 and March 31 will be considered valid until March 31 and the ministry will consider a further extension if the strike continues past that date, the spokesman said.

Police are being notified not to give tickets for expired plates or licences, he said.

Income Tax Bill Enters Last Lap

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's huge income tax bill takes its last lap in the Commons today, but it has to clear the Senate before taxpayers can receive income tax refunds.

The Senate expects to start on the 287-page omnibus tax bill next Monday night.

Both Senator Ray Perrault, government leader in the uper house, and Senator Jacques Flynn, the Opposition leader, say the Senate banking, trade and commerce committee has been studying the income tax bill for some time, which should speed things up.

But neither will predict how long the bill will be before the Senate.

Thousands of 1974 income tax refunds are sitting in the revenue department awaiting the approval.

Imperial Increases Gas and Oil Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd., Toronto, has announced an increase of 2.2 cents a gallon on its wholesale prices of gasoline, heating oils and diesel fuels, effective today.

In a news release Wednesday, the company said the move follows recent removal of federal government restrictions on the recovery of petroleum costs and reflects higher manufacturing, distribution and marketing costs.

An Imperial spokesman said the increase would be basically country-wide. He said the company would have to apply for permission for the increase to the board of commissioners of public utilities in Nova Scotia and to the British Columbia energy commission in B.C.

He said it would be up to individual dealers whether to pass on the increase to consumers.

Gulf Oil of Canada Ltd., Toronto, said it still is calculating the increases in its costs that would be used as a basis for any price increases.

Shelve Boost In Oil Price

VIENNA (AP) — A ministerial conference of the oil-exporting countries approved a small price cut in one member state and completed a draft policy for talks with the world's major consumers, a senior delegate announced today.

The delegate, Iranian Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar, who handles Iran's oil negotiations, said the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) gave the go-ahead for the United Arab Emirates to reduce the so-called "gravity premium" it charges on top of the basic oil price for high quality oil.

Amouzegar also confirmed that a previously-proposed plan that would have increased oil prices in dollar terms was shelved until June.

More Born and Wed, But More Died, Too

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

More babies were born in Belleville during 1974 than in any of the past five years.

More marriage licences were issued during the year.

But, there also was an increase in the number of deaths.

The statistics are contained in a report from city clerk Earl Dafoe.

He assembled the comparisons while compiling the mandatory annual record of community births, marriages and deaths for the provincial government's vital statistics registrations branch.

The clerk's records show 1,198 babies born in 1974 — up from 1,169 a year earlier. Comparisons with other years: 1972-1,139; 1971-1,190; 1970-1,182.

In all, 516 people died, compared to 483 in 1973. Other years: 1972-448; 1971-450; 1970-432.

There were nine stillbirths compared to 16 in 1973 — the highest in the five-year period.

Mr. Dafoe signed 562 marriage licences during the year — up from 492 in 1973 and 452 in 1972.

Scandal Worries Munro

PM Rejects Offer to Quit

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro was driven to the brink of resignation Wednesday by a harbor dredging scandal in his hometown of Hamilton.

Pale and apparently exhausted after three days of tense Commons questioning, Mr. Munro offered to quit the cabinet but was advised by Prime Minister Trudeau to see a doctor, take a rest and think it over.

The scandal figures in a nationwide RCMP investigation into dredging company activities. A senior RCMP spokesman said during the day that new charges will be laid soon as a result of the investigation. But they would not be related directly to the Hamilton case.

Activities by dredging companies have embarrassed the federal, Quebec and Ontario governments, and caused the resignation of Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr.

Mr. Kerr quit Friday to fight allegations of wrongdoing in the Hamilton scandal which already has produced three convictions and resulted in charges against two other men, one a former Hamilton harbor commissioner.

Mr. Munro denied criminal or political misconduct but said he may be forced to resign and devote full energies to clearing his name.

The minister was mentioned in the transcript of a preliminary hearing into charges connected with the scandal.

"With the kind of inferences and accusations that have been made, it's very difficult to carry on," he said.

But he agreed to follow Mr. Trudeau's advice and think the matter over before deciding on his future. He did not indicate how long a rest he will take to make up his mind.

The meeting between the two men took place at Mr. Munro's Commons desk and in the government lobby off the Commons chamber.

Members of his staff crowded into the Commons galleries while the talks were held, apparently waiting to see if his resignation would result.

Mr. Trudeau, who left Wednesday night for a two-week European tour, said he knows of no wrongdoing by the minister and will not accept a resignation because a man is tired.

He left open the possibility that circumstances might change but said there are no adverse police reports and Mr. Munro has nothing to be ashamed of.

"He seemed rather tired and distraught. I asked him to take a few days rest and think it over," the prime minister said before boarding a government jet for Europe.

Mr. Munro waved off reporters as he left the Commons but answered questions later in his Parliament Hill office.

The nine-year cabinet veteran said in a halting voice the last few days have been the most turbulent since he was first elected to the Commons in 1962.

He did not object to media coverage of the scandal but said political opponents should stop insinuating that he has done wrong unless they are prepared to make specific allegations.

West Berlin Politician Kidnapped

BERLIN (AP) — The Christian Democratic party's candidate for mayor of West Berlin in an election next Sunday was kidnapped today, police reported.

Police said Peter Lorenz, 52, West Berlin chairman of the conservative opposition party, was intercepted on a quiet suburban street, his chauffeur was dragged from the car and slugged and Lorenz was driven away in his official black limousine.

First reports said two men and a woman did the kidnapping.

Although the use of containers that cannot be easily opened by children has cut down considerably on accidental poisonings, there are still far too many unnecessary deaths and injuries caused by carelessness. Year-round Museum Musgrave's Dream

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Plans to develop the Prince Edward County Museum as a year around activity centre were not fully realized this winter but James Musgrove, chairman of the museum management committee, says the program will be re-emphasized in 1975.

Mr. Musgrove noted the museum curator left after the 1974 summer season and it became difficult to co-ordinate winter programs without a full-time employee.

Prince Edward County schools were advised of resource material available or student use at the museum and pupils were invited to use this material during visits in small groups.

Student tours also were suggested during the winter months.

Mr. Musgrove observed students from Centennial Secondary School in Belleville were the only ones to visit the museum this winter.

The museum management committee has advertised for a new full-time curator and Mr. Musgrove reports a large number of applications for the job.

"When a curator is hired we will give this (winter programs) quite a bit of publicity and organize more programs," he said.

Mr. Musgrove said anumber of groups, including Prince Edward County women's institutes, craft associations and the county historical society might enjoy meeting at the museum.

This winter the upstairs of the museum has been re-arranged to create more space for collection displays.

The centre of the second floor has been cleared and ringed by half-room display on the outside.

Mr. Musgrove said the museum has booked a travelling display of early Canadian cruets collected by a pickle company. The exhibit is expected to arrive in Picton in July for a two-week showing.

Presentation of this and other displays are part of the summer program planned for the museum.

Mr. Musgrove said several of the present museum exhibits probably will be changed for the summer season but the "basic nucleus" will be retained.

The chance area of the museum is still incomplete and the management committee is awaiting shipment of a made-to-order carpet from Engand. The rug duplicates the pattern of the original. Hicrest Pubic Schoo

Injuries Concern Parents

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward school trustees have investigated two alleged incidents of rowdyism at Queen Elizabeth School and are convinced the playground mishaps do not reflect on supervision at the school.

One child was reported to have needed four stitches to close a head wound after he fell on the paved schoolyard.

Another youngster complained of receiving bruises.

In parental complaints to the local press it was suggested groups of boys at the school were involved in both incidents.

Business administrator for the Prince Edward County Board of Education, Ernest Shortt, said this week trustees are totally satisfied with supervision at Queen Elizabeth School and feel it has improved since principal Alvin Hill assumed responsibility.

The trustees said they feel the two playground incidents were isolated incidents and agree Mr. Hill and staff members of Queen Elizabeth school are providing good supervision.

Musical Treat

Residents of the Hastings Centennial Manor in Bancroft were treated to the sound of 'old time' fiddling this week as Allan Stewart of McArthurs Mills and Henry Stringer of Bancroft tuned up and sawed off in a two hour concert. Ramona Hawley, who is herself an accomplished violinist, accompanied the gentlemen on the piano.

Bata Expects Big Share Of $6 Million Contract

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

BATAWA — It is a safe bet that Bata Engineering Ltd. in Trenton will receive part of a $6-million contract to equip a $10-million shoe factory in Iraq, but no agreement to that effect has yet been signed, says Bata general manager Stephen Roberts.

In an interview in Batawa, Mr. Roberts said the precision machine division of Bata Ltd. can expect up to a $1.8-million contract from the State Shoe Co. of the Middle East country.

He said previous reports that a contract had been signed for supply of equipment were "premature". Now, Bata Ltd., the parent company, has only an agreement to design the plant layout and no contract for materials has been let, he said.

However, it is "pretty certain" Bata Engineering will get a portion of the Iraq contract.

The Bata consulting team is designing a plant to be built near Baghdad, that will employ some 2,500 people and manufacture seven million pairs of shoes annually.

Among the team's recommendations will be the purchase of machines made by the Bata plant in Trenton. The equipment will only be a small part of that needed by the Iraq company.

In Trenton, only four of the large number of machines needed in Iraq are built.

Mr. Roberts said it would be "pretty silly" for the Middle East firm to spend money on a study, and then not follow its recommendations for equipment purchases needed to reach sought-for levels of production.

He said that departure from the team's recommendations would abrogate the production guarantee.

The expected contract from Iraq will not result in hiring at the Trenton plant, from where 20 per cent of the engineering division's business stems. In Trenton, only machinery needed for shoe manufacure is made while in Batawa workers make parts for atomic reactors and hydraulic cylinders.

Mr. Roberts said his division, which employs 250 people, now is in the middle of updating its plant and installing computer-run machines that will require fewer staff than now is needed for manually-operated equipment.

Modernization, however, will not mean layoffs at the two plants. Some employees will be retrained to program the new machinery while others will be moved to other jobs.

Stirling Blast Under Way

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — The biggest laugh going around Stirling these days is wags projecting the aftermath of merrymakers attending the first annual homecoming weekend and gorging themselves on the 300 pounds of wieners and 108 gallons of beans that will be dished out at the legion hall.

The four days of fun, designed to raise money for a new Stirling district arena, starts today with a senior citizens euchre at 2 p.m. in the Masonic Hall, followed by bingo at the legion hall at 7 p.m.

There are many events going on, some simultaneously. The highlights are: Friday—6 p.m., conclusion of the O'Keefe mixed bonspiel, 8 p.m., teen dance at the senior school, 9:15, torchlight parade through the downtown.

Saturday — 1 p.m., Ontario open fiddlers contests. Graham Townsend "Mr. Country Fiddle" will entertain. 1 p.m. to 3:30 open house at senior school — oil painting, rug hooking, ceramics, sewing, upholstery, yoga, judo, baton twirling and a bake sale. 9 p.m. draw for $1,000 at arena. Of course, hockey will be played all day at the arena.

Report Premature

Bata Engineering Ltd. general manager Stephen Roberts says no contract has been signed with the State Shoe Co. of Iraq, for the supply of shoe-manufacturing machines from the Bata plant in Trenton. Reports the contract had been let are "premature" since plant layout is still being discussed with the Middle East country's government. Once a contract is signed, Bata can expect about $1.8-million in business.

Bancroft Radio Station On the Air Saturday

BANCROFT — For the last two weeks, seven members of the North Hastings radio committee have been busily taking training sessions to learn how to be amateur disc jockeys and news announcers for North Hastings new radio station, CJNH. The station officially opens Saturday.

The local radio committee members have taken over five hours weekly on CJNH for the use of community groups and organizations.

At the moment, the Bancroft Fish and Game Club, the North Hastings School Community, several sports groups, the Lions Club and the Bancroft Little Theatre Guild as well as several church groups and individuals are involved.

Each person taking the training course at the studio on Highway 500 east will be 'on air' on CJNH for at least one-half-hour weekly.

The community will be broadcasting from 6:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Monday to Friday with local sports scores, interviews, and notice of meetings for the evening.

Gary Stevenson, chairman of the radio committee, said the community portion of the boradcast time on CJNH was determined after hearing from members of the North Hastings Community about what needs they felt that the committee's time could fill.

In addition to the sports and entertainment aspects of the half-hour daily, there are several active radio groups who are considering the ways that the time can be used for public affairs, news and teen programming.

On Sunday evenings, the local committee will have about one and a half hours for their programming.

During this time, from 7:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. religious groups, the drama guild and local and recorded entertainment will be aired.

The North Hastings radio committee has also been involved in the production of the concert that will be presented to the public on Saturday March 1st for the official launching of the station.

Tourist Psychology

With the tourist season just around the corner it is interesting to dwell upon what is going on in the minds of some of the people directly involved. As with anything else, vacations are different things to different people, all the way from the monetary to the scenic aspects.

There are those hardy souls — often businessmen who are happier in the rat-race in Ontario than they are on a beach in Barbados — who haven't had a vacation in years.

At least that's the way we hear it betimes, or alternatively that someone is actually taking his first vacation in years.

Then there is the battle, akin somewhat to that of wives trying to extract more money from husbands (in pre women's lib days anyway), or children trying to do the same with fathers, of tourist operators and communities in tourist regions trying to encourage the tourists to spend their money.

At the recent get-together in Belleville of cabinet ministers and various lobbyists there were blunt words from Victor Lemieux, executive vice-president of the Rideau Lakes and Thousand Islands Regional Travel Council. Mr. Lemieux, who operates a motel on a lake near Perth, said he was becoming fed up with the region's underdeveloped tourist industry and the kind of cheapskate tourists it attracts.

Those are hard words indeed and we just hope Mr. Lemieux doesn't utter them in the tourists' face or he may find the area even less desirable to the average tourist. The same argument has been used in Prince Edward County . . . there is weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth because those awful tourists — the ones Mr. Lemieux says bring a $2 bill and one shirt and don't change either all the time they are there — don't leave any money behind in the local coffers.

Well, these are hard times to be sure and it is scarcely surprising that a lot of people try to get by with spending as little as possible. If they are tenting, or stayng at a trailer site, it is even less of a bargain for those local communities or regions.

So what's to be done to make it more worthwhile for people to spend their money other than for necessities? There are no Disneylands in these parts and when you think of it there is nothing that draws the average tourist more readily than spectacle.

All you tourist operators out there, give this some thought.

Tourists on the move moreover invariably are tired when they stop for something to eat — not only tired, but more than a little bored too. Just look at their faces. If they can be served quickly by those young people who generally do this kind of work in the summer season, and if the latter look their best and are cheerful about their work, well that counts for a lot in a tourist operation.

This is the kind of thing that helps make happy tourists, rather than more highway signs to get people off 401 and to counter the "damned euphoria" of that highway as another motel man so aptly put it.

It is not the scenery alone that is going to keep the tourists around. There has to be something else, and it has to do with spectacle for one thing, even if it is contrived, and things like a really pleasant restaurant, good food and welcoming staff.

Talented Youngsters

To refer once again to International Women's Year, it is not without irony that many if not most of the more effective younger speakers in the schools are girls.

A picture of four attractive young ladies told the story in recent days. They were Bonnie McIsaac, who was a participant in last year's Mayor of the Week program, of BCI, Martha Vincent, of Kente, Janet O'Connor, a Nicholson student from Marmora, and Barbara Wilson, Massassaga, and they were winners of a Royal Canadian Legion zone contest in public speaking in Tweed.

Further elimination contests are to follow, but meanwhile these girls are showing that when it comes to saying their piece they have what it takes. It is talent which in these times of burgeoning opportunity for women — in politics or whatever — should not be permitted to wither on the vine.

Indians' Ottawa Protest Expires At Stone Mill Bastion in River

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA —There is nothing like a little patient inaction or benign inattention on the official level to cut down the size of the headline type and shift news from the front to the back pages.

Like what happened with the Great Indian Invasion and Riot.

Remember how back six months ago they streamed into Ottawa in a protest caravan that started in Vancouver and ended in a violent confrontation with the RCMP riot squad on Parliament Hill the day the new session of the Commons and Senate opened?

Since it was the formal opening of the new Parliament, there was an honor guard there.

And the Battle-on-The-Hill was stirring enough to provoke the customarily soft Solicitor General Warren Allmand into the hard comment that had it been necessary, the troops would have been used.

It was not necessary, for the RCMP riot squad handled it with cool efficiency, and when the smoke of the tribal fires — from the burning of effigies — drifted off in the early autumn wind, some 150 young Indian militants seized an old stone mill on an island in the Ottawa River below Parliament Hill.

It was the property of the National Capital Commission and had been vacant for some 14 years while this federal agency which grooms and manicures the lawns, parks and vast flower beds of the city was trying to figure out what to do with it.

But it was wired for electricity, warmed by the nearby government central heting plant, and there was phone service.

So, with a nod of approval from the Prime Minister's office, the National Capital Commission told the young Indians to make themselves at home and stay as long as they cared.

Heady move, that.

Heady of the government, and heady for the young Indians.

But far headier for one than for the other.

The young militants set up the empty old stone mill as "The Native People's Embassy," and wearing dirty denims and headbands, marched around it, clutching clubs and chattering on two-way radios.

At night, they kept hostile vigil around fires of logs blazing on the concrete walk and in anger and hate waited for the RCMP "pigs" to charge.

A few waited until last week — maybe as many as 10 or 15; the others, long since bored, having drifted back home, and time dragged heavier by the day.

In the beginning, after the "occupation" of the island, and establishing of the "Embassy," there were press conferences, twice daily for morning and evening editions and broadcasts.

Reporters were "escorted" in and out of the "Embassy", after showing "identification" and signing the "register."

Inside, the "honky press," as the militants called the reporters, found the walls of the old mill plastered with racist slogans of "Red Power."

The Canadian flag was flown upside down "just to show honky" what defiance was and militancy meant.

There was one catch, though.

While the "Embassy" obviously was an exhilarating place where Indianness was supreme, the militants, especially those with clubs who looked young enough to be skipping elementary school, got hungry.

Even "besieged revolutionaries," as they called themselves, have to eat.

And the established native organizations, the recognized Indian leaders who negotiate with the government for financial assistance for those bands in need, were not helping much.

The "revolution" was too much of an embarrassment.

So the young militants were reduced to panhandling in forays off the island of the "Embassy," and nobody, especially the police, bothered them.

It became all such a bore to be ignored.

Result is that the "Embassy" has been vacated by the last crestfallen rioters, leaving idiot damage and mindless vandalism, and the "revolution" that left everyone profoundly unexcited, is dead of disinterest.

Interpol Steps Up Its Campaign Against Trafficking in Drugs

BBC London Letter

Guns, prostitution, drugs and air-line hijacking were some of the problems under discussion at a recent General Assembly of Interpol, the international police organization.

It has already emerged from the conference that drug trafficking, and the increasing occurrence of airline hijacking are of particular concern to police organisations around the world. Europe and United States have decided to provide extra funds to Interpol to intensify the fight against drug trafficking in particular.

Every European country will increase its annual contribution by 20 per cent while the United States will make a special contribution of $130,000.

Europe and the United States will also finance the posting of a drug liaison officer in South East Asia to work with other officers already in France and the Middle East. A similar system is being organised in Latin America to stop the traffic in cocaine.

Interpol's plan to control drugs, called Narcontrol, will be reinforced by another information network, the Narcotic Intelligence Agency. The information gathered by the agency will be centralised at Interpol's Paris headquarters.

The four major crime problems — drugs, guns, airline hijackings and prostitution — are each being discussed at the Assembly by separate commissions.

The drug trafficking discussions had a new element — Turkey's decision to permit again the growing of poppies, which are the source of opium. Nevertheless, it was reported to the Assembly that throughout 1973, the quantity of narcotics seized totalled 94,000 kilos.

Of this total the main constituents were opium, hashish, heroin, cocaine and morphine. Again, during 1973 more than 7,000 traffickers were arrested, nearly a thousand more than in 1972.

Queen's University Study

Marijuana Use and Birth Defects: Researchers Probe Possible Link

By SYLVIA WRIGHT

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A comprehensive study on the role of marijuana in relation to birth defects is under way at Queen's University.

Although the study is not complete, it has shown that tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), believed to be the most significant psychoactive component in marijuana, produces significant defects in some fetal mice when administered to their mother during the critical period of pregnancy.

The average percentage of defects in the fetuses of one strain of mice was 12 per cent, compared with 22 per cent in a second strain and one per cent in a normal control group.

There was also a significant decrease in the birth weight of mice whose mother received a dose of the drug.

A second experiment using non-pregnant adult hamsters showed no visible damage to the chromosomes in the exposed animals' bone marrow cells.

But Dr. M. G. Joneja, who is conducting the study, said it is impossible to determine with microscopic techniques whether minute changes occurred in the cells' deoxiribonucleic acid, a chromosomal constituent commonly called DNA.

Although there was no apparent chromosomal damage, the cell division process in the bone marrow cells was found to be retarded after the hamsters were exposed to THC.

"The exact significance of this reduced activity we do not know at this point", said Dr. Joneja, an associate professor in the department of anatomy.

The study began in 1972, when three pre-medical students decided to examine the relationship between THC and congenital defects for a genetics class project. That summer, they received a grant from the department of national health and welfare to do a preliminary study. Dr. Joneja was asked to supervise the project.

The results of that study prompted the government to give Dr. Joneja further grants to continue the study.

Using pregnant mice, Dr. Joneja examined fetal mortality, fetal growth, external visible growth defects, skeletal defects and whether the method of administering the drug had any effect on the defect produced.

He exposed the mice on one of five critical days of their 19-to 21-day gestation period to one dose of THC. With some mice he administered the drug intravenously, with others he injected it under the skin and with the last group he placed it directly in their stomachs by means of a tube.

He found that the third group of pregnant females produced the most abnormal fetuses.

The fetuses' central nervous systems were affected most frequently but there were some with cleft palates, face defects, extra toes, fused toes and spines that did not fuse.

"The doses we are using are very high," said Dr. Joneja. "And the chances of a pregnant woman using that high a dose on a particular day are almost nil."

He stressed that comparisons cannot be drawn between animals and humans. However, it had been proven that pregnant animals required 300 times more thalidomide than humans, relative to weight, to produce the same degree of defects in their fetuses.

"One needs to do more studies of this kind with chronic doses and exposing animals to smoke from THC," he said. "One must also remember that different drugs, chemicals, agents and our environment may interact with THC, producing different effects.

"How these may alter the effects, we don't know, but we are exposed to a tremendous amount of chemicals in food and our environment today.

"One must also remember these studies deal with only two of the effects of THC. There are also psychological, physiological and biochemical effects."

Dr. Joneja said he hopes to spend the next year examining the effects of long-term exposure to small doses of THC on animals, possibly using smoke chambers.

He also planned to conduct experiments with other types of animals to see whether the effects were the same.

Assisting him in the experiments are Morton Kaiserman, a graduate medical student, and technicians Carol Pinaud and Susan Connolly.

U.S. Arms for India and Pakistan

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States, in lifting its long-standing arms embargo against Pakistan and India, has come up with a cautious cash-on-delivery program in contrast to its fabulous arms loans and give-away procedures in effect in other areas.

In announcing that program, state department spokesman Robert Anderson says his country does not intend to upset the strategic balance in the subcontinent or return to its pre-1965 role as a major arms broker in the region.

In essence, the U.S. wants to see a continuation of reconciliation between India and Pakistan and, at the same time, improve its own relationships with both countries.

"We do not intend to stimulate an arms race," Anderson says.

In that regard Pakistan, at least, is in accord.

"Pakistan has no desire to enter a nuclear or conventional weapons race with India or any other country," says M. I. Butt, information minister for the Pakistan embassy here.

Pointing out that India's own domestic production of sophisticated weaponry is supplemented by large-scale imports from the Soviet Union, Butt says:

"All Pakistan wants is exclusively defensive armaments which will provide a credible deterrent to a potential aggressor."

So far, Pakistan has made no recent applications for formal commitments, but has indicated a need for anti-tank weapons and anti-aircraft weapons.

American officials see the lifting of the 10-year-long embargo against Pakistan as necessary to end a situation in which an ally has been denied the right to buy arms to defend herself against what that ally sees as threats from such surrounding countries as India and Afghanistan.

Pakistan has expressed serious concern over India's nuclear explosion last May, made possible through India's purchase of Canadian atomic technology that was supposed to be exclusively for non-military purposes.

"Our reaction was open and straightforward," Butt says. "We called for a guarantee . . . against the threat of a nuclear attack on non-nuclear-weapon states in our region."

It was a reaction that Pakistan carried through the United Nations in the hope that South Asia could be declared a nuclear weapons-free zone.

U.S. caution in the matter is highlighted by the fact that it kept its new ambassador to India—William Saxbe, attorney-general during the tag end of the Watergate scandal clean-up—cooling his heels in Bangkok, Thailand, until lifting of the embargo could be made final.

The U.S. didn't want him presenting his credentials in New Delhi at the same moment. Saxbe has expressed opposition to the lifting of the embargo but has promised to go along with his country's policy.

Indian officials have said privately and publicly that resumption of even limited arms sales to Pakistan could damage the improving state of relations between India and the U.S.

The U.S., however, claims not to see it that way.

U.S. officials argue that it is as much in India's interest to have a secure Pakistan as it is in the interest of Pakistan herself.

At the same time, however, long-scheduled Soviet - Indian arms talks—scheduled for more than a month—are expected to take on an increased significance.

"We expect the Indians to have a shopping list for us," one Soviet source said.

Media Standards Viewed Critically

Ottawa Journal

If they have any moments of self-satisfaction or fantasies about their own power (did'nt Prime Minister Trudeau say that the press fills the role of opposition to the government?) newspapers, periodicals, radio and television might contemplate these words from Lord Ashby, Master of Clare College, Cambridge, and Chancellor of Queen's University, Belfast:

"The mass media must be persuaded to raise their standards because they are an educational force exerting a powerful pull on children's minds. I know that any attempt to influence the tone of these media provokes howls of protest about freedom of the press ... but are we to leave things as they are? The messages of newspapers, magazines and broadcasts cut deeper into a child's mind than the bland English or arithmetic lessons learned at school."

Teaching of the Basics at School

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

At long last the Education Minister has got the message. The announcement that the schools are to go back to teaching the basics of the three "Rs" in our schools will do much to allay mounting parental concern with the school system.

Now, some years and several millions of dollars later, the people who control the educational purse strings recognise that, perhaps, after all, Messrs. Bill Davis and Hall-Dennis were not the educational Messiahs they made themselves out to be. It's too bad so many of our youngsters had to be the victims of their philosophical junket along the way.

School boards and trustees boards and trustees must be must be made to live up to these recommendations in tangible ways — in other words we want to see for ourselves that the kids are starting to learn to read and write properly. We cannot afford to take unsubstantiated testimonials from the educationists that it is, in fact happening. For too long we have allowed them to bamboozle us with professional rhetoric.

Keep your eye on them and maybe the parents will again become a meaningful part of the system while the kids receive what they have a right to expect from the school, the provision of the tools that unlock the doors to knowledge.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

PCs and Leadership Potential

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Your Ottawa correspondent, Richard Jackson, in one of his recent columns commented that the biggest problem faced by Canadian "Tories" is the lack of that kind of leadership which would provide consistent policies and programs.

Two news stories in your Feb. 11 issue perfectly illustrate Richard Jackson's thesis.

On page one we read that the federal P.C. M.P., Jack Ellis, proposes to use political means to change the date of Christmas Day, a matter which is the sole and exclusive concern of the Christian Churches, of the World; as the Bible says, "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God, the things that are God's."

On page three, however, James Taylor, P.C. M.L.A., is reported as saying in a recent speech, "I believe what people often want most is to get government off their backs."

Bravo, Mr. Taylor! How about telling that to Mr. Ellis? Perhaps you could start a trend back to true conservatism.

C of C Defends Inventory Profits

OTTAWA (CP) — Companies have a right to make price changes as frequently as they wish without justifying their actions to the government, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said before a Commons committee studying competition policy proposals Wednesday.

The chamber, representing about 2,700 businesses and 700 boards of trade, called on the government to recognize that inventory profits—realized by marking up prices on stock already in inventory—are a merchant's right.

Committee member Simma Holt (L—Vancouver Kingsway) took exception to the chamber's position, terming marking up existing inventory "the height of gouging and cheating in the marketplace." She charged the chamber was trying to offer "a rationale for cheating . . ." by merchants.

John Morrison, one of three Chamber of Commerce delegates testifying, said merchants have to bear losses on inventory when markets are falling, so they should be able to deal with existing stock and mark it up as they see fit.

Former corporate affairs minister Herb Gray, who sponsored the current bill to amend the combines law before being dropped from the cabinet last August, disagreed with the chamber's suggestion that provisions against misleading warranties and guarantees should be dropped.

Ottawa Keeps Radiation Sites Secret

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government has required provincial officials to keep secret information about possible sites of radiation contamination as a condition for supplying them with further information, Ontario health officials said Wednesday.

Alan Backley, assistant deputy health minister, told a news conference Ottawa had provided a list of 21 buildings where wartime companies in Ontario painted luminous dials with radium.

But as a condition for obtaining the list, provincial authorities had to agree not to reveal them until they had been checked out for possible contamination, he said.

Farm Group Seeks Income Protection

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture urged the provincial government Wednesday to set up an income protection plan for farmers to secure food production for Ontario.

Gordon Hill, president of the 25,000-member federation, told a news conference following a meeting with the provincial cabinet that Ontario consumers might face a serious shortage of locally-produced food unless the government acts.

He said the prime need is to restore confidence to farmers who see "a very shaky picture ahead of them" and consider selling their land for urban development.

Court Fight Develops As Ship off Gaspe

QUEBEC (CP) — The fleeing 1,800-ton ship Answer was reported "somewhere on the St. Lawrence" and headed toward Boston Wednesday as a land battle developed over the question of who owns her.

The ship was located Wednesday by Canadian Forces planes about 30 miles southeast of the Gaspe Peninsula after leaving Quebec City last Sunday.

During a ship-to-shore interview Wednesday, a man identified as Capt. Brian Erb of the fugitive ship was quoted in a CBC report as saying he "could not think of any reason why I should not be at sea."

Early reports said the vessel had left Quebec without a navigation permit or customs clearance, but the man interviewed said he had proper clearance.

An RCMP spokesman in Ottawa could not say whether the force has received a federal court order to intercept the ship.

As the ship plowed her way through ice flows a complicatd legal hassle developed on land.

At least three groups are claiming the ship as theirs.

PM's Holidays Cost Taxpayers $12,715

OTTAWA (CP) — Three holidays taken by Prime Minister Trudeau in 1974 involved air transportation that cost the taxpayers at least $12,715, the Commons learned Wednesday.

The most expensive trip was an April 12-17 Easter vacation in the Caribbean, on which, Mr. Trudeau's family accompanied him. This cost $9,085.

The information was contained in a written answer to Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds). It showed that the government jet used by the prime minister consumed 6,700 gallons of fuel at 42.5 cents a gallon, a total of $2,845. The remaining $6,237 included crew and general aircraft operating costs of $650 an hour.

Whelan Agrees Food Habits Bad

OTTAWA (CP) — In a rare display of accord, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan agreed Wednesday with Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, that Canadians are unhealthy eaters.

Mr. Whelan said he supported statements in the board's latest report that most families pay too much for food that does not nourish them adequately.

"It's what I've been saying all along," Mr. Whelan said in an interview. "My slogan is 'Eat better, love more'."

Mr. Whelan said rich and poor Canadians "and that includes MPs and cabinet ministers" have wasteful and unhealthy eating habits.

Each member of the average family throws away 300 pounds of processed good annually, he said.

Mr. Whelan said he agreed with report recommendations for intensified campaigns to educate consumers in proper and economical nutrition.

Dr. Cyril Greenland talks with Scott Orfald about abuse prevention.

Society's Job to Prevent Abuse

Joining Dr. Cyril Greenland on a panel following the showing of the CBC film "12½ Cents" at a child abuse symposium Thursday evening were Dr. E. B. Conn, psychiatrist, Dr. James Nelles, pediatrician, and Judge Robert J. K. Walmsley, of provincial court family division.

Moderator of the panel was Scott Orfald, head of the CAS Family Services Department.

During the informal discussion period, Dr. Conn pointed out that the repetition of abuse, generation after generation, suggests that mothering is not instinctive, as is popularly believed.

"If we're not taught how to love, we don't know how, and we do badly by our children," he said.

Judge Walmsley said that in his experience, the first incidence of brutality in the film would have been the subject of a Children's Aid application for removal, or a criminal charge, here in Belleville. In other words, the machinery to prevent severe child abuse is present within the existing system.

"However, you can see why the conviction rate is not high regarding parents who have harmed children. A deranged mental state is an air-tight defense," he said, in reference to the madness that swept the mother in the film.

Dr. Nelles stated that in his 20 years practicing medicine in Belleville, he has probably seen more battered children than anyone else.

"The film suggests that it is only parents who injure children," he said. "But brothers and sisters, neighbors and babysitters are also responsible."

Dr. Nelles explained that in suspected child abuse cases, skeletal surveys done at the hospital expose old fractures that have healed, as well as new ones. He also said that he felt equipped to distinguish the various causes of bruising, and could figure out whether or not injury was the result of violent beating.

The fine line between punishment and abuse was discussed by the panel, with Dr. Nelles supporting the old adage that to spare the rod is to spoil the child.

"A spanking with a wooden spoon is acceptable," said Dr. Nelles. "A little physical discipline doesn't hurt, but there is a limit.

"I think that the age of reason, beginning between three and five years, is an indication of when discipline will make sense to the child," he said.

"But I feel strongly that tiny babies shouldn't be touched. I am most bothered by babies who have been hurt."

Dr. Greenland responded by saying that he was appalled by the attitude that a good smack across the knuckles is okay.

"What you're doing is creating a culture where a child learns that you can solve a problem by thumping someone," he said.

Dr. Greenland also accused the court process of being inefficient and irrelevant.

"Once the case gets to court the damage has been done," he said.

Judge Walmsley, on the other hand, supported the judicial system as a means of making sure that treatment for both parents and children is instituted.

Dr. Greenland said that one of the things that most grieved him was the way that abused children are treated, once court proceedings start.

"The child is treated like furniture, to be removed from the home or not," he said. "No one asks the child what she'd like.

"I wish it were possible to say that the CAS is the advocate of the child's welfare, but they're not necessarily."

Judge Walmsley, although he agreed that the child should be independently represented, said that in his opinion the local CAS does speak on behalf of the child.

Child Abusers Are Also Victims of Violence

By ISABEL HUGGAN

A symposium on child abuse drew a crowd of more than 250 persons to the Park Room of the Four Seasons Hotel Thursday evening.

They came to hear a widely-respected authority on the subject, Dr. Cyril Greenland of McMaster University, who prepared a study of child abuse in Ontario for the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

Dr. Greenland was introduced by Bruce Kerr, director of the Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, sponsor of the symposium in conjunction with the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Medical Association.

A slide presentation by Dr. Greenland gave his audience an overview of child abuse statistics in the province from 1966 to 1970.

In the first year of the study there were 225 abuse cases recorded, and 10 deaths as a result of beatings and neglect. In 1970, there were 359 cases, 60 of them severe enough to require hospitalization and eight ending in death.

The 40 deaths during the four-year period all occurred to children under four years old, Dr. Greenland stated.

Dr. Greenland pointed out that in a 1969 study of the causes of death to children under five years of age, abuse played a very small role, fewer than two per 1,000 deaths. But although it is not a primary cause of death, it can be responsible for permanent physical and mental damage.

The source of Dr. Greenland's data is information he received from files kept on the 1,121 children who were injured by adults in that four-year-span.

That data yields startling information. For example: Out of all those cases, only 158 parents were charged, and 72 convicted of harming their children.

A powerful film portrayal of a typical child-abuse situation was then presented by Dr. Greenland.

Made for CBC Television, "12½ Cents" gave a dramatic interpretation of some of the primary causes of child abuse: Poverty, poor living conditions, a disruptive family life and the lack of opportunity to "get away from" the depressing and frustrating environment.

In the movie, a concerned school teacher became embroiled in the family situation, but was unable to prevent the eventual death of the children. His plight represents the plight that all society faces: How to take steps to prevent abuse and to assist families in need of counselling.

Dr. Greenland suggested to his audience that personal awareness of the problem is the first step to correcting it.

"The abuser is as much the victim as the children are," he said. "Our judicial process doesn't account for that.

"The parents need help; we should be prepared to give it to them."

How Much Pain Can You Stand?

To experience pain is to know you're alive.

Nice thought in theory. But what comfort is it when you've broken your ankle, wrenched your shoulder, or been burned by a long day in the sun. What about how you feel with a strep throat, appendicitis, or a migraine headache?

How DO you deal with pain?

The ways we find are as various as our personalities. But some of them are more successful than others, and those are the methods we seek. To emerge triumphant from an encounter with pain is an ideal to be attained in every culture, whether in the jungle or the gymnasium.

In her autobiography "Don't Fall Off The Mountain", actress Shirley MacLaine tells of an experience in the wintry Himalayan mountains of Bhutan. Suffering from the extreme cold of the wooden cabin where she was to spend the night alone, she could not get comfortable or fall asleep.

With all her mental strength, she summoned to mind the image of an orange ball of heat, like a small sun inside herself. By concentrating upon this bright ball at her centre, she felt warmth flowing through her body. Eventually she slept, having conquered both the pain and the fear of cold.

That kind of inner resource is the quality that marks the survivor, and distinguishes a winner from the losers. Being made of "stern stuff" is one of the highest terms of praise we can have bestowed upon us.

Being able to beat pain is a sign that you are a real man — or a real woman. The labor of childbirth is the final test of female mettle, and those who come through the ordeal without giving way to complaint are regarded as better, braver, and more in tune with the event.

One young mother, who remembers her daughter's birth as easy, confides that because of popular emphasis on natural childbirth, admission of pain is "tacky, like letting down your side".

Nevertheless, some find that the only way they can cope is to let themselves be submerged in pain, to stop resisting it. Relaxing, and letting the pain win, is actually a technique for beating it.

Relaxing eliminates much of the anxiety and consequent discomfort. For the anticipation of pain — the waiting - for - it-to-hurt-again syndrome — is often more awful than the pain itself.

The terror that seizes you in the night, as you wait for the next jab of a toothache, is perhaps worse than the ache itself. Total surrender — "go ahead and ache, see if I care" — eliminates at least this particular kind of fear.

Others find the very opposite holds true. By refusing to recognize pain they make it disappear. By thinking of someone or something else, they direct their energies away from themselves, and control their pain by lessening their response.

Others of us, and this includes a large number, are able to deal with pain calmly only by numbing with drugs or alcohol. We drink or take pills to obliterate agony, whether it be an illness, a wound, or a broken heart. Trouble is, the numbing can't remain effective for long without becoming an addiction.

One of the observations psychologists have made is that if an individual has some control over his pain, he is better able to stand it. For example, you'd probably rather remove a silver from your finger yourself than have someone else try, right? And it hurts less to rip your own bandage off fast, doesn't it?

Being adult about pain implies that you don't whimper, moan or carry on. But in fact, many of us feel better in the long run if we can openly admit that we're uncomfortable.

This need to talk about how much it hurts is common enough to be designated as "very human". And talking about it can ease the pain, whether physical or emotional. If you know someone sympathizes, you feel better. Somehow, by discussing it, you remove yourself from the actual experience.

My dentist understands this. In fact, he has all bases covered.

He keeps up a running conversation with his assistant and has FM radio piped into his office as distraction techniques.

He calls his quaking patient "dearie" and "sweetheart" as a sign that he knows that this is an awful ordeal.

And he promises to stop drilling whenever the left hand is raised, so that there's an element of personal control over the pain.

With these assurances and protective endearments, I can submit to and endure almost anything.

Still, I'd hate to have to be a "real man" in the dentist's chair.

Readers' - Cards Assist Burmese

Dear Doris: This card is to show you our handwork out of the cards we got through your goodness. These postcards are in great demand and we cannot turn out enough.

Our Cold season has started and my best friend is the hot water bag. I hope this finds you well as we all are here. The best for Christmas and God's choicest blessings for 1975. Our love and gratitude for all your goodness.

Amy Peters, co R.A.V. Centre,
82nd St., Mandalay, Burma.

Dear Amy: It is a lovely card. And it arrived just ahead of Christmas.

May I describe it to my readers, who were the kind messengers of good will and good wishes, who collected and packaged so many artistic greeting cards for you to work your miracle on?

It is cut in the shape of a postcard; on the back along the top are printed: Greetings; POST CARD; Address Only (here); Stamp (here). The picture on the front side is on a green background. It shows a tall red Christmas candle on a golden candlestick, backed by a spray of holly. In the foreground is an open Bible, open at a picture of Joseph, Mary, the Babe and the shepherds.

Now can you, dear reader, remember which of you supplied this card in its original form to the Christian Radio Audio Visual Centre in Burma? It has had two long trips; and along with many others has helped our Christian friends there to raise much-needed funds.

Dear Doris: Would anyone have the words to the poem from which the following excerpt is taken:

"The brook is brimmed with melting snow,
The maple sap is running,
And on the highest elm a crow
His black wings is sunning."

Mrs. E.W.

Dear Mrs. E.W: I hope somebody knows it. The very suggestion of snow melting or sap running makes me feel better — even if we are rushing the season. Any readers agreeing with me? Any readers who can supply the poem?

Dear Doris: We are a Senior Citizens' Group and intend to start up some social evenings. First of all we have to elect officers to look after affairs and laws set in group. We will have a secretary, president and treasurer. Likely we will need membership fee and other fees for expenses.

Do not the treasurer and president sign cheques and manage the financial funds together? Please tell us rules regarding the duties of officers. We will likely have a "Birthday Box" to which each member contributes, giving the group extra monies at the end of the year!

We don't wish any payment for being officers. There will be a sick and visiting committee, an "entertaining committee" every month too — social evening with coffee and lunch after. Have you any ideas or stunts to suggest?

Helpful Hints.

Dear Helpful: Congratulations on getting together with your pals and forming a club. You can have some good times.

Whether the president and the treasurer both sign cheques depends on the rules you set out. I'm sending you a copy of my leaflet "Duties Of Club Officers" which will help you get organized. The leaflet is priced at 25 cents, which I am counting on you sending to me.

Your library can help you too. There is a good book on how to conduct a meeting, by W.C. Frisby. And most provincial government have a special section providing help for senior citizen groups.

Would you also like my "Tips On Organizing Friendship Clubs" (with games)? This is also priced at 25 cents, plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Good luck!

Ann Landers

Public Unable to Deal With Problems of Deaf

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters about the rudeness of both salespeople and customers. I hope you can find room for one more. My letter will be "different" because I am deaf.

I work as a meat wrapper in a supermarket. When I straighten the meat case, customers come up and ask questions, usually when my back is turned. I face the customer and say, "I'm sorry, I'm deaf. Will you please talk slower so I can read your lips?"

Most of the time the answer is "Never mind," or "Forget it." Sometimes the customer looks at me with disgust and walks away. I guess they figure deaf people are too stupid to bother with.

I realize these folks are ignorant, but it hurts to be treated so shabbily. Perhaps if you print this letter they will learn something.—Deaf But Willing To Help

Dear Willing: More than rudeness is involved. Many people are too self-conscious to face a stranger and have their lips read. It's a new experience for them and they shy away from it.

I agree that the behavior of the people you have cited shows a pathetic lack of understanding, but it's another example of the growing lack of consideration and concern which has engulfed much of the world in recent years. Too bad, isn't it?

Confidential to Tell The Truth, Honey: The truth is NO. I have never had my face lifted. But thanks for the compliment. It made my day.

AROUND TOWN
with
LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

Today's The Day

Hello, out there in Napanee land. Today's the day that Superior TV opens its new store in Napanee. And that means free coffee and donuts to Napanee and area residents who go in and introduce themselves to the staff at Superior today, tomorrow and Saturday. The new Superior store, the second one in the area in a month, is located at 266 Centre St. This store will be dealing in the same quality Fleetwood and Hatachi TVs as are found at the parent store at 103 Cannifton Rd. in Belleville. In fact, the opening specials include a 12 inch Fleetwood AC-DC black and white set at only $119.95. Superior TV has made a name for itself very quickly in the Quinte Area and the same will happen in Napanee, southern Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward County too.

Hey, Spring

I think that we all want Spring so badly right now, that our nostrils strain or some smell of it; our eyes scan fields and barren trees, wishing for the promise of some green; and our hearts want that bursting that an early 'April day can bring. I know . . . you can accuse me of not enjoying the now and wasting valuable energy on idle thinking. Well all of this is not idle when you walk into the spring fashion apparel at Studio 231 at 231 Front St. Each day at Studio 231 is like a garden . . . new clothing varieties adding their own statement to a general mood of spring. And the way to perpetuate this Studio 231 mood is to wear Studio 231 clothes. And WOW . . . it's SPRING, because you're SPRING. Go and see.

Variations On A Theme

Last week, I tried to stimulate a little off-beat dining activity at your house. What I mean by 'off-beat', is that you wouldn't think of going out to dine strictly in terms of a weekend. My arguments were most effective, I thought, in terms of breaking a weekly routine and making the week memorable for its fun and not just for its accomplishments. My solution? Why, the Inn On The Bay Tavern, of course. This is a remedy I have sampled myself and weekend or anytime, it works. But especially during the week. Sure, there's the fun of the Wednesday night International Nights where you can have a cozy fire and international cuisine to boot. But I'll take the Inn On The Bay any night of the week (except Sundays . . . it's closed), thank-you very much. You'll be thankful too. Call for reservations in Picton at 476-3114.

It's Not Too Late

I know that it's Thursday but chances are, you still haven't thrown out last night's Intelligencer, with all its special coupon offers. One of those coupon clients included the Sidney Inn, 285 Moira St. West. These coupons, giving you substantial reductions on many of your staple items such as apples, potatoes and pet food, are valid until March 1. So if you didn't get around to scrutinizing last night's paper as you ought to have, it's still not too late to go back and do so. Use your eyes and your scissors and save at the Sidney Inn.

More On How To

Last week, we started talking about the proper way to set up and take care of an aquarium at your house, courtesy of the people at the Tropical Garden Pet Shop, 301½ Front St. We mentioned the danger of overfeeding and that the right fish with which to begin are 'live bearers'. Now about that water temperature . . . it should be a staple 78 degrees. Live plants in your aquarium provide oxygen, so artificial plants may look nice, but they aren't going to get you very far are they? You can get everything you need — fish, food, plans, equipment and good advice from The Tropical Garden Pet Shop.

That Extra Something

When we speak about 'That Extra Something' and Wrays Home Furnishers in the same breath — or sentence — we could be talking about many aspects of Wrays. But today we're going to talk about an extra something that could really make a difference at your house. And that's an extra bed, but disguised as an extra chesterfield. Or as Charlie Bristol at Wrays says . . . "the sofa with a secret". At the moment, Wrays have about eighteen different sofa beds in stock. And this is rare because they are quite rare, at least this range of selection certainly is. So if you need that extra something to perform a function with quality and taste, then Wrays is definitely that extra something when it comes to home furnishings. See this selection at 306 Front St.

I've Been There

I took my Datsun into Vader's Car Sales for its 12,000 mile inspection last week. And I had the thrill of seeing the new Vader premises on College St., just round the corner from their former 142 North Front location. When Vader's build a new building, they don't fool around. The service department makes any laundromat look dirty, I tell you. You can't even tell that it's a service department except that there are various cars in various stages of undress. I came; I saw; and I'm impressed and you will be too when you visit Vader's either to see the new Datsuns in the new showroom or to entrust your car to the capable hands of Vader's Service Department. I kid you not.

Making The Most Of It

Just suppose . . . that your house is small and despite the light paint you've used, you haven't eliminated that feeling of lack of space; just suppose you have a nice back yard (at which you can hardly wait to get); and just suppose there was some way to bring that beautiful garden into your home and maximize its beauty at the expense of that feeling of 'too close' quarters. Well, you don't have to suppose any longer. All you have to do is call Belleview Glass and Mirror, 354 Pinnacle St. at 968-5731 and all this supposition can become reality. Every home has something. And a patio concept with the light-giving qualities of a patio door can well make the difference at your house. Think about it and call Belleview Glass.

Get On The List

There's a list you should be on, if you're in the 'I want to sell my house this spring' market And that list is the Big List at Gord Roblin Real Estate, 117 North Front St. That list is going to help you sell your house. A member of the Gord Roblin sales staff will visit your home, after you've made that initial phone call at 962-6425. After you've given him a tour of your home, you and he together will decide on a fair price for your home. Then you are indeed on the list and your home is included in the advertising of Gord Roblin. You do not pay for this advertising. You do not pay for anything, in fact, until, Gord Roblin has sold your home. And that's putting their money where their mouth is, isn't it?

Horoscope Deals With Pocketbook

ROME (AP) — The world's economic malaise has given Italy a new profession—economic astrology.

One of the country's leading weekly magazines, Gente, inaugurated a horoscope section this week shifting its emphasis from affairs of the heart to those of the pocketbook. It tells "scientifically how to earn and spend your money."

The magazine's directors said such advice is needed "in these times of economic crises."

The predictions based on the zodiac are sure to be closely followed in this land where readers are avid believers in horoscopes and the illiterate go to magicians to find out what life has in store for them.

"Mine won't be magic," said Lisa Morpurgo, Gente's astrologer. "I am interested in stars and world finance."

She is a student of the 1929 New York stock market crash and hopes that her advice may avoid future ones.

Miss Morpurgo, a bespectacled, middle-aged resident of Milan, said she has her own secret system to link such key commodities as iron, gold and oil to the signs of the zodiac. She also associates some stocks with the signs.

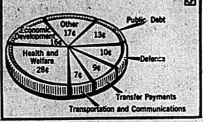
The astrologer conceded the possibility of error. One day, for instance, she predicted silver would go up. It rose slightly on the London exchange but silver futures went down in New York.

Miss Morpurgo presents her horoscope in two different forms.

One is devoted to day-to-day expectations. For Jan. 9 it read: "Copper improves, dollar excellent, slight increase in silver." In that section she also names the day of the month one should purchase art works and antiques.

The other section, as in regular horoscope columns, uses the birth signs of individuals. "Capricorns," she advised, "you have an excellent opportunity to advance your career between the 16th and the 25th of the month."

Government Spending
1975-1976



Spending Estimates

Estimates of government spending for the year beginning April 1, including an over-all increase ranging from 11 to 13 per cent, were tabled Wednesday by Treasury Board Chairman Jean Chretien. The estimates are the first in a series for the coming fiscal year and cover projected spending of $28,242-billion. Graph shows where each dollar will go — with 28 cents going to health and welfare. Bean Acreage To Be Increased

BOW ISLAND, Alta. (CP) — There is a growing market for the lowly bean and the acreage sown to this crop is expected to increase this year in southern Alberta.

Beans grown and processed in southern Alberta were exported to the Philippines, Europe and the United Kingdom last year and more foreign customers are waiting in the wings.

Ed White, general manager of the Alberta Bean Growers Ltd. plant here, said offers for sales to Iraq and Cuba are pending and requests for information have been received from Saudi Arabia and Israel.

Last year 28 growers produced beans on 2,400 acres compared with only 800 acres in 1973. The average yield was 1,650 pounds an acre, most of it on irrigated land.

The farmers received a near-record price in 1974 of between $20 and $31 a hundred pounds depending on quality.

Great Northern was the most popular of the five varieties, which also include Pinto, Pink, Navy and Red. There is a ready market outside Canada for Great Northern, a white bean.

Mr. White said he expects acreage sown to beans this year to reach 5,000 which will meet the storage capacity of the plant.

The plant has four bulk storage bins each capable of holding 15,000 bushels.

For shipment, the beans are weighed into 100-pound bags, sewn by a hand-operated machine.

Mr. White said that this year it is expected the plant will operate on a 12-month basis and the industry's future looks promising.

Beans are a legume crop which creates a build-up of nitrogen in the soil following their growth he said.

Receives Grant

CALGARY (CP) — Nancy J. Marlett of Calgary has been given a $42,500 grant by the Alberta government to conduct research on the effects of discharging adults from Alberta institutions for the retarded into community-living situations.

Tiny Planet Studied Closely

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Soviet astronomers, looking for clues to the origin of the solar system, have photographed a tiny planet on its nearest approach to earth for 82 years.

The astronomers took 70 photographs of the asteroid Eros, estimated to measure oly 17 miles across, as it swung past the earth nearly 15 million miles away, Tass news agency reported.

Eros, discovered in 1898 in orbit around the sun, and the moon are the solar system's only planetary bodies to come so close to earth.

The news agency said scientists, using the latest observation equipment, are hoping to uncover some of the secrets of Eros' makeup, which in turn may throw light on the creation of the solar system.

Eros was calculated to have passed the earth unnoticed in 1894 at a distance of 14 million miles on its 643-day journey around the sun. It last came within observing distance in 1931.

Tower Cover

This model of the 1,805-foot CN Tower in Toronto shows the top of the structure and the radome cover on the 335-foot steel mast at the tip. The radome, made of glass-reinforced plastic 1½-inches thick, has a slippery surface and is shaped to prevent ice accumulation in Toronto's severe winter climate. Installation of the steel mast on top of the tower will start in mid-March. (CP Photo)

Professor Has to Wed After Book

PARIS (Reuter) — Capturing France's most prestige-laden literary prize transforms a writer's life. This year's Prix Goncourt winner will sell about 700,000 copies of his novel and has felt compelled under the glare of publicity to marry the woman he lived with for six years.

Pascal Laine, a bearded technology professor who won the prize for a slim novel about a young hairdresser's disastrous love affair with an aristocratic student, has been subjected to a Hollywood-style promotion campaign.

He had lived with a philosophy professor, Lydia Devos. Both were happy to leave the situation as it was.

The publicity changed all that. "We felt obliged to get married as we were no longer anonymous and she had become the Goncourt winner's mistress," he explained.

Since winning the prize in November, he has given an average of three interviews a day. He has travelled around France, Switzerland and Belgium for television and radio appearances and scribbled his initials in countless copies of his novel ,La Dentelliere (The Lacemaker).

Laine, a gentle, pipe-smoking 32-year-old, treats the whole publicity caravan with wry humor. But he does not bite the hand that feeds him.

"For my career it has been very valuable. I will be read by about 700,000 people which is quite something when you consider the average sales for a book total 1,500 to 3,000."

Writer Edmond de Goncourt decided to set up an academy bearing his name in 1895 which would award an annual prize. He decreed in his will: "My supreme wish is that this prize be awarded to youth, original talent and bold attempts in thought and form."

The prize was first awarded in 1903. Among its most illustrious winners were Andre Malraux and Marcel Proust.

Inflation has whittled away Goncourt's donation so that the annual winner now only receives 50 francs ($11).

CN Tower Cranemen Frightened by Job

TORONTO (CP) — The crane operators, perched 1,500 feet up on the job at the CN Tower say height is part of the routine but they continue to be excited and frightened.

Dominic Narducci, 45, who has worked on the tower since May, 1973, said he likes the view, especially at night.

"With the snow and the clear sky, oh, it's beautiful," he said. "You can see New York, Rochester, Buffalo, Fort Erie, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Kitchener-Waterloo, Guelph."

"I should take my camera up."

Winston Young, 41, spoke of one of the scares he said he experiences daily. He had brought up 2½ tons of steel beam.

"They lifted up one end of the load and the beam slid and went down two floors of structural steel," he said. "The guys working at the pod thought that the crane was going to come down when they saw it happening.

"Well, that was a scare. You expect that all the time."

The men reach the crane by travelling as high as a man-hoist goes, then up a series of ladders inside the tower and up another ladder through the top and into the sky and winds which may be 45 miles an hour.

Mr. Young said the best part of the job is the pay—about $500 a week without overtime and up to $630 and more with overtime. Mr. Young took four years off work to study at University of Toronto. He received a BA in sociology in 1969, studied law for a year and returned to cranes.

"If I'd gone out to work as a social worker I'd have started at something like $3,500 a year," he said.

Mr. Narducci, who earns $9.30 an hour at the tower, said that because of the height he gets paid an extra hour for "travelling time," a half-hour up and a half-hour down, plus an hour's pay for working so high.

Wind is a problem.

Crane work stops when it exceeds 35 miles an hour and the operator just sits in his cab, listening to his radio or trying to pick out Niagara Falls with his binoculars.

Does the crane rock?

"No, it doesn't rock," said Mr. Young. "It just sits there and quivers."

CP News Roundup

Exports Of Grain Disrupted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's reputation as a major grain exporter, already badly tarnished, is declining even further as rotating strikes by members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) continue.

A spokesman for the Canadian wheat board said Wednesday that grain movements in the West have been disrupted by the dispute between the federal treasury board and PSAC weighmen and grain samplers.

Vancouver, hit by a grain handlers strike last fall, has been affected by the current dispute as well. No grain has moved from the port since Feb. 19, and none is being moved into export position.

Similar delays have become chronic with disputes dating back to a national strike of non-operating railway employees in 1973.

"Our reputation is just going down through the sewer hole so fast," the wheat board spokesman lamented. "The world grain situation is the only thing that has saved us."

A total of 15,500 boxcars of grain—representing about a month's exports at this time of year—has been stalled by the current dispute at various points in the delivery system.

Oil Pact Reached

EDMONTON (CP) — Agreement has been reached by Ottawa and Alberta on establishing a 10-year, $40 million program of environmental research into the Alberta oil sands.

No Reprieve Needed

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice John Brooke decided Wednesday that he lacked jurisdiction to allow a reprieve on the decision of the Ontario Appeal Court to uphold an order to the Metropolitan Toronto Board of Police Commissioners to assign two officers to each night cruiser.

Mr. Justice Brooke said the decision was still before the courts. It carries an automatic stay in executing the order until a final order or judgment is requested by the commission or Metro Toronto Police Association.

Fire Said Set

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — A fire which destroyed a Mount Elgin, Ont., farmhouse and took the life of a four-month-old girl was set deliberately by a person or persons using a flammable substance, an Ontario Supreme Court jury was told Wednesday.

Kenneth Pipher of the Ontario fire marshal's office was testifying at the trial of Brian and Bonnie Lee Hluska, both 22, of Mount Elgin. The couple is charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in the death of their daughter, Brenda Lee, who died in the fire Feb. 7, 1974.

No Fingerprints

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court jury was told Wednesday that no fingerprints of an eight-year-old girl who was raped last Aug. 26 were found in a car belonging to the man accused of the crime.

However, the jury was also told that the accused man washed the inside of the car the day after the girl was assaulted.

The jury was hearing evidence in the trial of Donald Harry Everingham, 28, of Toronto, charged with forcible seizure, rape and attempted murder of the Craigleith, Ont., girl. He has pleaded not guilty.

$85,000 Flat

OTTAWA (CP) — Even a brand-new custom-built $85,000 limousine may leave you stalled on the road. This one was tooling south on Quebec Highway 5 when it happened. A tire went flat, separated from the rim, in fact.

The big, grey bullet-proof Cadillac came to a halt. Someone got out and flagged down a car. Then appeared Prime Minister Trudeau and his family, caught in a minor emergency on a trip back to town from their country place at Harrington Lake, Que., 20 miles north of the capital.

THE POET AND THE PEASANTS

No Hesitation

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Hilda Gail Lewis, whose husband died in a shooting here last July, testified Wednesday in Ontario Supreme Court that Warren N. De Wolfe, 29, never hesitated before pulling the trigger of a gun in the direction of the Lewis house.

She said she saw De Wolfe from a neighbor's window as he loaded the gun, fired a shot and appeared to put in another shell.

Mrs. Lewis said she did not know her husband, Dean, was the target. He was hit by a .22-calibre bullet.

CDC Is Blamed

TORONTO (CP) — Connaught Laboratories Ltd., a Canadian drug supplier internationally-known for vaccines, is losing money and is under investigation by the federal health department, says a former vice-president of the firm.

Dr. Andrew Moriarity, a vice-president of research and development fired from the company last year, said Tuesday that the Canadian Development Corp. (CDC), a federal agency, is responsible for the decline in the firm's financial status and quality requirements.

CDC bought the company from the University of Toronto in June, 1972.

Fund Not Depleted

TORONTO (CP) — Supplementary unemployment benefit funds maintained by auto manufacturers in Canada are squeezed but far from depleted, says a spokesman for the United Auto Workers of America (UAW).

Heads Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Jacques Dubois, Welland coroner, has been namel chairman of a provincial government committee to study the effects of language on health service provided to French-speaking Ontario residents.

TV Coverage

OTTAWA (CP) — The first television coverage of a parliamentary committee will begin Tuesday in the Senate's legal and constitutional affairs committee, committee chairman Carl Goldenberg said Wednesday.

Penalties Waived

OTTAWA (CP) — Penalties will be waived if businesses are late submitting federal sales tax payments because of mail service interruptions, Revenue Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday.

Young Dismissed

ROME (Reuter) — Amitore Fanfani, leader of Italy's dominant Christian Democrat party, has dismissed the entire leadership of the party's youth section.

Earnings Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Average weekly earnings for about one-half the work force climbed to $185.60 in December, 1974, from $162.24 in the same month in 1973, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

PM Says Lang View Proper

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang has taken "the quite proper position" on abortion, Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday.

Mr. Lang wants the Criminal Code to determine which abortions are acceptable and which are not, he said in the Commons. The code allowed abortions for health reasons, including "considerations apart from purely physical" health conditions. "This is the way the judges are presumably interpreting the law."

Mr. Trudeau was replying to Jake Epp (PC—Provencher) who quoted Mr. Lang as saying that social and economic considerations should not be taken into account.

This contrasted with a health definition given several years ago by John Turner, the previous justice minister, Mr. Epp said. He quoted Mr. Turner as saying health should mean "a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being, and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity."

Mr. Lang said abortion restrictions are contained in the Criminal Code. It is up to provincial attorneys-general to see that abortion laws are upheld, he said.

Poor Risk

LONDON (CP) — Three ancient church almshouses in the Ruislip district of London are in danger of collapsing unless St. Martin's parish church decides to spend £65,000 ($149,500) to renovate them, said a report. They were built after the introduction of the Elizabethan poor law in 1601. Records show the Ruislip overseer of the poor paid £12 for repairs in 1617.

Iran Spends Oil Billions To Build Formidable Forces

TEHRAN (AP) — Buying in the billions will get you everywhere in the world's armament race, as the experience of the Shah of Iran demonstrates.

Iran has the biggest hovercraft navy in the world, the largest naval base in the Persian Gulf and the most sophisticated missile system in the Third World. It is building the biggest air base in the Middle East to accommodate an air force that by the end of the decade will have more fighter-bombers than any member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization except the United States.

U.S. deals with Iran have brought criticism by the general accounting office in Washington that they have cost the United States $35 million and seriously depleted its military advisory force.

When Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi ordered 760 British Chieftain battle tanks and 250 Scorpion tanks, more than allocated to the British Rhine army, the government began deliveries by diverting 45 Chieftains from British units in Germany.

The shah not only moved ahead of Israel, Canada, Australia and West Germany by ordering 80 Grumman F-14 Tomcats, at $20 million each, but ensured himself deliveries as quick as and probably quicker than the U.S. navy.

Two to three years ahead of the U.S. army, the AH-1J attack helicopter, capable of night operations in almost zero visibility, soon will be acquired by Iran.

A few days before Christmas, Premier Amir Abbas Hoveyda unveiled a $36-billion budget for the fiscal year beginning in March that allocated a staggering $10 billion—almost twice as much as last year—for defence.

With oil exports pumping $2 billion a month into Iran's treasury, the shah can afford the sophisticated array of missiles and radar systems that overflow his order book.

He is determined to make Iran the world's fifth most powerful nation by 1990, when the oil will begin to run out.

The shah dreams of restoring the glories of the great Persian empire, but after 30 years on the throne he is a realist about the defence needs of a country that shares a 1,000-mile border with the Soviet Union and lies between the time bomb of the Arab-Israeli situation on one side and the powder keg of India and Pakistan on the other.

Above all, there are almost daily flare-ups with Iraq, a sworn enemy whose southeastern tip lies within a mortar lob of Iran's huge Abadan refinery and in easy rocket range of the Kharg Island supertanker terminal.

Since the British pulled out in 1971, the shah has taken on the role of policeman of the Persian Gulf, through which 85 per cent of the non-Communist world's crude oil passes.

His British built amphibious force has more missile-launching hovercraft than the Royal Navy and at Isfahan, 1,000 American contract employees are teaching the Iranians how to fly and maintain their fleet of more than 640 helicopters.

Iran still points most of its missiles and its ultra-modern armored units toward Iraq and the Persian Gulf.

But lately the defence pattern has reflected the shah's apprehensions about Soviet influence on the new government in Afghanistan and Marxist-inspired and Iraqi-supplied separatist movements among the Pathans and Baluchis in the western provinces of Pakistan. In retaliation, Iran supplies and encourages the Kurdist uprising in Iraq.

The new navy base at Chabahar and the long-range capability that the recently purchased Boeing tankers give his squadrons of Phantom and F-5 jets indicate the shah is serious about one day soon asking both the Russians and the Americans to get out of the Indian Ocean and leave the subcontinent to resolve its own future.

Antabuse Implants Employed

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Neil Maharaj makes drinking dangerous.

The 38-year-old head of the alcoholism clinic at Lakeshore Psychiatric Hospital will implant 10 pellets of antabuse under the skin of an alcoholic.

From that point on, the alcoholic cannot take even a drop of alcohol without serious complications.

Each pellet contains 100 milligrams of drug which reacts violently in contact with even small traces of alcohol. One drop causes violent vomiting. A good gulp could cause a heart attack

But the patient desperately wants to get off the alcoholic treadmill and Dr. Maharaj said the operation will keep him sober for at least six months.

He has worked with alcoholics for 10 years in England, South Africa and Canada.

The drug operation is new in Toronto. During the last few months, 68 of 70 alcoholics who have received the operation have been cured.

Dr. Maharaj said the operation itself is not the complete answer. The will to stop drinking must be instilled through therapy

Every 28 days, he and his staff select 15 men and five women, all alcoholics, and remove them from their family and employment. The patients undergo individual therapy, group therapy, medical examination, exercise, diet co-ordination and family education.

At the end, if alcoholic dependency remains, D. Maharaj strongly suggests the drug implant.

Study Stressed Need for Planned Approach to Rural Growth

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The reeves of Sidney and Thurlow townships agreed Wednesday that residential growth in the townships must be restricted to prevent "haphazard development".

Both townships — particularly Sidney, have experienced strong residential growth in recent years that has progressed in an "unplanned fashion . . . destroying the rural character of them both," a report from the Quinte Planning Boared states.

The planning board and the councils of both townships met in Sidney council chambers Wednesday to discuss the report and possible adoption.

Both councils opted to hold individual sessions and file an answer with planning board before next Thursday.

The study is critical of development patterns in the rural areas where subdivisions are springing up without any of the amenities commonly attached to urban areas such as water and sewer servicing, commercial, recreational and educational facilities.

"Somewhere along the line, you have to create areas where you allow certain growth and prohibit certain growth," Bert Kenny, the board's planning director said.

Reeve Gord Wilman of Sidney and Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow both agreed controls are needed in their municipalities, and "generally this is a good study".

"We'd like to see the bulk of the residential growth taking place on the border of Belleville," said Reeve Casey. But, "we'd like to know how much development we'd be allowed to bring to the border before we restrict growth in any other portion of the municipality".

Mr. Kenny said his staff currently is looking at growth possibilities for the city but could not guess at the portions of growth each township would receive.

City alderman Ben Corke questioned the entire philosophy of township growth on city borders saying that Belleville should take over the necessary land.

"Strictly from a taxpayer's point of view, border growth would be water and sewer serviced by the city and also would likely call on city police and fire protection," said the alderman.

Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey urged both townships to seriously consider adoption of the study "so that the townships might get rid of this subdivision problem".

Senior Trenton town councillor George Greer said, "sooner or later Sidney must call a halt to this haphazard growth. It's right in the laps of the township councils," he said.

The rural, non-farm residential study is the third of four studies on the townships and each is expected to be used as a key document in formulation of municipal official plans .These official plans now are being drawn.

The final rural study to be undertaken by the staff of the Quinte Planning Board, will be an open space study.

Purcell Says City Not Liable For Pedestrians on Sidney St.

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

City officials disclaim any legal responsibility for the safety of pedestrian traffic on Sidney St. between College St. and Tracey Park D., while awaiting future sidewalk construction there.

"The city has no legal liability," said city manager Wilbur Purcell.

He said the city's only esponsibility "is that it is a public street and the city does not want to see it in a hazardous condition for too long."

Meanwhile, education and police officials, as well as parents in the Parkdale Public School area, are concerned for the safety of students there.

The issue was brought to a head last week when the post office informed householders between Parkdale Baptist Chu rch and Cascade Blvd. mail delivery to their homes would be temporarily suspended effective last Monday until sidewalks are installed later this year.

The action followed protests from the letter carriers' union after a recent accident involving two children at a crosswalk and two "close calls" to one mailman, who narrowly escaped being hit by vehicles.

City engineer Joe Angelo said there are hopes for a May start on the sidewalks on the west side from College St. to Tracey Park Dr. and on the east side from Parkdale Dr. to Tracey St.

He said the project is an extension of a 1973 road reconstruction plan from Catharine St. to College St. The Sidney St. extension will involve complete road rebuilding to four lanes and installation of storm sewers as well as sidewalks.

Mr. Purcell said there are still "a couple of holdouts" in the acquisition of land for the sidewalks. "The city is in the process of expropriation," he noted.

If the land is not acquired in time, provisions might be required for a couple of gaps in the west sidewalk, he added.

Mr. Purcell explained the extra land for sidewalks is needed due to the narrow road allowance, about 40 feet, which was in effect before that area was annexed from Sidney Township prior to 1960.

He pointed out at present the road allowance for subdividing is 66 feet.

School Drills Students In Safety Procedures

While the wait continues for summer sidewalk construction on Sidney St. between College St. and Tracey Park D., a pedestrian safety program is under way at Parkdale Public School.

"Most of the kids that come here don't walk on a sidewalk," noted Parkdale principal Bernard Wright.

"So we have had to push our program harder than the other schools," he said. "We have an on-going safety program for the youngsters."

Parkdale has 507 students from kindergarten to Grade 6 and without a safety program, "they would line both sides of the street," pointed out Mr. Wright.

Parkdale drills its students to walk on the left side of the street and has a student safety council whose members are spotted at different locations to watch for any youngsters not following the rules.

Sgt. Bob Hall of city police visits the school at least once a month to speak with the council and takes "the odd trip around there to make sure the students are following the on-the-left rule."

Sgt. Hall emphasized the onus is on the drivers to be "extra careful" and parents should set an example to the children by strictly adhering to pedestrian safety rules.

"This has been happening ever since they put Parkdale in there," he commented. "We're all doing everything we can while waiting for the sidewalks."

Canteen Entered

OUTLET — A break-in at a canteen at Outet Provincial Park was reported today by the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Entry to the building, owned by the ministry of natural resources, was gained by shattering the front door with an axe.

A Toronto businessman, who leases the park canteen, must be contacted before police learn what is taken from the building. The break-in is believed to have occurred sometime Wednesday.

Two Break-ins Reported

City police are investigating two break-ins in the past two days. In one, taken from the site of the old County Nursing Home on Dundas St. E., were 10 to 12 old pictures and frames, eight to 10 coal oil lamps and a brass bottom lamp worth a total of $575.

police said the theft took place some time between 11 p.m. Tuesday and 5:30 p.m. Wednesday. In the other incident which occurred at 11 Northwood Cres., a jackknife and six bottles of alcohol worth a total of about $50 was taken. This occurrd some time between 8 a.m. Tuesday and 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Insurance Still Valid Despite Road Hazards

Lack of sidewalks on Sidney St. in the Parkdale Public School area will not cause problems with student insurance.

Doug Whitley of Doug Whitley Insurance Agency Ltd. in Trenton which insures the Hastings County Board of Education said investigating street conditions such as lack of sidewalks "is not our bailiwick."

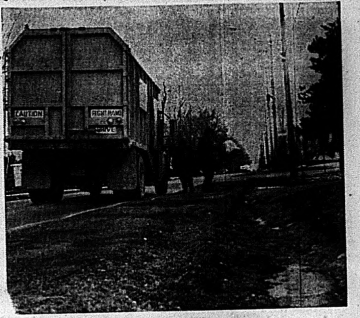
"This is not a concern of ours," he said. "If we were to do that, we'd be involved with every community in Hastings County where there are no sidewalks or the road is narrow."

"We insure the legal liability of the board," noted Mr. Whitley.

There are three types of Student Accident Insurance coverage — on school property alone, 24 hours a day during the school year and 24 hours a day all year.

Bob Horwood, board superintendent of schools, said parents have the responsibility for getting their children to and from school where school buses are not used.

He said the Quinte Principals' Association, concerned with all safety aspects, has adopted a curriculum guideline with the city and Ontario Provincial Police departments. The program has been adjusted to fit each school, he added.



Narrow Street

This section of Sidney Street between College Street and Tracey Park Drive has raised concern for students walking to and from Parkdale Public School due to the lack of sidewalks which are slated for construction in May. Drivers there are advised by city police to be extra careful.

Expert Outlines Methods Of Detecting Child Abuse

By ISABEL HUGGIN
Staff Reporter

Among the findings of Prof. Cyril Greenland's Report on Child Abuse in Ontario is this distrubing fact: Few nurses, physicians or public health personnel contact the Children's Aid Society about injured children in their care.

The reason for their hesitancy is obvious, say some of the nurses at Belleville General Hospital who attended a seminar Wednesday afternoon at which Dr. Greenland spoke.

Fear of making a mistake in judgement, fear of invading a family's privacy, fear of being drawn into a legal situation they are unprepared to face, keeps many from reporting their suspicions that a child's injuries have been intentionally caused.

"The problem is the blur of guilt between severe punishment and actual child abuse," said Dr. Greenland.

"Knowing whether or not a child has been abused follows the recognition that children have rights too, just as adults do. Parents no longer can do anything they want to punish a child. There are limits.

Dr. Greenland's warning is based on his data showing that when a child has been abused seriously enough to require hospital care chances are one in ten that he has already been, or will be again, in hospital for the same type of injury.

As a means of making the task easier, Dr. Greenland helped devise a questionnaire known as the HAIS card, for Home Accident Injury Study. The cards, aleady in use in Ottawa hospitals, provide nursing staff with the means of quickly recording all information relevant to the child's admission to hospital.

There are 11 questions to be answered yes or no, and space or comment by liaison officers and child care workers who may become involved with the case.

Among the questions that will indicate whether the situation is an abnormal one are these: Has the patient shown evidence of repeated injury? ... Been unusually fearful? ... ty? . . . Preesnted contradicto-
Has the parent or guardian reported that the child has been abused or neglected? ... Shown detachment or hostility? ... Presdented contradictory history or unsatisfactory explanation of injury?

Mackenzie Bowell Wins Senior Math Contest

In the second annual Belleville Collegiate Institute Math contest held Feb. 5, Sir Mackenzie Bowell won the senior championchip while St. Joseph's won the junior trophy.

The top students in each grade were: Cathy Wright, Grade 8, Sir Mackenzie Bowell; Ken Saigle, Grade 7, Harry J. Clarke; Patrick Collins, Grade 6, St. Joseph's; Paul Wilkins, Grade 5, Queen Victoria.

These students will receive individual trophies, donated by the sponsors of the contest, Victoria and Grey Trust, later in the spring. Also at that time, trophies will be presented to students making up the winning teams in the junior and senior division.

The contest consisted of 25 questions, ranging from simple to fairly difficult. More than 200 students wrote the contest.

Top three schools in the senior division were Sir Mackenzie Bowell, St. Michael's and Harry J. Clarke, while top three schools in the junior-class were St. Joseph's, Sir Winston Churchill and Kente School. The contest was conceived, organized, set and marked by Dave Handley of the BCI math department.

Garden Plots Available For Those Without Land

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The city parks department hopes its inspiration for providing food-growing garden plots has taken root in the minds of interested Bellevillians.

If so, they want applications immediately, but not by telephone.

Since it's a city-directed program any citizen is entitled to seek a lot.

The plan was originally pursued by the parks board last October with Albert College — the landowner — to establish growing areas to those without any land of their own, says Jean Gemmell, department horticulturist. The scheme was inspired by the success of similar projects in other, larger, centres in recent years.

"Anyone can apply," said Mr. Gemmell Wednesday. "But we're hoping that it will be people with absolutely no access to any land."

The 3.9-acre site, located between Sidney and Wellington Streets is ideally located to meet such a suggested criteria.

One of the city's biggest apartment buildings fronts it from Sidney. There's another apartment project on nearby Palmer Rd. And a few minutes walk away on Wellington Cres., an 80-unit senior citizens' building scheme is well under way. There are similar units for elderly folk further away on West Bridge St. with more to be completed.

Some 26 lots are being made available this spring — about one-third of the vacant land.

The 20-by-50-foot lots will be leased — for $15 — on a first-come-first - served basis, he says.

Experts have found that such a plot, if worked to the optimum, can produce $100 in food in a season, And that was back in 1972.

The land, after being made available by the college, was made ready late last fall — the workover includng truck-loads of manure donated by a local businessman.

Crop varieties have to be planned — the department has literature that will help — and the time is nigh when indoor planting of seeds that will produce the food plants should begin, said Mr. Gemmell. .. No applications will be taken by phone, he emphasizes.

But hopeful gardeners should seek leases either by calling personally at the department's office on North Park St. or in writing.

Road Tenders Sought

Tenders are being called for upgrading and maintenance of two highway in the Papineau Lake area of north Hastings County, Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings has announced. The work involves stretches of Highway 127 from Highway 62 and which will include Papineau Creek. A 1.3-mile stretch of Highway 62 west from Maple Leaf also is involved in the work. Total mileage of the roadwork is almost seven miles.

Newsmakers

Workshop Planned

Belleville Art Association is planning a weekend workshop on life drawing. President Barbara Whalen said the association has secured a model from Loyalist College but the event will not be finalized until instructors are found.

Art Group Tours

Members of Belleville Art Association turned their monthly meeting Wednesday into a tour of Glanmore House. Their main attention was turned to the George Ackerman art exhibition there. The meeting was held at Glanmore House because the association s usual meeting location at Corby Public Library was in use.

Bemis to Speak

Fred Bemis, city industrial commissioner, will be the guest speaker at next Tuesday's meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. The meeting will begin at 12:15 p.m. at the Kiwanis Centre.

To View Films

Belleville Art Association has learned it can tap a source of art films from the national gallery in Ottawa. President Barbara Whalen reports there are 1,500 films on all art aspects available. "We hope to take advantage of this" she said today. The assoication will show them at meetings and discuss them.

Loan Limit Changed

BANCROFT—During the 23rd annual meeting of the North Hastings Community Credit Union, held in Bancroft this week the 20 member who were present heard that the provincial legislation covering the operation of credit unions in Ontario is slated to be amended during 1975.

Union president, Fred Beckley, said the new legislation will allow organizations such as the North Hastings credit group more leaway to perform function that at the present time are exclusively the domain of chartered banks and trust companies.

"This is important," said Mr. Beckley," because the money that is deposited here is local money and it is to those same shareholders that the profits are paid."

The North Hastings Credit Union also amended its own bylaws to allow for the granting loans and mortgages up to $5,000, $10,000 and $15,000.

He's Ready to Grow

Having gardening tools while the snow's still around might seem a little premature. But Jean Gemmell, city parks horticulturist, is driving home a point. The parks people want applications now for the food plots they're leasing for first time behind Albert College. Hopefully, the sites will serve those with no land — like senior citizens or residents of big apartment building nearby.

Reds' Rookie Sets AHL Mark

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie Jerry Holland shattered a 24-year-old American Hockey League record by scoring two goals Wednesday night as Providence Reds defeated New Haven Nighthawks 5-3.

Holland's first goal at 7:35 of the second period was his 43rd of the season.

The most goals ever scored by an AHL rookie in any previous season was 42, by Wally Hergesheimer of Cleveland Barons in 1950-51 and Doug Volmar of Springfield Kings in 1950-51.

Holland, a native of Beaverlodge, Alta., was drafted in the third round of the National Hockey League draft last spring by New York Rangers and subsequently assigned to the Reds.

In his last two seasons with Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League, he scored 51 and 55 goals.

EIGHTH IN ROW

The win was the eighth in a row for the Reds, who increased their lead over second-place Nova Scotia Voyageurs in the AHL's Northern Division to 12 points.

Rochester Americans moved to within a point of the Voyageurs by edging Hershey Bears 3-2 in Wednesday's only other game.

Providence put its game away in the first seven minutes of the third period when rookies Dave Maloney, Ed Johnstone and Holland scored.

Hartland Monahan had the Reds' other goal while Alain Langlais scored twice and Scott MacPhail once for the Nighthawks.

At Hershey, a crowd of 5,074 saw Dunc Rousseau score for Rochester from close in with less than four minutes to play to break a 2-2 tie.

Ron Garwasiuk and Steve Stirling were the other scorers for Rochester. Terry Ewasiuk and Kelly Pratt scored for Hershey.

Rochester goalie Dave Reece had a busy night, as the Bears had a 37-21 edge in shots on goal.

Tonight's schedule has Rochester at Richmond Robins, Providence at Nova Scotia and Virginia Red Wings at Springfield Indians.

Stock Car Racing Plans National Series

MONTREAL (CP) — A national stock car racing program, consisting of a series in Eastern Canada and one in the West, was announced Wednesday.

P. J. Fergus, vice-president of marketing for MacDonald Tobacco Inc., described the new program as an extension of the limited series conducted in previous years.

The Eastern Canada series will feature 12 races, offering a total purse of $144,000 and a points fund of $35,000. Three races will be held at London, Ont., two each at Windsor, Ont., and Hamilton with single events scheduled for Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Halifax and Antigonish, N.S.

The Western Canada series consists of seven events offering $55,000 total purse money and $15,000 in a points fund. Edmonton will be the site of two races, with the others scheduled for Vancouver, Vernon, B.C., Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon.

Flyers Still Dozing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just the other day, captain Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers was saying that his team was only six points ahead of New York Rangers with 20 games to go "so that ought to wake us up."

Now there's only 19 games to go, the Rangers are only four points behind and it doesn't look as if the Flyers are waking up.

The Flyers suffered a 7-4 defeat at the hands of Atlanta Flames Wednesday night while the Rangers whittled down the Flyers' Patrick Division lead by defeating St. Louis Blues 5-1.

It was Philadelphia's sixth loss in the last 10 games, which included two wins and two ties. The six losses include two defeats by the Rangers.

In other NHL games Wednesday, Montreal Canadiens beat Vancouver Canucks 4-3, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Kansas City Scouts 4-2, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Washington Capitals 3-1, Los Angeles Kings edged Detroit Red Wings 2-1 and Minnesota North Stars beat California Seals 3-1.

"I'm not looking for excuses," said Flyers coach Fred Shero. "We've just got to play better. Right now we're struggling and we need a little luck as much as anything."

Tom Lysiak scored twice and assisted on two other goals to lead the Flames who had just returned home from a 14-day road trip.

At New York, the Rangers got three first-period goals, including Rod Gilbert's 33rd of the season, and goalie Ed Giacomin played shutout hockey for 58 minutes to beat the Blues.

Giacomin lost his bid for a 50th career shutout on Larry Sacharuk's goal at 18:02 of the final period.

In Montreal, John Gould's 27th goal of the season gave Vancouver a 3-2 lead midway in the second period but the Canadiens rallied with goals by Doug Risebrough and Murray Wilson in the final two minutes of the period to claim the victory.

"When you have a one-goal advantage against the Canadiens on Montreal ice it's like having no advantage," said Canucks captain Andre Boudrias.

Jean Pronovost scored three goals in one game for the first time in his seven-year NHL career to lead Pittsburgh against Washington, which suffered its 32nd road loss without a win this season.

Defenceman Borje Salming's goal and one assist along with his excellent penalty killing work helped the Leafs to victory over Kansas City.

Salming set up the first Leaf goal by Dave Williams in the second period and then gave Toronto a 3-1 lead late in the second period.

Goalie Gord McRae played his fourth full game for Toronto and Leaf coach Red Kelly said he has no plans to change netminders although veteran Doug Favell is ready to return after suffering a bruised back a week ago.

Murray Oliver and Doug Rombough scored to give Minnesota a 2-1 first-period lead at California and North Star Craig Cameron closed the scoring with a third-period goal.

Los Angeles had only 18 shots to Detroit's 26 but the Kings' efficient defensive style allowed only Danny Grant's 36th goal of the season while Bob Nevin and Dan Maloney scored for Los Angeles.

Cougars Smell Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Things finally are beginning to look up for coach Pat Stapleton and his Chicago Cougars.

After staggering along for most of the World Hockey Association season, the Cougars have put themselves into playoff contention with a string of five wins in a row.

Wednesday night they waited until there were only six seconds left to play before beating New England Whalers to move to within three points of Cleveland Crusaders, the team they must beat out to capture a playoff berth.

The Crusaders suffered their fourth loss in five games, taking a 9-5 beating from the Aeros in Houston. Minnesota Fighting Saints edged Indianapolis Racers 4-3 in Wednesday's only other game.

This year's WHA playoff format puts the [illegible] top teams from each of the league's three divisions in the playoffs, along with two "wild-card" teams—the two other teams in the league at large with the best records.

Cleveland is in second place in the Eastern Division. Since each of the other divisions is likely to have also-rans with better records than either the Crusaders or Cougars, Chicago will have to overhaul Cleveland to advance into post-season play.

Brian Coates scored his second goal of the game with six seconds to play to give the Cougars their win at Hartford, Conn.

All the Cougars have to do now is get hockey fans in Chicago interested and help Stapleton, goalie Dave Dryden and centre Ralph Backstrom, who became part-owners earlier this season, pay the bills.

Frank Hughes and Gordon Labossiere each scored two goals Wednesday night for the Aeros, who increased their West Division lead to 14 points over the idle Phoenix Roadrunners.

Houston drove Cleveland goaltender Gerry Cheevers out of the nets in the first period with five goals.

Kevin O'Shea says he didn't see the overtime goal he scored to give the Saints their win.

O'Shea was standing with his back to the net when the puck came out from behind on a pass from his brother, Danny. As the puck glanced off his skate, Kevin O'Shea knocked it past surprised Racer goalie Ed Dyck.

Weightlifting No Longer 'Burden' to City, BMSA

An interesting, but not too surprising development at Tuesday night's Belleville Minor Sports Association annual general meeting and election of officers was the withdrawal of weightlifting as an affiliated body of the BMSA.

Ken Carr-Braint, president of the Apollo Weightlifting Club, stated by correspondence that since his sport was such a "burden" to the city and the Belleville Minor Sports Association he would withdraw from the organization.

The weightlifting club has been unable to obtain facilities in which to work from the city. Carr-Braint has been requesting facilities for six years now. As part of the Belleville Minor Sports Association he receives money for the club's use of part of his own building on Boswell Street. Every year however, it has been more and more of a battle for Carr-Braint to squeeze heat and hydro costs out of the association.

Tom Neill, BMSA past president, after reading the correspondence, stood almost alone in the defence of the weightlifting club.

"No sport has better represented the city at the provincial, national and international level," said Neill.

Apollo weightlifters have brought Ontario and Canadian championships to Belleville in many of the 19 years it has been in operation. On several occasions the club has brought home medals from Olympic and Commonwealth Games.

Carr-Braint isn't just struggling to keep up with heat and hydro costs for the building which the Apollo Club is working out of. He's losing thousands of dollars each year on the building. His original intention was to turn the area from which the club works into small apartments.

Instead however, he has allowed the club almost free use of the facilities in the hope that the city would come up with a building the weightlifters could call their own.

Some of the BMSA members wondered: "this is a minor sports organization. Just how many minors does he have?"

Neill advised there were 63 minors enrolled in the club.

Don Smith stated that "facilities were supplied for all other sports in the city with exception of weightlifting. Baseball, softball and soccer fields are all supplied and kept up by the city of Belleville. Weightlifting is the only one without any facilities."

Several others at the meeting moved in favor of letting weightlifting go without a fight.

Carolyn Moynes, the BMSA treasurer, stated that she had specifically requested an extra $1,500 for weightlifting in a budget submitted to city council. That amount however was rejected by the city and weightlifting was denied any support from council.

"The city doesn't appear to be concerned at all over weightlifting," she said.

Floyd Armstrong, president of archery and newly elected president of the BMSA, said "It isn't fair to let weightlifting go on lingering. We should settle the matter once and for all. They've been waiting six years now for an answer."

Vi Christopher, vice-president of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association, openly moved to let weightlifting withdraw from the organization.

No one seconded that motion.

A few more words were laid to rest in favor of weightlifting.

Dr. T. I. (Doc) Woodley, president of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association felt the item was out of order and should be tabled at the next budget meeting.

A few more words were uttered on weightlifting's behalf.

Blake Moynes, past-president of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association expressed favor in letting weightlifting drop out.

Finally, despite the efforts of Floyd Armstrong to get the matter settled, the weightlifters were left in limbo — again.

Christopher moved to let them rest in peace until the matter could be taken up by the new BMSA executive. That motion was seconded.

Armstrong was then elected the new president of the BMSA and his words were, "the first thing I'm going to do is contact Ken Carr-Braint and see if we can iron this thing out."

Good luck Floyd. The whole matter has six years of wrinkles in it.

McInroy Trips Kinsmen

Roaring to a 4-0 lead in the first half of the game, McInroy minors scored a 5-3 win over Kinsmen majors in an exhibition bantam match Tuesday at Memorial Arena.

Two goals by Mark Crawford sparked McInroy. Checking in with one each were Shawn Mulroney, Greg Sprout and Steve Casey. Mulroney and Sprout also drew two assists each.

Mike Bryant was the top shooter for Kinsmen, clicking for a brace of goals. Danny Vance rounded out the losers' scoring.

Belleville Rollins major peewees hooked up in another of their continuing exhibiton series with Frankford bantams and this time were blanked 4-0.

Gary Boudrie recorded the shutout. Frankford got its goals from Joe Collins, Robert Collins, Bob Lott and Colin Smith.

Waite, Duvall Added To McDonald's Roster

With Harold Reid now coaching the team, Dale Duvall can concentrate on playing the Belleville McDonald's infield in the upcoming Ontario Fastball League season.

Duvall had originally planned on coaching the team himself since he owns 50 per cent of the franchise. However, he felt it better to leave the coaching duties in more experienced hands. Doug Adams, the club's general manager, and Duvall then acquired the services of Reid.

Along with Duvall, the McDonald's signed pitcher Ted Waite. The two bring the number of signed players to four, the other pair being Paul Goodfellow and Bob Ethier.

Duvall has had a long string of successes as a softball player. Since playing for the Ellis Juniors in 1968, he has been on six consecutive (excluding last season) Commercial Softball League teams (now known as the Quinte Fastball League). He played on championship teams in '68, '69, '70, '71, '72 and '73. As a junior in 1970, he was part of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association's championship team.

In 1970, he was picked up by the Oshawa Tony's — then a member of the Ontario Fastball League — and played for them in exhibition games. He was voted the Most Valuable Junior Player in Ontario after the Belleville team won the Junior title.

The shortstop-second baseman has spent the last several years with Rollins Construction. Last season he hit .398 in Quinte Fastball League and sports a .350 lifetime batting average.

DALE DUVALL

At 26 years of age, Duvall hopes to nail down first base on the McDonald's, a position which he played in his early ball days.

The 5-foot-10, 205 pound infielder is sure to help out the Belleville team offensively and defensively.

A teammate of Duvalls, Ted Waite is noted for his overpowering upshoot while facing batters. Waite has been working out for the past month to get himself in particularly good shape for the upcoming season. He now weighs in at a solid 185 pounds.

The 24-year-old, right-hander has had a great deal of success on softball teams in his eight years in the Quinte Fastball League. Five of those eight years he has pitched for championship teams.

Last season was marred by injuries for Waite and he only made eight appearances on the Rollins mound. He finished with a 6-2, won-lost record.

He came on strong during the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoffs and pitched a two-hitter against St. Thomas. At the Kemptville and Oshawa Tournaments he was named the most valuable pitcher.

In league play he has won the most valuable pitcher award three times.

Though Waite is a pitcher, and pitchers aren't noted for hitting, he carried a .300 average last season. Known as an excellent runner he often substitued into the outfield and pinch-hit on many occasions last season.

Waite will share pitching duties with left-hander, Bob Ethier.

Gas House Race at Wire

It was announced Wednesday that Canadian Durable had disbanded and their two remaining Gas House Hockey League games had been forfeited. That means Jim's Pizzeria, who were to play Durabla March 5, and Belleville Yardmen, who were to play them March 3, both picked up two easy points in the win column and finished their seasons a week early.

All teams play 24 league games and counting their forfeit wins and their games Wednesday night, Jim's and the Yardmen have both played their full number. In Wednesday's action, Chuckwagon Foods edged the Belleville Generals 6-5, Jim's beat the Yardmen 5-1 and Rollins Lumber doubled Art's Esso 6-3.

In a game played February 17 Rollinss' beat the Generals 8-4. The Generals protested the game and won. However, Rollins protested that the Generals had filed their protest illegally. The league agreed and the Generals protest was thrown out.

Now the game is re-scheduled for Wednesday at 8.30 p.m. One game that had been scheduled for Wednesday night, Jim's and urabla, has naturally been cancelled and the other original Wednesday night game, betweed Constellation and Rollins, has been moved to the Monday night 10:30 time slot to fill the hole left by the cancelled Yardmen-Durabla game.

The 8.30 p.m and 9.30 p.m. games scheduled for Monday night remain as scheduled.

Jim's win Wednesday night, combined with their forfeit win of next Wednesday gives them 20 points, one more than sixth place Constellation Carpets. Constellation still has one more game remaining in the regular schedule.

Steve Sully led Jim's to their win with three goals. Singles went to Mike Fahey and Jim Kincaid.

Pat Mullins got the only goal of the game for the Yardmen.

Rollins' win moved them one point back of second place Belleville Generals. Both those teams have two games left in the regular schedule. Don Bowry and John Masterson got a pair of goals with singles going to Glen McMechan and Bill Lynch. Scott McLaren drew three assists for Rollins.

Art's got a goal each from Warren Rushlow, Terry Fitzpatrick and Chuck Corrisan.

Chuckwagon's upset win over the Generals moved them one point back of Rollins and two back of the Generals. Chuckwagon has one game remaining in regular season play. Gary Sero scored twice for Chuckwagon and Terry Casselman, Mark Acquafreddo, Steve Moore and Grant Sage got one each.

Bill Van Soelen scored twice and added three assists to lead the Generals, Hyalle Bryant, Dave Skelton and Ken Bertrand got the others.

BCI Sweeps Three From Moira Teams

Belleville Collegiate ticked off three more notches in the win column Tuesday night as they won in senior, junior and midget basketball contests over Moira Secondary.

It was the final night of action in the regular season.

The BCI seniors, led by Larry Wilson's 16 points, chalked up a 51-26 win. Brian Belle added 10 to the cause and Gary Donovan, Chris Lachman, Larry Savage and Steve Kirby got four each.

Dave Joyce was tops for Moira with eight points and Al Jeffery and Ed Finlan had six apiece.

The juniors knocked off the Trojans 68-45. Mike Kirby scored 25 and Mitch Hannah dropped in 20 to lead the BCI onslaught. Bruce Milliken and Ron Bell added seven each.

Kent Manning had 14 points for Moira, Colin MacKay had eight and Scott Sisson and Mike Thompson got six each.

In the midget game, BCI finished on top 50-22. Mike Wright and Randy Donovan hooped 16 apiece and Chris Niblett had eight. Jeff Cass and Dwight Begley were next with four apiece and Rick Tripp rounded things out with two.

Ron Gee had 10 to top the Trojan attack.

McDonald's Practice Monday

Doug Adams, general manager of the Belleville McDonalds, announced this morning that the Ontario Fastball League team would hold its first open practice Monday at 7 p.m.

"There's a lot of travelling involved in playing in this league so we would only like the players who are seriously interested and are willing to give up the majority of their weekends," said Adams.

Adams anticipates about 30 players will turn out. The team still has 15 open cards.

"Every position is open," said Adams, "but we appear to be fairly sound at first, shortstop and third. The outfield is wide open and so is catcher and second base."

The practices are two hours long and take place in the Quinte Secondary School gym. The team's training program is being run by Quinte's Rick Locke.

Yardmen Open With 4-2 Win

OSHAWA (Special) — Placings during the regular season mean little once playoffs are under way. Belleville Yardmen proved that here Wednesday night as the Ontario Minor Hockey Association AAA midget minor group final opened.

Yardmen were last in the four-team grouping on the season. Oshawa was a strong first. But Wednesday night, it was the Belleville squad taking the upper hand.

Belleville got a solid team effort on the way to a well-earned 4-2 win. Second game in the best of five set is scheduled for Belleville Memorial Arena, Saturday, at 7 p.m.

Yardmen held a 4-1 edge well into the third period, Wednesday. Oshawa notched its final goal with only 30 seconds to play.

It was a 1-1 game after one period. Yardmen scored the only two goals of the second frame and notched their fourth early in the third.

Paul Nicolaidis, Randy Hutchibson, Paul Hipkin and Rob Bunton were the Belleville marksmen. Replying for Oshawa were Chris Brant and Don McKelvey.

The winners took nine of 14 minor penalties handed out.

Billie Jean Wins Wimbledon Point

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King and Wimbledon officials reached a compromise over prize money Wednesday, avoiding a threatened boycott by women players.

The agreement calls for raising women's prize money for 1976 to 80 per cent of that received by the men. The women now get 70 per cent.

BILLIE JEAN KING

Ms. King, five times Wimbledon champion and president of the Women's Tennis Association, had flown here to discuss the purse differential with Wimbledon authorities.

The women, disturbed at the 10-to-7 ratio favoring the men in prize money, had voted to boycott the tournament unless they received equity or a promise of equity in the future.

Wimbledon authorities acceded to the latter demand.

Before going into the luncheon meeting at the all-England Club, Ms. King said her target was to obtain 80 per cent in next year's event and ultimate equality.

Ms. King was accompanied by Jerry Diamond of San Francisco, executive director of the women's group.

This year the men's singles champion will receive $24,000, the women's winner $18,800.

Sports Briefs

ASSGNED TO BLADEIS

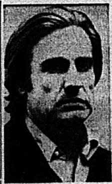
TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association said Wednesday they have assigned forward Brit Selby, 29, to the WHA Baltimore Blades. General manager Buck Houle of the Toros said the Blades would have the right to sign Selby—hampered by injuries most of this season—for next year if he fits into their roster.

SQUIRES SIGN WISE

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association announced Wednesday they have signed all-star Willie Wise, who refused to play for the Utah Stars this season. General manager Jack Ankerson declined to say how much money was involved in the signing of the 6-foot-6 forward.

NAME MANAGER

ATLANTA (AP) — A. Pat Peppler, considered an expert on player contracts, was named general manager of Atlanta Falcons on Wednesday. Peppler, 43, was previously with Miami Dolphins, where he has been director of pro scouting for the National Football League team since 1971. Peppler will take over part of the duties of Norm Van Brocklin, former coach and general manager fired last November.



CARLOS REUTEMANN

Reutemann In Form

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Argentina's Carlos Reutemann whipped his Brabham BT44 around the 2.47-mile Kyalami Circuia in one minute, 16.61 seconds to head official practice times Wednesday on the first day of training for Saturday's South African Grand Prix.

His team-mate, Carlos Pace of Brazil, was given an official time of 1:17.00, but between the two came Austria's Niki Lauda, who took his new Ferrari around the course in 1:16.83.

Reigning world champion Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil had a time of 1:17.22 in his McLaren M23.

The afternoon's practice was delayed twice because of crashes.

The first involved Britain's Graham Hill, whose Lola spun off at high speed. Hill escaped injury but the car was so badly damaged it will not be repaired in time for the race.

Connors, Newcombe

Challenge Match For $1 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The booming sport of tennis is borrowing a page from boxing with the ballyhooed, high-moneyed challenge match.

The latest is the $1 million battle between Jimmy Connors and John Newcombe, the world's two top-ranked players, set for Las Vegas, Saturday, April 26.

Like the big boxing shows, it will be an electronic spectacular played before a small studio audience and millions watching on television. It will be shown nationally on CBS.

Connors, the 22-year-old upstart who dazzled the tennis world last year by sweeping the Australian, Wimbledon and United States championships for No. 1 world ranking, said of the match:

"I think we can have two or three of these matches a year in addition to our tournaments—the best against the near best. Like in boxing, we will have a man on top and 10 challengers ranked behind."

"Like the Roman gladiators," agreed Newcombe, speaking via satellite from far off Auckland, N.Z. "People like to see man against man, one testing his skills against the other."

CBS paid $600,000 to land this particular extravaganza, which Robert Wussler, CBS vice-president, said was more than three times the amount paid for the Connors-Rod Laver match in Las Vegas Feb. 2.

Before that, Bobby Riggs beat Margaret Court and himself suffered a humiliating setback at the hands of Billie Jean King last year.

Connors and Newcombe stand to carve up close to $1 million from the April match, according to a formula yet to be agreed upon.

The tennis principals have adopted much of boxing's promotional gimmickry. CBS spent $4,200 Wednesday to bring Newcombe to a New York press conference from New Zealand by satellite.

The players squabbled over court surfaces, balls and umpires.

Injured Celtics? Don't Tell Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Knicks now have good reason to disbelieve any injury reports coming from the Boston Celtics camp.

New York invaded Boston for a National Basketball Association game on Feb. 10. Dave Cowens, Boston's 6-foot-9 centre, was doubtful because of lower back muscle spasms. Then, just before game time, Cowens said he was able to play, proving it by going out and scoring 28 points and grabbing 20 rebounds as the Celtics romped to a 105-88 victory.

Then Tuesday night, Cowens was helped from the practice court to a hospital with severe muscle spasms, this time in the upper back. But Cowens destroyed the Knicks again Wednesday night, leading the Celtics to a 121-103 triumph.

Cowens showed the Knicks quickly he was fit. He hit on an outside shot in the opening minute to put the Celtics in front to stay. With the score 17-12, he scored eight points as Boston ran off 12 straight and went on to turn the game into a rout.

Although given considerable rest in the second period and again in the fourth quarter with the Celtics out of reach, Cowens finished with 24 points and 19 rebounds.

In other NBA games Wednesday night, Washington Bullets defeated Seattle SuperSonics 104-98, Detroit Pistons beat Milwaukee Bucks 104-84, Phoenix Suns defeated Cleveland Cavaliers 106-96 and Portland Trail Blazers held off Los Angeles Lakers 117-116 in double overtime.

In the American Basketball association, Kentucky beat Indiana 101-99, Memphis defeated St. Louis 114-107, Denver whupped New York 148-114 and San Diego beat Utah 115-108.

SIDELINED INDEFINITELY

CLEVELAND (AP) — Guard Jim Cleamons will be sidelined indefinitely with a severely-sprained left shoulder, Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association announced Monday.

IN MEMORIAM

BRICKMAN — In loving memory of George Douglas Brickman who passed away Feb. 27, 1968.
Till memory fades and life departs,
You live forever in our hearts.
—Remembered by the family.

PRUD'HOMME — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph O. Prud'Homme who passed away February 29, 1972.
Our hearts still ache in sadness,
And secret tears still fall,
What it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
When the day is sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper,
"Cheer up and carry on."
Each time we see your picture,
You seem to smile and say,
"Don't cry I'm only sleeping,
We'll meet again someday."
—Sadly missed by wife Arlie, and children Laurie, Bonnie, Guy, and Gayle.

DEVOLIN — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother Grace May, who passed away Feb. 28, 1973.
I often think of bygone days,
When we were all together,
The family chain is broken now,
But memories will live forever.
To me, she has not gone away,
Nor has she travelled far,
Just entered God's eternal home,
And left the gate ajar.
For resting where no shadows fall,
In peaceful sleep she awaits us all,
God will link the broken chain,
When one by one we meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by husband Ogle and family.

McLEAN — In loving memory of our dear brother John McLean who passed away Feb. 28, 1971.
We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
—Lovingly remembered by sister Janie Cross, Reta and brother-in-law Jack Salmon.

RUTTAN — In loving memory of my dear husband Earnest Milton who was killed in action in Germany Feb. 27, 1945.
The years are quickly passing,
Though still we can't forget,
For in the hearts that love him,
His memory lingers yet.
—Ever remembered by wife and children.

NICHOLLS — In loving memory of our dear Patricia who passed away Feb. 26, 1967.
The years are quickly passing,
Though we still cannot forget,
For in the hearts that love her,
Her memory lingers yet.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Rene Colden and Adria Haight.

RUTTAN — In loving memory of a dear father Earnest Milton who passed away in Germany, in action, Feb. 27, 1945.
Just as you were you will always be,
Treasured forever in my memory.
—Always remembered by daughter Barbara.

HART — In loving memory of our parents, Joseph Hart who passed away March 11, 1954 and Louisa Hart who passed away Feb. 27, 1974.
God knew that they were suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed their weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Sometime, someday, we know not when,
We will meet our loved ones there.
—Ever remembered by sons, Stanley and John, Charlie, Harold and families.

Production On Premier 'Polemic'

TORONTO (CP) — Robertson Davies' Question Time opened Tuesday night at St. Lawrence Centre, giving the audience a view of the office of prime minister.

Globe and Mall critic Herbert Whittaker calls the production "a glittering polemic of a play" and "the most impressive production of an original work staged by Leon Major in his years as artistic director of the St. Lawrence Centre."

In the play, played by Kenneth Progue, the prime minister is the lone survivor of a plane crash on a deserted arctic island, a location suitable in its isolation for the process of self-examination he is to undergo.

Davies supplies two characters as guides to the PM in the wanderings of his mind. They are a shaman with a Scottish accent, Stephen Markle, and an Eskimo nurse, Diana Barrington.

Other persons materializing as the prime minister's mind wanders are sometimes symbolic, sometimes members of the public or of the prime minister's party. A major confrontation in the unfolding of the prime minister's Question Time is a mock Parliament on ice.

CBC's real-life anchorman Lloyd Robertson appears periodically via a large movie screen to keep the audience in touch with reaction back in Ottawa to the prime minister's disappearance.

Mr. Whittaker says the play provides "considerable evidence of the shoddiness of Canadian politics" and that Davies "testily lambasts a number of national quirks and convictions."

But he says Davies's major point is interrupted by a satire on the adequacy of the beaver as a national symbol.

Mother Wants Daughters Home

OTTAWA (CP) — A mother's concern that her daughters should leave Phnom Penh will be passed through diplomatic channels.

The external affairs department said Wednesday the British Embassy in the Cambodian capital will be asked to pass the message of Mrs. Aloise Charet of Montreal to her two daughters Marie-Eloise, 23, and Anna, 20.

Belmondo Claims Television Killing French Film Industry

PARIS (AP) — William Holden kissed Kim Novak, Elizabeth Taylor looked like a teen-ager again. And Yves Montand died bravely.

It was a good Sunday on French television, said Micheline Bernard, who went to a friend's house to watch the day's three TV movies.

It was an awful Sunday, complained actor Jean-Paul Belmondo, who accused the new state television system of trying to kill the French film industry.

He called on producers to refuse to sell their films to French television and an actors' union asked its members to refuse to work for the three national channels until the government agrees to cut the number of films shown on TV by half.

"If we don't do something now we'll be killed by television," said Belmondo. "Take England and Germany as examples. They have great actors but no film industry.

"Real television isn't a home box for showing movies. It's a scandal that they've picked the best movie box-office days for showing three films. If they wanted to kill the movie business, they couldn't do a better job. It's pure laziness."

Belmondo's complaints relate to the reorganization of French television since Jan. 6. The three national channels now have more competitive programming that includes three good films on Friday nights and Sundays, traditionally the best box-office days at the movies.

Friday box-office receipts were 40 per cent below normal in the Paris region. Movie producer Gerard Oury predicted worse figures for a Sunday when viewers at home were offered Picnic, Little Women and Z.

French television will show 508 movies this year compared with 470 in 1974. The law requires that half of the films be French. Both the union and the High Film Production Council, which groups technicians, film makers and producers, said the industry can't survive when it makes only 120 films a year.

Constantin Costa Gavras, the director of Z, a prizewinner in both the United States and France, said the situation is doubly unjust to him because French television pays cheaper fees for films than other countries.

For the television stations, films are inexpensive in comparison with their own productions and are apreciated by the public.

The calls for bans on co-operation with the television system by actors are unlikely to have any immediate effect because a rival union has not gone along with the boycott recommendation. The plea not to sell films to the networks might have a greater effect, although they have sufficient stocks for the year.

Showbiz Shorts

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera staff was called together Wednesday and asked to take a 10-per-cent cut in pay next season to prevent closing of the opera house.

Anthong Bliss, executive director of the Metropolitan Opera, said: "Our very existence is threatened."

"Rather than lower artistic standards by cutting the size of the orchestra or chorus or doing without many of the major international artists, the board and management reluctantly concluded to ask for the pay cut."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Michael York escaped with minor injuries when he leaped from his Bentley automobile shortly before it burst into flames after an accident, police said.

The 33-year-old actor was stopped at an exit off the Hollywood Freeway at 11 p.m. Tuesday when his auto was struck from behind.

LONDON (AP) — British actor Peter O'Toole has been admitted to a North London hospital, hospital officials said Wednesday.

They said O'Toole, 40, is listed in satisfactory condition, but declined to comment on a report that physicians could not determine what was wrong.

O'Toole is scheduled to play Judas Iscariot in a $4.8-million British television special entitled The Life of Jesus Christ.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jackie Gleason's wife sued him Wednesday, seeking judicial relief from what her lawyer called an attempt "to crush the plaintiff in a vice of economic pressure."

Mrs. Gleason contended in her suit that although her husband is worth at least $3.5 million, he has given her only $200 since Dec. 1.

The suit said that Gleason has ordered all of his wife's charge accounts discontinued, as well as her country club membership.

The comedian sued his wife for divorce in July, but the case was frozen after Gore Newspapers contested the legality of banning the public from the divorce proceedings.

LONDON (AP) — Britain's acting Oscars went Wednesday to two American movie stars, Jack Nicholson and Joanne Woodward.

The Society of Television and Film Arts hailed Nicholson for his performances in Chinatown and The Last Detail. Miss Woodward was named for Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Esther Shephard, who wrote Paul Bunyan in 1924 and brought extravagant folk tales of the giant lumberjack and his blue ox, Babe, to millions of readers, died Monday at 83, it was announced Wednesday.

Mrs. Shephard taught English at San Jose State University and retired as emeritus professor in 1959.

In her highly successful book, Bunyan's flapjack griddle was so big that it was greased by men who strapped slabs of bacon to their feet and skated on its surface. When Bunyan dragged his pick he carved out the Grand Canyin.

And so the legend goes, he scooped out the Great Lakes to provide a drinking pool for Babe.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Television will undergo a "visible, definable" change next season in response to a suggestion by the United States Federal Communications Commission, says Thomas Swafford, vice-president of Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS).

He was referring to amendments in the National Association of Broadcasters code to eliminate violence and sex from 7 to 9 p.m. broadcast periods.

"You won't have Mannix or Kojak" in those periods, said Swafford.

He said many of the subjects for All in the Family—such as "impotency and menopause"—will not be paralleled next year if the program remains in the same slot.

"Family viewing is something I can't define but I know it when I see it," he said.

PARIS (AP) — Andre Pierre-Dac, 81, French humorist, actor and writer, died Sunday night.

Pierre-Dac began as a singer. He edited a humorous weekly newspaper, appeared in movies and worked for the BBC in London during the Second World War, making broadcasts to France.

All in Family Leads

NEW YORK (AP) — Six comedy series were among the highest rated evening TV shows in the United States last week, with All in the Family leading the ratings pack for the Feb. 17-23 period.

However, the A.C. Nielson Co. audience estimates, made public Tuesday, were no laughing matter for comedienne Lily Tomlin.

They showed that her first special for ABC-TV failed to make the 30 per cent share-of-audience mark networks consider indicative of a program's success.

Nielsen said the 20 most popular evening shows on TV last week were: All in the Family (CBS); Sanford and Son and Chico and the Man (both NBC); The Jeffersons (CBS); The Rookies (ABC), Good Times, M-A-S-H, The Waltons and Cher (all CBS); ABC Saturday Movie (Hustling); Kojak (CBS); Little House on the Prairie (NBC); Charlie Brown Special and Mannix (both CBS); Rockford Files (NBC); Streets of San Francisco (ABC); Perry Como special, Doris Day special, Thursday Night Movie and Hawaii Five-O (all CBS).

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An old, unresolved family issue may surface and put the damper on relationships at home. Don't be the one who brings it up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're too negative regarding something you're working on. This is why it won't benefit from your usual creative touches.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will get your fingers burned if you fool around with something speculative, hoping to enhance your resources the easy way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Watch yourself again today so that you're not hypercritical of loved ones, though you feel you're trying to be helpful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Usually you're not a fault-finder; you look for some good in others or a situation. Today, however, you'll focus on the negative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Now is the time to see if you can trim some fat from your budget for outside interests. Pull in your horns a bit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Goals that you set now will not be handed you on a silver platter. Prepare for an uphill fight—you can make it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't pass on unflattering information about someone else. It won't make you sound too good to the listener.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An acquaintance obligated to you for something in the past will not come through as you hope.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You still have to be very careful how you handle others if you want their co-operation. A wrong move will lose an ally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's going to be some delay regarding work or service you want performed now. Try to have alternatives planned.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't borrow anything today unless it's absolutely necessary. If you do, be extra-careful. Return it when promised.

Cartilage Tear May Need Surgery

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I fell recently and received a torn cartilage in my knee. There are things I am unable to do now. If I do not have the surgery will I ever have full use of my leg?

What are the chances with surgery?—Mrs. R. E. H.

The cartilage to which you refer, and which causes most trouble in knee injuries, is the semilunar (half-moon) cartilage. These are two sections of half-moon-shaped gristle-like matter located at the knee, between the place where the thigh bone and the main leg bone meet. They serve as cushions to absorb the pressures to which this joint is subjected.

When one of these becomes torn it is usually pulled away from its underlying attachment, and there is accompanying pain, swelling, often a "locking" of the knee joint to the point where the leg cannot be straightened. Since the location of the injured cartilage often does not allow effective x-ray diagnosis, the decision as to whether or not to operate is based on the severity of the symptoms.

However, such cartilage will not heal itself, and if the pain persists surgery is necessary to remove or correct it. This is a common operation in football where wrenching knee injuries are easily come by and where it is necessary to restore the player's limb to full use. This usually takes a few months after surgery, although some discomfort may linger longer.

Physical therapy is required after such surgery.

An operation for you would depend on the seriousness of the tear and just how important 100-per-cent use of the knee is to you in your work.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are the do's and don'ts for a person having gall stones that have never given any trouble? I was told of the stones after an x-ray for another condition.—Mrs. N. W.

The don'ts are easy. Don't eat fatty or spicy foods and don't eat too much at one time. The do's are a bit more complicated.

Should the gall bladder be removed or not? This is a question you may face, and the answer would depend upon several factors—the size of the stones, your age, and your health generally. It's estimated that 20 and 25 per cent of our population have gall stones which "give no trouble." But they do often harbor problems for the future.

The commonest symptoms of gall bladder disturbance are pain and digestive distress, and this makes me wonder why you had the x-rays in the first place. Were you being examined for digestive problems? Gall stones are commonly discovered while examining patients for such complaints.

If this is your situation, your decision may be already made for you. The stones can mean further trouble. If they are small they may pass into the intestine and be evacuated. But any size stone, when attempting to pass, can cause obstruction in the bile ducts, resulting in colic (extreme pain) and jaundice as the bile backs up into the bloodstream.

If you are in good health, you may want the gall bladder removed now to avoid complications of surgery later when your health may not be an ally. I go along with removal, a rather common operation that solves the stones problem forever.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — A flesh-boring fly here is hunting out human victims.

The putsi or tumbu fly (Cordylobia anthropophaga), found all over Africa except along the Mediterranean coast, is the only one in Rhodesia that attacks people.

Throughout Africa, there are a number of flies causing miasis—infestation of the body. In Zambia, for instance, there are several that attack humans.

The Rhodesian pest often attacks rats and dogs. When it burrows into human flesh it produces bumps that look like boils. Babies who wear diapers that have not been properly ironed are particularly susceptible to attack.

The yellowish putsi flies are seen mainly on dull days because they dislike bright sunshine. They lay eggs on washing hanging on the line and on coats of wild animals or dogs. They like straw, sacking, clothing and the floors of mud huts.

Within 48 hours larvae hatch and burrow into the skin. They grow for nine days before emerging, burrowing into the ground and turning into pupae.

After about two weeks the pupa case opens, a fly emerges and the cycle is repeated.

The best prevention is careful ironing of clothing and pillow cases. If infestation occurs, the treatment is simple. Petroleum jelly or liquid paraffin is applied to the entry hole.

The maggot starts wriggling towards air and can be squeezed out with the fingers.

The first blacks to arrive in British North America were 20 bound servants landed from a Dutch warship at Jamestown in 1619.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Sir Lancelot, the best knight of the round table and the best player at the bridge table, took his ace of diamonds and led a trump to dummy's jack. East discarded a spade. What had appeared to be a hand that even Sir Dinadan, the worst bridge player, would have no problem with, had become a real problem.

Lancelot was sure that the right line of play would still bring home the slam, but just what was the right line? Finally the peerless one arrived at a solution based on East holding exactly five spades and not six.

He cashed dummy's ace of spades and played dummy's ace and jack of clubs. East could do nothing better than take his king and play a diamond for Lancelot to ruff.

Now Lancelot started to play his last three clubs. Any time West ruffed, Lancelot would overruff and spread his hand. If West didn't ruff Lancelot would be able to shed all dummy's spades, including the good king, and ruff his last spade.

Looks easy, doesn't it? But just for fun try to make the hand without cashing exactly one high spade before playing clubs.

Alberta Shares Lead

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Sharon Grigg's strategy almost backfired on her Wednesday night but a pair of last-end misses by Saskatchewan opponent Marj Mitchell enabled Alberta to pull out a key 7-4 victory over the Regina rink at the Canadian women's curling championship.

The win pulled Miss Grigg and her rink from Medicine Hat, Alta., into a tie for the lead with Saskatchewan after seven rounds. Each has a 6-1 record while British Columbia and Quebec are next with 5-2 records.

Alberta and undefeated Saskatchewan were tied 4-4 after eight ends Wednesday night and Miss Grigg said her strategy was to blank the ninth end so she could have last rock going home in the 10th.

"As it turned out, I had a chance to count two and picked up one, which really put us in a bind because we were one up coming home without last rock."

She said her rink played the final end "to steal one, or just to make sure that they only got one."

"It turned out well for us. We got a couple of misses from them and managed to win a game."

In other seventh-round games, Bea Cole of London, Ont., beat Diane Blanchard of Charlottetown, P.E.I., 12-5; Lee Tobin of Montreal defeated Phyllis MacDonald of Halifax 7-5; Marion Radcliffe of Kelowna, B.C., beat Gail Hiscock of St. John's, Nfld., 12-5 and [illegible] Mogk of Souris, Man., defeated Ivy Lord of Saint John, N.B., [illegible]3.

In the sixth round Wednesday afternoon, Saskatchewan beat New Brunswick 10-8, Alberta edged Newfoundland 6-5, B.C. whipped Ontario 12-5, Manitoba beat Nova Scotia 11-5 and Quebec defeated P.E.I. 12-5.

Manitoba had a 4-3 record going into today's last two rounds while Newfoundland was 3-4, Nova Scotia and Ontario were 2-5 and New Brunswick and P.E.I. were 1-6.

If a playoff is necessary, as appears likely, it will be played Friday morning.

Conigliaro Making Comeback

Major Leaguers in No Hurry

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A number of major league baseball players are taking their time about signing 1975 contracts while Tony Conigliaro, out of the game for 3½ years following a beanball incident, is just anxious to get back to work.

And Philadelphia Phillies are trying to acquire Dick Allen, the reluctant slugger, from Atlanta Braves, who would like either pitcher Steve Carlton or slugger Greg Luzinski in return.

Meanwhile, Frank Robinson, baseball's first black manager, made his official debut as Cleveland Indians opened spring training camp at Tucson, Ariz., and the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers flew into Vero Beach, Fla., without five key unsigned players.

The 30-year-old Conigliaro, who has impressed the Boston Red Sox brass at Winter Haven, Fla., with his long ball hitting while working out on his own, joined the club's first official drills today.

Boston general manager Dick O'Connell says he hopes to use the former outfielder as a designated hitter.

Conigliaro's career was prematurely ended—although he has attempted several comebacks since—because of a serious eye injury suffered when he was hit by a pitch in August, 1967, while playing for Boston.

At Clearwater, Fla., Phillies' general manager Paul Owens said Wednesday he is negotiating with the Braves for the rights to Allen. The controversial Allen, traded by Chicago White Sox to Atlanta during the off-season, has said he won't report to the Braves but has indicated he would return to Philadelphia where he started his career.

Braves' vice-president Eddie Robinson said he discussed Luzinski and Carlton for Allen.

Frank Robinson, still active as player, went through workouts with his players and said he will concentrate on the designated hitter's role. He said Boog Powell, acquired from Baltimore on Tuesday, would be the regular first baseman.

Pitchers Andy Messersmith, Tommy John and Doug Rau and shortstop Bill Russell and left fielder Bill Buckner are the unsigned members of the Dodgers, who began drills today.

World Junior Curling

Norway Toppled By King Rink

TORONTO (CP) — Robb King's Edmonton rink beat previously unbeaten Norway 8-3 in the third round of the world junior curling championship Wednesday night.

The win left the Canadian rink as one of three unbeaten in the round-robin tournament. The other two are Sweden which won its second game 10-3 over Switzerland and West Germany which had the third-round bye.

Other third-round matches saw Scotland beat Italy 10-7 and the United States defeat France 12-1.

Scotland and Norway are tied with two wins and one loss each while Switzerland and the U.S. each has one win against two losses. France and Italy are winless in their first three matches.

King's rink, which today goes against West Germany in the fourth round, was trailing 2-1 after five ends against the Norwegians but then scored three in the sixth and stole the last two ends to clinch the win.

In the second round Wednesday, King beat Switzerland 12-4 while Scotland defeated the U.S. 8-6, Germany beat France 18-7 and Norway defeated Italy 11-3.

Marchand Took Stand

Munro's Associates Criticized in House

JOHN MUNRO

OTTAWA (CP) — While Labor Minister John Munro was absent from the Commons Thursday, new questions were raised about the minister and two acquaintances as the furor over dredging contracts continued boiling.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand said in the Commons that Joseph Lanza, Mr. Munro's former campaign manager, was not reappointed to the Hamilton Harbor Commission because of suspicions about his conduct. The same was true of another man whom he later said was Delbert Hickey.

Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) requested information from the government on whether Mr. Munro was involved in the "illegal entry of an inadmissible person" into Canada.

Mr. Munro was staying with Ottawa friends and seeking medical attention, a labor department spokesman said. Aides were trying to persuade him to take a holiday in the south.

The labor minister said Wednesday he would take a few days off. This had been suggested by the prime minister when Mr. Munro talked to him Wednesday about resigning his portfolio.

Mr. Munro said that he was not guilty of criminal or political wrongdoing but he still may resign to give his full attention to clearing his name.

The RCMP has said it is carrying out a nationwide investigation of dredging contracts, concentrating mainly in Quebec and Ontario.

Mr. Marchand, who had said little about the dredging affair earlier, told the House he asked the solicitor-general in 1973 to probe the contracts for Hamilton Harbor and the St. Lawrence River.

Mr. Marchand said he decided not to renew Mr. Lanza's appointment to the Hamilton Harbor Commission because of suspicions about his conduct.

Outside the Commons, he said the Hamilton city council asked the government in late 1972 to fire Mr. Lanza, Mr. Hickey and Kenneth Elliott who has since been charged in connection with the dredging contract. Mr. Elliott has been committed for trial.

Mr. Marchand said that if the three former commissioners are not guilty of wrongdoing, they could be reappointed to the commission or selected for other federal jobs.

Mr. Munro earlier this week defended the integrity of Mr. Hickey and Mr. Lanza. Mr. Lanza was at one time the labor minister's campaign manager and Mr. Hickey is a prominent Hamilton Liberal.

Mr. Hickey and Mr. Lanza have been named in one of the charges against Mr. Elliott.

The charge says that Mr. Elliott conspired with individuals and companies to "accept for himself and Joseph Lanza and Edwin Delbert Hickey a benefit, to wit: A payment in money or other valuable securities" in connection with the Hamilton Harbor contract.

Asked about reports that there have been cases of price-fixing in dredging contracts for several decades, Mr. Marchand said he knew nothing about that.

Senate Next Roadblock For Income Tax Rebates

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons finally cleared the way for 1974 income tax rebates Thursday, but the millions of dollars in cheques are not likely to start rolling out until at least the second week of March.

Finance Minister John Turner's 287-page omnibus tax bill got final reading and now goes to the Senate where it will be debated Tuesday night.

But the Senate is in no hurry to pass the bill, feeling that the proposed legislation needs what senators are fond of calling "a sober second look."

The bill, a compendium of proposals from the Nov. 18 budget, was introduced in the Commons Dec. 20. It took 21 gruelling days of debate to clear all the Commons hurdles, most of them thrown up by the disgruntled opposition.

Mounties May Board Answer

HALIFAX (CP) — The fate of the runaway ship Answer, believed icebound somewhere off Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula, remains a mystery today. The ship's captain and crew were not taking ship-to-shore telephone calls Thursday night.

Four RCMP officers landed Thursday on the icebreaker John A. Macdonald, within sight of the ship, but their superiors on land were mum as to orders given the Mounties.

A transport department spokesman in Halifax said Thursday night he understands the RCMP contingent is to attempt to board and arrest the ship today, after spending the night aboard the Canadian Coast Guard vessel in the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

Canada Still Supplies Arms for Asian Wars

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada, during the last three years, sold more than $327 million worth of military equipment—everything from clothing to bombs—to the United States on major contracts.

Of that figure, nearly $50 million was specifically listed by the Pentagon as being "for support of Southeast Asia."

The Pentagon, which said there was nothing classified in the information, pulled the figures out of its computers at the request of The Canadian Press.

The U.S. contracts were worth $100,016,000 to Canadian suppliers in 1972, climbed to $115,339,000 in 1973 and fell back slightly to $112,259,000 in 1974, the last year for which figures were available.

In 1972, the figures listed for support of Southeast Asia totalled $25,116,000. In 1973, the figure was $14,807,000, dropping to $2,765,000 last year.

Defence department spokesmen, who asked not to be named, said that figures supplied paint a conservative picture of Canada's contribution to the U.S. arsenal in that they do not take into account contracts worth less than $200,000 each.

Mail Moves At Toronto

By The Canadian Press

About 250 postal maintenance workers at Toronto, members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), voted Thursday to remove picket lines today at the city's main terminal where about 50 per cent of the nation's mail is handled.

Another 5,500 inside postal workers who were laid off as a result of the maintenance workers' strikes, also voted unanimously to return to work today. They had said the layoff was illegal.

January Dismal Month In Home-building Here

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Only one building permit for a single-family dwelling was issued in Belleville this January, Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee was told Thursday causing City alderman Ben Corke to comment "it was a pretty dismal month."

This January's one permit for a single-family dwelling compares with four single-family dwelling permits in 1974, three in 1973 and 21 in 1972.

Total building values have steadily decreased since 1972 from a high of $477,000 to this year's $144,000.

Grant Stickle, city building inspector, said the number of permits for dwellings depends on the availability of mortgage funds. "There has been no increase in requests for building permits so far," he said. This week it was announced "spec money" will be available for builders, to cover costs until a buyer is found for a new house.

When Ald. Corke asked when the city council would free some new land for apartment construction to stimulate the building trades, Mayor Robin Jeffrey answered "builders are free to come to council with re-zoning proposals."

"We have to be concerned about the lack of building going on," said the alderman.

Frank Stokmans, deputy planning director with the Quinte Planning Board, said approximately 125 lots have received or are receiving draft approval and this should meet demand for the coming year.

"There won't be much residential land left after that," he said.

Ald Brian Knudsen said demand for a limited number of lots will "drive raw land prices up and subsequently the cost of home ownership."

NORAD Plans Not Clear

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson suggested Thursday that the North American Air Defence Agreement (NORAD) with the United States be extended for an indefinite period.

The minister said at a meeting of the Commons external affairs committee that he is prepared to make two recommendations to cabinet, one for an indefinite extension and one for five years.

NORAD is the arrangement under which Canada and the U.S. co-ordinate their defence against the manned bomber through joint air defence headquarters in Colorado Springs.

Its radar facilities are of increasing use in civilian air traffic control—one of the major reasons for Mr. Richardson's recommendation for retention.

It is known that the U.S. hopes Canada will extend the agreement longer than two years before it expiration date of May 12.

Mr. Richardson assured Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria), the Progressive Conservative military critic, that the cabinet has not yet made up its mind on the extention.

Mr. McKinnon said the government is disregarding the committee which two years ago recommended a close study of NORAD.

Planning Body Approves Hospital's Plans for Parking Lot

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A Belleville General Hospital rezoning application for parking lot construction on First St. cleared its first hurdle Thursday night, winning approval of the city's subordinate planning advisory committee.

Some weeks ago the hospital made application to change the residential designation to a zone that would allow parking. In preparation for expansion of parking facilities, the hospital has spent $175,000 for seven First St. residential properties.

Council approval has already been given for five properties.

"I believe the recommendation from this committee to rezone the two remaining properties will meet with council's approval," said Mayor Jeffrey following the meeting.

Several area residents attended a recent public meeting to oppose the application and will be given a final chance to speak at an Ontario Municipal Board hearing. This hearing has not yet been scheduled.

Robert Joy, representing the hospital, asked that the project be dealt with quickly by council to facilitate early construction.

Mr. Joy said the hospital hopes to begin work on the 200-car parking lot by May.

Cost of the project is anticipated to reach about $105,000. Tenders will be called.

Originally the hospital intended construction of a multi-level parking garage but decided against this in the face of a projected $440,000 price tag. The garage would have handled 220 cars.

In approving the plans, planning board staff imposed a number of regulations which include complete segregation of the parking facility from the remaining residential area, with no roadways connecting the two. Another recommendation approved by the committee is that a landscaped buffer zone between the lot and the residences be constructed at the hospital's expense.

Mr. Joy said the hospital was ready to comply with all recommndations put forward by the committee.

Band Administrators Gain Breathing Room

TYENDINAGA — The administrative staff of this Quinte Mohawk reserve are breathing easier at their work these days.

Finally, they have enough room to breathe — and work easily as an office organization.

Reason for the change are the spacous new quarters which have become the reserve's administrative centre.

It's housed in a building used by the federal government since 1957 as the main elementary and kindergarten school on the reserve.

When the government moved the 250 students to a new centralized building, it handed over the 17-year-old structure to the band council. To the reserve's local government it proved an administrative dream — compared with the only facilities from which reserve business had been run.

Since 1971 the reserve administrative office had been run from a converted three-room house across the road from the community centre which houses the council chamber.

The reserve, with its 1,000 inhabitants, differs widely in its administrative demands from other communities — and is a fair-sized assignment. In 1974 its budget was about $500,000 estimates Mr. Brant, with $178,000 in pay alone to regular and part-time workers.

Modern Reserve government provides "all the amenities of community life" from housing to parks to policing says Mr. Brant — with more demands than typical local governments. For one, it also pays university students' fees.

That now takes a staff of 22. But the workforce is only one more than when the reserve was run from the old administrative quarters, an industrial commissioner.

Inevitably, this meant much work-time compromise. Some of the staff worked from their homes and cars.

Mr. Brant said when he became the reserve's first full-time administrator two years ago he first worked on the edge of a table. When the reserve's health nurse arrived for her regular inspections he had to pick up and take his work outside to his car.

Eventually, a tiny office was partitioned. But, then on days when the reserve chief needed an office, the administrator moved outside and joined the crowd in the front office.

Overhauling the new building cost the council much less than the newly-panelled walls or carpeted floors suggest. Major funding came with a $12,000 Local Initiatives Program grant. The Indian Affairs ministry provided $4,000 and council the remaining $7,400.

It would cost about $500,000 if such a centre had to be created from scratch today, estimates the administrator.

Plans and supervision also were provided locally —with John R. Brant as building inspector.

Mr. Brant's staff now have individual departmental offices convered from the building's five big classrooms — a big change from the old quarters "when we were still almost sitting on each other's laps."

The reserve police department — once housed in quarters carved from an old hanger at the wartime airfield off the reserve's central routes— is in the basement.

Exchange Program Aims to Mature Canada's Youth

International exchange projects are not exactly new.

But young Bellevillians — and their youthful neighbors in Quinte County — Thursday heard news of an exchange program with a difference.

Delivering the message was 20-year-old Sharon Sommerville.

Sharon is travelling southern Ontario centres enthusiastically talking Canada World Youth, (CWY), a life-work project designed to mature young Canadians by way of basic contact with developing nations.

As yet, it's a project that's been little talked about in the Quinte district.

But after Sharon's Thursday visit in the Belleville area hundreds of young people now are more aware of it.

CWY involves young people 17-20 years of age — and not necessarily students who often appear the total participants of such programming, said Sharon.

"It's open to every Canadian — urban and rural — from every level of society who want to participate," she explained.

CWY works this way: A total of 300 Canadians are broken down by regions into groups of eight. A similar numbers process involves young people from overseas.

The eight Canadians and eight visitors are then grouped together for the first four months in Canada, living together, working on social and community projects.

For the second four months the Canadians return to the countries of the visitors' origin and the team process in group living is repeated.

Countries involved in the CWY program include Fiji, Tunis, the Ivory Coast, Senegal and some central and southern American regions.

In both countries they live and work together under local conditions thus acquiring a basic experience in international human relations.

The program has been capturing the imaginations of young people, said Sharon, since it originated two years ago with the Canadian International Development Agency — a group funded by the external affairs ministry though administered independent of the government. It costs participants nothing.

When she says its a worthwhile individual experience — the young CIDA spokesman — she's doing promotion just for now and intends going to university in the fall — speaks from personal knowledge.

Last year — after reading about CIDA on a high school bulletin board — she wound up in Mexico, living a village life, living the local style, harvesting in the fields.

Her visit was to spark interest. She spoke with students at Belleville Collegiate, Bayside Secondary School, on radio and with reporters.

The next step will be another CIDA representative who will follow through on any interest aroused, and begin arranging an exchange project locally.

Applications, says a CIDA pamphlet, are available from Canada Manpower centres, at education centres as well as the organization's Toronto office, 280 Bloor St. West.

Applicants should "think very seriously" before becoming involved since it's a serious undertaking, said Sharon.

But there's a deadline for submissions: March 21.

Talks 'Informal' to Date

Trenton Council Considers Pay Boost

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Town taxpayers may be paying more this year for their representation in the council chamber in the face of talk among councillors over an increase in their own salaries.

Over the past few weeks, the possibility of boosting their honorariums has been discussed by councillors in caucus.

However, said Mayor Robert Patrick, Thursday, no decision to up salaries has been made.

At present, the mayor receives $3,600 annually while each of the six councillors gets $1,800. The town's total bill amounts to $14,400 a year.

The current rates were set during the term of former Mayor Duncan MacDonald in 1972. At that time, council okayed a 20 per cent increase for both the mayor and councillors from the then $3,000 and $1,500 respectively.

Mayor Partick said Thursday, the possibility of another increase has been discussed by council, but nothing definite has been decided. "They've been just very vague talks."

Some councillors, he said, have had some "second thoughts."

Dollar figures were mentioned during the discussions, said the mayor, but he refused to disclose the amounts discussed and likened the situation and his refusal to that of a union in the midst of wage talks.

He said it is unlikely council will make any final decision until much closer to the time the budget is struck.

In comparing honorariums Trenton council receives to other municipalities of near equal population, the picture varies.

In Cobourg, a town of 10,844 people, the mayor is paid $6,000 annually while councillors receive $25 a meeting, or $1,300 annually if 52 meetings are held a year.

Councillors also receive $25 a meeting in Lindsay where the mayor gets $5,400. The town has 12,349 people.

In Ancaster, a town of 14,632 people southwest of Hamilton, councillors earn $2,500 and the mayor receives $3,500. The population of Ancaster is close to the 14,386 in Trenton.

Picton Drinking On Rise

PICTON — Picton residents are drinking more these days according to statistics from the town's water purification plant.

Figures show that on February 26,1970, a total of 627,000 gallons of water was used from the plant In contrast, 815,000 gallons were used February 26,1975.

This increase, based on daily statistics from 1970 and 1975, also is reflected in monthly and annual quotas.

Water from Picton Bay is drawn into the filtration plant by two 16-inch steel pipes running about 300 feet out in the bay.

The purification plant, erected in 1928 and enlarged in later year, is capable of producing 2,460,000 gallons of water daily. It has a total of 420,000 gallons in reserve in addition to 1,000,000 gallons in a reservoir at Prince Edward Heights.

After water is drawn from the bay into the plant, it remains for about two hours in settling tanks.

The town water supply receives four additive — chlorine for sterilization, carbon for taste and odor, alum for coagulation of dirt particles and fluoride for prevention of tooth decay.

In the offices of the water treatment plant operators large wall dials offer complete information on work in progress.

A temperature pressure dial records the temperature of the of the water entering the distribution system.

Water coming into the plant from the bay is recorded by a dial for low lift pumps.

All dials are read daily at 11 p.m. and from each reading calculations of parts per million for the additives can be gauged.

A panel of flashing lights indicated which additives are being introduced.

Water treatment plant operator Ross Sarles says all water is checked carefully for the correct levels of additives. In addition, water samples are sent to Toronto weekly for analysis.

The Picton Purification Plant is frequently on the list of school tours he noted.

Four men are employed at the plant — Earl Coghlan, Ross Sarles, Harry Sedore and Paul Cory. Relief operator is John Muiridge and supervisor, Leslie Tolley.

Airmen Honored for Repair Briefings

TRENTON — Repair and maintenance of 24 different types of Canadian aircraft strewn across the globe will be easier now that the goundwork for use of a central, computerized information system has been laid.

A great deal of credit for that groundwork goes to six men in CFB Trenton's Aircraft Maintenance Development Unit (AMDU).

And just that was recognized today with the presentation to the men of the Commanding Officer's Achievement Award.

Capt. Robert Clowater said this week the award, the first handed out at AMDU, recognizes a top-notch job the men did under the amount of time originally given them.

The six men travelled the world to explain to aircraft repair and maintenance men how to make use of the computer located in defence headquarters in Ottawa.

Awarded today were Chief WO A. R. "Doc" Beeby, Master WOs L. D. Austin and G. A. Tasker, WOs B. W. Halliday and L. J. Thomas and Sgt. J. R. LeBlanc.

In Ottawa, the computer stores information, previously only available by manual compilation, that enables commanders to more speedily direct repair crews to problem areas in any given aircraft.

At AMDU headquarters at the base, Major Harvey Smith says the system, designed by defence headquarter's staff in Ottawa, "makes the job of getting at the job more efficient."

"It's a management tool. It collects defect and failure information" and thus controls action that will be taken, he said.

Crews can quickly be directed to an area in an aircraft where a high percentage of failures have been shown to occur in all aircraft of that type in the Canadian armed forces.

The system also allows predictions of future requirements for parts, said Major Smith.

CFB Trenton Woman Heads for Egypt

TRENTON — Capt. Violet Connor boarded a plane at CFB Uplands in Ottawa Thursday and is now en route to the Middle East and a place in military history as one of the first women to serve with Canada's United Nations peace-keeping troops in Ismailia, Egypt.

Capt. Connor, since 1974, an assistant personnel administrative officer with Air Transport Command at CFB Trenton, is one of two women that will serve in Egypt for six months. Sgt. Marie Timoney from CFB Toronto, is also en route to the Middle East.

The two women are the first of 50 that will serve in the Middle East. Their names were announced by Defence minister James Richardson in Ottawa recently.

Prior to her duties here, Capt. Connor served at CFB Edmonton and in Ottawa.

Ameliasburg Changes Bridge Opinion

AMELIASBURG — Ameliasburg Township has rescinded a motion supporting construction of a new high level bridge opposite the Loyalist Wallbridge Road.

The old motion was rescinded recently by a vote of three to two and council now favors construction of a new bridge at or near the present location of the Bay Bridge.

A resolution supporting this view has been passed and copies forwarded to James Taylor MLA Prince Edward-Lennox and John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications.

Councillors voting to retain a bridge at the Rossmore site included deputy-reeve Gordon Babbitt, Paul Boyd and Dr. Robert Vaughan.

Ameliasburg reeve Arnold Wetherall and councillor Stanley Goodfellow abstained from voting.

Inflation Hits Hockey

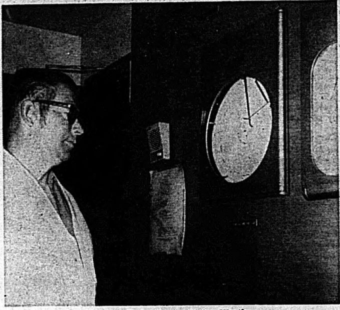
PICTON — Inflation has hit hockey says the Picton Minor Hockey Association.

In an advertisement in the local press it was announced that admission fees will be raised effective Sunday, March 2 because of inflation.

Students' admission has been raised to $1 and adult admission to $1.25.

The increase is due to referee fees, ice time and equipment costs and the fact the percentage of gate receipts in the final playoffs has risen.

"We are sorry to have to do this to our supporters but "inflation is here to stay', and the OMHA has no other choice," stated the ad.



Ross Sarles Gauges Picton Weather

Here Weather an Everyday Topic

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON—For employees of the Picton Purification plant the weather represents more than a tried but true conversational gambit.

Since 1965, an official weather station has been in operation at the plant.

Results of daily readings and tabulations are compiled and sent monthly to the Atmospheric Environment Service in Toronto. In addition, the information often is requested by local residents curious about how cold it is or how much snow has fallen.

Weather information also has been requisitioned by the Picton police department and the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police in efforts to ascertain driving conditions on certain days.

Water treatment plant operator Ross Sarles comments, "It's a service that is quite good to the public."

He says there is increasing public awareness of the weather station and telephone calls regarding the weather are growing more common at the plant.

Newpapers frequently call to confirm temperature reading or snowfall measurements when winter storms are in progress.

Mr. Sarles observes measurement of rainfall is suspended each year from November to April.

Each day in the winter months, the temperature and snowfall are checked at 8 a.m. and again at 4 p.m. From April to November a rainfall reading is substituted for winter snow fall measurements.

The day's high and low temperature reading are recorded as well as the current temperature. Remarks on general weather conditions, such as "overcast" or "cloudy" are noted.

"There is quite a lot of paperwork," says Mr. Sarles referring to the daily records and the monthly charts sent to Toronto.

From April to November rainfall is measured with the aid of an electric gauge using graph paper.

The purification plant has been notified by J.R.H. Noble, assistant deputy-minister, Atmospheric Environment Service, that a metric conversion program will begin April 1, 1975.

The Celsius scale will replace the Fahrenheit scale for temperatures. Within the year, changes will follow in the units for precipitation, pressure and wind measurements.

All of the changes are external. The new units will be used only in weather information released to the public on radio, television and in the newspapers. Instrument changes will occur later.

It was predicted that 1977 probably will be the year for new metric rain gauge graduates and or thermometers.

A tentative target date of January 1,1978, has been set for completion of new instrumentation at all climatological stations.

The weather station at the purification plant has not yet employed any metric readings.

Four employees, Ross Sarles, Earl Coghlan, Harold Sedore and Paul Cory record weather data assisted occasionally by relief operator John Muiridge.

Snuffed Out

Five major downtown Toronto hospitals performed about 7,230 abortions last year — or more than a quarter of the provincial total — and the board of health is to receive a report recommending an extensive family-planning program.

"Family-planning" is an odd term in the circumstances; in other words, in many cases the pregnancies are the result of a loosening of old standards of behavior, rather than of unplanned family additions by married couples.

Be that as it may, moralizing is out these days, and realism is in. And it bears mentioning too that high-density population countries such as India and Pakistan reportedly are more advanced in family planning matters than many in the West, and that the practice of abortion there is virtually unknown.

For a comparison with the figures in Toronto, with a population of about two million, it is interesting to look at figures from Hawaii, with a population of about 600,000. The first state in the United States to make abortion legal — in March 1970 — there were 3,643 abortions in the State in the year after it became law.

Add to these figures those from around the continent and there is a staggering degree of . . . call it potential life force being arbitrarily snuffed out; or by contrast, the world has fewer mouths to feed or problem children with which to deal.

Looking at all the circumstances, the wise course is that which the Toronto board of health is contemplating — increased education in family planning, whether the parties concerned are married or not.

Bully Boys

Readers will have noted with sadness and abhorrence that item from Davie, Fla., about the four-year-old boy who was beaten to death by two boys from a private school for children with behavioral problems.

The boys, aged 15 and 13, reportedly had run away from the school, and according to the local police chief they confessed to having done the killing "just for the fun of it."

Well, of course, that is the United States and Florida isn't even next door. But what about the 16-year-old gas station attendant out in Calgary who was beaten and knifed to death recently by a group of young men on drugs?

And not to mention a report in The Picton Gazette which says that some parents have expressed concern about alleged bullying by older boys in the playgrounds of Queen Elizabeth public school.

Isolated incidents perhaps; well not really, and where Picton is concerned the sooner the school authorities move to curb such behavior the better. The lack of discipline in home and school in Canada as a whole has gone far enough; unless it is tightened we may expect more incidents of varying seriousness as time passes.

Busy . . . Busy

Some more thoughts on the tourist scene, the service industries, and community behavior: when an attractive young lady does some fancy footwork on TV and talks about service that's "fast and friendly," well, all the young people who work for that quick service chain are placed on their mettle.

And in fact they do a good job of it, as do most of these establishments whatever the name on their door.

The folks on the other side of the counter though — yes the public — they are the ones who can be a source of irritation.

The place is crowded and some people are hogging the tables, even though they are about finished, sitting there and smoking when others are waiting to sit down.

And there are those fleet-footed individuals who, without so much as a blink, slide past others who have prior call on a table and presto, they have got themselves a seat with the rest of their family or group in tow.

Maybe the fast service people could spare one of their number to do some regulating on occasions such as this, so that fair's fair where seating is concerned.

The Strike Mentality in Canada

CSAO President's Directive to Members Hits Public

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Is this despicable?

On Feb. 20 this telegram was sent to the senior administration of the ministry of social and communities services:

"C.S.A.O. BRANCH, 110 EGLINTON AVE. W., WISHES TO INFORM MANAGEMENT THAT WE HAVE RECEIVED A DIRECTIVE FROM PRESIDENT DARROW THAT MEMBERS ARE NOT TO BE INVOLVED IN DELIVERING CHEQUES AS THIS IS A DUTY NOT NORMALLY PERFORMED BY US AND IT COULD BE CONSIDERED STRIKE BREAKING PERIOD.

"WE WISH TO INFORM YOU AT AN EARLY DATE THAT WE WILL BE COMPLYING WITH THIS ADVICE IN ORDER THAT MANAGEMENT CAN MAKE OTHER ARRANGEMENTS FOR CHEQUE DISTRIBUTION IF THE POSTAL DISRUPTION CONTINUES PERIOD

"THANKING YOU FOR YOUR CO-OPERATION"

The telegram was signed by David Fillmore, president of Branch No. 001-17-02, which is the Toronto branch of the Civil Service Association of Ontario.

What that message was saying was that on the order of "President" Darrow no civil servant in the province (it would have gone to all locals) could deliver their cheques to the aged, the disabled, the blind, the abandoned mothers and the others who depend on the province for their bread and butter (no jam).

The old Ontario welfare department was probably the first agency in the country to effectively cope with mail stoppages and see those handicapped people who were so dependent on their government cheques got them on time.

Under the direction of former deputy minister James S. Band an intricate delivery by automobile system was worked out whereby the cheques were distributed personally to home addresses where necessary and otherwise to central pick-up points in all communities.

What "President" Darrow was saying at the start of this postal strike was that this system couldn't carry on. It might be "strike breaking." Period!

You don't laugh. You can't laugh at a situation such as this. Do you cry? Perhaps.

These are welfare workers he is essentially talking about. They were the main people involved in the distribution.

"Welfare." Doesn't that mean kindness, understanding and particularly everything possible and practical that can be done for the unfortunate people who have to live on government money.

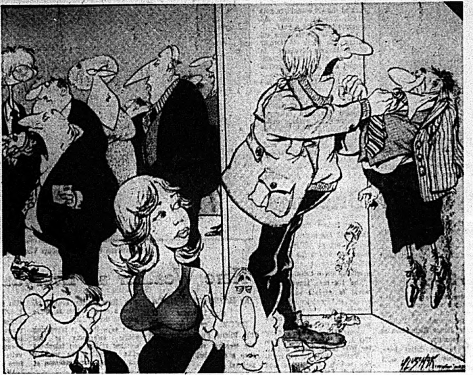
If a welfare worker found an applicant without food and out of a kind heart went out and got some that would be beyond "duty normally performed." Would that be "strike breaking?"

Of course I personally think Darrow's action was despicable.

And not only for his callousness towards unfortunates, but for what he is doing to our civil servants.

There are some fine people in our civil service. But as a whole the service has a bad name with the public: as lazy, underworked and inefficient.

A while longer under Darrow and this public distaste could turn to venom and our public servants may have to hide. There will not be room available for pride.



Know how to stem all this rising violence ? With LOVE, that's how ! Understand?

Twelve Trips Every Year for Seven Years By Cabinet Secretary Michael Pitfield

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Most people get to take one trip a year, the economy-minded by car or camper within a few hundred miles of home, the larger spenders to Hawaii or Europe.

The lucky few may make it twice a year, if they are in the mood and money, and time and circumstances are right, perhaps to the Caribbean for a week to break the winter, and maybe to England for the green and pleasant spring or the mellow, yellow autumn.

But Michael Pitfield, the new and still politically controversial clerk of the Privy Council and Cabinet secretary, has averaged an annual 12 trips for a journey total of 85 in seven years.

When Mr. Pitfield, long-time friend and frequent travelling companion of Prime Minister Trudeau, was a mere Deputy Cabinet Secretary, Grade Two, and making a modest $24,700, he managed only five trips.

That was the opening year of Pierre Trudeau's regime, and Michael Pitfield flew from Ottawa to Mexico to serve, according to official information now on file in the Commons, as "liaison officer for the Prime Minister's trip to Cozumel."

Sounds pretty official, perhaps even suggesting some involvement with the business of state, until you remember what Cozumel is — a small, very private island off Mexico's Yucatan peninsula, catering to the elite with the clearest emerald green water in all the Caribbean which makes for simply super skin diving.

That year, too, Mr. Pitfield was again "liaison officer" for another of the Prime Minister's trips to places of pleasure, this time to the Ballearic Islands and Majorca, off Spain's Costa del Sol.

There were three other trips, all business, for Mr. Pitfield that year, from Ottawa to Mont Gabriel, a Laurentian holiday resort for a federal-provincial conference — Ottawa to Stratford "to meet with officials and the Prime Minister," says the official report of it — and from Ottawa to London, Paris and Brussells "on Privy Council business."

Mr. Pitfield's many journeys near and far have been listed by the Privy Council and the Prime Minister's office in reply to a single question by Thomas Cossitt, former long-time president of the Liberal Association of the Eastern Ontario riding of Leeds, and more recently, in the last two Parliaments, the Conservative MP for that constituency.

Mr. Cossitt asked: "What trips were made out of Ottawa since April 1968 by Mr. Michael Pitfield at the taxpayers' expense?"

A year later, Mr. Pitfield had raised his opening five trips to seven journeys.

One was to London, Rome, Stockholm, Oslo and Brussels "to meet foreign officials on science policy."

Another was made again as "liaison officer for the Prime Minister," this time when Pierre Trudeau went yachting on the Mediterranean.

In 1970 there were 13 trips, three of them as "liaison officer" for the Prime Minister holiday excursions to Nassau, the Bahamas, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico — to Sardinia — and to New York City.

Next year there again were another 13 trips, two of them "liaising" for the Prime Minister redoing the Caribbean in Nassau, Barbados, Trinidad and Tobago, and trying out Belgrade and the Yugoslavian sun coast.

That year, on his own, but at taxpayers' expense, he took in London and Paris "to consult with foreign science and cabinet ministers," and went to Boston "to attend a Harvard School of Business conference."

In 1972 there were 11 trips, none of them as "advance man" for a vacationing Prime Minister, all of them business, including another to Boston "to lecture at Harvard" and two to Montreal, one to attend a Quebec Bar conference and the other for a McGill seminar.

The next year there were 20 trips, one to New York and Boston for an "industrial conference," and the start of what was to become a series "to recruit senior staff," mostly in Montreal.

Last year there were only 16 trips, four of them again to Boston, two "to lecture at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government," and two "to attend executive meetings on consumer affairs."

By then, seven years and 85 trips later, Michael Pitfield had progressed from $24,700 as a Grade Two Cabinet Secretary to Clerk of the Privy Council at the Public Service salary top of $60,000.

Mr. Cossitt is following up his initial questions with enquiries focussed on those liaison assignments for the holidaying Prime Minister, the Harvard lectures, and the senior staff recruiting missions, 10 of them, to Montreal.

Never Never Land of Canadian Foreign Policy

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Foreign policy priorities always take a beating in a time of recession and hardship among the rank-and-file of any nation.

It certainly is true of the United States these days even though Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been travelling on the kind of personal fence-mending tour which won him newspaper headlines 18 months ago.

In our own case, it is easier to associate foreign policy in boom times with our economic success, especially as a raw materials exporter in the 1950s when Canada was the world's model middle power.

Remember those palmy years? C. D. Howe was still a great power in Ottawa after painlessly putting us into a postwar reconstruction phase, then as Trade and Commerce Minister selling our natural resources to the hungry postwar U.S. economy.

And in other departments in Ottawa, and in the public mind, much support was given to Canada's cold war weapons construction program, a fleet of modern anti-submarine escorts for the Royal Canadian Navy, about 700 CF-100 jet interceptors for the Royal Canadian Air Froce.

Foreign trade, a military posture, a renowned diplomat in the late Lester B. Pearson as Secretary of State for External Affairs and foreign policy embraced most of our activities and was on everyone's lips.

Today by comparison, both foreign economic policy and the political one are necessarily diffuse. The boomy view of ourselves is past history. Modern Canadian federal governments must be more concerned with who owns those natural resources and how much of them we need before we export them abroad.

That "Captain Canada" view of ourselves dissipated with the end of the cold war and growing public resentment against Canada as a major arms manufacturer. Other more behavioral problems have come along, environmental pollution, the population explosion, law of the sea kinds of confrontations.

And at home, we are in a slump again not unlike 1928 when typically definitions of our foreign policy took second place to definitions of domestic policy for Canadians in distress.

And yet the foreign aspect of our country's business does go on. The recent Canadian peacekeeping operations in the Middle East and Cyprus we are told, have cost us about $35 millions. And a small handful of Canadian families know the wartime grief of having lost a loved one in uniform in the military roles we maintain.

The new and complex ball game of law of-the-sea status for Canada, protecting our thousands of miles of vulnerable coasts from the new peril of super-tanker originated pollution are all in the foreign policy zone. But they are harder to define and resolve than the old and familiar ones of building aircraft and warships to stop Russians.

There was a desperate and urgent time 40 years ago when all eyes were concentrated on governments' efforts to get us all out of the Great Depression. Those were the years when Canadian diplomats and servicemen survived under the most sparse conditions.

The total defence budget in any year of the early 30s was less than what it cost in the early 60s to recondition the carrier HMCS Magnificent!

But remember too, that the year 1933, the lowest point in the Great Depression, also saw Adolf Hitler's assumption of power in Germany. We never live unto ourselves, perhaps less so in the disturbed 70s than in the sad 30s.

Unemployment in Canada

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

It wasn't planned that way— but the current rise in unemployment will answer some basic economic questions.

Out of every 15 people in the Canadian labor force, one was unemployed at last count (in January). Adjusted to discount seasonal factors, that's a 6.7 per cent jobless rate—or about twice the level that's considered normal when the economy is healthy.

In parliamentary debates and elsewhere the big increase in unemployment is being treated as a temporary aberration.

But with the economy in a recession there's at least a possibility that the jobless rate could be moving to a new and higher plateau.

Even if that unhappy prospect is avoided there are few if any developments on the horizon that would point to an early and significant improvement in the employment picture.

The stage is set, then, for a test of some conflicting economic theories about work, wages and productivity.

One traditional theory is that with higher unemployment there is greater competition for jobs and therefore a higher standard of labor output, more reasonable wage demands and less absenteeism.

Set against this is another theory—unemployment benefits are so generous that this competition no longer applies, at least in relatively unskilled jobs. The owner of a fleet of 12 taxis in Toronto, for instance, could not muster even one driver on a recent evening.

Stated in its most basic terms, the question behind the theories is whether the labor market responds to supply and demand.

One side of the question seems to have been answered positively by the sharp rise in wage levels over the last quarter century, when the demand for labor generally exceeded the supply.

Now that the tables are turning, will labor respond by moderating its wage expectations and upgrading productivity— which improved by only 1.6 per cent last year?

Employers, who can usually find something to carp about, tend to throw up their hands in despair over the possibility of getting what they consider a full day's work for a full day's pay.

Labor spokesmen, for their part, emphasize the impact of inflation on the worker's purchasing power, and the constant need to "keep ahead."

But the question goes beyond the sphere of management, labor and economics.

Frustrated consumers are looking for some relief: Canada's postal service, at one time a model of efficiency, has in recent years broken down repeatedly. Transportation stoppages are common. Deliveries seldom seem to be made when promised. When appliances fail—as they do, all too often— one service call is often not enough.

The need for greater economic efficiency is both obvious and urgent. Is high unemployment the only way to achieve it?

CMA's Outspoken President

Kingston Whig— Standard

Dr. Bette Stephenson, president of the Canadian Medical Association, says in public precisely what she thinks and she says it simply. She ought to be in politics, where most of all we need that rare combination of conscience and common sense.

Dr. Stephenson was in Kingston the other day and said that deterrent fees would eliminate needless visits to doctors and would thus help to control the massive cost of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan. She added:

"But I can tell you that it will never be legislated, because it is political suicide to legislate that sort of thing. No politician has enough guts to stand up and say that we simply can't afford to continue this kind of profligate use of services that is going on now."

The cost of a trip to a doctor's office is now so hidden and concealed from public view that people believe it's the one thing in life that's still free. The man or woman with a common cold who demands x-rays and antibiotics never knows how much the public must pay for his indulgence. Dr. Stephenson suggests a deterrent fee might "stop the public from demanding a sophisticated investigation for every sniffle."

But Dr. Stephenson says no politician has the guts to impose that kind of fee on the electorate, and she's right. As we said, she ought to be in politics.

The Future of Rochdale

The Globe and Mail

Now, just a minute, just a minute ... the Supreme Court of Ontario has ordered the judicial sale of Rochdale College to satisfy the mortgage holders and a lot of people are saying, right, here is a chance to put the building to good community public use — an old people's residence has got the most currency — but, no, there is Robert Milward of the Toronto Housing Department shaking his head, no.

Its potential for public use is bleak, Mr. Milward says.

"It clearly worked well as student housing, but there could be no re-use other than that without major structural modifications." Then by the time all the bills are paid and the other costs settled, you have very expensive housing.

Why must there be major structural modifications? Are students the only people who can fit comfortably into the living unit designs in Rochdale — the ashrams, for example: half a dozen or so bedrooms off a common kitchen and living room? Double bed-sitting rooms with a common kitchen. And a number of other configurations that were designed to blend privacy with communal neighborliness.

We might point out that there are factories and warehouses with more architectural inspiration to them than some of the old people's homes that have been built recently in Metropolitan Toronto.

On top of everything else, Rochdale's location is superb for elderly people — in the midst of one of the most exciting areas of the city; exactly where elderly people should live. To let the Bloor Street building go for just another set of rich folks' swinging pads would say a lot about the imagination of governments.

Ottawa to Stop Dumping of Books

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is expected to intervene soon to stop the domestic sale of cut-rate U.S. editions of books by Pierre Berton, Farley Mowat and other Canadian authors.

Officials in Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner's office say the government has decided it has the right under existing copyright legislation to impose regulations banning the dumping of surplus U.S. editions on Canadian book store shelves.

They said Mr. Faulkner is expected to announce special measures within a day or two to stop the practice rather than wait for completion of a lengthy review of the existing copyright law.

They said investigations of the Canada Copyright Act, based on complaints by Canadian authors and publishers, show that the government can impose regulations to stop U.S. book distributors from selling books that are published in Canada under separate Canadian copyright.

Mr. Berton, Mr. Mowat and Toronto publisher Jack McClelland of McClelland and Stewart Ltd. complained last month that they were being undercut by low-priced sale of U.S. editions of their books by the Cole's Bookstore chain.

The three tried unsuccessfully to obtain a court injunction to stop the dumping.

The federal officials said the dumping problem is relatively new because of the growing popularity of Canadian authors in the U.S. The copyright act has never had to be used to curb this practice because the problem has never appeared before, they said.

Other Canadian authors also said to be affected include Mordecai Richler, Margaret Atwood, Robertson Davies and Margaret Laurence. Some have said their only alternative without government intervention is to deal solely with U.S. publishers to obtain royalties on sale of their books in Canada.

Officials at Cole's have said they see nothing wrong with providing Canadian-written books to their customers at the lowest possible prices.

Kingston Parolee Guilty of Murder

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Warren N. DeWolfe, 30, a day parolee from Collins Bay penitentiary, was sentenced Thursday to life imprisonment for the shooting death of a neighbor he did not know.

A 12-member Ontario Supreme Court deliberated four hours before convicting DeWolfe of the death of Dean W. Lewis, 30, father of three, with a .22-calibre rifle last July 30.

DeWolfe was living in a halfway house in the city's west end while serving a nine-year sentence for armed robbery when the shooting occurred in the back yard of a row of tenament houses.

The jury made no recommendation as to when DeWolfe should be eligible for parole.

After the conviction, John Bett, assistant Crown attorney, read DeWolfe's record to the jury. It showed that DeWolfe escaped custody twice and was paroled twice from federal penitentiaries.

Court was told the shooting followed a disturbance in a rear yard when both DeWolfe and Mr. Lewis were armed with guns. The jury was told neither man knew each other.

DeWolfe testified Thursday that he was concerned for the safety of the woman with whom he was living and her two children, expected momentarily in the immediate area at the time.

He said he entered the yard to determine the cause of a disturbance.

"I thought a war was starting and I've got to get the gun away from him," he told the jury.

"He (Mr. Lewis) stood there with his gun and I yelled: 'If you want a war you'll get one.'"

Dewolfe said he raised his gun and fired it but added: "I didn't fire at him, but away from him—about three feet to the left of him."

He said he had no intention of shooting or harming Lewis.

"I wanted to scare him into not playing with guns," DeWolfe testified.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Country and western singer Bobbie Gentry filed a $1-million defamation suit against a movie fan magazine Friday which allegedly implied she was pregnant with a child by rock star Elvis Presley.

Miss Gentry sued Movie Stars Magazine and its owners, saying the magazine cover last April gave the impression she was pregnant with a child by Presley.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Straus, perhaps best known for his role of Stosh in Stalag 17, a play and movie about a German prisoner-of-war camp, has died at the age of 61.

Strauss originated the role on Broadway in 1951, and was nominated for an Academy Award when he recreated the role in the movie version with William Holden.

Strauss also appeared in Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis movies, portrayed a janitor in The Seven Year Itch with Marilyn Monroe and Tom Ewell, and appeared as Beer Barrel, the aircraft landing officer, in The Bridges at Toko-Ri.

Before going to Hollywood, Strauss had appeared on Broadway as the detective in Sidney Kingsley's Detective Story, and as a press agent in Twentieth Century.

Strauss's television credits included Studio One, Wagon Train, and the Ed Sullivan, Red Skelton and Bob Hope shows.

He died in hospital Thursday.

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Actress Lilian August Fontaine, whose daughters Joan Fontaine and Olivia DeHavilland successfully followed in her footsteps, is dead at 88.

Mrs. Fontaine's movie credits included The Lost Weekend, The Bigamist and Time Out of Mind.

She directed the Los Gatos Theatre Workshop in Saratoga near San Jose from 1948 to 1958.

A native of Reading, England, she won a music scholarship to Reading College at the age of 15 and remained to teach there for three years.

In 1914 she married Walter DeHavilland in New York. They returned to Tokyo, where they had met, and Olivia and Joan were born there.

The couple divorced in 1925 and she married George Fontaine a short time later. Fontaine died in 1956.

Mrs. Fontaine, who had lived here since 1971, is survived by her two daughters and a stepson, George Fontaine. She died Thursday.

No Winnipeg Mistakes In Comedy of Errors

WINNIPEG (CP) — Robin Phillips's production of Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors for this year's Stratford Festival tickled a near capacity audience into chuckles, guffaws and roaring belly-laughs when it opened here Tuesday night.

It seemed to prove no errors were made when the festival picked the young English actor-director as its head, and he chose Shakespeare's early comic masterpiece to display the talents of his hand-picked company.

The cast worked smoothly together as they strung out the story of mixed identities which Shakespeare set in Ephesus, Turkey, at some uncertain time before 1600.

Phillips chose to set it in the western Prairies of the 1890s, using a 14-foot Conestoga wagon or Prairie schooner around which ruffians and well-dressed gentry played.

Nicholas Pennel and Barry MacGregor played the twin brothers, Antipholus of Syracuse and Antipholus of Ephesus, with their twin servants, the Dromios, played by Bernard Hopkins and Richard Whelan.

The story presents two sets of twins separated at birth, one set growing up in Ephesus where Antipholus married. Complications ensue when the Syracuse set arrive on the scene, unknown to each other and to Antipholus' wife, Adriana, played by Jackie Burrows.

This is the second of Phillips' productions for the new season. With Two Gentlemen of Verona, which opened Monday, it is going on a Western Canada tour before moving into Stratford's Avon Theatre for the summer festival.

The audience is let into the joke of the double identities at the outset with piano chords serving almost as asterisks. It is then left to the players and the play to unravel the conflicts in hilarious fashion.

Through it all, there is little hokum except for the appearance of Dr. Pinch—Eric Donkin—to exorcise the evil spirit that seems to have overtaken Antipholus of Syracuse. He detects the spirit with a forked stick and administers a suitably smelly and smoky potion.

Two newcomers to the Stratford Festival played important subsidiary roles; Gale Garnett of Toronto as Luciana, Adriana's sister who is seduced by Antipholus of Syracuse, and Dorian Joe Clark also of Toronto, a tall, lythe black dancer and singer, as a sheriff.

Shades of Playboy?

WINNIPEG (CP)—Robin Phillips' first production with the new Young Company of the Stratford Festival looks like something fresh from the fashion pages of Playboy magazine.

The words are Shakespeare's, The Two Gentlemen of Verona, and the play is a comedy of 17th-century loves. But the sets and costumes and the acting style is Fifth Avenue Modern, if that term isn't already old hat.

The play opened a 2½-month spring tour here Monday night and is to be joined tonight by Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors for a swing across Western Canada and then to Ottawa and Montreal before settling into the Avon Theatre at Stratford, Ont., this summer.

Phillips, the 32-year-old English actor and director chosen last year to succeed Jean Gascon as head of the country's biggest theatrical enterprise, promised a new approach to Shakespeare.

And he gave it with a flair to the first-night audience that failed to fill the 1,400-seat Playhouse Theatre.

Headliners in the show are veterans of Stratford festivals and other professonal theatres of Canada: Stephen Russell and Nicholas Pennell as the two gentlemen, and Mia Anderson and Jackie Burroughs as their loves, Julie and Silvia.

Bernard Hopkins and Eric Donkin, as the two gentlemen's servants, Speed and Launce, had the principal comedy roles.

Pioneer Days Relived at Hillcrest

There were a lot of long skirts at Hillcrest Public School this week and even a few knickers. Sixth-graders were helping second-graders read and a few tykes even got to wear a dunce cap.

It was the celebration of Pioneer Days at the school and principal Al Palmateer says it was a roaring success with everyone.

The 175 pupils and nine teachers at the school recreated — complete with one-room schools — the atmosphere of Canada's early years when chopping wood after school was the penance for misbehavior and sisters and brothers were all in the same class.

It was a nostalgic time particularlp for teacher Marie Emerson, who winds up her teaching career of 30 years at the end of this year. She's taught at Hillcrest for 23 years and once instructed all age levels in a one-room school.

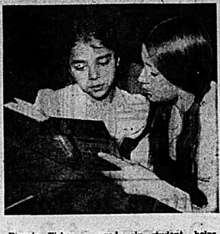
The kids gave her a special cake — it was a birthday surprise — during Pioneer Days to say thanks.

"It's made for a nice break at this time of year," Mr. Palmateer says, "when everyone's got the February blues. Kids are more actively involved and quieter, too."

Each day opened with "God Save Our King" and bible readings.

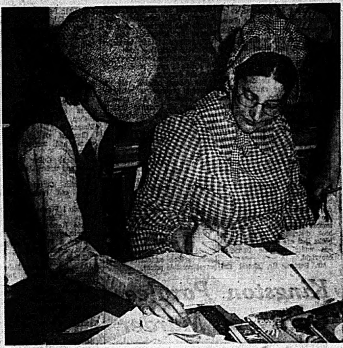
While mornings were spent in the one-room-school classrooms, afternoons were devoted to ice cream or bread or butter making, quilting and rug hooking and even log cabin building — in miniature. There was square dancing and singing and games. One room was turned into a museum to study old tools.

"The kids are alrendy asking when we can do it again," Mr. Palmateer says.



Beverly Fisher, a grade six student, helps second-grader Cindy Osborne.

Just for fun, Chris Maracle tries on a dunce cap with help from teacher Marie Emerson.



Judy Ruttan helps Barry Vesterfelt with his sums.

Free On Bail

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joanne Little, charged with murder in the killing of a jailer she said tried to rape her, left North Carolina's women's prison Wednesday on bail, free for the first time in six months.

She was released after $115,000 for her bond was raised by several groups across the United States.

Miss Little, a 20-year-old black, is charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of a white jailer last year in Washington, N.C., where she was being held on a breaking and entering conviction.

She has said that the jailer, Clarence Alligood, was trying to rape her and that she stabbed him in self-defence.

Lawyer Jerry Paul said Miss Little will take a job outside North Carolina until her trial begins April 14. He would not say where the job would be because Miss Little's life has been threatened.

BRITISH BIRTHDAY YEAR

We can only pay our debt to the past by putting the future in debt to ourselves. — John Buchan, Lord Tweedsmuir. (1875-1940).

Did you know that this year, 1975, is full of centenaries, bicentenaries and tricentenaries?

Britain has a bountiful share. While many of them will be observed in one way or another, British officials hope all of them will court tourism to the country by those with interests.

There is an anniversary for practically everyone, from a literary fan to an astronomy student, to observe.

Among the famous writers whose centennial or bicentennial is this year, we find Jane Austen was born in 1775. She, who wrote "Pride and Prejudice," has devoted followers. They plan a week of observance in July, at her birthplace, Steventon in Hampshire.

The essayist, Charles Lamb was born in 1775.

John Buchan, Lord Tweedsmuir, who wrote excellent thrillers including "The Thirty-Nine Steps," was born in 1875.

Edgar Wallace, spinner of more than 150 detective and adventure novels, was born in 1875.

Charles Kingsley, author of "Westward Ho" and "The Water Babies," died in 1875.

Just a 100 years ago, Charles Edward Flower, a Stratford-upon-Avon brewer, gave land beside the River Avon as a site for a theatre for Shakespeare's plays. Known as The Royal Shakespeare Theatre, a season of the Bard's plays will be performed there, starting in April, as part of the celebration. Tickets will cost from around $1.40 to $8.25.

The Royal Observatory at Greenwich is observing its 300th anniversary with an exhibition entitled "Measurement of Time," thought to be the "most complete of its kind ever mounted."

The observatory sits on the Greenwich Meridian, Longitude 0 degrees, from which Greenwich Mean Time is derived.

Local tourists to London will be interested to know this is the 300th anniversary of the beginning of work on Christopher Wren's great master-piece, St. Paul's Cathedral.

Although Wren laid the first foundation block of the structure in 1675, the final stone was not set in place by him until 35 years later.

Other centenaries or multiple centenaries include the beginning of the American Revolutionary War and the 100th anniversary of "Trial by Jury" which began the Gilbert and Sullivan partnership.

Thus it seems there is much to see and observe for tourists and visitors to England this happy anniversary year of 1975.

Learning How to Parent Before Trouble Begins

TORONTO (CP) — Thistletown Regional Centre, a treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children, is advocating in classes and workshop sessions that parents praise their children for good behavior.

Jeff Sherman and Peter Lorimer, clinical psychologists from the centre, are instructing parents how to raise children. The two men have named the workshops Catching a Kid Doing Something Good.

The concept of the program, started early last year, is to prevent mental illness among children so that costly treatment will not become necessary.

Dr. Jalal Shamsie, psychiatrist-in-chief at the centre, said in an interview that parents can prevent problems by reacting properly to common situations.

For example, he said a child might throw a tantrum when his mother is too busy to get him a cookie.

"If she gives it to him in the midst of his screaming, then she has rewarded the child for throwing a tantrum. The child very quickly learns that if he wants a cookie, all he has to do is put up a loud fuss.

"But if she ignores him—and this will not be easy for the first few times—chances are that he will look for another way to get his cookie. Then she can reward his acceptable behavior with a cookie."

Since the first workshop was held at a community centre in suburban Etobicoke, four 10-week courses and more than 40 workshops have been given to parents and teachers.

The workshops include demonstrations on such topics as how to teach a child to stay with his mother during a shopping trip.

Some role-playing demonstrations by the two psychologists include the use of tokens, or points, as rewards in cases where behavior had deteriorated to such a degree that praise alone was not sufficient.

Mr. Lorimer said: "Parenting has always been thought of as something you are supposed to know about naturally.

"Many mothers and fathers are embarrassed to admit that they have minor problems with their children."

What do parents think of the program?

"I never realized until now that I haven't been consistent with my kids," said Michele Chatterton of Toronto. She said she gained further insight into reasons why she has had minor problems with her children.

Another mother said: "I've been arguing for ages that it is not necessary for kids to fight all the time—that there mus be a better way.

"Maybe now, I'll find it."

A third mother said: "I've got more out of this than 15 books.

"In retrospect, it all seems so obvious. Now is the time for mothers and fathers to learn about their children — not in five years when the real trouble has started."

SEX VS. MARRIAGE?

What part does sex have in the breakup of a marriage? It's a complicated question. But there's no doubt that today's liberated attitude toward sex has led to unreal expectations and a "tyranny of performance". A wife must be not only a good mother, cook and housekeeper, but a terrific sex partner. A husband must not only be a good father, provider and companion, but give full satisfaction at night. Find out why there's trouble at the "Bedroom Olympics"! Read REPORT FROM THE SEXUAL REVOLUTION. One of 32 articles and features in the March Reader's Digest. At your newsstand today!

Ann Landers

Let Daughter Lead Her Own Life

Dear Ann Landers: If anyone had told me four months ago that this could be happening to my daughter I would have said they were stark, raving mad.

Margie, age 20, has gone crazy over a 27-year-old foreigner. He sings and plays bass in a travelling band. They met when the band was playing an engagement at a club here. I thought she'd get over her crush when he left town and she'd return to college, but it didn't turn out that way.

Last month Margie called to say she is leaving school when the semester ends so she can travel around the country with her love. I insisted that she fly home for the weekend. I then alerted our minister.

After a tearful and traumatic session with the minister she agreed to return to school, finish out the year and get married next summer. The "trade-off" was that she was to be permitted to fly wherever he is during her vacations. at his expense (we certainly wouldn't pay for such trips) and no complaints from me or her father.

Margie has known this boy only a few months. What kind of life will she have living out of a suitcase, and throwing away a college education to do it?

We aren't asking her to give the boy up. He seems to be a very nice young man. He doesn't smoke, drink or touch drugs and he is very mannerly.

All we ask is that Margie finish college and behave in a respectable manner. Following a band seems so cheap. We are beside ourselves. Any magic answers?—Distraught

Dear D.: Magic is for fairy tales and this is real life, Mother. There is nothing you can do but stand by and hope for the best. The less pressure you exert, the better. Margie is old enough to lead her own life. If her judgment is poor she'll have to pay for her mistake.

Dear Ann Landers: I do wish you and other writers would kindly stick to the English language and not go high-hat on us plain folks by throwing in foreign phrases. If you insist on being so fancy, will you at least include the translation?

What the hell does "In vino veritas" mean? Just sign me—Annoyed in Mineola

Dear Min.: "In vino veritas" means "in wine there is truth." Sorry I bugged you.

Dear Ann Landers: May I say something through your column in behalf of mothers whose children are in trouble emotionally—or with the law?

We don't want pity or special treatment. We just need a little understanding while we try desperately to right whatever wrong our children have done to others and to themselves.

We don't appreciate being asked daily, "How are things going now?" To be perfectly frank, we hate to talk about it. The fact that we are smiling and going about our business doesn't mean our hearts aren't breaking. It just means we are putting up a good front.

Tell them for us, will you, Ann? You are a good friend to many people.—One of Those Mothers

Dear Mother: You told them—and in a way I couldn't. Thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I can forgive "Victim Of the Economy" for itemizing the call girl's fee as a "dinner party for the Smiths," but I find it infuriating when my boss (who makes $50,000 a year) puts every lunch on his expense account, even when it's his cousin from Davenport. He also writes off all dinners with social friends and family as "business."

Every trip he takes out of town is charged to the company, even if it's a visit to his in-laws.

He also permits his children, his sister, and his wife's family to use his telephone credit card number. They make calls all over the country and the business pays for these gab sessions. Last spring he had the gall to charge his son's wedding rehearsal dinner as "a party for customers and wives."

The executive in this company voted themselves salary increases of 15 per cent this year, while the rest of us got five per cent. Meanwhile, the cost-of-living increase has hit 12 per cent. Just sign me—A Little Bitter

Dear Bitter: You don't say whether the company you work for is privately-owned or if it has stockholders. If it's the latter, you could buy one share of stock and make quite a stink at the next stockholder's meeting.

I strongly recommend that you have another job, first, however. In fact, feeling as you do, I suggest that you clear out in any event. I'd hate to work for people I had so little respect for.

Feminine Spray Labels Should Carry Warning

OTTAWA (CP) — Regulations have been prepared by the federal health protection branch asking cosmetics manufacturers to list ingredients and provide warning labels on feminine sprays.

The United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ordered ingredient listing Tuesday on all cosmetics and warning labels on feminine sprays in an effort to reduce consumer injuries.

A spokesman here said Wednesday the Canadian regulations will require cosmetics manufacturers to submit a list of ingredients in their products to health officials within 10 days after the first sales.

But he said the branch "doesn't feel the need of listing ingredients . . . . it wouldn't benefit the public to know that a 28-letter ingredient is in the product." He also said there were practical problems of listing the ingredients on small packages.

Another spokesman said regulations are being prepared requiring feminine deodorant spray manufacturers to display warnings about their use and action to be taken when unusual symptoms occur.

Doris Clark

Should Emotional Problems Limit Education?

Dear Doris: Our son is in grade eight, at age 14. He has had a rough time at school throughout, with grades less than satisfactory. Now the teacher has advised putting him in a special class where he will learn the basics of maths and language, for half of each day. The other half will be spent in a shop working for pay, to be arranged with town merchants.

After two years he will have the equivalent of a grade 10 "terminal" certificate.

This boy has a history of mild behavior problems and I recognize the cause as stemming from home and circumstances in earlier years. Now that he knows we love him so very much, things are much better at home. I think 14 is too young to be pigeonholed and have his regular schooling curtailed. His friends being in regular classes might make him feel humiliated. It might undo what we have accomplished in getting him to have confidence in his own work.

Son's Future.

Dear Future: Consult a social worker in a family setting. If it is mixed-up emotions rather than lack of intelligence which is making learning hard for your boy, the improved emotional atmosphere may well work wonders quite soon.

Find out how your son feels about the terminal course. Find out whethers he is willing to give regular classes a try, now that he knows that he has your complete devotion. How hard is he willing to work?

He must be helped to realize that special classes will limit his prospects for future employment. Is that O.K. with him? There are special guidance services in your educational system; there is a family and children's service agency near you.

Dear Doris: Enclosed are the words of "The Great Judgment Morning."

A few years ago this song was popular in some of our evangelical churches. Although I do not altogether agree with the philosophy contained in these words (that just because a person is in poor circumstances here he is assured of a place in heaven), I am sending them to you.

Enjoy Your Column.

Dear Enjoy: I don't think the poem means to say that, actually. But the "widows and orphans" will find comfort. And the rich man's money couldn't get him into heaven if it had "vanished away". It doesn't surely mean that the having of money, in itself, kept him out; nor that the lack of it is a sure ticket of admission.

The Judgment pictured in the poem does stress some moral truths, but the poet seems to me a harsh judge himself, the way he summarily disposes of all the evildoers: "Together in hell they did sink."

I prefer Shakespeare's idea: "In the course of justice, none of us would see salvation; we do pray for mercy, and that same prayer doth teach us all to render the deeds of mercy."

Dear Doris: Read the letter from the woman who requested the name of the deaf barber from St. Charles, Ontario. I too am deaf and am interested in contacting other deaf people who are trying to live with deafness instead of fighting it.

I would like to write to this man or any other person who is deaf and is interested in sharing thoughts, plans, ideas, etc., on how to get the most enjoyment out of life in spite of our deafness.

Also Deaf.

Dear Also Deaf: Good for you The way to handle any handicap is, first of all, to accept it. Then to examine, not what is wrong with you, but what you have left in the way of assets. Work on these.

Gladly I am sending you the address of the barber-philosopher who is giving so much hope and good cheer to others in the same boat.

And if other deaf readers would like to get into correspondence with you, all they need to do is write to me and I will link you up. How's that?

(There's always something to do about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

NWT Can't Attract Medical Professionals

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Federal authorities are having a tough time getting Canadian medical personnel to the Northwest Territories.

"I have noticed that Canadian graduates, whether they are doctors or nurses, seem to prefer to stay near the cultural centres," said Dr. F. J. Covill, director of the federal health department's N.W.T. services.

"They like to stay where there are lots of people," said Dr. Covill in an interview as he talked about futile efforts over two years to bring a psychiatrist to this territorial capital of 7,500 people. Dr. Covill was accompanying Health Minister Marc Lalonde on a winter tour of northern health facilities.

The staff of Dr. Covill—an Englishman himself—is made up of what he calls "mostly old Commonwealth people."

"There are the missionary types who want to save the world and there are the young professionals who enter the service for kicks and experience, just to find out what it's all about," he said.

"You get the older people who have already had a career and want to try something new and you get the people who don't fit in anywhere else."

Most of the health professionals don't stay more than a couple of years.

Because of the short supply and the constant demand for medical services in rapidly-developing northern communities, the federal government is taking a close look at the possibility of making more use of paramedics—people able to perform some functions now restricted to doctors.

Mr. Lalonde told the staff of the Whitehorse General Hospital that the training of paramedics "is very definitely an area of interest and active concern."

The minister said another possible solution is immigration.

Doctors and nurses would be allowed to enter the country only if they agreed to work in areas where medical professionals are scarce.

"There is no doubt that a policy like this would be of benefit to the North."

However, those who work here say it takes a special breed to cope with the isolation and heavy responsibilities thrust on northern medical personnel.

"A lot of the nurses here are much more competent than general practitioners in the south," said a Frobisher Bay doctor. "When the nearest help is 600 miles away, they're really forced to look into something and do something about it."

Helen Forsyth, chief nurse for the Inuvik zone, left Glasgow and then moved to northern Canada after a brief nursing stint in Hamilton "because you are given a chance to nurse here."

"There are opportunities you couldn't get anywhere else; you are really on your own," she said during an interview aboard a rickety schoolbus jolting wildly over ocean ice from the Tuktoyaktuk airport to the local nursing station.

AROUND TOWN
with
LANA ROBINSON

(. . .an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

Here I Am

Yes, here I am . . . sitting at my typewriter, plagued with the fear of not meeting the Intelligencer deadline. But I'm wearing my new SARDIS glasses from Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E. and I've got the most beautiful pair of glasses you've ever seen, despite the fact that they hide harrassed eyes. In fact, they don't really hide them, they complement them because of the blue tinting of the lenses. These glasses are very light, actually about 40 per cent lighter than my previous ones, because of the special lightness of OPTYL, the optics material which makes up the frame, and because of the plastic lenses too. So, life may be a little heavy at the moment, but my nose doesn't know it. You must see the array of modern, with-it, glasses frames at Trenton Optical. You will get a real load off your mind.

The Name Says It All

Having words for a craft, so to speak, perhaps makes one somewhat more sensitive to names of products and businesses. A good product name should give some indication of the use of the product. Holiday Car and Truck Rentals, 11 West Moira St. get a few bouquets here in my book. Holiday is not a meaningless description of Holiday's service, as you'll find out when you call 962-9114 and enquire about mileage, routes and prices for renting any model of Chrysler automobile for your holiday. Renting cars, trucks and heavy equipment is just the beginning with Holiday; service is the real product here. You'll see for yourself.

Listen To That Wind

At this writing, the wind is howling with gusto not heard since last March. It's both comforting because of its significance to the seasons and foreboding because of rain and wind to come. Part of those things to come is the fact that your home needs painting and the weather we're in for is going to emphasize that need. But if you had vinyl siding on your home, you wouldn't have a care in the world about how your house looks right now or for the next 30 years. And now is the time to get at it with a call to Highland Construction at 962-1184. They're the vinyl siding experts in the area. You can even see the real thing at their Home Improvement Centre at 257 North Front St.

A Gift Of Thought And Substance

I think that that phrase is a very good one to use in describing a gift of a painting from the Cameron Art Gallery, 1½ mile west of Rednersville on the Rednersville Rd. As a wedding or anniversary gift, as a retirement gift, as a parting gift for a respected employee being transferred, your thoughtfulness and taste are as obvious in the gift of a Cameron painting, as are the talents of the three Camerons from whose work you can choose. The Cameron Gallery is open every Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. But special arrangements can be made for through-the-week visit, if you'll just call 962-1606.

In Case You Missed It

Last week I told you about an incredible new service you can receive with a call to Moira Schuster at 962-4504. And that's SMOKEGARD, an early warning home smoke alarm which could mean the difference between life and death. This detector works by a chemical reaction to invisible combustion gases which are released as a fire is beginning. Smokegard will detect these gases and set off an alarm. Smokegards are inexpensive to operate, very easy to install and specifically designed for residential use. They are also readily available through Moira Schuster. Go down to 17 South Pinnacle St. and do some investigating. You just may regret that you didn't.

Ending It Properly

There is no better end to a day than an evening in the Terrace Lounge of the Four Seasons. The chairs are comfortable; the lighting is soft, the sense of cozy spaciousness comforting and the music . . . superb. And this week, you and your guests will be entertained by Graman and Hazel. There is no other place locally which can provide such a sophisticated environment and the music to match. And the first thing you know . . . the day doesn't seem to have been as harried as you thought, the world has pleasantries as well as pressures and the day is put gently and tastefully behind you. If you like good things, you qualify for membership in the Terrace Lounge set.

Those Trying Temperatures

Living in an old house, charming as it is, certainly informs one about the vagaries of temperature change. I can't keep up to the temperature inside my house, let alone what's been happening outside in the past few days. March is leaving us little doubt as to how she is going to conduct her yearly visitation. And that leaves wardrobe problems too. How does one stay warm yet abandon the gloom of winter's darker and heavy tones? With a pastel leather coat from Jean Smith's West Wind Boutique, that's how. Jean knows just as much about the seasonality of clothes as she does about fashion and quality. That will be obvious when you visit the West Wind Boutique at Actinolite on Hwy. 7 and pick up some Spring.

Another Week Left

Ruddy Electric's Consumer Division is continuing its 'scratched and dented' sale for another week. Now that phrase, 'scratched and dented'' can be somewhat misleading, I'll admit. But when you see the range of merchandise and the obvious opportunities to pick up some of the quality Ruddy Electric stock at such substantial reductions, you'll see what I mean. In many cases, the only ones who will know that your merchanse has been scratched or dented will be you and the people at Ruddy Electric who sell you the merchandise. And I promise you . . . they'll never tell. Visit this very real sale at 29[illegible] Coleman St. and get in on the buying.

Oh, What A Celebration

The big birthday celebration at Murray's Food Market on Front St. begins the week of March 10th. This is an event which rates equally with the founding of Belleville and the last Trudeau landslide. (I knew you'd like that Murray). And the celebrations for grocery shoppers will continue for the whole week, not just for a day or so. Murray has only a few qualifying demands for those of you who want to participate: You have to have an eye for a bargain; you have to be a responsible shopper; and you have to read the Intelligencer of March 10, a Monday, so you'll be informed of the proceedings. I just bet that most of you qualify. I'll be giving you a few more hints in this column too.

Sensible Savings

We are told everyday and sometimes, every minute, that if we buy this or we do this, we're going to save money. I tell you those things too many times in this column. And when I do tell you, I really mean it. That's why it's such a pleasure to talk about the service philosophy of Gibbs and Son, 37 Albion St., the vacuum cleaner experts. Mr. Gibbs and his son Michael don't want to see you in their premises every six months, pleasant though you all are; they want you to either buy a vacuum cleaner from them that will last for years, always doing the job, or bring in your vacuum and have them fix it properly and to last. Those goals may seem simple but they're meant. And they're also extremely rare.

The Retail Side

There's a retail side to the service of those wizards of cleaning problems, ServiceMaster. At the rear of 179 Pinnacle St., you can buy a selection of ServiceMaster and G. H. Woods cleaning products to help you do any cleaning job with your own brand of wizardry. And to help you do it, for example, ServiceMaster has a floor squeegee to defy all others. One squeeze, and it's practically dry. You can wipe off your floors as they ought to be wiped off. Mopping becomes almost pleasant. And of course, when you have good equipment, any job can become pleasant. So do yourself and your mopping duties a favor and visit the retail outlet of ServiceMaster. There's lots of help on the other side of the counter.

CP News Roundup

Share Gas, Pipeline Firm Urges

OTTAWA (CP) — Curtailing exports of natural gas to the United States to make up for domestic shortages might delay delivery of additional supplies from the North, an executive of TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. said Thursday.

Vice-president James Cameron, testifying before a National Energy Board hearing, said TransCanada favors equal sharing of any shortages between domestic and export customers.

The hearing already has been told that a shortage will develop between now and 1980, lasting until northern supplies come on the market in the early 1980s.

TransCanada, only supplier of natural gas from western producers to eastern consumers, feels the best hope of getting gas from the North is through a pipeline proposed by the Canadian Arctic Gas Study Ltd., Mr. Cameron told the board.

"If we curtail existing exports of natural gas to the United States we will be playing right into the hands of Canadian Arctic Gas's opponent, El Paso," he said.

Arctic Gas has applied to regulatory bodies in both the United States and Canada for permission to build a pipeline through the Mackenzie River Valley carrying Alaskan gas to U.S. markets and Mackenzie Delta gas to domestic consumers.

Proven gas reserves in the Delta total only about seven trillion cubic feet, about half the gas needed to justify a pipeline to serve only the Canadian market.

Punched by Guards

TORONTO (CP) — A former prisoner at the Toronto jail testified Thursday at a royal commission hearing that after he was caught in the jail last May with contraband drugs, he was punched and kicked by guards.

Fabian Vassell, 22, who was serving a 14-day intermittent sentence for a driving offence, said he was grabbed by former guard Gary Lassy and punched in the side.

"Then he kicked me in the behind," Mr. Vassell told the commission investigating allegations of guard brutality at the jail.

Purchase Likely

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Leo Bernier, Ontario minister of natural resources, said Thursday the Cataraqui Conservation Authority's attempt to buy 337 acres of land in nearby Kingston Township for about $1 million should be resolved within a few weeks.

The minister said he is anxious to get the whole thing "cleared up as soon as possible" and that his ministry has encouraged the purchase for some time.

Decision Made

TORONTO (CP) — John White, minister without portfolio, said Thursday the Ontario cabinet has made its decision on Toronto's 45-foot height bylaw, but won't make it known until some legal points are settled.

The former treasurer and minister responsible for municipal affairs said after a special cabinet meeting, the cabinet does not know if its decision "is sustainable" in light of recent city bylaws.

Councillors' Pay

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Oxford County councillors voted Wednesday to pay themselves $5,000 a year. The 20 members of the new council, created last Jan. 1 by restructuring of local government in the county, will also receive 15 cents a mile for driving to meetings. Warden Perry Sibbick will receive $15,000 annually.

Lavatory Pretty

CIRENCESTER (Reuter) — A $46,000 public lavatory in this English community has been entered for the European architectural heritage year awards in the hope that it will attract tourists.

An American visitor took a snapshot of the building Wednesday and said: "I would never have guessed it was one of those."

Not His Views

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson denied Thursday that he made the unflattering statements about Indians and Eskimos attributed to him in the March issue of Maclean's magazine.

His denial came after Wally Firth (NDP—Northwest Territories), a Metis, objected to parts of the magazine article.

Mr. Richardson said the accusation should be directed at the author of the article, not him.

"Those are not my views . . . and there were many other inaccuracies in the article as well."

Licence Sought

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Otonabee Airways of Peterborough, Ont., has applied for a licence to take over a Peterborough-Ottawa service previously operated by Great Lakes Airlines of Sarnia.

The Sarnia airline, which incurred losses of $260,000 on its Kitchener - Peterborough-Ottawa run since last June, has received a suspension on its licence for that service from the Canadian transport commission.

Latent Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger declined jokingly Thursday to discredit reports that he might resign before the end of the year.

"I have to keep the threat of my resignation going to keep up the morale of my ambassadors and give my staff some hope," he told reporters after a closed door briefing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Strategy Fails

ST. AUSTELLS, England (AP) — Cornishman Fred Trull stretched his legal arguments back six centuries, but to no avail when charged with a speeding offence by police Wednesday.

Trull cited a law passed by King Edward I in 1305 A.D. which exempted Cornish tin miners from all laws passed by the London parliament unless approved by the Stannery, an ancient Cornish lawmaking body that last met in 1792.

For good measure Trull, who is listed as an office clerk but claims tin miner status, declared the entire court under arrest.

The magistrate was not amused. He fined Trull the equivalent of $105.60 and had him hustled out of court by a burly constable.

Figures Sought

TORONTO (CP) — In an unprecedented move, the Consumers' Association of Canada Thursday asked the Canadian Radio-Television Commission for public disclosure of cable television companies' financial statements when the firms apply for rate increases.

The CAC told a CRTC public hearing that if the financial statements are not disclosed, intervenors to applications for rate increases should have the right to cross-examine cable company officials at public hearings.

Quick Action Asked

TORONTO (CP) — The city's board of education and planning board both presented briefs to a provincial inquiry Thursday demanding quick action to reduce lead concentrations near three city lead companies.

Gordon Cressy, school board chairman, told the Ontario Environmental Hearing Board the province should clean up contaminated areas and recover the cost of replacing lead-contaminated soil through court action.

Delays in Mail Hurting Business

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the strike by members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) into its 12th day today, Canadian businessmen are being affected because of the disrupted postal service.

Although paralyzed in Toronto by the refusal of mail truck drivers to cross picket lines of striking maintenance workers, the post office has kept mail moving elsewhere in the country.

A spokesman for the Halifax board of trade says small businessmen are hardest hit by the PSAC strike.

Terry Alderman, general manager of the board of trade in Saint John, N.B., says many businesses are turning to other delivery methods.

"People don't trust the mails right now, therefore, long-distance telephone and telex bills are going up drastically," he says.

Businesses are also using courier services to move letters and parcels which would normally be mailed.

Ottawa businesses are relying on bus express service to move correspondence to Montreal and Toronto.

Today's deadline for employers to distribute T4 income tax slips will not be extended, says a spokesman for the federal revenue department.

But he added that "we will deal realistically and reasonably with the situation."

The Income Tax Act says employers must provide by Feb. 28 a T4 slip indicating earnings and deductions to employees. Another copy must be delivered to the revenue department by the same time. The deadline for filing tax returns is April 30.

In Toronto, a spokesman for Chargex credit cards says no charge account billings have been mailed from the central office in Toronto since the strike began.

"We tell customers who phone in worrying about making payments on their accounts to do so at their nearest bank rather than waiting until the strike is over," the spokesman said.

The Toronto Stock Exchange began using Brink's, the armored car firm, to deliver mail Thursday.

Under the system, exchange members will be able to send stock certificates and other securities by Brink's trucks and airplane. The firm charges a minimum of $1,875 for a round trip that includes stops at Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

Robert Simpson's Co., Toronto department store, has staff sorting bills by district and mailing them at local postal stations.

The T. Eaton Co. will make arrangements to get statements out some other way if the strike continues for more than another month.

In Edmonton, where PSAC members set up picket lines around postal depots three days ago, the full impact is only being felt now by businesses. Most mail was taken to depots before the strike and was delivered Wednesday.

Pork Prices Climb While Beef Declines

By JUDY CREIGHTON

The Canadian Press

Beef prices, especially on choice cuts, declined across Canada in February but pork showed a distinct gain, a survey by The Canadian Press shows.

Larry Campbell of the Canadian Meat Packers Council said the sharp upswing in pork prices is due to a slowdown in production. He predicted that the production lag will continue throughout 1975, causing pork prices to climb.

"Until producers are convinced that hogs are giving them a good return for their money, they aren't going to step up production and consequently pork prices will rise," he said.

Imported pork from the United States is blamed for the production slowdown.

Jim Rollings, sales manager for the Ontario Pork Producers Marketing Board, said:

"In January of this year, there was a glut of imported pork on the Canadian market. This kept prices down. Now, with Canadian producers holding back, there isn't much pork around and the prices are going up."

The cost of sugar continued to drop in February as consumers reduced consumption to protest high prices.

Bill Brown, president of the Canadian Sugar Institute in Montreal, said the price at the end of February was the lowest since August, 1974.

Increase Loans

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will ask Parliament to increase to $1,800 from $1,400 the annual limit for interest-free loans to students, Finance Minister John Turner said Thursday.

The amendment to the Canada Student Loans Plan, if approved, would be effective July 1.

Two Years Late

HULL, Que. (CP) — A second federal government building—part of a $200-million federal redevelopment program to equalize federal presence in the Ottawa-Hull area—will be ready for occupancy in June, two years behind schedule.

Land Sale Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the president of Connaught Laboratories Ltd. proposed last June that 583 acres of company land and most of its buildings be sold to raise money for the company which has made no profit since Canada Development Corp. bought it in June, 1972.

The proposal was made to the board of directors by Donald McCaskill, also president of Connaught's holding company, Connlab, the newspaper says in a copyright story.

Date Fixed

TORONTO (CP) — The fifth session of the 29th Ontario legislature will begin March 11, Premier William Davis announced Thursday.

The premier said in a news release the session will open at 3 p.m. with the speech from the throne read by Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon.

The fourth session of the legislature was prorogued Feb. 14.

Injured Tree

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Judge A. E. Newall convicted Konvey Construction Co. Ltd. Thursday of injuring the root of a Norway maple tree during a job at a city school last fall.

The company was given a suspended sentence. The Ontario Trees Act provides for a maximum fine of $25.

Rail Loot Extensive

TORONTO (CP) — Some boxcars and their contents were saved despite looting near Caramat, Ont., where a Canadian National Railways freight train was derailed Feb. 9, CNR spokesman Michael Matthews said Thursday.

Value of lost goods could run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The train was loaded with livestock, mail, flour, fruit and clothing when it went off tracks 150 miles east of Thunder Bay.

"The derailment is pretty well cleaned up now," said Mr. Matthews. "There might be bits of equipment yet to be carted away."

Two railway policemen arrived at the derailment site about three hours after the accident, he said.

"They were there around the clock until they were relieved a day or so later by two more of our people."

Two provincial policemen from Longlac, 17 miles northwest of the derailed train, then arrived to back up the railway police, he said.

All the CNR agents could do was warn people that they would be liable for prosecution if they picked up the spilled goods, he said.

Mr. Matthews denied a report that CNR employees were handing out the contents of broken boxcars.

Construction Inquiry Hears 'Grey Eminence'

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Desrochers, a man frequently described as the "grey eminence" behind Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, Thursday contradicted previous testimony at a government inquiry.

Desrochers, 50, told the royal commission on construction union freedoms he was never informed of police wiretap evidence of a $2,000 payoff to secure a public service job.

Desrochers, who managed Premier Bourassa's 1970 election victory and now is vice-president of a national trust company, also denied he practised political patronage in granting jobs at the $12-billion James Bay hydroelectric site in northwestern Quebec.

"Maybe I wasn't duped by my aides, but I was naive in my dealings with them," Desrochers said. He added that any hiring irregularities were "carried out without my knowlege."

Before he quit the posts—officially for health reasons—last spring, Desrochers was president of both the James Bay Development Corp. and the James Bay Energy Corp.

GM Recalls Some Workers

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced Thursday it will recall some workers at the company's Oshawa and Windsor truck plants.

GM also said some workers at its van plant in Toronto will be laid off.

In a statement, GM said 335 persons in the Oshawa truck plant will be recalled to work beginning in mid-March due to a shift in market demand for light duty Chevrolet and GMC trucks in the United States and Canada.

Due to a decline in demand for van-type vehicles, 140 temporary employees will be released and another 110 regular employees placed on indefinite layoff at the van plant. At this plant, the production line rate will be reduced to 12 from 15 vans an hour.

Mortgage and Rent Subsidies Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to provide mortgage and rental subsidies of up to $50 a month for low-income families was approved in principle Thursday by the Commons.

The bill would extend the Assisted Home Ownership Plan (AHOP) to make federal subsidies available to new home owners who obtain financing through private mortgage loans. At present, AHOP assistance is available only through the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

The extended AHOP program would allow buyers who qualify under a complicated income and purchase price formula to obtain government subsidies to reduce the monthly cost of principle interest and taxes on mortgage payments by up to $50.

Manitoba Town's Paper Published by Elderly

OTTAWA (CP) — When the newspaper in Oak Lake, Man., ceased publication in March, 1974, the retired people in the Oakview Club decided to replace it with a newsletter.

With the help of a $5,508 New Horizons grant, the Oak Lake Town and Country News now appears every second week.

Groups across the country have received a total of $18.15 million for 3,280 projects since the New Horizons program for retired Canadians was introduced by the federal health department in 1972. The average grant has been about $5,500. More than 655,000 retired persons have been involved.

Some projects are aimed specifically at retired persons and others at the community at large, but all involve people who have retired from the labor force.

In Glace Bay, N.S., $7,772 was granted to a town band of retired musicians and other elderly persons with musical ability

In Winnipeg, the Golden Age Project was granted $7,225 to enable retired persons to assist primary-school students during classroom hours.

And in Oak Bay, B.C., a lawn bowling club was granted $3,080 to install a permanent water sprinkler system for two bowling greens.

In order to be eligible, a group must have at least 10 volunteer directors, a majority of whom are retired. No salaries are paid to participants although occasionally a co-ordinator is hired to get the project under way.

After an application has been screened by the regional and central offices of New Horizons, it is referred to Health Minister Marc Lalonde's office for a final decision. Grants are usually for 18 months, although 18-month extensions are sometimes given.

The limited duration of the grants irks Walter Turnbull, president of the Ottawa Senior Citizens' Council. The council received a New Horizons grant for production of a TV series entitled Coming of Age, which in 1972 was chosen the best community-produced cable-television program in the country.

The series was first financed under the Local Initiatives Program (LIP) and later by New Horizons. For the last six months, he said, the program has been dependent on the generosity of the local cable-TV company.

Mr. Turnbull said government policy in effect denies support to successful projects.

"You reverse the Spartans. You support the delicate children and don't support the healthy ones."

Although he praised the program in general, he said elderly persons are not consulted enough in its planning and administration.

Russ Page, chief of operations for New Horizons, said there is no formal consultation but the program staff keeps in close touch with participating groups and two retired persons are employed as consultants.

Although few federal programs provide funds for projects once their New Horizons grant has expired, Mr. Page said about 75 per cent of them receive money from provincial or municipal governments and service clubs.

The other 25 per cent had become self-sufficient.

Mr. Page considers the program a major success. He said response has been particularly heavy from Quebec and New Brunswick and there has been more interest in smaller communities than in cities.

The government announced recently that the New Horizons budget will be increased to $14 million in 1975-76 from $10 million last year.

Burlington Police Plod Beats Again

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — The Burlington district of Halton regional police has started an eight-month experiment, reviving the old system of team policing and walking a beat.

A team of eight constables and a sergeant were made responsible two weeks ago for a 12-square-mile block in the southeast corner of this community east of Hamilton. Equipped with pocket two-way radios, the policemen spend most of their shifts away from their cruisers, walking into plazas, public places and schoolyards to talk to people.

"Before, we wouldn't have got out of the cruisers and walked into a plaza unless we were called," said Constable Terry Dickie. "Now we go in because the community is our problem."

Police Chief Kenneth Skerrett said the zone has one of the worst juvenile problems in the city and that is one reason it was chosen for the experiment. About 44 per cent of th area's 26,618 population is under 20.

Team policing was an idea discussed at a 1971 conference of senior police officials from across Canada sponsored by the federal government and the Foundation for Human Development.

Dr. David Jackson, a psychologist with the foundation, worked with Burlington police with the aim of finding ways "to make policemen more effective as peace officers rather than the old image of cowboys catching criminals."

Chief Skerrett said the experiment will be evaluated after seven months.

Dr. Jackson said that other experiments with team policing show an increase in the number of crimes reported, making it appear on the surface that the change is causing more crime.

"What in fact has happened is that as people begin to trust police more, they report more crimes. Some U.S. studies have shown that people are victimized as much as twice as often as is reported."

Tubeless TV Camera

Newest 'eye' that makes possible a hand-size tubeless television camera (uncovered unit) is examined at RCA Electronic Components plant in Lancaster, Pa. where both solid-state 'eye' and tubeless camera were developed. The 'eye' is a charged-coupled device (CCD) and its 163,840 electronic elements process a TV picture. (CP Photo)

Adds New Plants

EDMONTON (CP) — Metropolitan Edmonton added one new plant every 4.3 working days during 1974, the city's business development department reports. In addition to the 59 new plants, 31 existing plants underwent significant expansions.

Old Dredges Tourist Attraction

Dredges that once ripped millions of dollars in gold annually from the creeks of the Klondike, have now become a major attraction to Yukon tourists. The last of the dinosaur-like monsters was shut down in 1966 after returns dropped to a point where the operation was no longer profitable. Now the dredges awe the hundreds of visitors that take organized bus tours from Dawson City.

Pakistan Reaps Dividend From Moslem Solidarity

ISLAMABAD (Reuter) — Pakistan's pronounced leanings towards the Arab world paid spectacular dividends when a catastrophic earthquake struck the country in December.

Five of the oil-rich Arab countries, in an unprecedented show of Moslem solidarity, dipped into their funds and gave Pakistan $40 million in relief aid.

That was seven times more than that given by all 28 other donor-countries combined and reversed the pattern of international aid following such natural calamities.

The total relief fund of more than $45 million was far more than the Pakistan government had dared to hope for to help it recover from the earthquake, which killed about 5,300 people and left an estimated 80,000 homeless in the remote Karakoram Mountains Dec. 28.

"We were absolutely staggered when the first $10 million came from Saudi Arabia," a foreign ministry official said. "We thought someone had made a mistake and got the figures wrong."

King Faisal's donation was followed by $8 million from the United Arab Emirates.

Libyan leader Col. Muammar Al Gaddafi stepped in a few days later with the biggest single donation, $16 million.

Kuwait gave $5 million and Iran $1 million, plus a planeload of relief goods.

"I cannot recall another disaster that has drawn such singularly big cash donations," a Red Cross relief official said, "and from such unexpected sources."

One Western diplomat observed that the donations were a dramatic demonstration of the redistribution of wealth in the world.

He said: "The Arab oil countries want to show who has the money to throw around now. It is not the United States any more."

Pakistani officials ascribe the Arab generosity to the common bond of Islam.

They are also quietly congratulating themselves on a timely change in the direction of Pakistan's foreign policy since President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto took over after the 1971 Indo-Pakistan war and the secession of Bangladesh from Pakistan.

Since then, Pakistan has looked conspicuously westward towards the increasingly powerful Arab states.

Many Pakistani officials feel the future lies with the Arab world, perhaps motivated by the thought that Arab countries might provide a defensive shield in the event of another war with India.

Pakistan has been vocally backing Arab causes and providing practical support with pilots and technicians for several Arab air forces.

Compared with the Arab support, contributions from Western countries to help Pakistan overcome its earthquake disaster was relatively small, including $25,000 from the U.S. and slightly less from Britain.

One view expressed here frequently is that Pakistan received far more money than necessary to cope with the earthquake relief.

Observers said that if each of the 80,000 people afflicted was given $500, this would be far more than most of them ever had and there would still be money left over.

However, the government will not make lump compensation payments to the victims. It plans, instead, to channel the bulk of the money into rebuilding more than 20 devastated villages and hamlets along the Indus valley, then promoting industries to ensure the future development of the beautiful, snow-capped Karakoram Mountains region, which has great tourist potential.

Bhutto has publicly promised to spend all the money from the relief funds on the disaster area.

Man Collects Gas Masks

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In a small confined corner of his home, stacked to the ceiling, are five or six dozen foam heads James Sheldon uses to display his collection of gas masks, some dating back to the First World Tar.

"I got my first gas mask at California State University at Chico," said Sheldon, a United States navy medical corpsman. In checking the equipment he became interested in collecting.

Before long he was owner of masks from nearly all the war-torn countries of the world including Germany, Japan, Italy, Vietnam, Russia and the U.S.

He scrounged in flea markets for his masks.

Some of the older masks were made of leather. He has a Viet Cong one made out of a shower curtain. His latest fancy U.S. army mask has a hookup for drinking and even for giving artificial respiration.

Elected President

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Les Manning, artist-in-residence and head of the Banff Centre ceramics department, has been elected president of the newly-formed Canadian Crafts Council. The council was formed to represent Canada at the World Crafts Council and to gather Canada's wide variety of craftsmen and crafts associations into a single organization.

Sabre Tracks Thieves Through Snow

A juvenile and a 16-year-old youth were captured Thursday after a tracking dog traced their footprints in the snow for three miles following a break-in and theft from the Belleville Airport that day.

Sabre, the tracking dog of the Belleville detachment of the OPP, his handler Constable Ted Arthurs and Constable Bill Hawkins aided in the capture of Glenn Joseph Jones of RR 4, Belleville and a juvenile companion.

The episode began about 8 p.m. Thursday when owner of the airport, Jim Marker spotted two youths in the club building. The youths fled on foot and were traced by the dog to a car they were getting into about three miles away, said an OPP spokesman.

Damage in the amount of $75 was done to a softdrink machine and a filing cabinet while $8.75 was taken from the machine.

Student Awards On Rise

Applications by Loyalist College student to the Ontario Student Association Program (OSAP) are up about 17 per cent so far this year, say Barbara Brennan, college student awards officer.

Mrs. Brennan said in an interview Thursday she has received 472 applications, to date.

She attributed the increase to three factors, two obvious ones being a rise in enrolment and inflation.

However, she added, "There are a considerable number of students at Loyalist and at other colleges who are enrolled in concentrated programs which continue for 10 months per year rather than the usual eight."

"This means the students have to cover the cost of lodging, meals and transportation during a longer academic and at the same time have only two months to build up savings from summers jobs," explained Mrs. Brennan.

She said these programs, basically diploma nursing, nursing assistant and mental retardation councilling, constitute about one-quarter of the student body.

"The loans increase according to the cost of living," explained Mrs. Brennan.

She estimated the average award per student is about $1,000. The total amount in loans and grant is not completed, she added.

In a news release this week from Toronto James Auld, minister of Colleges and universities, announced over-all OSAP applications are up 12.7 per cent.

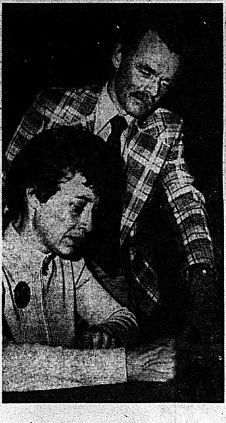
"The tight economic situation has almost certainly got something to do with the increase," commented Mr. Auld.

"We also made the 1974-75 program more generous and easier to understand," he noted. "These factors have probably encouraged more students to apply."

Mr. Auld said by the end of January 90,662 students had applied for financial aid from OSAP for the 1974-75 academic year. By the same time last year, 80,388 students had requested assistance, he added.

He said so far provincial grants of $36.9 million have been paid, an increase of about 22 per cent over 1973-74 with Canada student loans in Ontario up 16 per cent to $59.1 million.

The OSAP provides loans and grants to Ontario students who are unable to pay the full cost of their post-secondary education. Students must accept a loan before they can receive a grant. About two students in five in Ontario get aid from the program.



Mayor Approves

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, after going over a Belleville General Hospital re-zoning application with planning board staff member Frank Stokmans, approved of parking lot construction on First Street. The subordinate planning advisory committee recommendation to approve the project will come before city council Monday.

Loyalist Buys Car 'Just Like Company'

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Will Wilkinson, chairman of the Loyalist College board of governors, says the board's decision to provide a vehicle for the college president is in keeping with other businesses that supply company cars for heads of management.

"It would be exactly the same," he commented in an interview Thursday.

Mr. Wilkinson said the board approved purchase of the $6,700 car, which includes sales tax, as part of a revised budget last autumn.

A car for the president was considered by the board "for three years at least," he related. A decision was not made "until we could see the college would save money," he added.

Prior to the purchase, President Herb Young used his own vehicle, receiving 18 cents a mile for mileage while on college business, said Mr. Wilkinson.

President Young had also received an extra car allowance, he said.

All figures were checked closely by the board, including the average 10,000 miles per year the president drives on college business, noted Mr. Wilkinson.

He said the car is wholly-owned by the college. "We looked at rental figures," he said. "We found in our particular case, being a crown corporation and not covered by income tax, it was cheaper to buy."

Funds for personal use of the car will come out of the president's pocket, said Mr. Wilkinson. "He's reimbursing the company, on a payroll deduction each month, for personal use ... such as around the city."

And if he used the car for a long personal trip or vacation, he will pay the entire expense, he pointed out. The payroll deduction is a flat fee, added Mr. Wilkinson.

College Seeking New Crest To Provide 'Unique Identity'

Loyalist College is holding a competition for a new college crest.

A college advertisement reads submissions are invited from "current and former students in any program or course (day or evening) for a new emblem which will symbolize the role of the college and provide a unique visual identity."

Art McFarlane, director of student services and chairman of the ad hoc college crest committee, emphasized Thursday the competition is also open to present and former students in any extension division course held anywhere in the college's four-county region.

The competition will close at 4.30 p.m. March 27. Design sepcifications and entry forms may be obtained by writing Loyalist Crest Competition, P.O. Box 4200, Belleville, Ontario K8N 5B9, by telephoning 962-9501 extension 235 or by picking up forms on campus at the Information Desk in Kente Building.

Entries will be judged by the crest committee consisting of two students, Denise Jacob and Paul McAvoy, two faculty members, Dave Chabot and Warren Thomson and two administration members, Glynn Harry and Mr. McFarlane.

They will select six designs for the college board of governors to review, who will then reduce that selection to three.

The final three designs will be displayed and the first, second and third award winners will be decided by a closed-ballot student vote.

Mr. Smith, father of six children plans to buy a hearing aid for his daughter with his winnings. Proceeds collected by the Lions will be used in local charitable projects.

Aldermen Predict Mill Rate Hike

Bellevillians should brace for an increase in city taxes this year.

A majority of city councillors reluctantly agree on the inevitability of being unable to hold the tax rate — now costing an average household more than $500 a year.

One councillor worries that any "big increase" will "put people out of their homes."

Size of the levy will tax the resourcefulness of city government itself as it toils at trimming operating estimates making up the final budget — now expected about mid-May — councillors indicate.

But two prime factors have a majority of councillors already predicting difficulty in holding the levy line now exist: (1) Inexorable inflation: the higher costs of supplies and services; and (2) Recent new pay settlements with city departments — new police, firemen, and city hall staff.

"There'll be an increase," fears Mayor Robin Jeffrey, as she cites such already-twinned problems. "Council's big work will be to keep it as low as possible."

A big imponderable is a cost out of city hall control — education.

The public school allotment accounted for 19.8 mills of the 1974 residential mill rate of 51.1. Education accounted for almost $3 million of the city's total budget of nearly $12 million.

Thursday, Ald. Jack Ireland said he'd heard the education demand this year could be up from three to five mills but "I'm only quoting gossip."

The suggestion was quickly put down as "strictly rumor" by Eric Runacres, Hastings County board of education director. "School boards cannot even determine their revenue until April 1, when the provincial government begins its financial year. Until senior government grants are indicated education authorities "are in the dark completely," he said.

Some councillors say the only way of holding the line would be to cut back programs and projects.

Ald. Arthur Keegan said he will battle "his damnedest" to defer schemes that might stand delay.

Ald. Stu Meeks bluntly talked of the need for cutting back on capital expenditures.

But councillors Ben Corke and Joe Cox pondered how taxes could be held with inflation inevitable.

Yet, the city's 1974 tax rate was below that of 1971 and has dipped up and down in the intervening years. The mill rate record: 1971 — 51.7; 1972 — 48.1; 1973 — 43.1.

In 1974 a homeowner with a house in the $30,000 range — rated an average holding — paid $511 in taxes on an assessment of $10,000, said city treasurer Frank Morrell.

While city department estimates are now being drafted — some already completed — the full financial expectations will become collectively apparent by April 1, says the city treasurer. That's when council and their executive department heads begin scrutiny of the full document, the pruning and proofs of needs of expenditures.

Mr. Morrell says the final draft should be ready for council's approval by about May 19.

But, among councillors' comments in an Intelligencer survey Thursday:

Ald. Corke: "I don't know how we can avoid an increase in the mill rate. But if we're going to have one I don't know to what extent . . . There is inflation in everything we do."

Ald. Wally Dever: "It's going to be up and it's just a matter of holding as low as we can . . . The only way we can keep it where it is now is would be to cut projects. And that's pretty difficult today in this age because there are things that have to be done."

Ald. Cox: I think we're all doing everything in our power to hold it down. But with (pay) increases and inflation — unfortunately I think the mill rate will be going up."

Ald. Ireland: "It's going to be awfully tough to hold the line — I'm going to put the pressure on to hold things down. But I think with the settlements we've made we've no control."

Ald. Brian Knudsen: "Being realistic, I think the mill rate will go up — but I hope only modestly. There will have to be some serious cutting even t ohold the increase at a moderate rate. It will need a real honest effort at holding it to a real moderate increase—becaust I don't think the people will stand for it and I don't think the councillors will either."

Ald. Meeks: "I think if we do have a substantial increase it's going to put people out of their homes — We are going to have to cut back on capital work. — Our staff has to have increases to live. But at the same time we're going to have to cut back some place else. There's going to have to be a line drawn. No business can keep throwing money in capital expenditures each year that we do."

Ald. George Zegouras: "It will be difficult to hold the line. — I'm hoping we can hold a new mill rate at a reasonable level."

Ald. Keegan: "I'm a little worried that the mill rate could go up. But I'm going to try my damnedest to hold it down and lay some projects over for a year or two."

Ald. Jean Smith: "I'd like to say we'd be able to hold the line ... but it would decide on what projects we'd have to cut back.

Ald. Paul Russell is on vacation and could not be contacted.

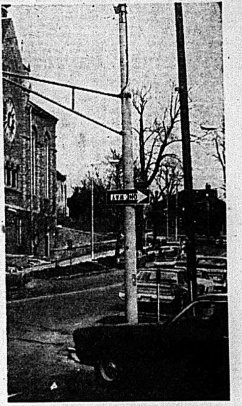
NDP First On Field

The New Democratic Party will be the first to field a candidate for the next provincial election in Quinte riding — currently the constituency of Correctional Services Minister Richard Potter.

The Quinte NDP will hold its nomination convention March 13 at Prince of Wales public school.

An early start will help focus public attention on the NDP campaign thus aiding "in presenting our program to the people," Rick Williams, riding NDP president.

The meeting — which starts at 7.30 p.m. — will have an NDP key figure as its speaker. Scheduled to attend is George Samis, recent winner of the upset by-election in Stormount.



Which Way?

That's obviously a one way sign at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle streets. But something doesn't seem quite right about it. For one thing if you travelled in the direction indicated, you'd wind up with a ticket. But if you tried reading it you'd probably get a sudden surge of blood to the head, standing upside down trying to read it the way it's intended to be read.

Escaping Custody Gets to be Habit

A man just sentenced to 14 months in jail for escaping lawful custody and two other charges escaped again after sentence was pronounced on him in provincial court here Thursday He was quickly captured by city police.

City police chief Douglas Crosbie said John Branford MacCallum, 21, of no fixed address had just been sentenced by Judge J. L. Clendenning to the charges and court had adjourned about 3.30 p.m.

The prisoner then bolted out the judge's door and escaped through a fire exit. Police then mounted a search and found him about 10 minutes later at the corner of Everett and Catherine streets.

MacCallum, besides the charge of escaping lawful custody in Thunder Bay, was charged with attempting to escape lawful custody in Belleville and with break and enter into Kelly's Gun Store in Belleville September 14.

MacCallum now faces another charge of escaping lawful custody.

Can You Suggest A City Centennial Project?

JOHN HOGAN

"I think the city should consider building a recreation centre," said John Hogan. "The city recreation programs are hockey heavy and some more emphasis should be placed on construction of a gymnasium facility for basketball and the like."

He said the city should definitely be considering a permanent project that would stand as a reminder of Belleville's 100th birthday.

LEE KETCHESON

"A nice tour trip or show for the senior citizens of Belleville would be a good centennial project," said Lee Ketcheson. "Whatever the city does, the senior citizen should be included in birthday plans. We're the ones who are retired with little to do."

If the city wants to create a lasting project, senior citizen housing could be a fitting project, said Mr. Ketcheson, a former Thurlow Township farmer now living in the city.

VINCE PREWER

"Council should very definitely be doing something in the area of helping the very young and the very old," said Vince Prewer, audio visual manager at Centennial Secondary School.

"The only recreation in this city for the 18 to 25-year-old set is drinking," he said. "Perhaps a recreation centre for the older folk and a non-drinking dance hall for the younger people. "The city is really missing the boat for young people."

ELDENE VANNER

The city should spend its centennial money "beautifying the downtown section," says Mrs. Eldene Vanner, a clerk at the Quinte Mall. "They should do something about the burned out buildings and spruce up the area." These shopping malls are nice but I also like the atmosphere of locally-owned stores," she said.

Mrs. Vanner said enlarged parking facilities for the downtown would be a good centennial scheme.

PAT MARCH

"I would like to see the other side of Zwick's Island get into the construction stage," said Mrs. Pat March. "It would also be nice to see something tangible in connection with new bridge."

"Education should be shown prominently in the centennial festivities with council and the board of education working jointly to create an old-fashioned log schoolhouse. We could have actual classes in progress for visitors," she said.

PAUL RUTTAN

"City council should consider a blend of special events and a permanent project to remain after centennial year," said Paul Ruttan, a Stirling resident working as a brewery representative in the Belleville area. "A sports complex would be an ideal project and would take the pressure off existing ice facilities in the city."

"I'd be willing to take an increase in taxes to foot the bill for a centennial project of that sort," he said.

Now Is the Time for All Men to Stand Up and . . .

Before getting into this, I should make every effort to impress on everyone that Belleville is not unique in its attitude toward persons who volunteer to serve on minor sports government bodies.

Nothing would lead me to believe that individuals in this city are much different from those in most communities when it comes to panning others who are giving their time and energy to minor sports.

But it would be very satisfying if Belleville did take the lead in getting involved . . not at the "sit back and criticize level." . . in assisting to operate our minor programs.

Hockey, probably because it is the undisputed leader when it comes to popularity with everybody from grade schoolers to great-grand-persons, seems to have more than its share of "I'd do it this way" critics who offer nothing but talk.

Trouble is, many of these armchair experts won't get off their seats long enough to get out where the action is and contribute. And the truth is, many of them have excellent ideas. They just come up short of the mark when it comes to presenting them.

Much of this could change as early as Monday night.

All you people who spent most of the hockey season complaining about how things were done . . or were not done . . when it came to operating minor hockey, have the opportunity to make some constructive observations; and in the proper manner.

Don't wait until next season to start your old refrain again. I'm tired of hearing you bleat and I'm sure that goes double for the people who are interested enough to lend a hand.

Just show up Monday at the lecture theatre of Centennial Secondary School, at 7.30 p.m.

But let's put all our cards on the table.

You'll be attending the annual genneral meeting of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association. You might be asked to put your shoulder to the wheel and help the organization.

Think about it.

Are you all talk?

Or are you ready and willing to pitch in and make the task easier for all involved?

Now that it's spelled out, I'm willing to bet 99 per cent of you will stay in your rut.

You won't be there.

Why not show up to make a fibber out of me, if nothing else?

I won't mind.

And neither will the faithful few who have been carrying the load.

SLICES — Meetings, and their importance, seem to be the theme today.

Members of last season's Quinte Fastball League executive are concerned about the apparent lack of interest among enthusiasts of the diamond sport when it comes to begin making plans for 1975.

There will be another effort to get things rolling at the Recreation Centre, Sunday, at 1.30 p.m.

At least two of last season's entries have signified that they will be back for another go and word is Picton is interested in entering the loop.

• • •

The Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League is also meeting, Sunday.

That meeting will be held at the H. and R Block offices, 8 Bridge St., E., at 2 p.m.

Team representatives are reminded this is the deadline for entry fees.

First EOBA Trial Meeting Success

TRENTON — For the first time in its history, the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association EOBA held an executive meeting here, Thursday.

It was the first of a trial series of meetings during which the EOBA will decide whether to make the Community Gardens here its permanent home.

Judging from last night's attendance, it would appear there is little doubt the baseball association will accept Trenton parks and recreation director Deno Gettas' offer of facilities for regular meetings.

But there has been no firm decision on the matter.

Fifteen executive members representing communities from Kingston on the east to Oshawa on the west, were on hand. The turnout was described as "excellent". Many members favor Trenton as a headquarters since it is centrally located within the boundaries of the association.

Belleville will also be involved in the swing to the Bay of Quinte area by the EOBA.

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association, through its secretary Debbie Christopher, requested permission to host the association's annual meeting, January 10, 1976. Permission was granted.

EOBA teams in divisions from tyke to senior will swing into action on or about May 17 with Ontario Baseball Association representatives to be declared by August 19.

Series commissioners (formerly known as conveners) were appointed.

They are, senior, John Ryan, Cobourg; junior, Art Parry, Oshawa; midget, Jim Lutton, Oshawa; bantam, Ross Brown, Kendal; peewee, Jim Whyte, Trenton, assisted by Ed Christopher, Belleville, and tyke, Bob Martin, Lindsay.

A special protest committee will be named later. A committee charged with the responsibility of determining classifications for the member teams will be formed early in April.

EOBA president Sanford Haskill of Port Hope told the newly appointed commissioners to take charge of their groups and "take no backtalk from anybody."

"Let's stick together and run this thing properly," he emphasized.

Lutton, nominated for the position of OBA president, was given a vote of confidence by the EOBA executive who offered "100 per cent backing". The OBA annual meeting is scheduled for Sarnia.

Grant Wade of Newtonville, former EOBA president has also been nominated to run for the position of OBA president.

Lancers Meet Kingston In Playoff Opener

When the Loyalist Lancer basketball squad take on the Kingston St. Lawrence club in the opening game of the Ontario Colleges Athletics Association playoffs today the odds will not be in their favor.

Lancer coach Rob Stinson is optimistic however and feels that: "It's only one game and anything can happen."

Loyalist earned the right to meet the first place finisher by clinching the fourth and final playoff position in the eastern division. Until last Friday, first and second place had yet to be decided but a slim victory by the host school over Algonquin matched them with the Lancers.

Durham College of Oshawa, the third place team will hook up with Alognquin in the other playoff game today. The two winners will then meet on Saturday for the championship and the losers will do battle for consolation honors.

Loyalist has yet to beat the Kingston club in three starts this season but the games have been close, losing one game by five points another by three and in the other were tied at the half but failed to pull the game out.

The Lancers seem to have two main problems with the St. Lawrence team, those being 6-foot-6-inch centre Mike Dowling and forward Jim McKenzie. McKenzie and Dowling in the final 78-60 win combined for an unbelievable 60 points despite the pressure on them by Loyalist guards.

One other plus the host team will have is the absence of Dave Culmer from the Loyalist line-up.

Culmer, the tallest centre on the team, will be away racing snowmobiles for the weekend. "We're going to miss Culmer especially in the rebounding, but that just means we're going to have to play a little harder," said Stinson.

Stinson feels that defensive rebounding is going to be the key to winning and of late feels his club "has been running the ball better."

Bill Kyle, Jim Sutton and Peter Scott have been handling the scoring chores for Loyalist and will certainly have their work cut out for them.

Carl Ward will be back in the roster and although he won't be 100 per cent, will add a good deal on the defensive end of things. Ward earlier in the season suffered torn ligaments.

Game times are scheduled for 2.00 p.m. today for the Loyalist-Kingston match and 4.00 for the Algonquin-Durham. Saturday competition will begin at 1.00 for the consolation final and 3.00 for the championship game.

Top Material Clashes For Bay of Quinte

The Bay of Quinte Secondary School Boys Basketball championships get under way Saturday and local fans should get a look at some of the best highschool teams in the province — all from this area.

In all three categories — midget, junior and senior — the first two teams of each division will clash in semi-finals.

East Northumberland, Brighton, meets Napanee District at Sir James Whitney at 10.30 a.m., while in the other midget semi-final game Belleville Collegiate (BCI) takes on Quinte Secondary at noon.

At Centennial Secondary, BCI takes on Centennial at 10.30 a.m. and Quinte meets Moira at noon to decide the two junior finalists.

In senior, at Centennial, Quinte Secondary plays Nicholson Catholic College at 1.30 p.m. and BCI plays Trenton at 3 p.m.

The senior match-ups should be classics. Nicholson finished second in the east division with an 8-2, won-lost record while Quinte finished first in the west with 10 wins and no losses. The Saints have already beaten the Nicks in exhibition play this season, but Nicholson has improved with every outing since they last met Quinte. Many Bay of Quinte coaches rate Nicholson the number one senior A school in Ontario. Quinte is rated one of the top AAA schools in the province.

In the other half of the senior semi-final BCI, which went through the east division regular schedule with a perfect 10 wins meets Trenton, which finished second in the west division with an 8-2 record. BCI is also rated at the top of their provincial classification. As an AA school they are number one in Ontario.

BCI has beaten both Quinte and Nicholson and are therefore favored to take the title.

Trenton however, is capable of anything. The club had its problems at the first of the season, but is now peaking to top form.

The two senior finalists will meet at Centennial at 8.30 p.m.

BCI will also be the team to beat in the junior playoffs. The Collegians rolled to a perfect 10-0 record in the east division. Their defensive prowess is rarely seen in a junior team and when it's working — usually all the time — their offence is impossible to stop. The best offensive junior team in the Bay of Quinte area — the Quinte Saints — were no match for the BCI squad in the Quinte Tournament last weekend. Quinte's devastating offence carried them to a 12-0 record in the west division. BCI plays Centennial in the first semi-final game. The Chargers finished second in the west division with a 10-2 record. Quinte plays Moira in the second game. The Trojans were second in the east with seven wins — three losses.

The two junior finalists square off at Centennial at 7 p.m.

The midget championship features BCI, 10-0 in the east, and Northumberland, 7-1 in the west. Both have also done very well in tournament action this season. BCI will play Quinte 6-2 in the west and Northumberland meets Napanee 7-3 in the east.

Midget final gets under way at 5.30 p.m.

Admission to the tournament is $1 for the entire day or 75 cents for students with ID cards.

Nordiques Outlasts Blazers

McKenzie Says Referee Homer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Referee Wayne Mundey emerged as one of the losers when Quebec Nordiques and Vancouver Blazers tangled in a fight-filled World Hockey Association game Thursday night.

After the brawling was over and Quebec had emerged with a 9-7 victory, both teams heaped scorn on Mundey.

"I just couldn't believe the referee," said Nordiques coach Jean-Guy Gendron. "He not only lost control of the game, he lost control of the Coliseum."

Vancouver player Johnny McKenzie accused Mundey of being a "homer."

"He always gives the home club the benefit," said McKenzie. "When he has been refereeing against us in other cities than Vancouver, at least three of our players had been injured and he hasn't even given a penalty.

"It was our biggest game of the year and we missed it."

In other WHA games Thursday, New England Whalers beat Minnesota Fighting Saints 5-2 and Houston Aeros defeated Phoenix Roadrunners 7-2.

Real Cloutier scored three goals and Serge Bernier had two for the Nordiques in the match at Quebec which fell apart late in the second period.

Quebec's Marc Tardif and Vancouver's Rick Jodzino, sent off with fighting majors at 12:33, tangled again soon after emerging from the penalty box. When Rejean Houle of the Nordiques intervened, both benches cleared in a major brawl.

There were still two minutes remaining in the second period but Mundey sent both teams to their dressing rooms and the two minutes were added to the start of the third period.

Mundey handed out a total of 132 minutes in penalties in the second period which ended with the teams tied 6-6.

Vancouver took the lead early in the third period on a goal by Bryan Campbell but Quebec rallied on two goals by Cloutier and one by Renalt Leclerc.

The game proved costly for both teams as Tardif suffered a shoulder injury that may keep him out of action about two weeks and Vancouver's Paul Terbenche came away with a broken nose.

Quebec defenceman Dale Hoganson described the Blazers as a desperate club.

"They were 20 points behind us and to stay in contention (for the playoffs) they had to beat us tonight," said Hoganson.

"We were sleeping out there and only woke up when they got two quick goals in the second period. If they had stuck with playing hockey they would have beaten us, we couldn't get the puck out of our own end."

Defenceman Ted Green scored the game-winning goal for New England. His shot from the blue line with 4:09 gone in the second period gave the Whalers a 3-1 lead.

Mark Howe, Frank Hughes and Don Larway each scored twice for Houston against Phoenix. Hughes ran his season goal total to 37.

Violence Way of Life In NHL Says Campbell

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Thursday that violence is and always has been a way of life in the NHL and he does not plan to change it.

"My number one duty is to keep the NHL a viable enterprise," said Campbell, pointing out that the league this season would sell 95 per cent of its available tickets and some 10 million people would attend league games.

"Without violence, it wouldn't be hockey," said Campbell, one of four guest speakers at a Queen's University symposium on violence in hockey.

Other speakers were NHL referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison, former NHL defenceman Carl Brewer and Toronto lawyer Bill McMurtry who last year conducted a provincia inquiry into violence in amateur hockey.

Although the NHL permits violence, Campbell said, it controls and restricts the nature of it to fit within the framework of the NHL rules.

"Occasionally, like the stock market, the game has fluctuations and occasionally supplementary discipline is needed," said Campbell "Perhaps 25 to 30 or as many as 50 supplementary decisions are made each season in the form of fines or suspensions."

Campbell dismissed the recent public outcry over violence in the NHL, prompted by the McMurtry report which attacked the violent aspect of the professional game.

"The casual observer isn't competent to make comparative judgment on the degree of violence," he said.

Brewer, who played on Toronto Stanley Cup winning teams in the early 1960s, said he thinks the NHL has done a good job on controlling violence but that he believes it can be improved further.

He said a certain amount of violence will always be a part of the game.

Concerning the defending NHL champion Philadelphia Flyers, Brewer said Fred Shero has done a great job coaching that team "but his attitude towards violence and intimidation doesn't add to his success."

Morrison said fist fights are considered part of the game. "We feel fighting is necessary as an escape valve," said Morrison. "I've never seen a player injured by fisticuffs yet."

McMurtry objected to too much violence in the NHL. "A good stiff body check is not violence," he said. "But force used outside the rules is violence. Hockey is the only sport I know where violence is not only tolerated but also rewarded."

Bulls Bring Out Worst

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"They brought out the worst in us," lamented Atlanta Hawks coach Cotton Fitzsimmons after his National Basketball Association team dropped a 111-91 decision Thursday night to Chicago Bulls.

"But we are not the only ones," he said. "They bring out the worst in a lot of teams. There's not a better veteran club in the NBA—including Boston."

The Bulls powered their way to their eighth consecutive victory behind 31 points by forward Bob Love. Chicago jumped ahead by 14 points in the first eight minutes, led 54-34 at the half and coasted home.

Chet Walker added 25 points for the Bulls, who lead Kansas City-Omaha by 4½ games in the NBA's Midwest Division. John Drew led Atlanta scorers with 21 points.

In another NBA game at Toronto, Buffalo Braves defeated New Orleans Jazz 110-100. In the only American Basketball association game, Virginia Squires downed the Spirits of St. Louis 111-100.

Bob McAdoo poured in 34 points and Kenny Charles added 18 to lead Buffalo past New Orleans. The game was the sixth and final outing this season for the Braves in Toronto, where they won five of six.

The victory put Buffalo 3½ games behind the front-running Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division.

Niki Lauda Crashes In Practice Session

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Niki Lauda of Austria escaped serious injury Thursday when his Ferrari, travelling at 130 miles an hour, crashed during practice for the South African Grand Prix at Kyalami near here.

Lauda, who clocked the second fastest time in Wednesday's first official practice, was going all out to grab the pole position from Carlos Reuterman of Argentina when the mishap occurred.

Reuterman, last year's winner, was fastest in practice Wednesday with his Brabham BT44.

Lauda crashed into the safety fence after his Ferrari 312T appeared to go out of control entering a corner.

The car's rear end was damaged but was expected to be repaired for Saturday's race.

Meanwhile, the two-car Brabham team took both positions on the front row of the grid for the Grand Prix. Carlos Pace of Brazil was in the pole position and Reutemann beside him.

In a final training session marked by crashes which shortened the final practice period, the Brabhams established their superiority ahead of the Ferrari and Tyrrell teams.

After an early engine blowup, world champion Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil could attain only the seventh row of the grid after trying to better Wednesday's time with a spare car, a McLaren.

South African Jody Scheckter took the third spot on the grid with a time of 1:16.64 before going off the track in a spectacular crash in his Tyrrell on the fast back bend of the circuit.

Flyers End Winless Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers couldn't play the physical kind of game they like, but what they did Thursday night was good enough to end a four-game winless streak.

"They weren't forechecking, they were satisfied to wait for a break," coach Fred Shero said of Philadelphia's opposition after the Flyers outskated Vancouver Canucks 3-1 and stretched their lead to six points over the New York Rangers in the National Hockey League's Patrick Division.

"It's hard to play a physical game against a team that is playing strictly defensive."

Elsewhere, Buffalo Sabres shut out Los Angeles Kings 5-0 and Boston Bruins defeated Detroit Red Wings 9-4.

Second-period goals by Reggie Leach and Bill Barber helped the Flyers defeat the Canucks. Vancouver scored at 12:36 of the first period on Ab Demarco's power-play goal but Leach and Barber scored in the last 6½ minutes of the second period.

Philadelphia's final score came at 11:38 of the third period when Leach passed to Rick MacLeish, who drove the puck over goalie Gary Smith's shoulder for his 23rd goal of the season.

"Some of our players are not in the best of condition just coming off the injury list," said Vancouver coach Phil Maloney, whose club remained one point ahead of second-place Chicago in the Smythe Division. "We're not at full strength, either. We're down to three defencemen."

Fred Stanfield and Don Luce scored 10 seconds apart in the opening minute of the final period to break open a tight 1-0 contest at Buffalo. The victory extended Buffalo's unbeaten streak to 12 games, a club record.

The French Connection line of Gilbert Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert scored the other three goals, each getting one, while the shutout was the third of the season for goalie Roger Crozier, who had 21 saves.

Buffalo coach Floyd Smith expressed satisfaction that his club had finally beaten Los Angeles goalie Rogatien Vachon and the checking line of Frank St. Marseille, Bob Nevin and Dan Maloney.

"We went through 11 periods of hockey where Vachon really stoned us," said Smith, whose club had dropped all three previous games with the Kings this season. "Then we got going in the final period and now we know we can put some goals by him.

"That St. Marseille-Nevin-Maloney line had stopped the French Connection until tonight. I decided to go back against them and see what the Connection could do. That's a good checking line. Nevin has checked the best there is in hockey, but no question about it, the French Connection controlled the game tonight."

Bobby Schmautz and Terry O'Reilly scored two goals each for Boston against Detroit.

ABA TAKES CONTROL

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association took control of the financially struggling San Diego franchise Thursday. The Conquistadors, owned by Dr. Leonard Bloom since 1972, drew 81,473 in 32 home games last season for an average of 2,563 at the 15,000-seat San Diego Sports Arena. The Q's also have the worst record in the ABA's five-team Western Division this season, 26-40.

New Headache For WFL

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rozelle has opened the floodgates, and the World Football League is likely to get swamped again.

Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, gave his league's 26 teams the go-ahead Thursday to sign any WFL player whose contract has been breached. If missing a pay day amounts to a breach of contract, many WFL players may be looking for new jobs.

Rozelle said the NFL will honor "valid WFL claims to player services." But he said any WFL player whose contract has not been honored may sign with an NFL team. According to sports attorneys, there is a considerable number of TFL players who qualify.

Rozelle said any NFL team seeking to sign a player must submit his WFL contract to Rozelle's office. In addition, the player must submit an affadavit outlining the reasons he believes his WFL contract was breached and he must obtain, from an attorney, a legal opinion supporting his belief.

If the NFL is satisfied it is on safe legal ground, permission will be given to sign the WFL player.

In many cases, NFL teams own—through the league's draft—rights to WFL players. For instance, Tommy Reamon, an exciting outside runner who led the WFL in rushing, is the property of Pittsburgh Steelers.

Guard Booker Brown and running backs James McAlister and Kermit Johnson—the WFL's most prized rookies last year—have already won their freedom from the WFL's Southern California Sun. Brown was drafted by Houston, McAlister by Oakland and Johnson by San Francisco.

Three players who do not fit that category are Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick. Their contracts have been honored, and more and more they are becoming the WFL's claim to big league status.

Canadian Women's Curling

Mitchell Forces Final Playoff

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — With more than 1,000 at the Moncton Coliseum holding their breath, Saskatchewan's Marj Mitchell cooly delivered her last rock of the 10th end at the Canadian women's curling championship Thursday night and gave it a cold glare as it skimmed toward the rings at the other end of the ice.

Her sweepers, Florence Sanna and Nancy Kerr, followed it, ready for the call from their skip or third Kenda Richards in the house.

But their brooms weren't needed, the stone catching the counting Manitoba rock and removing it to give the Regina girls an 8-7 victory over Joan Mogk's Souris club.

That victory forced a playoff today against Quebec, which finished, with the same 7-2 record earlier in the evening. Lee Tobin's Montreal rink romped 10-2 over Ivy Lord and her rink from Saint John, N.B.

Quebec set the stage for a playoff earlier Thursday by taking a 10-7 victory over Saskatchewan with three in the final end. And the Quebec skip wasn't worried about today's showdown.

"Were all curling well as of yesterday," said Mrs. Tobin. "So well give anybody a good game."

Alberta's Sharon Grigg saw her hopes of a playoff darkened when the Medicine Hat girls were upset by Diane Blanchard's Prince Edward Island rink, 10-5. The Islanders earlier in the day had turned back British Columbia's Marion Radcliffe, 9-7, wrecking the Kelowna club's chances for a playoff.

Elsewhere Thursday night, Gail Hiscock and her St. John's, Nfld., foursome defeated Ontario's Bea Cole of London, 11-8, and British Columbia nipped Nova Scotia's Phyllis MacDonald of Halifax, 9-8.

In other afternoon games, the scores were: Ontario 7 Alberta 4; Manitoba 10 Newfoundland 7; New Brunswick 9 Nova Scotia 4.

Alberta and B.C. finished the nine-round round-robin competition with 6-3 records, Manitoba was next at 5-4, Newfoundland turned in a 4-5 mark, Ontario and P.E.I. were 3-6 and Nova Scotia and New Brunswick trailed at 2-7

"It was a bit of a pressure shot maybe, but I had an insurance rock sitting there at the side which I used," the Saskatchewan skip said of her last rock.

Marj admitted the pressure was there from the outset but felt "we were in control of the game all the way."

The Quebec skip, now the closest she's been to the championship in four trips, said a change in New Brunswick tactics caught her by surprise.

"Ivy had her draw weight all week and I thought she'd be drawing to everything we put in the house," said Mrs. Tobin. "But she tried takeout and we capitalized on it," she added of the five they scored in the second end in the rout of New Brunswick.

Three Miss Expo Session

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Three players, including left-hander Dave McNally, were missing as infielders and outfielders joined batterymen for Montreal Expos' first full squad workout of the spring Thursday.

Jim Fanning, vice-president and general manager of the National League club, said he was close to a contract agreement with McNally, acquired during the winter in a trade with Baltimore.

Also missing were unsigned outfielder Rich Coggins, also picked up from Baltimore, and utility infielder Pepe Frias, delayed on route from his home in the Dominican Republic. Frias is expected Saturday.

Young infielder Pat Scanlon came to terms with Fanning in the morning and worked out with the club.

PLAN NO ACTION

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Cincinnati Reds said Thursday that no disciplinary action would be taken against relief pitcher Clay Carroll whom police arrested following an altercation in a motel. Police said Carroll was charged with profanity and with resisting arrest without violence. The right-hander was later released on bond. No court date has been set.

Ski Coaches Need Arbitrator

ALTA LAKE, B.C. (CP) — There's a World Cup ski event scheduled here this weekend but what they need more than skis, poles or even snow is Dr. Henry Kissinger.

The coaches' meetings, which decide what actually goes on here, have turned into marathon sessions and some sort of arbitration is in order.

Competition at Whistler Mountain, 80 miles north of Vancouver, was to open with women's and men's downhill events today, followed by the men's giant slalom Saturday and women's giant slalom Sunday.

After a day of fog on the mountain Wednesday and a cloudy session of negotiations among the coaches Thursday night, the go-ahead for competition was given. But the format has been altered.

What now is proposed—and race chief Hugh McLellan says it's entirely dependent on the elements—is to run the women's downhill today. The men's downhill will precede the women's giant slalom Saturday, with the men's giant slalom ending the meet.

An abrupt change in the weather made it possible for the world's ski elite to get in three practice runs on the downhill course Thursday. Nobody was any happier about the situation than the members of the Canadian team.

"Our chances in the downhill are good; really good," said Dave Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont. "I think we'll have a lot of guys in the top 10."

Jim Hunter of Calgary also believed the Canadian team will do well here. He said the team was prepared and couldn't wait to get started.

"I'm amazingly relaxed here," said Hunter. "We're skiing on our own hill and we are all relaxed."

Among top European men competing are Franz Klammer of Austria, the 20-year-old downhill specialist who already has six downhill wins this season and is second, 16 points behind Italy's Gustavo Thoeni, in the mens' over-all race.

Familiarity with the mountain proved a big help to the Canadian women, practising for their downhill competition.

The first time the women skiied the 7,643-foot downhill course, three Canadians were in the top five. Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., led the women in 1:37.14 and was also fastest the second time 1:36.04. The other Canadian women with excellent training times were Kathy's sister Laurie and Joan Wilson of Port Hawkesbury, N.S.

King Still Undefeated

TORONTO (CP) — Robb King of Edmonton scored his fifth consecutive victory Thursday night to remain the only unbeaten skip in the world junior curling championship.

King's rink beat Missimo Alvera's Italian foursome 12-2 while Jan Ullsten of Sweden lost his unbeaten string in an 8-6 loss to the United States rink skipped by Steve Penencello.

The Canadian rink now leads the round-robin competition with a 5-0 record, followed by Sweden at 4-1, Scotland 4-2, Norway 3-2, Switzerland 3-3, Germany and the U.S. 2-3, France 1-4 and Italy 0-5.

In other sixth-round action Thursday night, Switzerland's Felix Trueb beat edged Hans Dieter Keisel of West Germany 7-6 and Peter Wilson's Scottish rink beat Morten So tum of Norway 7-5, Claude Feige's French rink had the bye.

In the fifth round, Canada beat the U.S. 5-3, France defeated Switzerland 7-4, Scotland beat Germany 8-4 and Sweden defeated Italy 15-9.

The fourth round saw the Edmonton rink squeeze by Germany 4-3, Sweden edge Scotland 8-7, Norway beat France 7-5 and Switzerland beat Italy 10-7.

Three more rounds remain today in the round-robin competition.

Mavety Goes to Toros

Former star of the Belleville junior and senior teams, Larry Mavety has been traded to the Toronto Toros from the Chicago Cougars, of the World Hockey Association.

In exchange for the 32-year-old Belleville native the Cougars received a second round draft choice for the 1975 and 1976 season.

Mavety, this season in 57 games, has acquired 10 goals and 22 assists and in each of the previous two seasons managed 50 points a year.

Mavety has also played for the now defunct Los Angeles Sharks and the Philadelphia Blazers in the 1972-73 season.

Barefoot Bob Leads

LAUDERHILL, FLA. (AP) — The pressure won't bother barefoot Bob Stanton, leader in the first round of the $260,000 Jackie Gleason golf tournament.

Stanton, an Australian now living in Biloxi, Miss., has never won in nine long years on the American professional golf tour.

"But I've won big tournaments in Europe and Australia," he said after taking a three-stroke lead Thursday, shooting an eight-under-par 64 while tramping the fairways of the 7,128-yard Inverrary Country Club course with one shoe off and one shoe on.

"I've been in this position before. It won't bother me."

The 29-year-old Stanton said he has a calcium deposit in his right foot.

"When my foot started hurting, I'd take my shoe off and walk to the next shot. I'd put the shoe on to hit the shot, then take it off again when I had to start walking."

Jack Nicklaus birdied his first three holes and his last two to join a group of seven others tied for second at 67.

Also at that figure were Miller Barber, Joe Porter, Terry Diehl, Bill Rogers, Doug Sanders, Lou Graham and Eddie Pearce.

Arnold Palmer headed a group at 68, four under par and four back of the leader.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg was nine strokes off the pace at 73 while Ben Kern of Toronto had a 74.

Johnny Miller is not competing in this event.

Although a non-winner, Stanton had a solid season last year. He finished particularly strong, finishing one shot out of a playoff in the World Open and in a tie for ninth at Sahara.

He missed only one fairway and two greens Thursday, one of which led to his only bogey. He made nine birdies, six of them after hitting irons inside of eight feet. He reached one par five in two and two-putted, made one 1 0-foot birdie putt and another from 25 feet.

Rose Four Under Par

PALM COAST, Fla. (CP) — Bob Rose of Copetown, Ont., shot a four-under-par 68 Thursday to win the $15,000 Palm Coast Tournament of Champions golf tournament.

In winning for the first time on the Professional Golfers' Association winter tour, Rose wound up with a 54-hole total of 202 to earn $2,500.

Rose had a 65 Tuesday and a 68 in the second round Wednesday of the final event of the winter tour.

Francis One Shrewd Operator

NEW YORK (CP) — Emile (Cat) Francis has coached and won more games than any other bench manager in the 49-year history of New York Rangers.

He hasn't lost his touch this season despite the fact the Rangers have had more injuries than most clubs in the National Hockey League. Only Steve Vickers and Billy Fairbairn have played in every game.

With some shrewd patching of forward lines and Derek Sanderson's ability to fill the breach when necessary, Francis has been able to keep the Rangers at the .600 level in the percentage column and head them in the direction of the playoffs.

"With all the injuries, we've had to work everybody and anybody, and that has got to be a plus for us," Francis said in an interview. "By now, the players are all accustomed to playing with one another."

Despite their league-high total of 205 manpower games lost through injuries, the Rangers are only four points behind Philadelphia Flyers, who lead the Patrick Division. At one point in the season, the Flyers led the Rangers by 17 points.

The Cat seems cockier these days despite the pressure cooker he's been in for years.

Last week Francis exploded when he was asked by a reporter whether he will continue next season in the dual role of coach and general manager. He told the reporter to "drop dead!"

"I've got to keep you fellows in line once in a while," Francis explained later with a smile.

The reporter thought the question was timely because of reports that Red Holtzman, coach and general manager of New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association, will drop one of his jobs next season.

The Knicks are a dismal fourth in their division this season and may not make the NBA playoffs.

"What has basketball got to do with me?" asked Francis, whose record alone should assure him job security in the Ranger organization for as long as he wants it. He has coached 637 games, won 336, lost 199 and tied 102.

Among the all-time coaches in the NHL with more than 500 games, Francis rates second in the percentage column to Toe Blake, who coached Montreal Canadiens from 1955 to 1968.

Blake's all-time percentage mark is .634 compared with .607 for Francis.

If the Rangers make the playoffs this season, it will be the ninth year in a row for them—all under Francis. No other NHL club has done that. But no other NHL team has gone 35 years without winning the Stanley Cup.

Francis has been coach and general manager of the Rangers for 10 years. Twice he gave up coaching, when Boom Boom Geoffrion and Larry Popein took over the team, but the experiments failed and the Cat was back running the bench before the season was out.

Kristas Kim Takes Trot

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Kristas Kim came from behind Thursday to win the featured $3,800 handicap trot in 2:07 1-5 at Windsor Raceway.

The five-year-old mare owned by Wilbur Thompson of Weyburn, Sask., and handled by Ray Remmen of Saskatoon, caught Embry Kid at the wire in the eighth to return $29.20, $9 and $7.

Tuxedo's Pride, driven by Greg Tright, won the co-featured $3,600 claiming pace in 2:06 2-5 in the seventh to pay $24.60, $10.90 and $4.60 and combined with Benjamin Joe and Muddy Don for a $690.80 triactor.

The fourth-race triactor of Benji Kai, Georgia Gene and Farm Byrd paid $564.60.

The daily double of Two Mountains Step in the first and Evie Johnston paid $32.50.

Mr. Chrisedchas and Ellys Fellow combined for a $25.30 exactor in the ninth, while Dardick Blue and Steady Blend finished in the 10th for a $16 exactor.

A crowd of 4,977 wagered $489,567.

TWO SIGN CONTRACTS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets announced Thursday that second baseman Felix Millan and outfielder Jorge Roque have signed their 1975 National League baseball contracts. All Mets now are under contract.

Tension Triggers Bad Sacroiliac

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What happens when one's sacroiliac goes out? This happened to me four times in the past dozen years when bending to pick up something weighing 20 or 25 pounds, once when just pulling up a bedspread.

I use ample exercise to strengthen it, but it happened again. I am a woman of 60. I have been doing non-strenuous bending and stretching exercises and I take walks and ride a bicycle. I have a hunch this problem is a weakness triggered by tension—Mrs. J. R.

Your hunch could be correct. Tense individuals are more apt to have taut muscles. With such people, putting muscles under extra strain, as in bending or stretching, can produce pain, especially in the back.

It is usually a muscular problem. Eight per cent of low back pain is muscular in origin. So can you be sure it is your sacroiliac giving you the trouble?

A sacroliac ailment specifically refers to a disturbance in the disc of the vertrabrae which lies between the sacrum and the ilium sections of the spine. This would be a different matter. When it happens, there can be the sensation of, as you say, something "going out."

If a disc is involved it may press against nerve roots. Small exertions such as coughing would produce sharp pain. Often this situation will correct itself, but the underlying problem will remain and the symptoms will recur. If your pain persists or recurs frequently, and conservative treatments such as heat application, massage and bedrest have no effect, you might be a (rare) candidate for surgical correction.

An orthopedist can tell you if you need such surgery. But I suggest your problem may be muscular and in that case a back brace may be all you need. I would advise you to curtail your vigorous exercise, avoid lifting, and learn to keep your back straightened when picking up objects, then raise yourself by flexing the knees.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We have a two-year-old daughter who suffers from continuous colds and who has a poor appetite. One doctor told us she is inhaling too much cigarette smoke. We both smoke. Do you agree with this?—Mrs. L. V.

Yes, it could very well be true that your smoking is affecting the child, particularly if you are both heavy smokers. Studies over the years have shown that children from homes where there are smokers develop more respiratory disorders than those from non-smoking homes.

The poor appetite could be a secondary effect of the chronic colds you speak of. I can only make the obvious suggestion as to how you can find out if all this is true.

Dear Doctor: I have arthritis and suffer from swollen joints. I have been taking calcium tablets for it. Now, a lady who has been suffering for years with the same ailment says not to take the tablets because they built excess calcium in the bones, causing them to swell.

What do you think? Is it okay to take the calcium?—Mrs. C. H.

Avoiding calcium apparently hasn't helped your friend, and avoiding it is not going to help your arthritis, either. Neither will it do any good to take them. So the argument is moot.

Arthritis, depending on which type you are speaking of, can be caused by such things as infection, joint tissue (not bone) degeneration, uric acid deposits, an injury, even an allergy, but not by calcium in the diet.

As in most diseases where there is no cure by dietary control, a lot of nonsense continues to pour forth about arthritis. Only in gouty arthritis, where uric acid deposits are involved, is there any dietary restriction—and that is of purine food (organ meats chiefly) which promotes the uric acid accumulation in the body.

Research Ship Back From Arctic Cruise

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian research vessel Hudson has returned to the Bedford Institute of Oceanography (BIO) after an extensive cruise in the High Arctic to survey petroleum reserves in the Canadian Arctic offshore area.

The voyage was a multi-disciplinary venture undertaken by BIO's Atlantic Geoscience Centre in co-operation with government, university and industry as well as foreign agencies.

The data acquired cover a broad scope of marine geologic structures from the recent sedimentary history to the deep crystal structures believed to have been formed about 80 million years ago.

The prime objective was to learn more about the formation of the eastern Arctic continental margins, said Dr. Dave Ross, one of three scientists heading the expedition.

About 95 per cent of the work in the 3½-month voyage was aimed at determining the area's geological framework.

Dr. Suret Srivastava said the age of the continental margin is still under debate and some think it may be 135 million years old.

Opening lead — J♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

If everyone got to the best contract all the time, we would be hard put to it to produce a bridge column. Thus, if North plays in no notrump, he is sure of 11 tricks and will come out with 12 if East opens a spade as is quite likely.

When the hand was actually played East cashed two spade tricks and instead of making the normal lead of a diamond, which would give South a chance to fan his hand, East shifted to a low club. This unusual play gave South a chance to show that he was a real player.

A careless player would have promptly laid down the ace and king of trumps whereupon the combination of a 4-1 trump break and 6-1 club break would have cost him his contract.

Our good careful player played his ace of trumps, but his next trump lead was low to dummy's 10 spot. Then he led a club and discarded his last spade. West did the best he could to ruin South's game plan. He ruffed and led his 10 of spades, but South simply ruffed high, entered dummy with the jack of trumps and discarded his three low diamonds on the last three clubs.

Record Established

EDMONTON (CP) — A record 557 traffic fatalities were reported to the Alberta Safety Council by police forces in 1974, compared with 500 in 1973. Among the dead were eight bicyclists, 29 motorcyclists, 64 pedestrians, 190 passengers and 266 drivers. Total accidents in the province rose by nine per cent to 65,900 from 60,400. Only St. Paul and Edmonton reported fewer accidents than in 1973.

Ski Bindings Poor

EDMONTON (CP) — Up to 98 per cent of the skiers using Alberta's slopes do so with poorly-adjusted ski bindings. That's a preliminary finding of a study being carried out by ski consultant Grant Cameron and sponsored by the department of culture, youth and recreation.

Fewer Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of job vacancies dropped sharply in the three months ended Jan. 31 from the preceding three months and from the comparable period a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

There were 57,500 full-time, part-time and casual jobs to be filled at the end of January, compared with 122,100 in the preceding three months and 78,400 a year ago.

Full-time job vacancies declined to 49,900 from 109,100 in the preceding period and 73,400 a year earlier.

The sharp drop in job openings was in the Pacific region, followed by Quebec, the Atlantic provinces and Ontario.
